DON'T SELL IT TO THEM.—One day a young man entered the bar-room of a village tavern and called for a drink. "No," said the landlord; you have had the delirium tremens once, and I cannot sell you any more." He stepped aside to make room for a couple of young men who had just entered, and the landlord waited on them very politely. The other stood by, silent and sullen, and when they had finished he walked up to the landlord and addressed him as follows: "Six years ago, at their age, I stood where those young men are now. I was a man of fair prospects. Now, at the age of twenty-eight, I am a wreck in body and mind. You led me to drink. In this room I formed the habit that has been my ruin. Now sell me a few more glasses, and your work will be done. I shall soon be out of the way; there is no hope for me. But they can be saved. Do not sell it to them. Sell it to me, and let me die, and let the world be rid of me; but for heaven's sake, sell no more to them!"—Ex.

FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.

LETTER FROM ELDER GRANT.

Friday evening, March 12th, I bid adieu to the dear friends in Belfast, several of whom accompanied me to the steamer. Among those who came to bid farewell was the Pastor of the Clifton Park Congregational Church, Bro. Griffiths, and his first deacon, Bro. Henderson, a noble Christian worker. Very earnest requests were made that I should return and talk more about our blessed hope. The Lord's will be done.

My return trip to Liverpool, on the splendid steamer "Optic," was delightful, as when I came. The sea was still, and the sailing most agreeable. I left at eight o'clock, and was in Liverpool the next morning about 7.30. I at once took the cars for London, en route for Salisbury, where I arrived Saturday evening, and was met by Bro. Cyrus E. Brooks, Pastor of the Baptist Church, and Editor of the Bible Standard. He is a true man, who does not shun to declare the whole truth, so far as known to his mind. He is highly esteemed by the church. He is fully settled in the belief of conditional immortality.

I am informed that the majority of the English ministers favor that belief, but have not spoken out publicly, like Bro. Brooks, Constable, White, Starkey, and others. It is to be hoped that something will bring them to the front in this glorious conflict between truth and error in these last days. It is time for every true man of God to speak out boldly before any more are led into the whirlpool of Spiritualism, or the mud of Universalism. Conditional immortality is the Gibralter against which Spiritualism, Universalism, Swedenborgianism, and Catholicism, can make no headway. They lie wrecks at its base. Glory to the Lord for showing me this great truth some forty-three years ago!

A minister took me one side at a large meeting, and said, "I wish to have a little private conversation with you." When separated from the others, he said, "Bro. Grant, since you have received the Spirit of God in a larger measure, how has it affected your belief in conditional immortality?" I said, "It has intensified my belief." He at once exclaimed, "Glory to God!" and added, "I was anxious to learn how you felt, for I knew you had given the subject special attention; and I thought if you was now doubting, perhaps I had better be cautious, for I have been believing it myself."

At the same meeting, another venerable minister said to me, "Do you believe in the conversion of the world?" I said, "No." He responded, "Neither do I." "Do you believe that Christ is soon coming?" I said, "Yes." He replied, "So do I." After some further conversation, he inquired, "Do you believe in the immortality of the soul?" I answered, "No." He at once said, "Neither do I; but they would cut my head off if they knew it."

Is it not time for some of these faint-hearted men to come to the front, and nobly defend the truth of the Most High, and be martyrs for the benefit of those who are being led into infidelity by a false theory, which puts our Heavenly Father in the very worst possible light before the human family, where they teach a doctrine which requires us to believe that God will torment his enemies eternally, instead of causing them to die the "second death," be "destroyed," burnt up root and branch, like the tares of the field, as declared in the Bible? Let heads be cut off for the truth's sake, when men can thereby be saved from the jaws of infidelity, rather than be silent to save a good name.

Salisbury is a city of considerable note. It has a large Cathedral, with a steeple four hundred feet high. In the suburbs of Salisbury are objects and antiquities of special interest; but as I wrote last year somewhat of these, I will pass them over for the present. I began meetings in the Baptist Church Sunday, March 14th, and closed Friday evening, the 19th. Bro. Brooks has been pastor of the church some two years. Sectarian bigotry is abundant in Salisbury; yet there are a number of good workers among the common people, whose labors are a special benefit to those seeking salvation.

The audiences continued to increase from the commencement to the close, when they were anxious to have the meetings continued another week, but previous engagements prevented. Many questions were asked relating to the subject of future punishment, and the state of man between death and the resurrection. The mental darkness on these subjects is astonishing. To hear some talk, one might conclude they had never read the Bible, but had received their theology from the Papal Church, or from Paganism. After a careful examination of the Bible on these subjects, many rejoiced in the truth, and could say the Bible is now an open book to them, whereas before it was sealed. It is comforting to see the dense theological fog give way for the clear light from the Sacred Scriptures. None but those who have had the experience can comprehend the happy satisfaction thus produced. This the writer knows from personal experience.

The afternoon meetings for consecration were seasons of more than ordinary interest and profit. These meetings were of special benefit to the church, just what was needed to fit them for the coming of the Saviour. Most of those who came consecrated all to the Lord, and received new strength for Christian work. Most of the professors of religion are doing next to nothing to advance the cause of Christ. Branches that bear no fruit are useless, and must be severed from the vine, is the plain teaching of our Lord in John 15: 1-8. Many, no doubt, who expect to be saved, because they were once pardoned, will be lost because they have lived a selfish life most of the time since they were forgiven. They ran well for a little while, and then began to conform to the world, seeking its honors, riches, and pleasures. Now there is no spiritual life in them. They have a name to live, but are dead. How sad their condition! The one who attempts to arouse them to a sense of their danger must expect a chilly welcome, and probably cruel abuse; but let us sound the alarm before it is too late. It may be some will be aroused and saved. If they continue in sleep, their case is hopeless. "Take heed," said Jesus, "lest coming suddenly, I find you sleeping." Satan is administering all kinds of opiates to keep them quiet till it is too late. He is making special efforts to draw them into "entertainments," that he may quench all their spiritual emotions, and replace them by sensual pleasures. But few see the perils of these last days, consequently, the greater is their danger.

Saturday morning, March 20th, at 7.50, I left Salisbury for London, where I arrived at 10.35, and at 1.30 left for Frodingham, where I arrived at about 6.20, put up the prophetic chart, and had a good meeting. Frodingham and Scunthorp abound in iron ore, which is easily obtained, being quite near the surface of the ground, and mixed with the earth, like the gold in California. There are a number of furnaces in the town, which are in active operation.

Sunday, March 21st, was a good day in the Lord. In the forenoon the subject was heart purity, and in the afternoon and evening the fulfillment of prophecy, showing we are near the coming of Christ. The people were very anxious to hear about these things. The hall was crowded. Sunday and Monday evenings some came an hour before the time so as to be sure of a seat. Conviction fastened upon the people, and one started Sunday evening in the service of the Lord. There were many good testimonies after the chart talk.

Monday evening I spoke on the signs of the times, showing that the darkening of the sun and moon and the falling stars, referred to in Matt. 24, Mark 13, and Luke 21, are in the past, and that we are now entering into the "distress of nations," spoken of by the Saviour, as among the last signs before his coming. So far as I can learn, no one else in Europe is preaching that these signs are in the past. Most teach that the "great tribulation" mentioned in Matt. 24 is yet in the future, to be brought about by the rise of a personal antichrist; and yet these ministers believe the Lord will come very soon.

If the "great tribulation" is in the future, then the signs of Christ's coming are also in the future, because they do not occur till "after the tribulation." And as these signs are the evidence that the coming of Christ is "near," it follows that if those brethren are right in putting the "great tribulation" in the future, they are not warranted in teaching that the second coming of Christ is yet "near." But the evidence seems positive that we are now this side of the "great tribulation." It was produced by the Papacy, and ended near the close of the last century, after some seventy millions of saints had been put to death by the order of the Church of Rome. "Immediately after the tribulation of those days" the signs in the heavens began to appear, and now the signs upon the earth are coming upon this generation; the "distress of nations, with perplexity."

THE INFLUENCE OF THE LORD'S COMING.

BY [illegible]

The study and contemplation of this subject must be allowed to have its [illegible] influence upon our lives. This truth, the same as any other Scripture truth, may be held and maintained in connection with an unholy life. A truth so great and precious lodged in the head, and its power not realized in the heart, will bring upon us a fearful condemnation.

A special blessing is pronounced upon those Christians who cultivate a watchful spirit, and are found watching when the Lord comes. "Blessed are those servants, whom the Lord when he cometh shall find watching." Luke 12: 37. There must be nothing to do when the cry of his coming is raised but to go out to meet him. We must keep watching daily, hourly, looking for the Bridegroom, and must keep in readiness to meet him at a moment's warning. To be thus prepared, our lamps must be kept constantly trimmed and burning with a good supply of oil in our vessels.

Christians are directed to wait for Christ in a spirit of patience. "Be patient therefore, brethren, until the coming of the Lord." James 5: 7. Confidence, or holy boldness before him at his presence, is set forth as a motive for continual union with the Son. "And now, my little children, abide in him; that, if he shall be manifested, we may have boldness, and not be ashamed before him at his coming." 1 John 2: 28. The importance of this our thoughts cannot fully comprehend, and no language can well exaggerate. We must realize that we have no sufficiency in ourselves; self must be lost sight of; and our dependence, our faith, our hope must all centre on him.

But it is necessary also to bear testimony to the Lord's soon coming. If the Lord has revealed this truth to us, we must preach it from the pulpit and the platform; we must proclaim it in the prayer-meeting and in the social circle. If we see others unmindful of the subject, we must endeavor to arouse them to the importance of it.

This divine message requires to be told authoritatively. If given in a hesitating, doubtful way, few will believe it, and fewer still will give heed to it. If we really believe the Word, we must speak it with certainty; we must not leave the people in doubt as to whether we do or do not believe it. If we believe that Jesus is coming again, let us give no uncertain sound on this subject; let us ring it in the ears of all when an opportunity offers itself. If men will not hear us, that is their sin; if they sneer and scoff, we have delivered our souls.

And earnestness is required in the proclamation of this truth. If this truth does not demand earnestness, what truth does? What truth is more frequently or more plainly taught in Scripture? And what truth is more important? What truth, in its reception, is accompanied with a greater blessing? What truth, in its rejection, is attended with a greater curse? How will we meet Jesus with joy, if we are not in earnest in endeavoring to awaken the attention of others to his coming? We cannot understand the sincerity or honesty of those who profess this truth, and yet are indifferent about its reception or rejection.

The fact that the world cares nothing about this matter,—the fact that even the professing church is indifferent to it, or ignores or explains away the plainest texts in the Bible,—the fact that we find it so difficult to get people to listen to our message, should stir us to the very depths of our nature, and set us on fire with holy zeal to create a new interest in the doctrine. To this we should devote both time and money, and intellect and prayer. And for this we should be willing to sacrifice ease, and position, and reputation. If we were more earnest, some would be attracted by our earnestness who are now indifferent. If we were more earnest, more souls would be drawn to listen to the glad tidings of the kingdom. If we were more earnest, we should trifle less and pray more, and God would answer our prayers, and give success to our labors, and then we should be filled with joy and gladness. The world will listen to an earnest man. If a man is sincere and earnest, he will gain listeners even though it is error that he advocates.

Church history furnishes numerous examples of persons who have been successful in propagating erroneous views through their earnestness and zeal. O how much is earnestness required in the cause of truth. Many bring to its advocacy a feebleness unworthy of the truth. But it is only as we are earnest, it is only as we are seriously occupied in proclaiming the truth, that we can be accounted faithful.

It is to be feared that some, settled fully in the belief that the wrongs of the world will never be righted till Jesus comes, just look and wait quietly for that time, as if they were thereby relieved from all obligation to labor in lessening the amount of evil and misery, and in increasing the amount of good and happiness.

In the day that is coming, all the work we do for God will be examined. "Each man's work shall be made manifest: for the day shall declare it, because it is revealed in fire; and the fire itself shall prove each man's work of what sort it is." 1 Cor. 3: 13. Does not this solemn thought teach us to look well to our motives? We shall not be rewarded for works which are done from wrong motives. As the main-spring of all our works, there must be a pure heart. There must be behind all our preaching and writing the constraining love of Christ. The Lord at his appearing will only approve such works as have been done for his glory. How this thought should lead us to frequent searchings of heart.

BY M. B. [illegible]

"Know ye that the kingdom of God is nigh at hand."

When shall we know it is nigh at hand? When ye shall see all these things come to pass, then know. With what certainty may we know? As you know that summer is at hand after the snow has gone, and as the trees, when their branches are yet tender, put forth leaves, so likewise ye, when ye shall see all these things, know. Have we knowledge now that the kingdom is at hand? We answer, Yes. Does any one doubt that summer is at hand? No. Neither can we doubt from the same reasoning and evidences that the kingdom is "nigh at hand." It has become a fact, which is knowledge, that the signs which should precede his coming and kingdom are things of the past, as foretold by Jesus. Every line of prophecy points to that event. Also the tribulation days on the saints has had its fulfillment, which no one can doubt; and the sun in its turn, which was darkened, has acted its part; also the moon and stars have in turn given in their testimony to the same fact; and distress of nations with perplexity, with the sea and waves roaring, are witnesses that we know. And now the powers of the heavens are being shaken, which causes men's hearts to fail them, looking for the things that are coming on the earth; and then shall they see the Son of man coming in the clouds with power and great glory. It is time for the saints to look up and lift up their heads, for their redemption draweth nigh.

Now comes in the parable by which we have knowledge. Millions of the dear saints have died in the faith, but we have knowledge they walked by faith, not seeing what we see in this age; they died without the sight. Some of the dear saints now living will never die, for "whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die," said Jesus.

I had a good illustration of faith and knowledge given me while in the town of R——. I inquired the way to Bro. R's house in the village. The brother said to me, "I can direct you, and if you follow my directions you will make no mistakes, and you will know the house he lives in without further inquiries. You will go up the street until you come to Main St.; then turn to the left, and as you pass on you will see a bend in the street. After passing that, you will come to four corners. On the left you will see a red store on the corner. You will keep the straight course, and on your right you will see a square house on a knoll, painted white. You will still keep the same course, passing many houses. You will see a house just like the one described on the same side of the street. After passing that one you will go down a hill, at the foot of which on your right you will see a wood-colored house of one story, end towards the road. In that house Bro. R. lives."

With my chart I start out. First I go up the street, then turn to the left, then watch for the bend in the street, then pass on and look for the red store on the corner, where the street crosses; my next object is the square house, painted white, on the knoll to the right. I pass the house built in the same style, on the same side. This is my last sign. Now comes knowledge. As I pass down the hill I see the wood-colored house. Now faith is turned to sight. I know, as I have confidence in my guide, that Bro. R. lives here. No doubts now.

In like manner, one by one, the signs Jesus gave us are in the past. We know the kingdom so long looked for is at hand. Cheer up, lone pilgrims! we can now see the bright rays of coming glory, which will soon dispel the gloom that now hangs so heavily over this world of sorrow.

Mt. Vernon, Me.

THE ABUNDANCE OF GRACE.

BY L. C. KERR.

"Moreover the law entered, that the offence might abound. But where sin abounded, grace did much more abound." The apostle tells us that sin was in the world before the law, but that sin is not imputed where there is no law. By the law here referred to is, doubtless, the law given by Moses upon tables of stone, for in the next verse (14th) he says, "Sin reigned from Adam to Moses." Not but what sin was the same horrid monster before the law entered, in the sight of Deity as after, but the law served as a light in which sin could be clearly seen. The deceitfulness of sin was distinctly revealed in the light of the law.

Paul says that he had not known sin except the law had said, "Thou shalt not covet." Rom. 7: 7. "But sin, that it might appear sin," or "that sin by the commandment might become exceeding sinful." But he continues, and tells us that when the commandment (law) came, sin revived (lived again), and he died. For without the law sin was dead. He says then that while sin was dead he was alive, but as soon as the law came, sin lived and Paul died. He finds that he has transgressed a law, the penalty of which is death, and he must die, and nothing can save him except the grace of the Creator. All hope is gone; all means of life is cut off upon the revival of sin. It brings with it all his criminality, and the penalty must, sooner or later, be met by him. All have likewise sinned, and come short of the glory of God.

God has included all under sin, that he might have mercy upon all. Sin brought death, and death reigns, in consequence of transgression, over the entire human family. Sin and death abound; but the text assures us that when they abound, grace does much more abound.

This great fact opens up before us the infinite wisdom and mercy of our blessed Creator. He has included all under sin that he might have mercy upon all. His mercy is felt just where it is needed. "Where sin abounded, grace did much more abound." Sin was great, but grace was still greater. The malady proved fatal, but the remedy was vital. The grace of God that bringeth salvation had now appeared unto all men, and it pleased God to manifest this grace in and through the person of his dear Son. So we read, "The law was given by Moses, but grace and truth came by our Lord Jesus Christ." (John 1: 17.) Moses, in giving the law, simply showed us where we stood, and what we had lost by transgression, without showing or pointing to a way of escape; but Christ, through the gospel of grace, shows us the way out of this dilemma.

What a good thing it would be for the world if all could see that God does not save men on account of their goodness, but on account of their wickedness. It is just because men are sinners that such gracious provision was made, and not because the subjects of salvation have so much innate goodness. Christ says, "I came not to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance." The more wicked men are, the greater need of a Saviour. There are none so low in the scale of moral depravity but can find in this Saviour just the remedy for their sin, and the source of elevation to lift them out of the pit of ruin and woe, to take them from the service of satan, and place them among the sons and daughters of God. What a mercy!

Webster defines "grace" thus: "The divine favor toward man; the mercy of God, as distinguished from his sovereignty or justice, and also any benefits or blessings it imparts; the undeserved kindness or forgiveness of God; divine love or pardon." So that we are saved, if saved at all, entirely through the divine favor, without the least merit on our part. For just as soon as we begin to talk about merit, or worthiness, or works of our own, the law rises right up and condemns us. We have broken that law whose penalty is death; and all we can say or do of our own selves works debt. "All have sinned," and "the wages of sin is death."

The apostle tells us in Eph. 2d that we are saved by grace through faith, and that not of ourselves; it is the gift of God. Not of works of our own, lest any man should boast. Nowhere in the sacred volume is it hinted that man's worthiness is God's plan of saving him, however much some may argue to the contrary. But it is by the Lord Jesus Christ that we have access by faith into this grace, or favor of God, wherein we stand. (Romans 5: 2.) Justification by faith in Christ alone is the great platform of the Christian's hope. Without him we have nothing, with him we have everything, and by him we "rejoice in the hope of the glory of God." "Much more then, being justified by his blood, we shall be saved from wrath through him." "If through the offence of one (Adam) many be dead, much more the grace of God, and the gift by grace, which is by one man, Jesus Christ, hath abounded unto many."

THE ATONEMENT.

The Importance and Scriptural Philosophy of the Atonement.

An Essay read at the Worcester Convention,

BY I. C. WELLCOME.

(Concluded.)

Christ having suffered once for all, and being raised "by the power of an endless life," he becomes a priest after the order of Melchisedec." And because he continueth ever, hath an unchangeable priesthood. Wherefore he is able to save them to the uttermost that come unto God by him, seeing he ever liveth to make intercession for them." "For the priesthood being changed, there is made of necessity a change also of the law." The old is no longer in force, and "vanishes away," but this New Covenant, which had been the acting principle in changing the hearts, and the foundation of the faith and hope of the ancient church, by which, through the typical blood sacrifices, they were pardoned of sin and justified, would have no force or power to give "eternal life" unless it was ratified by its author and testator. "For where a testament is, there must also of necessity be the death of the testator. For a testament is of force after men are dead; otherwise it is of no strength at all while the testator liveth." "For a testament is of force where there hath been death." (R. V.)

The death of Christ then makes the New Covenant sure. Therefore Paul says, "Christ has become an high priest of good things to come, not by the blood of goats and calves, but by his own blood he hath entered in once into the holy place, having obtained eternal redemption for us. "For if the blood of bulls and of goats, and the ashes of an heifer sprinkling the unclean, sanctifieth to the purifying of the flesh, how much more shall the blood of Christ, who through the eternal Spirit offered himself without spot to God, purge your conscience from dead works to serve the living God. And for this cause he is the mediator of the New Testament (or Covenant), that by means of death for the redemption of the transgressors that were under the first testament (or covenant), they which are called might receive the promise of eternal inheritance." See Heb. 7th and 8th chapters. So we find that it is by the blood of Christ that the New Testament is ratified—made sure. Hence it was long before said, "I will make a New Covenant."

It is the blood of Christ that cleanses us who believe, and the ancient church who believed, from all our sins, and freely "justifies us." "For without the shedding of blood there is no remission." Here then we have the conditions of this blood covenant: "Whosoever eateth my flesh, and drinketh my blood, hath eternal life: and I will raise him up at the last day. He that eateth my flesh, and drinketh my blood, dwelleth in me, and I in him. As the living Father hath sent me, and I live by the Father, so he that eateth me, even he shall live by me." John 6: 54, 57.

This figure of speech is used to illustrate that we must receive and believe the Word of God—the record which he has given of his Son. That "in him was life (eternal), and the life was the light of men: . . . that all men through him might believe." John 1: 4, 9. And this is the record, that God hath given to us eternal life, and this life is in his Son. He that hath the Son hath life: and he that hath not the Son of God, hath not life." 1 John 5: 9, 12. "If we walk in the light, as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jesus Christ, his Son, cleanseth us from all sin." And in the new song to be sung by the redeemed multitudes as they rise from the dead in "the first resurrection," they address the Lamb of God; "Thou art worthy, . . . for thou wast slain, and hast redeemed us to God by thy blood out of every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation; and hast made us unto our God kings and priests: and we shall reign on the earth." Rev. 5: 9, 10.

It is his blood, and not his death, which has efficacy to cleanse the defiled conscience from sin. Not the sin of eating the fruit of the tree of knowledge of good and evil; neither the sin of violating the ten commandments: but the sin of disbelieving God's record of his Son. Disbelieving the gospel of Christ—the good news concerning "our passover sacrifice," our righteous Mediator. For "through him is preached unto us the forgiveness of sins." "And by him all that believe are justified from all things, from which we could not be justified by the law of Moses." Acts 13: 39. And although this department of the atonement is limited to believers, yet it is free to all who are willing to believe God. "As Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of man be lifted up, that whosoever believeth in him might not perish, but have eternal life. For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." John 3: 14, 16.

THE PENALTY OF THE NEW COVENANT.

This is the dark side of the case, but it is important that all consider it. It is good news to be informed of the dangers in our path, which may be avoided by discretion. "The prudent man foreseeth the evil, and hideth himself." One of the chief results of Christ's atonement will be the removal of sin from our world. Paul tells us (Heb. 9: 26), "Now once in the end of the world (age) he (Christ) appeared, to put away sin by the sacrifice of himself." He is able to do what he has undertaken. And in giving his new law he said, "Hear, O Israel. The Lord our God is one Lord: and thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might." Deut. 6: 4, 5. (Jesus tells us "this is the first commandment.") "See, I have set before thee this day life and good, and death and evil. I call heaven and earth to record this day against you, that I have set before you life and death: therefore choose life, that both thou and thy seed may live, . . . that thou mayest dwell in the land which the Lord sware unto thy fathers, to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob, to give it them. Deut. 30: 15, 19, 20.

Again, the Lord said to Moses, "I will raise them up a prophet from among their brethren, like unto thee, and will put my words in his mouth; and he shall speak unto them all that I shall command him. And it shall come to pass, that whosoever will not hearken unto my words which he shall speak in my name, I will require it of him." Deut. 18: 18, 19. Peter, in Acts 3: 22, 23, claims that Christ was this Prophet, and declares that those who do not obey Christ "shall be destroyed from among the people." The Lord declares by Ezekiel, "The soul that sinneth, it shall die." Ezek. 18: 4. Therefore Christ "forewarns" [illegible] him who is able to destroy both soul and body in [illegible] gehenna fire.

When our Lord shall come again, he shall thoroughly purge his floor, and gather his wheat into his garner, but he will burn up the chaff with unquenchable fire." Matt. 3: 12. Paul also declares that "the wages of sin is death: but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ." Rom. 6: 23. And again the apostle says, that those "who obey not the gospel shall be punished with everlasting destruction." James says, "Sin when it is finished bringeth forth death." Sin must be put away. Christ, our Law-giver, is to be our Judge. God hath appointed a day in the which he will judge the world in righteousness, by that man whom he hath ordained." And when the great white throne appears, with our Judge seated upon it, the books will be opened; then the dead, small and great, will have been raised from death, and will "be judged out of those things which are written in the books, according to their works. And whosoever is not found written in the book of life be "cast into the lake of fire, which is the second death."

Sin and sinners will be blotted out of the universe in love. That love which gave us the Son of God, to cleanse us from sin, and make us pure and holy, and to give us eternal life, and an eternal home, will not suffer the rejectors of it to live on in sin and sorrow eternally. They must cease to be. Then "every creature which is in heaven, and on earth," . . . will say, Blessing, and honor, and glory, and power be unto Him that sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb, forever and ever." Rev. 5: 13. This is the final result of the atonement of our Lord Jesus Christ for a lost world.

Those who desire to see an elaborate argument on this all-important subject, in all its points, should read our book entitled, "The Plan of Redemption."

BIBLICAL CRITICISM.—John 1: 35.

BY J. SIBLEY.

"The next day after." What? After his baptism. So says the note in the Blessed Hope Quarterly, and so say people generally; but I think that a careful examination of the subject will show the answer to be incorrect. I think the day referred to is the day "when the Jews sent priests and Levites from Jerusalem to ask him, Who art thou?" Verse 19.

I will now give some of my reasons for this conclusion. If we take the position that it was the next day after his baptism, then we make John contradict all three of the other Evangelists. They tell us that from the banks of Jordan, after his baptism and the descent of the Holy Spirit, he went into the wilderness, where he remained forty days. Matthew says, after describing his baptism, "Then was Jesus led up of the Spirit into the wilderness to be tempted of the devil." Matt. 4: 1. Luke says, "And Jesus, being full of the Holy Ghost, returned from Jordan [where he had been baptized—see previous chapter], and was led by the Spirit into the wilderness." Luke 4: 1. And Mark is still more particular and emphatic, and says, "And straightway coming up out of the water he saw the heavens opened . . . and immediately the Spirit driveth him into the wilderness. And he was in the wilderness forty days." Mark 1: 10-13.

He endured his trial in the wilderness before he entered upon his ministry; but the "third day" after the events narrated in the lesson Jesus began his work by turning the water into wine at the marriage feast in Cana of Galilee. John 2: 1. From his baptism Jesus went into the wilderness, where he remained forty days, and after he had met the enemy, and come off victorious, he came forth to gather his disciples and enter upon his ministry. He came back to Jordan, where John continued baptizing. John saw him approaching, and exclaimed, "Behold the Lamb of God!" This was the first opportunity that John had had to introduce him, for from his baptism he had gone immediately into the wilderness, and forty days or more had passed and John had seen nothing of him; but now he was rejoiced to see him coming to him again. How did he know him? He says, "I saw the Spirit descending from heaven like a dove, and it abode upon him." When was it? At his baptism, upwards of forty days before. With this view all is harmonious.

THE man who begins the day with prayer will be very likely to end it with thanksgiving.

THE TIME OF THE FIRST ADVENT.

What period does the Bible recognize to be the first coming of Christ? It is evident that Jesus made his first advent on time, for Paul says, "When the fulness of the time was come, God sent forth his Son, made of a woman, made under the law, to redeem them that were under the law," etc. Gal. 4: 4, 5. Paul evidently referred to Daniel 9: 25—"Know therefore and discern, that from the going forth of the commandment to restore and to build Jerusalem unto the Anointed One the Prince shall be seven weeks, and threescore and two weeks; it (the city) shall be built again, with street and moat, even in troublous times." (R. V.) Here the prophet clearly states that from the going forth of the commandment to restore and build Jerusalem unto the Christ should be 69 weeks (prophetic time), or 483 years.

On examining the Bible we find three commandments that affected the building of the temple and city. Ezra says, "And they builded and finished it according to the commandment of the God of Israel, and according to the commandment of Cyrus, Darius, and Artaxerxes, king of Persia." The city was only [illegible] finished. The people did not [illegible] the work under the commandment of Darius; not until Artaxerxes [illegible] was the work accomplished. Daniel must have reference to the commandment that affected the completion of the work, for he said, "it [the city] should be built again, with street and mote, even in troublous times." This can refer to nothing else than the successful accomplishment of the work under the direction of Nehemiah.

History gives the dates of the issuing of the different commandments as follows: that of Cyrus B. C. 536; that of Darius Hystaspes, B. C. 516; that of Artaxerxes, B. C. 457. The prophet said that from one of these periods—483 years—would take us to the coming of the Christ. We lay the measuring rod on to the first, and measure off 483 years, and it brings us to B. C. 53, and no Christ. The second brings us to B. C. 33, and no Christ. We measure 483 years from B. C. 457, and it brings us to A. D. 26, and past the birth of Christ thirty years, for Christ was born four years before the Christian era. None of these three periods can be made to hit the birth of Christ. But in A. D. 26, when Christ was thirty years old, he was introduced to the world as "the Lamb of God, that taketh away the sin of the world"—at which time he was anointed from Heaven.

Daniel says in chap. 9: 24 that 70 weeks (prophetic time)—490 years—are decreed (R. V.) upon his people and holy city, in which time six things are to be accomplished, the last of which is to anoint the most Holy One (Cov. Bible); and then in the next verse he tells us to "know . . . that from the going forth of the commandment to restore and to build Jerusalem unto the anointed one, the Prince [R. V.], or the anointing of the Prince, shall be 483 years."

That the Bible teaches the anointing of the Christ to be at his first coming (advent), see Mal. 3: 1—"Behold, I will send my messenger, and he shall prepare the way before me: and the Lord, whom ye seek, shall suddenly come to his temple, even the messenger of the covenant, whom ye delight in: behold, he shall come, saith the Lord of hosts." Here it is positively declared that the messenger (John the Baptist) shall come and prepare the way before the Lord, and then the Lord, whom ye seek, shall suddenly (quickly) come.

Now what preparation did John make before the birth of Christ? You must answer, None, for he was only six months old; but he did prepare the way before the baptism and anointing of the Christ. And we hear John say, when interviewed by the priests and Levites, "I am not Elias, neither the Christ." Then they say, "Why baptizest thou then, if thou art not that Christ, nor Elias, neither that prophet? John answered them saying, I baptize with water; but there standeth one among you whom ye know not: he it is who, COMING AFTER ME, is preferred before me." And Paul says in Acts 13: 24, "John first preached, before his [Christ's] coming, the baptism of repentance to all the people of Israel."

John did not preach the baptism of repentance before the birth of Christ, therefore the birth of Christ is not called the coming of Christ. He did preach the baptism of repentance before the anointing of Christ; therefore the anointing of Christ is called the coming of Christ. Hence the commandment issued by Artaxerxes in B. C. 457 was the date from which the 483 years started, which reached to his first coming at his anointing in A. D. 26, when Christ was thirty years old. There remained one more week of the seventy, in the midst of which he (Christ) should "cause the sacrifice and the oblation to cease," or be put away. And Paul says in Heb. 9: 26, "But once in the end of the world [ages—R. V.] hath he appeared to put away sin [offerings] by the sacrifice of himself."

When Christ offered himself without spot to God, God accepted it in place of all other offerings, which were types of his offering himself. Paul says the priests under the law needed to make offerings daily; but this man [Christ], after he had offered one sacrifice for sins forever, sat down on the right hand of God." Hence the sacrifice of Christ was the last sacrifice. God has accepted none other since, so all others ceased when that was made, and that was made in the middle of the week, or three years and a half after his anointing.

IT is easy to murmur at our lot, and to imagine that we are more severely tried than others. So universal is the spirit of discontent that people often complain of the monotony of their own peaceful lives.

OUR LAST WORK.

Our world is madly rushing towards its awful crisis with the acquired momentum of centuries. Every hour its wild haste is accelerated. Every form of discovery, every invention of science, every appliance of art, is strained to the utmost to increase the speed of all things that move or can be moved. Friction, waste, danger, are not taken into the account. The black tides of multiform evil set towards the gulf of ruin [illegible] force that contemns restraint. [illegible] the telephone, the press, [illegible] the pulpit, are subsidized by [illegible] and seducers, who wax worse and worse. Satan rides in a high chariot, drawn by the winged steeds of all the evil forces known to men or devils. Wickedness accomplishes more in a day, now, than in years of earlier times.

But to this dark picture there is another side. The darkest hour is not all darkness. Satan's victory is God's opportunity. Christ and his friends can appropriate the vast facilities of these times as well as demons and wicked men. The very unrest and excitement which prevail in all the world render it easier to get a hearing, specially for truths which are new to the people. The great monetary crash in 1857 prepared the way for the tremendous revival which followed. The common mind is greatly and painfully exercised as to what is to be the end of the present strange condition of things. Men are ready to listen to almost any explanation of the causes and results of the startling and engrossing events daily occurring. The prophet's wonderful words, "What shall be the end of these wonders?" are unconsciously on a million lips. The most improbable and wildest theories are taken in with avidity. There is a morbid hunger for any new version of affairs. The old fallacy that the world is growing better and is to be converted, is being swept out of the popular thought by the rush and dash and turmoil of these times. Face to face with the colossal wickedness of the hour, the masses regard the driveling of the pulpits about the great progress of religion and the world's speedy evangelization, as a burlesque of sacred things. The common people want something more in keeping with what they see and know to be the actual condition of things around them, and the unmistakable tendencies of society at large. They are ready to listen to teachings that are more in accord with their experiences and observations.

And, therefore, whoever has the courage and the faith to go forth with an open Bible in his hands, and calmly, candidly, solemnly and earnestly unfold to the bewildered masses the inspired solution of this perplexity of the nations, has a better chance to win attention and make truth effective than has been offered in a quarter of a century. The great eagerness in Belfast and many other places to hear Bro. Grant is strikingly in point. And in this country, in many communities, there is a notably increasing inclination to come to our chapels and halls to hear what our preachers have to say about the frightful distempers of these times. And as we come nearer and still nearer to the awful crisis, and as disturbances and calamities grow worse and worse, and wickedness and criminality become more and more frightful, and men's hearts fail them in looking for the things that are coming on the earth, the honest classes will instinctively turn to our pulpits and our publications for the true solution of these disorders. They will turn to us because they know that we claim to find in the Bible the reason and the result of what is now transpiring. And God is calling upon us as never before to be prepared to meet and answer the solemn inquiries of the people, which are sure to increase with the increasing terrors of the times.

Now is our people's grandest occasion. We have come to a brief moment of august responsibility and sublime opportunity. This is the hour of hours to strike anew for God, the truth, and blinded, perishing men. Jehovah is calling us to the front, and he is making a front for us—not of popularity and ease, but of majestic work in doors which are opened and to be opened by his own hand.

Christendom, as such, will not receive the light. They are joined to their idols of false doctrines. But there are thousands on thousands of sincere children of God mixed up with the spiritual blindness of the popular churches, the unconscious victims of fictitious teaching. Could they but hear the tidings of his coming, they would accept the glorious news with joy. Many of these, we believe, will yet see the flashing light of the approaching kingdom, the glory of the Lord gleaming on their present darkness, calling them out from traditional mysticism to take their places with those who shall be caught up to meet the Lord in the air, at the sounding of the trump. For God's real children are not to be in darkness when the Master comes for his own. How significant and inspiring is Bro. Grant's statement that "nearly all the live Christians he meets are looking for the Lord."

Let it not be said the time is too short; not much more can be done. As the great swelling currents of the sea sweep towards the terrible maelstrom, the eddying circles rush to the fatal centre with frightful rapidity. So as we approach the final hour, all things dash on with electric speed; and more can be accomplished in a week now—whether good or evil—than in years in the staid times of our fathers. More truth can be published in a month now than in a decade fifty years ago. If our Lord's coming is to be delayed two or three years, as some of our brethren think, what a mighty work may be done in that time! We need to take broad and comprehensive views of the wonderful opportunity which confronts us in these last pregnant hours, and devise quick and effective methods. Our duty is not done when we have comforted our own people and confirmed them in the faith. If God has committed to us this great and marvelous light, it is high treason against Heaven to put it under a bushel. We are responsible for the proclamation of the evidences of Christ's near coming in every possible direction, by every available means. Our pulpits must speak in the calm majesty of the Spirit's power. Our presses must teem with the urgency of the King's commands. Our publications must be scattered far and wide. Redundant wealth must not contradict our solemn professions. Our ministers must all be kept at work. There should be preaching under tents, in groves, and in every place where the ears of the people can be had. Our mission treasuries must be not the receptacles of stored-up gold and silver, but the [illegible] through which the people's willing [illegible] shall be poured out a holy libation on the altars of God.

Above the sullen murmur of discontent ten thousand voices should be heard proclaiming in solemn accord, "Behold, the Bridegroom cometh!" "Repent ye therefore, and be converted," "for the kingdom of heaven is at hand."

Let there be no fanaticism, no wild excitement, no heated and passionate debate on minor points of doctrine; but let all voices, all instrumentalities, all means of every kind be concentrated on the [illegible] mighty truth of [illegible] and immediate coming, as the only hope for the overthrow of evil and the establishment of universal righteousness and peace.

It is in our power to accomplish more in the next two years—if the Lord does not come—than we have accomplished in the last ten. The universal uproar and consternation invite the calm, solemn tidings of redemption at hand for all who will be wise and turn to God for succor; and Heaven expects us to show ourselves adequate to the grandeur of our opportunity. As Israel went up out of Egypt "harnessed," so we must be found fully panoplied and, under God, master of our grand mission, when sweet angel voices from the parted heavens shall call us from conflict and tears to victory and peace.

MISUNDERSTOOD PROPHECIES.

There is much needless misapprehension as to the correct application of various prophecies recorded in the Bible, and consequently much confusion existing that might be avoided if we should pause to notice to what particular class of prophecies the one under consideration belongs.

1. The class of prophecies containing predictions of sacrifices, if ever fulfilled, must be fulfilled in the age of sacrifices, and not after that age has closed, and another one has commenced from which they are divinely excluded.

2. The class of prophecies containing predictions of death, if ever fulfilled, must be fulfilled in an age of death, and not after that age has closed, and the deathless age has commenced.

3. The class of prophecies referring to national prosperity or national adversity are always based on underlying conditions, whether expressed at the time the prophecy is made, or not; and if the conditions are not met, the promise is forfeited.

The prophecy of Jonah clearly exhibits this last proposition. When he cried, "Yet forty days, and Nineveh shall be overthrown," he did not pause to say, "unless the people repent;" but yet the sequel shows that this was the underlying principle, though not stated at the time the prophecy was given; for it is added, "The people of Nineveh believed God, and proclaimed a fast." And again, "And God saw their works, that they turned from their evil way; and God repented of the evil that he said he would do unto them; and he did it not." Jonah 3: 4, 5, 10.

This underlying principle is put on record, and runs all through prophecies of national prosperity and national adversity, though not stated at the time the prophecy is given, as in the case of Jonah's prophecy, just cited. The record reads thus: "At what instant I speak concerning a nation, and concerning a kingdom, to pluck up, and to pull down, and to destroy it; if that nation against whom I have pronounced, turn from their evil, I will repent of the evil that I thought to do unto them. And at what instant I speak concerning a nation, and concerning a kingdom, to build, and to plant it; if it do evil in my sight, that it obey not my voice, then will I repent of the good wherewith I said I would benefit them." Jer. 17: 7–10.

Here is a clear rule given, covering all national predictions of exaltation or abasement, no matter "at what instant" they may be given; and a failure in recognizing this principle, has led to much needless speculation about the future prosperity of the Jewish nation—a nation that has positively refused to obey the Lord, and thereby have placed the Lord under obligation to refuse to keep his word with them, as specified in this underlying rule; and yet people go on prating about the future fulfillment of these forfeited predictions in some future age. To fulfill them in the future would be to falsify the Word of God, who has affirmed, if you do not fulfill on your part, I will not fulfill on my part; and it is a dead certainty that the Jews have, by disobedience, long since forfeited every national promise ever given to them.

This underlying principle was given to Moses at the very beginning of Jewish nationality, to span their entire national existence, in these words: "And it shall come to pass, if thou shalt hearken diligently unto the voice of the Lord thy God, to observe and to do all his commandments which I command thee this day, that the Lord thy God will set thee on high above all nations of the earth. . . . The Lord shall cause thine enemies that rise up against thee to be smitten before thy face: they shall come out against thee one way, and flee before thee seven ways. . . . And all the people of the earth shall see that thou art called by the name of the Lord: and they shall be afraid of thee. . . . And the Lord shall make thee the head, and not the tail; and thou shalt be above only, and thou shalt not be beneath; if thou hearken unto the commandments of the Lord thy God. . . . But it shall come to pass, if thou wilt not hearken unto the voice of the Lord thy God, . . . the Lord shall cause thee to be smitten before thine enemies: thou shalt go out one way against them, and flee seven ways before them: and shalt be removed into all the kingdoms of the earth." Deut. 28: 1, 7, 10, 13, 15, 25.

All the prophecies of national prosperity for the Jews were uttered subject to the terms here specified; but they have failed on their part, and forfeited their right to national elevation, and have finally been "removed into all the kingdoms of the earth," where they are to-day; and to now insist [illegible] their national elevation in the [illegible] to insist that God will not keep [illegible] with them. Besides, they have [illegible] passed the rubicon of national [illegible], the middle wall of partition having [illegible] broken down, and each man is now [illegible] ble for himself, like the Gentiles, [illegible] ing, in this dispensation, "put no [illegible] ce between us and them." "He is [illegible] who is one outwardly," and "they [illegible] ll Israel who are of Israel." Blood relationship counts nothing in this age, and will count less in the next one. In this age, Jewish sacrifices are out dated; in the next age death, too, will be out dated; so prophecies containing predictions of sacrificial worship and scenes of death, when applied to the future dispensation, are surely misapplied. They have either had a past fulfillment, or else they belong to the list of forfeited predictions which God positively affirms he will not fulfill, the conditions having been disregarded.

The day for the Jews to have become a great and flourishing nation, towering above the kingdoms of the whole earth, has passed forever. Jerusalem's glory in the mortal age can never be seen by the Jews; their last national chance has past. Now individuals, by personal faith in Christ, can get ready to enjoy the scene over in the new earth, where "Jerusalem shall be made a rejoicing, and her people a joy," in the age of immortality. But that will not be an age of sacrifices and dying, for John was inspired to say, "There shall be no more death;" and Paul affirms that Christ shall "appear the second time without sin [sin-offering] unto salvation." To introduce again the typical sacrifices after Christ, the antitype, has come, is to reject Christ. We cannot afford to introduce future sacrifices at such a cost to suit the Jew. He cannot get in any cheaper than the Gentile, and it takes the blood of Christ to save him.

RECOGNITION IN THE KINGDOM.

That question of the passing generations, "Shall we know our friends in Paradise?" will ever and anon come to the front, sometimes in one form, and sometimes in another. How can we know each other after the changing power of Deity shall have passed over us? Will that change leave the child a child still, in order that we may recognize it? And will it leave the sainted sire with his frosted locks and wrinkled brow, in order that we may recognize him? We do no deem this essential to future recognition of friends. If that contemplated change shall perfect our power of recognition, we shall know the infant on sight, even if the change should at once set it forward from helplessness of infancy to perfection of manhood; and we should also know the aged saint on sight, even if the change should at once bring him back to the prime of manhood.

Our change in the power of recognition would be as great as their physical change, so that we should have no trouble in recognizing them, nor should we regret the improvements thus wrought by divine power in an instant, any more than by a slower process. Nor can we see any more objection to such a change in the infant than in the case of the aged sire—a change that shall at once obliterate the helplessness of infancy, the infirmity of old age, the imperfections of physical formation, the diversencies, the excesses, the perversions, and every thing of the kind. If it shall bring man back to his primitive stature, his original color—be that what it may—it will be all right; but just how all this will be, we pretend not to say. We prefer not to speculate where inspiration is silent. It will surely be all right, and we "shall know as we are known"—shall know our friends, and they shall know us.

"Behold, I create new heavens and a new earth: and the former shall not be remembered, nor come into mind," or, as in the margin, "shall not come upon the heart:" that is, the future state will be so perfect and so satisfactory, that there will be no longing after the things of the past; the heart will not desire them. But as we shall sing, "Thou hast redeemed us by thy blood," we shall recollect that we were once sinners, saved by grace, and this will enhance our love for the One who died for us to save us from wrath.

"WHAT CAN BE DONE?"

The above is the heading of an article in the London Daily Telegraph, March 18th, 1886. The writer says: "The distress to be met with from causes beyond control is greater to-day than it has ever been before within living memory. . . . The workmen have pawned their tools first, then the furniture has followed, clothes have not been repaired, rent and rates have not been paid, and there has been a persistent descent on the road to degradation towards that Avernus from which the poor find it so hard to climb back again."

There is neither famine, pestilence nor war to produce this state of things. Provision and money are abundant in the hands of many. Yet "distress of the nations" continues to make its deadly march. People may well inquire, "What does it mean?" But one satisfactory answer can be given; it is one of the last-day signs, as foretold by Christ, that would take place just before his coming.

EDITORIAL BREVITIES.

THE STRIKES are still increasing in number, but the tendency to lawlessness and violence is very notably less. Mr. Powderly and Mr. Gould have been before the Congressional Committee, and each has given his version of the trouble on the Jay Gould roads. The strike on those roads is ended, and the men who left work are still out. Mr. Powderly strongly condemns all unlawful acts by the Knights of Labor, and declares his readiness to assist in punishing, under the laws, all persons guilty of violence. President Cleveland, in a special message to Congress, recommends the appointment of a Board of Arbitration, with power to investigate all cases of disagreement between corporations and workingmen. The present indications are that the labor organizations will enter into politics and seek to obtain their rights by legislation rather than by strikes and boycotting. There is a very strong tide of popular sympathy for the workingmen, so far as they confine themselves to peaceful methods. But a feeling of indignation against the unlawful acts of the strikers is becoming general. No one can tell what a single day may bring forth. But in the light of Revelation it is certain there will be no abiding peace till the divine Ruler shall come and scourge evil and evil doers out of the universe. While Satan lives and lies there will be trouble. But he is doomed to death, and that right soon. All hail the moment that shall end his long, destructive and bloody career! Heaven and earth will clasp hands in joy when he departs—never to be heard of more.

THE DEVIL'S HANDS FULL.

There never was a time before that the elements were all stirred up as now, religiously, morally and politically. The devil has his hands full in keeping up contentions, and our people ought to be careful to keep out of this whirlwind that we have been expecting for years.

Bro. Stockman's editorial in Crisis of April 21, on The Strikes, is the best advice I ever heard for these times. You'd better read it if you have not. Hunt it up and read it, and you will see that we have a cool headed Editor. We as a people are more exposed to fluctuation than other churches, because our organization is so loose. The top rail is often off from our fences, and religious tramps come in and trouble us. Let us keep calm and guard well our folds.

H. MUNGER.

A NEW BOOK FOR THESE TIMES. WHICH: THE NEW, OR BIBLICAL THEOLOGY?"

I have just finished reading this work, written by the Rev. E. S. Stanley, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Manchester, Conn. It is a well written, able defence of Bible doctrine, commencing with the God-created heavens and earth, also the creation of man by the same Almighty power. He then follows the forfeiture of life by man's disobedience in eating what God told him would result in death. Then by a bold refutation of the "new theology"—Liberalism, in all its deceptive, fatal windings to please men and destroy the Bible standard of salvation. Then in easy, teachable, convincing style, presents the Bible plan of salvation by Christ's death and resurrection, by contrast with the errors that are flooding the world at this time, threatening the very foundation of our holy religion, namely, the Scriptures of divine truth, the Holy Bible. Commencing with fallen man, and finding his Christ to save and redeem, he follows the material man through this material world of trial life, gets the man fitted for future life, finds the same man in death, lifts the same flesh man out of death and sheol by a resurrection, then settles the same flesh man of Christ in the world to come with immortality and eternal life. He finds the disposal of the wicked, the unbelieving, is by "everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord," as by Bible promise, as well as by the new theology, which says God is everywhere, and the wicked are to have everlasting destruction from his presence, therefore they must be nowhere—no place to be found for them, and no them to be found.

In his thirty-three propositions, lightly touched with a wise hand, he has fully shown the new theological and liberal departure to be a wide departure from evangelization in the past, and by his Bible deductions and logical Bible teaching, from the birth of creation till its reconstruction by a new heavens and new earth, which is the world to come, the restitution, the saints' inheritance, the home of the little flock.

The book should be spread far and wide. It will pay for reading. Every Methodist minister should have it, and every member of the church should read and compare it with Bible. Send in your orders to the Crisis Office, and send forth the light speedily.

A CHEERFUL RESPONSE.

I was much comforted in reading the report of the Conference convened at Park Hill, Neb. They are taking hold of missionary work in good earnest, and I trust their heartfelt zeal will inspire all who read it to take hold with them, and imitate their worthy example. My daughter, Mrs. Lizzie S. Wallace, and myself wish to join the fifty cent fund, for which I here enclose $1.00, with the hope of seeing the list roll up to hundreds and thousands in a few months. I have been anxious for the success of our dear missionary brethren in foreign lands, who are working so hard and practising so much self-denial for the spread of Advent truth. And it has been a source of much regret that I could not aid them only in a small way in addition to my humble prayers. But now a systematic way is open by which the long-desired object may move rapidly forward.

It is said, "Many hands make light work." Come then, dear brethren and sisters, one and all, join right in with this blessed work, and those who cannot give 50 cts. can perhaps give 25 cts., and four of them will make a dollar. Thus you can club together and send it right on, and not only comfort the hearts of our good missionaries, but the heart of our good Editor, who with them works so untiringly for the cause of Christ and his glorious gospel.

I am still feeble in body, "shut up, and cannot come forth," laid aside from any public work save by my humble pen, and the distribution of tracts and our good papers, which I continue to send forth among the people.

OUR BOOK TABLE.

THE CHRISTIAN'S SECRET OF HOLINESS. By MARK GUY PEARSE.
Twenty-seventh thousand English edition. First thousand American edition.
A. C. Publication Society, 144 Hanover Street. J. HEMENWAY, Agent. P. O. Box 5140.

This is decidedly the best work on holiness we have yet seen. In grasp and scope of conception; in freshness and vigor of expression; in freedom from the extravagance and rashness which mar many works on this important scriptural subject; in richness of experimental power; in strength and conclusiveness of biblical argument; in close scrutiny of false experiences; in direct and effective appeals to the understanding, the conscience and the heart, it surpasses all other productions of recent times. The reader, whether in sympathy with the author's views or not, will be borne along by an ever increasing interest and relish. In all respects this book is decidedly taking. It is a providential gift to Christians of every name. It cannot fail to promote heart purity and spiritual power. Our people cannot do a better thing for themselves, touching personal readiness to meet our Lord, than to purchase and read, re-read and study this book, along with their searching of the Scriptures. It is neatly bound up; contains nearly three hundred pages, and is on sale at the Crisis Office at the low price of 75 cts. postpaid.—EDITOR.

AN EXPOSITORY TREATISE on various parts of the BOOK OF REVELATION, embracing remarks on the New Creation in the Glorified Earth, with a Poem on the New Jerusalem. By S. S. Brewer. Manchester, N. H. Price 20 cts. by mail.

In this little work of some eighty pages the author, who is well known as one of the earlier Advent writers, treats the subject with skill and ability, in an excellent spirit, and his views deserve careful and general attention.—EDITOR.

"THE CHRISTIAN'S SECRET OF HOLINESS."

I have just finished the reading of this treasure. It is truly a book for the times, free from mysticism, plain, simple, truthful, directing the reader at once to Him (not themselves) as the perfection to be obtained. "In him [Christ] all fulness dwells," and of that fulness we all may be made partakers. Let all obtain the book, read and inwardly digest, and they will surely be well paid, and will rejoice in the Lord.

CHURCH NEWS.

Bro. Stockman:—Some of the brethren of Westfield have had the kindness to furnish us with means to hold a few meetings. Brothers Enoch and E. A. Phelps were asked to come, and the Lord opened the way so they could come. They held their first meeting April 11th. Although some were opposed to the truth, yet the Lord softened their hearts, and eight persons have said, "As for me I will serve the Lord." Meetings will be continued, if the Lord will. I wish to say that Sr. McKinstry did a great work here by presenting her lectures last winter. May God add his blessing. Your Brother in Christ.

Whately, Mass. E. E. WOOD.

Bro. Stockman:—For the encouragement of the many readers of the Crisis I would say that the Lord is wonderfully blessing us here at Great Works in the salvation of sinners. He sent Sister Anna Smith to labor with us, and the whole community has been stirred and deep conviction rests on the people. Friday evening five young men made a start for the kingdom, and we expect that this is a few drops only before a more plentiful shower. I thank God that the blood of Christ can make us every whit whole if we will but believe. I think that when we are in the right place where the Lord can work through us we shall see sinners saved. May the Lord help us all to consecrate ourselves—soul, body, and spirit—to his service, so that we may be ready to meet him at his coming and kingdom. Pray for us, and pray that the Lord will bless Sister Smith in her work.

South Berwick, Me. SARAH E. GOODWIN.

BRO. S. H. SPILLMAN writes from Wasepi, Mich:—"Perhaps some may be interested to hear that by the labors of Eld. John Carver, of Marcellus, Mich., a small body of believers is organized here. They are poor in this world's goods, but rich in faith. Eld. Carver is an earnest worker in the gospel. He has thus far given his time and labor to fit a company ready to hail with gladness the coming King. He commenced meetings here on the 3d inst., which were well attended. Opposition is giving way to some extent. We ask an interest in the prayers of God's children that much good may be accomplished at these meetings, and many in this part of Michigan may be led to see the truth, and by obeying be ready to hail that glad day. Eld. Carver intends to hold meetings here again, and in adjoining neighborhoods, about the 12th of June next."

Bro. Stockman:—We feel that a great battle with principalities and powers is being fought in Westboro, Mass., but blessed be the name of the Lord, we hear the voice of the Captain, saying, Forward, on in the name of Israel's God! The battle is the Lord's. He sent Bro. Matthewson here April 18th. Grandly the old flag waved aloft, and we hope, the Lord willing, he will be with us another Sabbath. The little broken band have been passing through sore trials of faith. Last fall, when it seemed as though people were just getting hungry for the word, the catholics hired our hall, and no door seemed open to us; but we took it right to the Lord in prayer. He it is in whom we trust. So we pledged together to ask him to open another door. Meantime we continued to meet for prayer at private houses. All at once one not of our number, an unconverted man, seemed stirred to help us in that direction, but the way was blocked up again. The skating rink was opened, and our way seemed to brighten. Just then by incendiary or some cause, the Catholic church was burned so they hired the rink away from us, as they could pay ten times as much for it. The second time they seemed to triumph. We had not only engaged the rink, but engaged Bro. Matthewson, and we felt that we must go forward some way. So we succeeded in getting a place, though at a price which seemed above our means. But we met in the name of the Lord, and we had a glorious time. We took up a wonderful collection, and were encouraged to make an appointment for another Sunday, and Bro. Matthewson will fill it. Two at our evening meeting arose to ask our prayers. This comforted us, so we purpose to go on, just asking the Lord to open a way for us. He has gold and silver enough. We will wait on him.

SR. BAILEY.

Westboro, Mass.

J. F. CLOTHEY writes from Bangor, Me:—"Bro. Stockman:—Sunday last (April 18th) was another day of special blessing from the Lord. In the morning two wanderers came back to Father's house, and at the evening meeting three came forward for prayers. Truly the Lord is at work among us. To God be all the praise."

WILMINGTON, DELAWARE.

I closed my year's pastorate with the "Household of Faith" Church, in the above city, the last Sunday in March. And it affords me great pleasure to state it was, all things considered, one of the most profitable and precious years of my Christian ministry. I shall ever hold them in grateful remembrance for their great kindness and tender solicitude for their minister and his afflicted wife. They were ever ready to co-operate with their Pastor in all good things, and had it not been for their great financial embarrassment, much more might have been done; and the tender relations and cordial sympathy existing between Pastor and people would have continued without (as I was assured on all hands) scarcely a dissenting voice. In parting with them it is pleasant to reflect that for the last four or five months the spiritual interest rose steadily. Prayer meetings more than doubled in attendance, and were usually seasons of wonderful power. No wonder that backsliders were reclaimed and sinners converted, for

"Heaven came down our souls to greet,
And glory crowned the mercy seat."

At different times spiritual minded persons from among the Methodists and Baptists hearing about our good meetings, would come in, and declare at the close they never attended better in all their experience. There was, as might be expected, a healthy increase in the congregations, and the closest attention given to the preaching of the Word, and the Sabbath School rose from an average attendance of forty-five to one hundred. This is a very encouraging and hopeful omen. May it continue to increase, and the dear Lord bless more and more all connected with this noble work is the prayer of their late Pastor.

This church, I am happy to state, were with few exceptions united in the great cardinal doctrines that distinguish us as a people. There was, it is true, a few who held to the non-resurrection of the wicked, and no personal devil, probation in the age to come, return of the Jews, etc. But they never made these things prominent, or pressed them to the distraction of the body, affording a noble example to many I could name who have promoted division by making a hobby of them. And the Pastor never felt it his duty to berate these brethren on account of these differences, and I will do them the credit to state, none pulled truer for the promotion of the general interest, or stood closer to their Pastor in all Christian ways. Only ten were added to the church during the year, but these were all (excepting one) heads of families, and all contributing members, and are and will be a blessing to the church, I feel assured.

A word about their present financial condition, and I am done. The last Sabbath I was with them, a report by the Official Board showed they were owing a floating debt of about $1400. Beside the $5,600 in loan, only $400 of the floating debt, which was due the loan was pressing. Through the clemency of the President of the loan, he proposed if they would raise $125 now, and keep the payments up in the future, the other might stand at six per cent, instead of fining ten per cent, as their rules demanded. This encouraged the church to make another effort, so they pledged, there and then, to pay $100 the next Sabbath, and also pledged $30 per week. To keep matters square in the future they must reach $35 per week to sustain preaching. This they could not do at present, so will have to do without a Pastor till they can.

Had the brethren throughout the country responded to the two hundred appeals sent out to the amount of $400, to pay up what was behind in the loan, they could have had pastoral watch-care, which they need very much. But all the response up to the time of closing my labors was $6 from the church in Bristol, R. I., of which Bro. A. A. Hoyt is Pastor, and $3 from Sr. Stoddard, Pastor of the church of Edinboro, Pa., and Bro. Wait of Sandy Hill, N. Y., $10.00, who responded before the appeals were sent out, for which the church and the writer render thanks. All I have to say is, that all who received the appeals, and failed to respond, missed the blessed satisfaction of helping a noble company of believers in their struggles to "hold the fort"—and it is not too late yet.

Beloved brethren and sisters of the Wilmington church, I am still with you in spirit, and will not cease to pray for you. The fervent prayers for your late under shepherd will never be forgotten. They are and will be fragrant in my memory while life shall last. Never do I expect to be associated with a more loving flock. What a cheering thought that earth's dark night of weeping will soon be gone! Yes,

"The crowning day is coming by and by."

Yes, "even at the door." Then the meeting never to part! Until then, beloved, farewell. Yours affectionately,

GEO. W. WRIGHT.

GOOD NEWS.

Daniel sends another good report of the spread of the truth. Success attends every effort. The Lord set us to work, and it was because this work was to be done, and souls to be converted in India through these truths. The money expended this way pays more than six per cent. I. C. WELLCOME.

"Bangalore, India, Oct. 30, 1885.—My Dear Brother, I have received the tracts you sent me by the care of Bro. Cress. I have sold two copies of Mr. Wellcome's "Exposition of Matt. 24th and 25th chapters," and nine copies of the American Quarterly Journal of Prophecy. I wish to have one hundred Tamil tracts, and six hundred in Telugu and in English, as many as you can send.

"Oct. 26th I met a native Christian, Obed by name. After a long discussion about the life in Christ, he said to me, 'I want you to come on Sunday evening to my house to talk these central truths to my friends.' The next day I went to Pettah Bazaar Street, and distributed tracts to the educated Hindoos, and visited Moses Kaisters, and went to the house of Mr. Luke. Here I spent two hours conversing with him about the life in Christ, then distributed tracts.

"On the 28th I went to the railway station and distributed six Quarterlys, and six of Mr. Pettingell's "Open Letter" to the Congregationalists, and to Europeans, who gladly received them. The next day I went to Soolay, and visited three native Christians at their houses. One Mr. Joshua returned 'The Bible Terminology,' and received on loan 'The Bible Doctrine of the Soul,' by Dr. Ives. The next day I distributed tracts and Quarterlys, and met native Christians in Temperance Hall. Three of them were new to me. One of them said to me, 'Sir, all Christians believe the Lord is coming sometime, and what is the use of your preaching and distributing tracts about it. Every one knows that he is coming.' I said, 'Then our duty is to preach and talk on its practical bearing on every day living. Our Lord's parable, the last he gave, is for Christians who are looking and waiting for the Bridegroom. It explains to us that the Bridegroom is coming, and for this cause they came out from the world. What was the result? While the Bridegroom tarried, five of them (foolish ones) who were once looking, all slumbered and slept. Therefore the Lord's warning is, 'Take heed, watch and pray, for ye know not when the time is.' Then the apostle tells us, 'Therefore comfort one another with these words.' After hearing this he took a poem on the Lord's coming.

"Every morning, from seven to twelve o'clock, I go out for preaching, and the other half of the day I attend to my translating. Even in my writing time inquirers come to my room for discussion. For this reason I get to bed at twelve or one o'clock at night. Please pray for me, as I pray for you all. I do not know who are praying for me and for my work. I am your Brother in the coming King. DANIEL."

THE MINNESOTA CYCLONES.

The appalling calamities attending the fierce storms of Wednesday afternoon in Central Minnesota have awakened everywhere the most profound sympathy for the stricken homes and despoiled communities. Disastrous as have been many of the tornadoes and cyclones in the Northwestern States, this last castastrophe seems to have far exceeded similar visitations of recent years in extent as well as severity. The wires also report a cyclone in Iowa, hundreds of miles distant south and west, and not at all related to Minnesota's sweeping blow. Fortunately no lives were sacrificed at Exira or Coon Rapids, while there is not a family in St. Cloud, Sauk Rapids, or Rice's Station, in Minnesota, that has escaped the loss either of friends or property.

It is interesting to notice the time when such storms occur. Lieutenant Finley, who has devoted much attention to the subject, states that the tornado, with hardly an exception, occurs in the afternoon, just after the warmest part of the day. The hour of greatest frequency is between 3 and 4 o'clock; and they rarely, if ever, begin after 6 o'clock.

During the past fifteen years the disasters resulting from such storms have been numerous and severe. On July 4, 1873, destructive tornadoes visited portions of Ohio, Indiana, Missouri, and Wisconsin, and many lives and much property were lost. Storms of more or less violence prevailed annually thereafter, but the one most noted of 1876 occurred March 10. It was a terrific tornado, in which many persons were killed and many more seriously injured. It was particularly severe at Quincy, Ill., and extended through a strip of Missouri to the northern part of Iowa. Many buildings were demolished, some being taken up and carried long distances from their foundations. The Mt. Carmel, Ill., tornado, June 4, 1877, which also did great damage throughout Southern Illinois, is well remembered. There were some twenty-two persons killed and property to the value of a half million of money destroyed. In 1878, April 21, several of these Mississippi River States were swept by a violent tornado, especially destructive in Illinois and Iowa. As was the case on Wednesday, many of the hailstones were as large as hens' eggs. The tornado was about a mile wide and many miles in length.

Again, on May 23, Southern Wisconsin and Northern Illinois were swept by a frightful cyclone, which began at Mineral Point and traversed the country almost to Milwaukee. It left the same wake of ruin and death. That month was noted for its gales on the lakes and tornadoes throughout the West. The next year, July 3, similar severe storms visited points of Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, and Dakota, with a like tale of sorrow and desolation. Then, as on Wednesday last, St. Paul came in for its share, five inches of rain falling there in fifteen hours. The tornado that fell upon Rochester and other portions of Minnesota three years ago left the same destructive trail.

It is unnecessary to multiply incidents. Enough has been said to show the accuracy of the observations of the Signal Service Bureau, that the tornado season is embraced between April 1 and Sept. 1. Taking the whole United States together it is found that the region of greatest average frequency per year, per square mile, embraces the States of Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Missouri, and Ohio. —Boston Journal.

THE TWO HOUSES OF ISRAEL;

Or, Does the Bible teach that Israel will yet return and rebuild Jerusalem, or that Christians are ever called Israel? By MILES GRANT.

In this pamphlet of 30 pages Bro. Grant presents the clearest, most cogent and conclusive argument we have yet read on this "vexed question." We believe the view which he sets forth is entirely tenable and unanswerable. It should have a very wide circulation. Price 5 cts. postpaid. Agent.

By Wm. F. Collier.

This is a tastily printed pamphlet of thirty-two pages, with tinted cover. The author claims that in the book of Revelation the literal truth is given by symbols. He therefore regards the thousand years as in the past, and thinks it inconsistent with Christ's words to place the resurrection of the just and unjust a thousand years apart. But get the pamphlet and examine for yourself.

EASTER CAROL.

BY THOMAS R. WILSON.

Sing praises! sing praises!
Jehovah has spoken,
The chain of the conqueror
Forever is broken.
Let the bounds of creation
Hear the glad proclamation.

Sing praises! sing praises!
For Jesus has risen;
Bursting the bands
Of death's cruel prison,
Our Saviour all glorious
Has risen victorious.

Sing praises! sing praises!
For angels are singing,
And with their glad anthems
[illegible]
[illegible]

So " [illegible] praises!
[illegible]
To our [illegible],
To our Father in heaven,
As the glad Easter morning
In its beauty is dawning!

WHY DON'T THE ADVENTISTS BACK DOWN?

BY ARTHUR F. MOORE.

We are a strange set of fellows to most people. We've been whipped by "the logic of events" so many times that they consider us little less than fools for keeping at it. And why do we keep at it? We've been looking for the Lord, and so many times thought we saw the end at hand, and his coming, his glorious coming, about to be accomplished, only to be disappointed, that the argument seems, on the face, to be rather against us. And yet we still persist that we are going to see him soon. Now either we have got a little information that the rest haven't heard of, though perhaps not fully and definitely understood by us, or the rest do not believe what they heard about the matter, or else we are strange fellows, and a little off our balance.

Is there any good reason [illegible] who doesn't see as we do. The religion of thousands makes them "new creatures in Christ" as much as ours does us, and they would be just as pleased to see the Lord if he came as we would, but they can't see that the Bible teaches any such thing.

Why can't we make them see it? Because they have got some of the devil's timbers in their theological framework, but they are so proportioned that they make a curve instead of straight line, and the bridge which they are building hits another road instead of the Bible one when it gets the other side of the stream. The timbers seem to fit all right, and the bridge looks strong, and is strong enough to carry all who go on it, but it lands them on another road, where no one is expected to be waiting for the coming of the Bridegroom, and where they are told that he won't come for a thousand years. Everything looks all right to them, and fits and matches well, and seems as if made to go there. But they didn't build their bridge right. They got in the devil's statement, "Ye shall not surely die" (Gen. 3: 4) for timber, instead of God's statement, "Ye shall surely die," Gen. 2: 17; and it lands them in heaven when they die instead of in the grave, with no need of the Lord's coming. And yet it does seem to them sometimes that the timbers don't quite fit, for they can't see why the body should be raised, and some have even concluded that they couldn't fit that timber in anywhere, and have thrown it away. If they had put in the timber found in Gen. 3: 19, "Dust thou art, and to dust shalt thou return," without any hewing, they would have found where the resurrection of the body fitted. But they hewed the soul out of that text, and left only the body to go to dust, and in so doing hewed out the mortice where the resurrection timber fits.

Yet if the whole man "thou" goes to dust, then there is the best of all reasons for a resurrection. He must have one to exist. It isn't enough to say "the spirit returns to God who gave it," for that word rendered spirit is translated so many different ways in the Bible it is impossible to prove that it means a conscious entity. So we see if we begin to frame with the devil's timbers, we find a good many of God's timbers that won't fit, and we have to hew (interpret) them, or—spiritualize them, and throw them one side to be used in some possible or impossible bridge to be built in the future—a very easy way, but it don't fill the contract. Now if we take God's timber only and build, we shall find that men are not naturally immortal, but have the privilege, on certain conditions, if they will take it, of becoming immortal; that they all return to dust, that God has promised to raise them from the dust; and that Christ is coming to do this work "at his appearing and kingdom," and judge them too. (2 Thess. 4: 16–18, 2 Tim. 4: 1.)

Also, we find that certain phenomena in the heavens, and conditions and events among men should warn us that the event is at hand. And if these conditions and occurrences are found in anywise existing at the present time, we are not so very much out of the way in sticking to our platform, even if we have been too hasty and rather premature in our conclusions in days gone by. We had good cause and justification. Right to the point on this head are late articles in the Crisis, by Bros. Couch and Stockman. Bro. Couch seems to show very conclusively that the times spoken of in James 5: 1–9 are upon us, in the colossal hoards of riches, and the widespread labor struggles which distinguish our day and time. The riches are literally heaped together in vast fortunes of private individuals, funds of great corporations, and untold treasures of governments, while the wages of the laborer, and profits of the general mercantile business, are small beyond anything like adequate proportion to these heaps of riches. This exactly coincides with James in the passage quoted. But James says this condition of things is to occur in the last days.

Bro. Couch argues, too, that this is to result in a war of labor against capital, which will be likely to overthrow the existing order of things, and that the Socialistic elements interwoven in the labor side of the question are to threaten the overthrow of governments, and gather men together for that purpose. We see a great deal of this already fulfilled in the widespread strikes, and determined and aggressive organization against the heaping up of riches while the laborer doesn't get proportionate pay, and we see the socialist artfully manipulating all this into an effort against the government at every opportunity, while all the time the whole matter is growing bigger and more difficult to manage, and, as to strikes, begins to result in an actual conflict with the governments, and to be a matter which the governments must satisfactorily arrange or go down before them.

Look at Ireland which has virtually struck business all over the country, and is bound to make the strike universal, if boycotting will do it., that she may attend to these landlords who have heaped up riches out of their earnings! [illegible] sure as there is a God in heaven the English government will go down before that strike unless it makes matters right. Look at Belgium. Look at this country, with its governors of States ordering out troops to force the laborers to continue to heap up riches for one or two men, while the laborer only gets a bare living. This is not making "silver as stones in the streets of Jerusalem," but in the vaults of a few rich men. Governments cannot long exist which do not remedy this state of things, for the people are not as in the days of Rome. They are awake and aroused on this subject.

But Bro. Stockman has shown conclusively that the present governments (of Europe, at least) will exist until "the stone cut out without hands" smites [illegible] them. It will not be socialists or [illegible] rebellions which will overturn the kingdoms, but the kingdom of Christ [illegible] smite, not convert them [illegible] and break in pieces [illegible] them.

So we see [illegible] are in the labor troubles [illegible] that being in the last [illegible] settled, but will go on [illegible] and the only consolation we [illegible] it is, "the coming of the Lord draweth nigh" (James 5: 7, 8); that the more we see the kingdoms and governments threatened, agitated and demoralized [illegible] concurrently [illegible] not the laborer or socialist. "The battle of that great day of God Almighty" will be the battle of God, not the socialist. (Rev. 16: 14, and 19: 19, and Jer. 25: 33, perhaps.)

God's kingdom will be here. The territory is here, and the subjects are here most of them. Some are hid in the dust, and some are at the bottom of the ocean; some are living, and some perhaps unborn; but when he sounds his trumpet, what a mighty uprising there will be! From out the caves, from out the graves, from out old's ocean's briny deep they'll come, that mighty host of God, to whom "shall be given power over the nations, and they shall rule them with a rod of iron; as the vessels of a potter shall they be broken to shivers; even as I received of my father." (Rev. 2: 26, 27, and 3: 21; Psa. 1: 7, 9.)

O, we haven't made any mistake. We are in the last days, and have got something definite to calculate upon. The subject has been so vast that we couldn't grasp it all, and have sometimes been premature; but we haven't dismissed the whole subject, and denied the premises and conclusions because we found we had calculated a little too fast. We are on the right track, and the end is not so very far off. "It draweth nigh." James 5: 8.

P. S. April 15th. It is not a home parliament so much that the Irish strike for as the ability to get rid of the land monopolists. Also I see that to-day's Boston Journal accuses Mr. Powderly, Grand master of the Knights of Labor, of "Advancing the Communist doctrine" in his last threatening letter to Mr. Jay Gould, dated April 11th.

ECCLESIASTICAL ANARCHY.

BY DR. N. FIELD.

The great object of our Western Convention a few years ago was to bring about union and co-operation among Adventists. They had been living in a divided and disorderly condition, with no well defined views of church order or organization. They seemed to think that it was enough to hold the doctrine of the second advent of Christ, without doing anything to prepare themselves or anybody else for that event. We thought we had accomplished our object, and that a better state of affairs would prevail.

As Chairman of the Committee on organization, both at Foreston and Amboy, I made reports embodying the scriptural principles of church organization, which were unanimously concurred in. All admitted the necessity of gathering all believers into churches, and of setting them in order according to apostolic precedents. It was distinctly understood that it was the duty of every Adventist to belong to the nearest church to his residence, and not live in anarchy, a church of himself, a wandering star rambling about like a tramp, claiming our hospitality, eating our bread, and claiming to be independent of every body and every thing human and divine.

Many of our preachers were in the same condition, having their membership in their pockets, amenable to nobody for misconduct or disorganizing principles. While they claimed the right to preach in our infant churches, they would pull down faster than ten men could build up. These independent preachers were afraid of church government. They were not willing to be tried by anybody but their peers in case of an offence against the law of Christ. But if a Conference were to take cognizance of the offence, they would deny their jurisdiction.

After all that was done at Foreston and Amboy, I regret to learn that the same state of anarchy exists in some parts of our country. Men stand off and let our churches die out, and our meeting-houses go to wreck, or be rented out for other purposes, while they attend other churches hostile to our faith. They can find congenial society with scoffers, immortal-soulists, baby sprinklers, and haters of Adventism. The excuse for this inconsistency and wickedness is, that they are opposed to denominationalism! They are not opposed to it with other people, but it won't do for Adventists to be a denomination. Not at all. It is all right to be denominational if it is popular. Some people will actually leave a church of God and join a sectarian church, regardless of their creed. It matters not to them what the popular church believes, or whether it believes anything or not. With my understanding of the Bible, if I were to be guilty of such crimes [illegible], I would expect to be damned.

Here we are after the lapse of nearly a half a century in some localities without organization, system or order—working to no purpose, beating the air. While our enemies are well organized, and adding thousands to their number every year, we are doing nothing to add to our numerical strength. The Campbellites, not much older than we, now number 600,000 members. Why have they thus succeeded? Simply because they organized in the start, and have kept organized. We don't find their preachers neglecting their churches, and attending Methodist and Presbyterian churches on Lord's day. If even their members were to ramble around from one church to another, and neglect their own, they would promptly deal with them. But we are afraid to do anything with such worthless members lest it would offend them or hurt somebody's feelings.

[illegible] say to such of our preachers as want churches constituted on a solid basis, [illegible] determined to maintain order [illegible] in them, take a new departure [illegible] the work right. Build with good material, well instructed in their congregational and private duties; talk plainly, boldly and fearlessly against disorder, backsliding and apostasy; have nothing to do with those who will have nothing to do with [illegible] they will run after the sects, make it hot for them. Either cure them of their independence, or drive them out of our connection.

OUR EASTER JOY.

BY M. H. BROWN.

Wake and sing, earth's sleeping millions,
Sing for joy this happy morn.
For the Lord from death's dominions
Has come forth to life new born.

Joy and mirth now banish sorrow,
Angels [illegible] He lives again,
Holds the [illegible] of earth's to-morrow,
[illegible] o'er sin and pain.

[illegible] Marys, hear the tiding,
Show the saints the joyful tale,
How these at his tomb [illegible]
[illegible] prevail.

Shout for joy each mourning dear one,
Dry your tears and weep no more,
Jesse's son, Isaiah's sure One,
Shall unlock each prison door.

Flowers of grace, spring forth to bloom!
'Neath the heavenly beams come hither,
Hence to glow around the tomb.

THE LORD'S PRAYER.—Matt. 6: 9-14.

BY B. W. DAVIS.

"But when ye pray, use not vain repetitions, as the heathen do." And he might have said, "As many Christians do," for I have heard prayers that were about half repetitions. It is taken for granted that you do pray.

The preacher says (Eccl. 5: 2), "Be not rash with thy mouth, and let not thine heart be hasty to utter anything [word] before God: for God is in heaven, and thou upon earth: therefore let thy words be few." Solomon says (Prov. 10: 19), "In the multitude of words there wanteth not sin." And again, "A fool uttereth all his mind." "Much speaking"—many words, or words often and thoughtlessly repeated. "After this manner" this model as to spirit, simplicity, and comprehensiveness.

"Our Father." This is the address to get his attention. When he hears his name called by one of his children, he is ready to hear their requests, and give them their desires. We need not call his name, as did the prophets of Baal to their God, from morning until night, "Saying, O, Baal, hear us!" Those of us who are parents, when we hear our children use this title, we are ready to listen to what they have to say, and grant them their requests; so our Father is ready to hear and answer when we call upon him. "Hallowed," holy and revered is thy name.

"Thy kingdom come." When we offer this petition, we pray not for the conversion of the world, but that Christ may come and establish his kingdom on earth, and reign forever and ever. Do we desire it? We are taught to pray for it, and expect it near. If it had come in the past, this part of the prayer would be useless to the church down here; but who can think that Christ taught his disciples a prayer that would be of no use after a little while? He did not teach them to thus pray because it would bring it any sooner, for at the appointed time it shall be; but if they prayed for it, they would be looking for and expecting it.

Five literal elements are necessary to constitute a kingdom: A King, a territory, subjects, a capitol, laws. They are all now in existence, but in a disorganized state. The King is away in a far country, and must return before the kingdom can be set up. The territory is cursed by sin, and more or less under the dominion of satan, and must be redeemed from the hand of the enemy, and rebellion be put down. The subjects are under the dominion of death, and must be brought out from under its power, and gathered into the territory. The King must establish his throne, and capitol there. All this will take place in connection with the return of the Messiah, and not before. And thus we see the necessity of offering this petition that the Saviour taught his church—"Thy kingdom come: thy will be done in earth as it is in heaven." We may learn from Psa. 103: 20, 21, how this is done in heaven, and if we so want it done in earth.

"Give us this day our daily bread." This day only is ours. We are dead to yesterday, and we are not born for to-morrow. Then why pray for grace to die by? Some Christians pray all their lives to be received into heaven at last. "No man hath yet ascended into heaven," or ever will. A Baptist minister said we should offer this prayer: "O, receive my soul at last!" all our lives. If we should, God would not answer it, for he has not promised to do it.

Job says, "I have esteemed the words of his mouth more than my necessary food or appointed portion." Solomon prays, "Feed me with food convenient for me." When we pray, "Give us for the day our daily bread," we ask for all needful blessings—"And forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors." He adds afterwards, "But if ye forgive not men their trespasses, neither will your Father forgive your trespasses." The spirit of forgiveness which we exercise towards others is made the condition or measure of our forgiveness. Who will dare to pray thus while he has hardness in his heart toward any one.

"And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us [illegible] still increasing in num[illegible] for his disciples [illegible] tendency to lawlessness and shouldest [illegible] notably less. Mr. Po[illegible] that thou [illegible] evil." There [illegible] which we are [illegible] importance of [illegible] not into the way of [illegible]

"Thine is the kingdom [illegible] the coming of which we pray, is thine; the power to accomplish it is thine, and the glory of its accomplishment will be thine forever. Amen.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

Friday, 12th, preached at South Hope, Me. The Quarterly Conference was in session. My heart was filled with love to God and man. Saturday many come to the meeting, and the hall was nearly full. With two Advent and one Freewill Baptist preacher—Weeks, Knowlton, and the writer—we had a very good meeting. Some shouted aloud for joy. I know some do not like shouting. The Pharisees disliked it. For when the Saviour rode upon the colt the "whole multitude of the disciples began to rejoice, and praise God with a loud voice, for all of the mighty works that they had seen, saying, Blessed be the King that cometh in the name of the Lord: peace in heaven, and glory in the highest. And some of the Pharisees from among the multitude said unto him, Master, rebuke thy disciples. And he answered and said unto them, I tell you that, if these should hold their peace, the stones would immediately cry out." Luke 19th.

Saturday a snow storm commenced, and raged all night and all day Sunday, so we had no meeting at the hall, but I preached to a few at Bro. George Leache's house. We had a wonderful good and heavenly time, sacred fire burning high on the altar of our hearts. Glory to God in the highest! I stopped and preached Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday evenings, March 22, 23d, 24th, and 25th. The Lord helped me in a wonderful manner. Fourteen made a start for the higher life, and one signed for the Crisis.

A number have been converted the past winter. The congregations have been twice as large as they were two years ago. I think them very much given to hospitality. One brother comes ten miles to carry me to South Hope, and then brings me back to Rockland to take the steamships and cars. Bless the Lord, O my soul, for his loving kindness to the children of men, for his mercy endureth forever! Friday, March 26th, preached at Rockland, Me., was there eight days, and preached ten times. I was very much assisted by the Spirit. One made a start to travel in the narrow way, and seventeen made a start for the higher life, to be filled with the Spirit of God. I have labored more or less in Rockland fifteen years, and I never saw them doing so well as they are now. They have hired Jones' Hall. Some of the time there has been two Advent meetings in Rockland, but now only one. The ministerial committee are C. F. Cassens, A. C. Choate, O. Day. There is quite a number of able exhorters. O how blessed to "walk with God, and have our conversation in heaven, from whence we look for Christ, the Saviour of the world, to come and change these vile bodies, and fashion them like unto his glorious body." E. COTTON.

CONFERENCE REPORT.

The North Alabama A. C. Conference held its second Quarterly Meeting with Liberty church, Cherokee Co., Ala., Feb. 27. The Conference was called to order at nine o'clock by Geo. W. Palmer, the President. Ministers present: Elds. W. W. Livingston, F. R. Bankson, Geo W. Hood.

Only two churches were represented on account of bad weather. Hopewell church by John Adams; Liberty by John Roberts and Wm. McElwee. Heard report of ministers. Little had been done since our last meeting on account of the bad weather. Bro. Bankson had preached some at Union Grove, and one was baptized by Bro. McGehee, a young minister who delivered one Sunday School address, organized a Sunday School at Union Grove, and preached three other sermons at different places. Bro. Hood is serving three churches. He had not preached any except to his churches, but is determined to press on in the Master's work. Bro. Palmer, our evangelist, has spent fifteen days in the work. Had been sick for some time, and could not get out, and did not think it prudent to turn out to work in new fields.

By a motion which was seconded, the Campmeeting Committee were retained, and Elders G. W. Palmer and George W. Hood added to said committee. Appointed John Roberts, John Adams and Wm. McElwee a Devotional Committee, and adjourned to two o'clock. Preaching at eleven o'clock by Bro. Hood.

Met at 2 P. M. Received report of stewards. The brethren appointed at the last Conference to deliver the Sunday School addresses, and who failed to do so, are requested to make such addresses at our next meeting.

Appointed the following brethren to deliver lectures on temperance: W. W. Livingston, at Liberty; F. R. Bankson, Hopewell; G. W. Hood, Rock Spring and Lebanon; J. B. Turner, Double Springs and Union Grove; G. W. Palmer, Mt. Home, Shilo and Harmony.

Our next Conference will be held at Hopewell, commencing on Saturday before the second Sunday in May, and hold over Sunday. F. M. THOMPSON, Secretary.

ALL our watching must have reference to the coming of the Lord. In all things we must be diligent and faithful to the end, that we may not be ashamed before him at his appearing. How soon shall all our opportunities for serving and glorifying God terminate? How soon shall we "appear before the judgment-seat of Christ to receive according to the deeds done in the body?" "Let us therefore not sleep as do others, but let us watch and be sober."—Graham.

IT is easy to follow along a path which some one, or a great many persons, have made for us, especially if we wish to do so, but it requires skill and effort to make one for ourselves. Happily, the gospel path is an old one; it has been beaten into what it is by countless footsteps of many ages, and even the Son of man has walked in it to make it smooth for those who follow him.—Ex.

SOUTHERN WORK.

Dear Editor:—My last left me at Edge, Van Buren Co. Ark., at the close of the debate with Dr. Snowden, about Feb. 27th. I continued meetings every night, and sometimes in the daytime till March 5th. The labor was divided between Edge and Rondo. Three were added to the church from other churches, and Saturday, March 6th, we met at the water, when two more were baptized to be added to the church. Bro. C. S. Norman then drove me sixteen miles to Damascus, where I preached that night, and twice the next day. Not feeling well we had no meeting at night, it being rainy too. I slept but little, suffering much from cold and fatigue.

Monday, the 8th, started for Cadron, sixteen miles further; but when I had gone three miles I was so sick I gave up, and rested till noon. After dinner we started again, and reached the end of the journey about sunset, but too sick for meeting. Tuesday, the 9th, rested very pleasantly with kind friends, and spoke at night. That morning Bro. Norman left me and returned home. Wednesday, March 10th, Bro. J. D. Martin, a Christadelphian minister, kindly took me in his hack down to Damascus again, where we spoke at night. Thursday, the 11th, too much rain for meeting, so I rested another day much to my benefit.

Friday, March 12th, took train at Morrilton, and went to Piney, in Logan Co., arriving at 6 P. M. Bro. Whitlock and Bro. Johnson met me at the depot. We crossed the Arkansas river in a yawl, and walked about three miles to Bro. Johnson's house, arriving at 7.20 P. M. A congregation was there awaiting our arrival. Bro. Whitlock and wife, formerly of Pleasant Hill church in Jackson Co., Ala., were the only persons there who had ever seen me before. On the way from the station the brethren had told me that a minister had warned the people against me as a Mormon, and therefore a dangerous fellow. The people waited patiently for us to take supper. I gave them a short random talk on the difference between Churchanity and Christianity.

At the close an elderly gentleman arose and spoke as follows as nearly as I can recollect: "My friends and neighbors, you all know I am no public speaker, but I want to talk. I am astonished. I came near staying at home to-night. I had heard so much about this man I was almost afraid to come, but somehow I wanted to come, and I am glad I did come and hear for myself. Why he is just a man. He looks like a man, and I believe he is a man, and not a monster of a man either! and he has told us the truth. Now, friends, tell everybody to come out while he stays, and hear for themselves."

Saturday, the 13th, met a crowd at Delaware Hall, and among them Bro. W. H. McCarty, who had come twenty-five miles on horseback to join in the meetings. The people gave excellent attention to our talk on the "restitution." At night the hall was full. Bro. McCarty and I both preached on God's purpose in creating the earth—the eternal home of the saints.

Sunday, March 14th, being the day for the Methodist minister, we had no meeting, but heard him A. M., and P. M. He gave us no notice at all, and acted as though he had never taken the first lesson in ministerial courtesy. At the close of his eleven o'clock service I announced meeting at night, and invited him to come out, but he took care not to come. The hall was crowded. While I spoke one hour and a half many were obliged to stand, and two men stood with a child in their arms, and listened attentively. I continued the meetings till the 18th, when we met at the water, and after preaching on the bank of the stream, baptized two.

On Monday night, after prayer, I turned to my text while the people sang. Noticing a small bit of paper in my Bible at the opening of the text, I took it to throw it on the floor when I noticed on one side a printed verse, which read as follows:

"Here lies John Trowlup;
He made these stones to roll up;
And when God called his soul up,
His body filled this hole up."

Who had played the prank I knew not, but I took it as a joke on the popular theology of the day.

From Logan County I took train after baptism on the 18th, and went to Ozark, in Franklin Co., arriving at eight P. M. I found Bro. Lessley and Bro. Fulks waiting for me. After taking supper at a hotel we drove ten miles that night, and arrived at Bro. Lessley's house near Lone Elm after midnight. Friday, the 19th, met a few at Long Branch, who seemed much interested. They had heard that I "would give two or three good sermons, and then launch out on the devil's doctrine."

Friday night the crowd increased. Saturday, the 20th, the house was full. Five brethren came from Sebastian County, thirty-five miles in a wagon, to enjoy the meeting, which was a feast indeed. Sunday the house was not large enough to hold the people. Children's meeting at 3 P. M. We had a blessed time with the little folks. At night the house was crowded, and many came forward for prayers and three for baptism. At ten o'clock that night a man stricken by the word came to talk with us about salvation. We read to him and prayed with him. Monday, A. M., although a busy time with farmers, the house was full, and among them the man who came to see us the night before, his face was radiant with love. The power of God came down as the people gathered. It was good to be there. After preaching we baptized four happy souls. I must not forget to say that on Sunday, at the close of the Sunday School, the superintendent, a Baptist, very unexpectedly took a collection for me, and raised ten dollars. God bless them for it! From there I went to Solgohatchie, Conway, Co., and preached two nights.

I reached home on the 27th, and found all well, and praised God for his goodness to us. While in Logan Co., Ark., I rode Bro. M'Carty's horse one night, and carried Sister Whitlock's little boy "Dinkie." The horse fell with us. In my effort to save the child, my heels came so suddenly on the ground that my hips at their connection with the spinal column were bruised, and gives much trouble. I can scarcely walk without pain. I am now in this city attending the United States Court. The result will be reported in due time with a history of the whole matter. Pray for me.

Huntsville, Ala., April 13th, 1886.

"GRANDMOTHER."

For so He giveth his beloved sleep.

DEAD, did you say?
Mother and grandmother passed away,
Peacefully sleeping in Jesus to-day;
Life's battles over, and life's sorrows o'er,
Crowned with the weight of years,—fourscore and more.
Snow, not more pure, not more spotless and white,
Than the beautiful life of the glorified soul
That now rests in Jesus, perfected and whole.

Fourscore long years
Of sunshine o'ershadowed by sorrows and tears,
Of hopes and of joys, of trials and fears.
Long years, that silvering her head with their snows,
Crowned it with glory, though thorn-pierced with woes.
Yet the grand, mother-heart never faltered the while,
The dear face we loved never lost its sweet smile.
Long years—ah, how patiently borne none can dream,
The waters are deep of the still-flowing stream!

Life's work complete,
Ripened and ready, with God's love replete,
Meet for his service, the reapers of God
Have garnered it safe in the home of her Lord.
Still we weep bitter tears, as the dear Christ doth know,
And wounded hearts bend 'neath a too heavy woe.
Oh, lean on the love that is deathless, divine;
And be still—Jesus weeps for your sorrow and mine.

OBITUARIES.

BAKER. In Somerville, Mass., March 25, 1886, Mrs. Lydia C. Baker, aged eighty-eight years and eleven months.

The deceased was Mrs. Burr's mother, and had lived with us many years previous to her death. She died very suddenly, of strangulated hernia, being sick only a little over two days. She had been a widow for thirty years. She was a model of Christian patience, self-sacrifice and love. I never heard her utter a harsh or unkind sentence. She retained her faculties remarkably; could see, hear and remember as well at her death as at fifty. Her memory was wonderful. Her devotion to Jesus was constant. We laid her to rest in Bakersville, Conn., by the side of her husband, to await the resurrection to eternal life. Eld. Stockman greatly comforted us by words of truth at our home before the departure on the cars to her distant burial place. Funeral services were also held in the M. E. Church in Bakersville, by the pastor. She was a member of that church, and many friends and relatives there saw her face for the last time ere she was laid away.

FRANK BURR.

RAND. In Dover, N. H., March 27th, 1886, Leonard S. Rand, in the eighty-third year of his age.

Bro. Rand was converted in Portsmouth about sixty years ago under the labors of Eld. Elias Smith, one of the founders of the "Christian Connection," and ever after retained his relation to Christ; and though now dead, he is still his, for Christ died and rose again "that he might be Lord both of the dead and living." "Therefore whether we live or die, we are the Lord's." For more than a score of years our brother has been waiting for the coming of Jesus, hoping he should live to see the heavens reveal him in his glory; but, like many others in the same waiting position, he has gone to the grave, to rest till the voice of Christ should awake him from his slumber. He leaves a wife, several children, grand-children, an aged sister, and numerous friends to mourn. On March 30th we endeavored to comfort the many relatives and friends who gathered to take their farewell look of him, with the words with which Paul comforted the bereaved Thessalonian church. May great grace rest on the weeping widow, and all the dear friends.

W. H. MITCHELL.

ROBINSON. In Litchfield, Me., April 10, 1886, of consumption, Bro. C. H. Robinson, aged seventy-three years.

Another good man rests in hope. Bro. R. and his faithful wife were among the first to embrace the proclamation of our Lord's soon coming, and for more than forty-three years have hoped without wavering. They have kept a pilgrim's home, where many of the saints have been kindly greeted, refreshed, and cheered on their way. All their children (four) have been laid away in death in childhood and youth. Bro. R. has been failing in health for several years, and held the things of the world more lightly. During the past winter he has been confined to the house, and it was evident that life was closing. He was prepared to lie down in death, although he had hoped to live till Jesus returned. He arranged his business to leave. His sufferings were severe, and he desired to rest from pain and trouble, and at last calmly "fell on sleep," to await the voice of the Son of God to arise in "the resurrection of the just." Sister R., four sisters, many relatives, and a large circle of friends mourn the loss of a faithful husband, brother, and friend. A very large concourse of people assembled, over almost impassable roads, to attend the funeral, while the writer spoke words of instruction and comfort on the blessed hope, founded on 2 Cor. 1: 3, 4.

I. C. WELLCOME.

LANE. In Millville, N. H., March 18th, 1886, [illegible] Lane, aged seventy-nine years and [illegible].

[illegible] sick for several months [illegible] general breaking down [illegible] the severe weather of March he contracted a cold, which hastened the end. He embraced the hope of seeing Jesus in 1843, and died in hope of a resurrection to eternal life at the coming of Christ. He was possessed of a happy disposition, and was always cheerful and pleasant. He is survived by a widow, three sons and four daughters. He had been a member of the Advent Church in Concord, and his funeral was held at the church on Centre St. on Sunday, March 21st, preceded by a prayer at the house. Words of comfort were spoken by the writer from 1 Cor. 15: 21.

J. A. GARDNER.

BANCROFT. In the city of Hartford, Ct., March 14th, 1886, Mrs. Mary B. Bancroft, aged seventy-five years.

Sister Bancroft was greatly beloved by all who knew her. She was a Christian who for many years had been patiently waiting for the return of the Lord Jesus Christ. She leaves one son and his wife to mourn the loss of a kind mother, brothers the loss of a Christian sister, numerous relatives and friends a benevolent and true helper. We laid her away until the morning comes, full of life and immortality. Services by the writer.

D. MATHEWSON.

HODGKINS. Fell asleep in Massena, N. Y., March 30th, 1886, Ira Hodgkins, aged eighty-three years.

Bro. Hodgkins embraced the hope of soon seeing Jesus about 1843, under the preaching of Wm. Miller, and others who proclaimed it here in Northern N. Y. and Canada. He subsequently embraced the Bible doctrine of man's condition in death, and the resurrection, and lived and died in this faith. We were glad to learn, upon revisiting the place—where we labored a few years ago, that, though the fathers are falling asleep, and scoffers are saying, "Where is the promise of his coming?" the Lord, under the faithful labors of Bro. Burch, is raising up others to fill their places, we trust such as shall be saved. He leaves a second wife and several children and grand-children who are among the honored and respected citizens of the place, several of them being connected with the Advent Church. Services by the writer, assisted by Bro. Wm. Burch, the pastor.

G. C. BOWLES.

She leaves a husband and four little children, the youngest but one week old. While they feel the sting of death, and mourn the victory of the grave, they are not without hope in her death, for they believe she sleeps in Jesus. Funeral services were conducted by the writer. Text, 1 Thess. 7: 13.

A CLEAR CASE OF DIVINE HEALING.

BY PHILO HITCHCOCK.

"The prayer of faith shall save the sick, and the Lord shall raise him up." In December last it was my privilege to visit the sick bed of young Bro. Lessard, of Mitchell, Dakota. He was very sick at the time, and to all appearance was near death's door. At the time I saw him he was unable to sit up or walk. He had the scarlet fever about the first of November, and after three weeks got up and was around the house, but soon began to complain of a severe pain in his head, which soon threw him into convulsions. They at once summoned the two leading physicians of the city, who pronounced the case entirely hopeless, saying that "he could not live through more than one more." Within twenty-four hours he had seventeen more convulsions.

For one month he was under the care of the doctors, and kept failing. During this time he suffered intensely until the last of January, when he seemed to be near his journey's end. From the first, father and mother Lessard and others were pouring out their soul to God with strong crying and tears. But on the 6th of February "they touched the hem of his garment, and straightway he was whole."

The boy expressed a desire to get well when his mother told him of the cases on record of God's healing power. He had prayed much for himself, but just at this moment the mighty faith seized his heart, and he leaped from his chair, clapped his hands, and for a time shouted the high praises of God. Sister Lessard was alone with her son at this time. You can imagine the surprise of father Lessard when he came in to tea to be met at the door by his invalid son, whose face shone with celestial fire, and told the story of what had transpired in his absence. To this day he has been perfectly well, pain and convulsions gone. He says he is well, and gives God the glory.

These facts were sent by the family, with the desire that I write them for the Crisis.

TEMPERANCE.

PROHIBITION IN RHODE ISLAND.

Bro. Stockman:—Thank God the prohibitory amendment to the Constitution of the State of Rhode Island has been carried. "The manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors to be used as a beverage shall be prohibited" hereafter in our State. The vote cast was 14,775 to 9146. The W. C. T. U. organizations and ministers of the State have worked hard in the campaign. Prominent speakers from all parts of the country have lectured upon the subject at issue nearly every evening for some weeks past.

The news was received with great rejoicing. We rang the church bell Thursday morning, April 8th, announcing the victory. Let us do what we can to suppress evil till the Master comes. CHAS. E. PRESTON.

La Fayette, R. I.

Where one person in this country dies of hydrophobia, a hundred or more die by tobacco poison—in the use of cigars, cigarettes, or the pipe. In smoking, death does not occur as speedily as in the case of hydrophobia. The bite of a mad dog does not always result in death; neither does indulgence in smoking or chewing. But in both cases, there is damage to health and danger of life.

The bite of a mad dog is a frightful matter anywhere, and there are probably a hundred deaths caused thereby yearly in this country. If one man dies of hydrophobia a whole community is greatly excited and scared. "Run for your life!" "Load your gun!" "Kill all the dogs!" is then the loud and immediate cry in all directions. But not a ripple is made, nor hardly a word is uttered, if ten thousand men and women die in a year of delirium tremens, or a thousand die of tobacco poison.

While we flee from mad dogs, malaria, smallpox and typhoid fever, let us wake up and banish forever such senseless and dangerous indulgences as liquor drinking and smoking. People are beginning to wake up on this subject. Congress is talking about temperance, and physicians are speaking plainly about smoking. Tobacco is more dangerous in its direct and indirect effects on human life than would be the letting loose of all the mad dogs in the nation. Alcoholic drinks destroy more lives yearly among us than does hydrophobia, smallpox and all sorts of fever combined. These dangerous and deathly practices should be stopped everywhere if possible. Life-saving on the ocean is now regarded as a proper theme for discussion in Congress and elsewhere. Why should not life-saving on land be also considered? As to the shameful drinking and smoking practices in the halls of Congress, it is high time that both were by law suppressed. Let us have pure air, clear heads and a healthful example in the Capitol and at the White House. While we do well to attend to mad dogs and prevent infectious diseases, let us not forget or fail to check the immense, the untold, loss of life caused by a worse madness in the shameful indulgences we have named.—New York Independent.

SEVENTH-DAY ADVENTISM RENOUNCED,

After an Experience of Twenty-eight Years, by a Prominent Minister and Writer of that Faith.

BY ELDER D. M. CANRIGHT.

Did the Pope Change the Sabbath?

Third Article.

We continue our argument from last week: Elder Andrews admits that the epistle of Barnabas (A. D. 150) "was in existence as early as the middle of the second century, and, like the 'Apostolical constitutions,' is of value to us in that it gives some clue to the opinions which prevailed in the region where the writer lived" ("Testimony of the Fathers," p. 21).

We will accept the date which Elder A. himself fixes for the writing of this epistle, though others put it much earlier. It stands then, only ten years later than Justin, and within fifty-four years of St. John. In this epistle we read: "'Incense is a vain abomination unto me, and your new moons and Sabbaths I cannot endure.' He has therefore abolished these things" (chap. 2).

Elder A. admits that "he presently asserts the abolition of the Sabbath of the Lord" ("Testimony," etc., p. 22). This agrees with Justin. Coming to the first day of the week Barnabas says: "Wherefore, also, we keep the eighth day with joyfulness, the day, also, on which Jesus rose again from the dead" (chap. 15).

What does Elder A. say to this testimony? He freely admits that it teaches the abolition of the Jewish Sabbath and the keeping of Sunday, and that, too, only fifty-four years after the close of the New Testament. But he argues that such a doctrine is contrary to the Bible; that is, to his ideas of the Bible. While I was yet a firm believer in the seventh day, when reading this book, I was struck with the fact that Elder A., all through his book, had to oppose and combat the teachings of all these early fathers! The reason is manifest: he held one doctrine and they held another. He believed in the seventh day, and they believed in the first day. They lived early enough to have converse with the apostles themselves, while he lived eighteen hundred years later! Which would be apt to know the best?

In his "History of the Sabbath" (p. 308), he says: "The reasons offered by the early fathers for neglecting the observance of the Sabbath show conclusively that they had no special light on the subject by reason of living in the first centuries, which we in this latter age do not possess."

What a confession that is from the ablest historian the seventh day ever had! He freely admits that "the early fathers" "in the first centuries" neglected "the observance of the Sabbath." What further need have we for witnesses to prove that the seventh day was not observed in the first centuries? But how does this harmonize with the theory that the Sabbath was changed to Sunday by the Pope several hundred years afterwards? Suppose those early fathers were not good theologians, nor able reasoners; could they not testify to a simple fact? Could they not state whether they did or did not keep Saturday? Surely they knew enough for that, and this is all we wish to ask.

But we will hear further from these fathers themselves as to whether they kept Sunday. Again I quote from "The Testimony," etc. (p. 52): "Dionysius, bishop of Corinth, about A. D. 170, wrote a letter to the Roman Church, in which are found these words: 'We passed this holy Lord's day, in which we read your letter, from the constant reading of which we shall be able to draw admonition.'"

Elder A. is not certain that the "Lord's day" is the first day of the week; but we have seen and shall see that this term is always applied to the first day. Coming only ten years later we have the "testimony of the heretic Bardesanes. Bardesanes, the Syrian, flourished about A. D. 180. He belonged to the Gnostic sect. He says: "On one day, the first of the week, we assemble ourselves together, and on the days of the readings we abstain from [taking] sustenance.' This shows that the Gnostics used Sunday as the day for religious assemblies" ("Testimony," etc., p. 53).

Here is another good testimony for Sunday, and another good confession from Elder A. All parties, orthodox and heretic, kept Sunday as early as A. D. 180. How, then, is it that Constantine and the Pope changed the Sabbath to Sunday two to four hundred years later? Elder's A.'s own words utterly refute such an idea.

Clement, of Alexandria (A. D. 194), calls Sunday "the Lord's day" (book V., chap. 14).

Tertullian (A. D. 200) is one of the most noted of the Fathers, his writings being many and well known. He wrote only about one hundred years after the last apostle. Elder A. freely admits that he taught the abolition of the Jewish Sabbath and the observance of Sunday. Thus: "He asserts that the Sabbath was abolished by Christ." "He speaks of the Sabbath as abrogated by Christ." "With the observance of Sunday as the Lord's day he brings in offerings for the dead" ("Testimony," etc., pp. 63, 64). Then he quotes Tertullian as follows: "We solemnize the day after Saturday in contradistinction to those who call this day their Sabbath, and devote it to ease and eating, deviating from the old Jewish customs which they are now very ignorant of." Tertullian again declares that his brethren did [illegible] Jews: 'We neither accord with the Jews in their peculiarities in regard to food, nor in their sacred days.' "We, however (just as we have received), only on the day of the Lord's resurrection ought to guard not only against kneeling, but every posture and office of solicitude; deferring even our business, lest we give any place to the devil" ("Testimony," etc., pp. 65, 66, 67).

Does Elder A. or any Seventh-day Adventist deny the genuineness or truthfulness of these statements of Tertullian? They do not attempt to. Thus Elder A. is compelled to admit that as early as A. D. 200, or within 104 years after the close of the New Testament, Sunday was "generally honored." Thus: "The entrance of the Sunday festival into the church in an age of apostasy when men very generally favored it, was not merely not difficult to be effected, it was actually difficult to be prevented" ("Testimony," etc., p. 65).

Again we ask, how does this agree with the idea that Sunday-keeping is the mark of the beast, brought in by the papacy about A. D. 538, or 338 years after Tertullian? These quotations from Elder A.'s own book have already utterly demolished that theory.

Origen (about A. D. 225) was a man of immense learning, and his writings are numerous. He says: "If it be objected to us on this subject that we ourselves are accustomed to observe certain days, as, for example, the Lord's day, the preparation, the Passover, or Pentecost" ("Testimony," etc., p. 87). This plainly implies that he did observe the Lord's day.

Of the "Apostolical constitutions" (A. D. 250) Elder A. says: "The so-called 'Apostolical constitutions' were not the work of the apostles, but they were in existence as early as the third century, and were then very generally believed to express the doctrine of the apostles. They do therefore furnish important historical testimony to the practice of the church at that time. Mosheim, in his 'Historical Commentaries' (cent. 1, sect. 51), speaks thus of these 'constitutions': 'The matter of this work is unquestionably ancient; since the manners and discipline of which it exhibits a view are those which prevailed among the Christians of the second and third centuries, especially those resident in Greece and the oriental regions'" ("Testimony," etc., p. 13).

These, then, will be good witnesses to the practice of the church about A. D. 250. "In section 7, paragraph 59, we read: 'And on the day of our Lord's resurrection, which is the Lord's day, meet more diligently, sending praise to God that made the universe by Jesus and sent him to us.' 'Otherwise what apology will he make to God who does not assemble on that day to hear the saving word concerning the resurrection.' In book 7, section 2, paragraph 30, he says: 'On the day of the resurrection of the Lord, that is, the Lord's day, assemble yourselves together, without fail, giving thanks to God,' etc. In the same paragraph, in speaking of the resurrection of Christ, the writer says: 'On which account we solemnly assemble to celebrate the feast of the resurrection on the Lord's day,'" etc. ("Testimony," etc., pp. 14, 18).

These testimonies are decisive, and do show beyond a doubt that the Christians of those early days used Sunday just as it is used now, for religious worship. Did they, then, have "the mark of the beast" at least 250 years before the beast had arisen, according to the Seventh-day Adventists' theory.' These unquestionable facts of history, taken from their own published works and admitted by them to be true, show the absurdity of their position that Sunday-keeping is the mark of the beast.

Plenty more testimonies of the Fathers from the same book could be given to the same effect if necessary.

Sabbatarians make much of the famous Sunday law put forth by Constantine, A. D. 321. It shows, they claim, that Sunday had been a day of common labor by all Christians up to that date, and that here they first began to observe it as a holy day. I am fully satisfied that their view of the case is utterly false. Certainly the pagans did not keep Sunday, and if the Christians did not, then what was the object of Constantine in making such a law? He made it to please and accommodate somebody; who was it? The wording of the law shows that it was not addressed to Christians, but to pagans. He styles Sunday "the venerable day of the sun," a pagan term. The facts are that Christianity had become strong enough in the empire to make it politic for the emperor to favor and thus win Christians to his support. They universally kept Sunday, but had no law to protect them in it. To favor them he required all to cease work that day. This, of course, secured a better observance of the day than before. Thus the historian says: "The first day of the week, which was the ordinary and stated time for the public assemblies of the Christians, was, in consequence of a peculiar law enacted by Constantine, observed with greater solemnity than it had formerly been" (Mosheim, cent. 4, part 2, chap. 4, sect. 5).

On this point Smith's "Bible Dictionary" (article "Lord's day") justly says: "That Constantine then instituted Sunday for the first time as a religious day for Christians . . . is absolutely refuted, both by the quotations made above from writers of the second and third centuries and by the terms of the edict itself."

As a fair, impartial and clear statement of the teachings of the early Christian fathers concerning the observance of Sunday we refer the reader to the above quoted authority. Here is a book easy of access to all anywhere, unsectarian, embodying the results of the most thorough and scholarly examination of every passage in all the Fathers having any bearing upon the Sunday question. Any one who has read the Fa-[illegible] fair and truthful. I have only room for one more short quotation:

"The results of our examination of the principal writers of the two centuries after the death of St. John, are as follows: The Lord's day . . . existed during these two centuries as a part and parcel of apostolical, and so of scriptural Christianity. It was never defended; for it was never impugned, or at least only impugned as other things received from the apostles were. It was never confounded with the Sabbath, but carefully distinguished from it. . . . It was not an institution of severe Sabbatical character, but a day of joy and cheerfulness, rather encouraging, than forbidding relaxation. Religiously regarded, it was a day of solemn meeting for the holy eucharist, for united prayer, for instruction, for alms-giving; and though being an institution under the law of liberty, work does not appear to have been formally interdicted, or rest formally enjoined. Tertullian seems to indicate that the character of the day was opposed to worldly business. Finally, whatever analogy may be supposed to exist between the Lord's day and the Sabbath, in no passage that has come down to us is the fourth commandment appealed to as the ground of the obligation to observe the Lord's day."

The man who will shut his eyes to all this mass of testimony, and still insist that Sunday-keeping is only an institution of the Popes of later ages, is simply held by a theory which he is bound to maintain any way. I have had a sad experience in this matter, and know just how a seventh-day man feels in reading these historical facts. I read some of them twenty years ago. They bothered me some, but I got over this by my strong faith in our doctrines and by believing them to be mostly forgeries. Afterwards as I read more, I saw that these testimonies were reliable and very decidedly against our theory of the Pope's Sunday. This disturbed me quite a little, but I still got over them by simply ceasing to think of them at all, and by dwelling upon other arguments in which I had perfect confidence. In debate I was always anxious to shut these out of the discussion. I know that Seventh-day Adventist ministers generally feel just about as I did, for we often referred to these testimonies of the fathers and the effect they had in debate. Of course, the great body of the members never read these things, and are in blissful ignorance concerning them. Or, if they do read them, it is in their own books where they are all explained away. Their unbounded faith in "the message" and in their leaders carries them right over these facts as matters of no consequence.

For myself, when once I decided to look these historical facts squarely in the face and give them whatever force they fairly deserved, I soon saw the utter falsity of the claim that the "Pope changed the Sabbath." That old feeling of uneasiness on this point is entirely gone. I feel that so far as the evidence of history is concerned, my feet stand on solid ground. I feel so thankful to God for the relief it has brought to my own mind that I would gladly help my old friends out also if I could, for I know full well the bonds with which they are held.

BY F. A. BAKER.

This passage by no means teaches the "regeneration of Christ, or of his disciples in the past, present or future, either in the sense of conversion or resurrection; but rather relates, so far as the use of the word "regeneration" is concerned, to the material world itself, resulting in "the new heavens and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness." "In the regeneration, when the Son of man shall sit upon the throne of his glory," etc. The Emphatic Diaglott reads, "And Jesus said to them, Indeed I say unto you, that in the renovation, when the Son of man shall sit on the throne of his glory," etc. Murdock translates from the Syriac, "Jesus said unto them, Verily I say unto you, that, as for you who have followed me, when the Son of man shall sit on the throne of his glory in the new world," etc.

The time, then, for the regeneration of Matt. 19: 28 is when the Son of man shall sit on the throne of his glory, which we learn from Matt. 25: 31 is "when the Son of man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory." And the result of that "regeneration" is "the new world." This is the "restitution" of Acts 3: 21, and the "new heavens and a new earth" of 2 Pet. 3: 13. "And, behold, I "make all things new." Rev. 21: 5.

This "regeneration" will constitute the "redemption of the purchased possession unto the praise of his glory." Eph. 1: 13, 14. That we may share the glories of the "regeneration" of Matt. 19: 28, let us now seek and find the "regeneration" of Titus 3: 5-7—"Not by works of righteousness which we have done, but according to his mercy he saved us, by the washing of regeneration, and renewing of the Holy Ghost, which he shed on us abundantly through Jesus Christ our Saviour; that, being justified by his grace, we should be made heirs according to the hope of eternal life."

Are we saved, washed, regenerated, renewed by the Holy Ghost, justified, made heirs of eternal life? Sadly deficient indeed must be our religious instruction if we fail to comprehend that the "regeneration" of Titus 3: 5 relates to our present conversion and salvation through the love and power and grace of God and of Christ, through the agency of the Holy Spirit. "If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them." Beloved reader, [illegible] Are you morally, spiritually changed, and made meet for the inheritance of the saints in light? God grant his Spirit and grace [illegible]

SYNOPSIS OF A SERMON, WITH SOME ADDITIONS,

Phonographically reported by N. S. Wilson and [illegible].

"But the end of all things is at hand: be ye therefore sober, and watch unto prayer."—1 Pet. 4: 7.

(Concluded.)

When the rulership of earth is given to our Lord, and this economy shall have ended, then will end probation for the nations of earth. Hence among the things that are embraced in our text that will have an end is probation. This is the day of salvation. Here Jesus' blood avails, and hearts are made ready to receive the great blessing of life everlasting. The judgment of the world takes place when Jesus comes, as is evident from many scriptures. In all the great lines of consecutive prophecy that reach to the end of the world, and that introduce the golden era, no mention is made of the continuance of the probationary period. Are we not informed in the Sacred Oracles that the time will come when there will be no death, and that sin will be destroyed? How can that be if probation is to be perpetuated in the world to come?

There is no positive evidence that the priestly ministrations of our Lord will characterize any part of the golden period in which he will reign from the rivers to the ends of the earth. Says one, "Is not Christ a priest forever?" Yes, in contradistinction to the priests under the law that did not live forever. Christ has an unchangeable priesthood. "He ever liveth to make intercession," is the declaration of the apostle; consequently, no one will succeed him in the priestly office. If the priestly office and ministrations of the priesthood are to extend into the coming age, then sin, mortality and death will be there also. The Saviour says, "They that are counted worthy to obtain that world, and the resurrection from the dead, neither marry nor are given in marriage; neither can they die any more, for they are equal unto the angels." If the inhabitants of the world to come are equal to angels, undying, immortal, there will be no necessity for the priestly ministrations of Christ; and if no necessity, it follows as a logical sequence that there will be no such ministrations, and consequently no probation. For there cannot be a probation when the necessity for it does not exist. Since there will be no sinners or sin in the world to come, there will be no probation then; for its necessity can only exist where there are sinful, mortal individuals.

Among the all things that are to end, as suggested in the text, is the present HEAVENS AND EARTH. That the present heavens and earth are to pass away, be "dissolved," changed and reconstructed, and a new heavens and earth made out of the material of the old, is a truth clearly taught in the Word of God. Says Paul, "The whole creation groaneth and travaileth in pain together until now." "Nevertheless we, according to his promise, look for new heavens, and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness." 2 Pet. 3: 13. "And I saw a new heaven and a new earth: for the first heaven and the first earth were passed away, and there was no more sea." Rev. 21: 1.

Martin Luther once said, "God will make not the earth only, but the heavens also, much more beautiful than they are at present. Now we see the world in its working clothes, but hereafter it will be arrayed in its Easter and Whitsuntide robes." When the earth is made beautiful as at the first, and God's glory fills it as the waters cover the mighty deep, then indeed it will be a "heavenly country," such an one as the patriarchal fathers sought after. Says the Psalmist, "I shall be satisfied, when I awake, with thy likeness." He will be satisfied with his surroundings, with his home and his associations, with the world and its furniture. There, all the aspirations and longings of hearts will be fully met.

The earth presents direct and positive evidence that a new era in its history is about to dawn; that its present groanings and internal emotions will ere long cease; that the vital forces of its inward structure and framework are giving way, and the long continued roarings and upheavals of its surface; the unnatural swell and exceeding great height of the tidal waves; the outbursts and vent-holes of its pent up lava; the frequency of its quakes and tremulous condition of its surface,—these all speak of the weak and feeble state of its constitution, and that the Saturday night of its history has about come.

> "The earth emerging from her flood of fire
> Baptismal, by a new and heavenly birth,
> Arose regenerate. The dews of God as once
> In Eden, cooled the ardent soil;
> And rivers from innumerable springs
> Flowed intersecting every gorgeous clime
> With living waters. Like a smile of light
> The Sun of Righteousness in rising shed
> Healing from his benignant wings; and earth,
> Who came forth naked from her bath of flame,
> Felt his rich blessing at her heart, and smiled
> Responsive, and in blushing haste put on
> Her beautiful robes of immortality.
> And earth from pole to pole
> Was one vast paradise."

Dr. Watts gives us good theology in the following:

> "Yet when the sounds shall tear the skies,
> And lightnings burn the globe below,
> Saints, you may lift your joyful eyes;
> There's a new heaven and earth for you."

> "The world shall burn, and from her ashes spring
> New heavens and earth, wherein the just shall dwell,
> And, after all their tribulations long,
> See golden days."—John Milton.

The end of evil, among other things, our text announces. God did not intend at the commencement, in permitting sin to come into our world, that it should always remain here. In order to have evil removed, it necessitates the removal of the causes that produce it. Sin is not a necessity. What good has sin ever done in our world? It has caused the thorns, thistles and obnoxious vegetation to grow out of God's beautiful earth. It has caused the sombre mantle to be spread over all nations, in that it has [illegible] and death. Can you think of any good that it ever has wrought in our world, whereby it could claim a right to exist? Says a writer: "Wickedness has no rights. It is essentially and eternally wrong. It came into being only by fraudulent intrusion. It is an outlaw. It has no right of possession anywhere."

To argue the eternity of evil is to contend for its eternal necessity, which does not exist. Can there be a necessity for sin to exist when it has no rights in heaven, on the earth or under the earth? Since, then, it has no rights, God proposes to put an end to it—blot it out, and make his universe clean from it. This purpose is announced in the following scriptures: "For this purpose the Son of God was manifested, that he might destroy the works of the devil." 1 John 3: 8. "But now once in the end of the world hath he appeared to put away sin by the sacrifice of himself." Heb. 9: 26.

The end of the reign of death is also included in our text. Says the great apostle, "The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death." 1 Cor. 15: 26. "Death is swallowed up in victory." 1 Cor. 15: 54. What sad work death has made in our world! But its continuance is brief, for we shall soon reach that point and place where John says, "There shall be no more death."

Death's chilling wave never will reach the glorious clime of the new earth. Beyond the night of weeping will be the sunshine of eternal joy. Sorrow may continue for a night, but joy cometh in the morning.

> "We mourn the dead, but they shall wake;
> The lost, but they shall be restored;
> Oh, well our human hearts might break
> Without the sacred Word:
> Dim eyes look up, sad hearts rejoice
> Seeing God's bow of promise through
> At sound of that prophetic voice—
> 'I will make all things new.'"

"BRING ALL THE TITHES INTO THE STOREHOUSE."

BY I. I. LESLIE.

This does not mean prayers, testimonies, thanksgivings, as many would have it. It means one-tenth of our earthly substance. What the language meant under the law, it means under the gospel—nothing more, nothing less. If God required this of nominal Christians, he requires it of real ones. It is true that in the gospel there is no direct command to give to Christ one-tenth of what God puts into the hands of his people. But certainly those living under the law of Christ should not be behind those who lived under the law of Moses. Does not the gospel of Christ demand as great a sacrifice as did the law? Does not Christ require even greater self-denial by us than was required of the Jews in their dispensation? Is not the preaching of the gospel and the worship of God as important now as the service of God was then? If God then required that his worship should be sustained by the offerings of the people, surely now by the same means is the gospel to be proclaimed.

God proclaimed that the nation which he had brought out of bondage was unwilling to sustain his appointed worship—that it had withheld the tithes which he commanded them to bring. He charged them with robbing him. The tithes were his, and they had held them back. His worship had ceased for the want of tithes and offerings. On account of their covetousness and dishonesty his blessing had been withheld; they were suffering for this their sin. In his mercy he told them if they would bring their tithes and offerings into his storehouse, he would open the windows of heaven and pour them out a blessing so great that they would not have room to receive it. Conditionally was the needed blessing to come. The tithes and offerings must be brought, or the windows of heaven would remain closed.

Just so it is today. Many a church is suffering and dying for the want of God's blessing. The members are covetous, and daily robbing God of what is in their hands belonging to him. They keep back what he requires them to give in support of his cause. So the divine rain comes not down from heaven. They seem not to know why it is withheld, and the body grows more dry and withered day by day. They desire the blessing, and have the presumption to pray for it, while their grasp upon the world tightens, and less and less is given for the worship of God and the salvation of men. They want the Lord to work among them, and to build up the church. They pray for faithful laborers to be sent them, men who have the cause of Christ at heart, and who shall not "come for money." This last clause of the prayer they want the Lord to answer especially. Should he send such men, and the ravens to feed them, many places for worship would be opened and filled, which are now shut up and empty.

Yes, for the want of a sacrifice the blessing of God is withheld. Barren hearts and cold looks meet you; and but few are willing to take in, feed and lodge a servant of Christ who is sent to preach the kingdom of God to the people. No spiritual blessing descends where hearts are thus destitute of the love of Christ. Communion with God is impossible. The word comes, "Bring your tithes into the storehouse." Until this is done the windows of heaven are shut, and dearth and famine of soul are seen. Prayers may be frequent and long, exhortations loud and protracted, but God is not worshipped, nor any saved. Condemnation, if not felt, is pronounced. "Ye have robbed me," comes from heaven. This is the response to all covetous prayers.

Many think if they pray and exhort well, it is little more that God requires. The tithes and offerings that now are to be brought into the house of God they feel are their prayers and testimonies. This is all the self-denial that is in this day to be borne. They can do this cheerfully for Christ. If they give a few cents a week to sustain the meetings, this is an extra [illegible] They believe in a free salvation—one which costs them nothing. In this they rejoice. With them the great damper to a religious meeting is the "collection." When the box is being passed around, a chill comes over them. When they are requested to subscribe for the support of preaching and the worship of God, they are opposed to that way of doing, and say they choose to give privately, just when the Lord shall tell them to give.

While there are some that do this, and thus help on the servants of Christ, the many who say this, do nothing publicly or privately. Instead of doing as God commands they shut up their hearts, but open their mouths and pass on, thinking that after they have gotten all they can of the world, the kingdom of God will be theirs. But still the voice from heaven is: "Bring all the tithes into the storehouse, ... and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it." Such will be the case if the command is obeyed.

"FEED MY LAMBS."

BY M. B. SEVEY.

In the Gospel of St. John, the twenty-first chapter, we have the meeting of Peter with Jesus, whom he had denied at his trial and crucifixion, and had returned to his former occupation, as his hope was gone by Jesus' being put to death. But when he was informed that it was Jesus who was talking with them, he gladly left the boat with all on board to meet Jesus on the shore. We naturally would think that Peter would not want to see him whom he denied so boldly with curses and swearing; but while we remember the sayings of Jesus to Peter, that the cock would not crow twice until he had denied him thrice; and as he recalled that saying with deep penitence of heart, he went out and wept bitterly. Here was true godly sorrow, which was accepted of Jesus, and their meeting was joyful.

But Jesus wishes still to try Peter, and asks if he loves him more than these (probably referring to the blessings of this life, or fishes). The answer is, "Yea, Lord, thou knowest that I love thee. He saith unto him, Feed my lambs." The second time he asks him the same question, and the answer is the same—"Yea, Lord, thou knowest that I love thee." Then "feed my sheep." Again he asks the third time if he loves him. Peter is grieved because he is asked again; but the answer is, "Thou knowest all things: thou knowest that I love thee." Then "feed my sheep."

The Lord asks Peter if he loves him just as many times as he denied him, then tells him to feed his lambs once, and his sheep twice. Lambs have need of food in different forms and qualities from sheep. They need the sincere milk of the word, by which they may grow, while the sheep need more solid food, by which, if they are fed and kept in a healthy condition, they will take care of the lambs. Thus Paul said to the shepherds, "Feed the flock of God, not by constraint, nor for filthy lucre, but of a willing mind." The food to be given is the Word of God, and a portion to each in due season at the right time—a reproof, correction, or exhortation. He is my friend who tells me of my faults. Even open rebuke is better than secret love. "He that rebuketh a man afterwards shall find more favor than he that flattereth with his tongue." "Faithful are the wounds of a friend. Let the righteous smite me, it shall be a kindness; and let him reprove me, it shall be an excellent oil which shall not break my head."

Many lambs have been killed by flattery, which has caused them to be proud, and if any life was left in them they were mere sickly skeletons; and by the sheep not being kept well on a good rich wholesome diet, they fail to give nourishment to the lambs. Jesus told Peter to feed his sheep twice, and lambs once. How can the lambs grow where there is so much leanness in the sheep? We all know it is impossible, and not in harmony with nature; which figure Jesus uses to illustrate spiritual things. First, the shepherd must be filled with the Holy Ghost, which he receives from the Chief Shepherd; then he can feed the flock of God, not with fables, but with the Word of God, giving a portion to each in due season—doctrine, reproof, correction, instruction, encouragement, as may be, in season, that the man of God may be thoroughly furnished unto all good works, and be filled with the Spirit of God, and be perfect and entire, wanting nothing, waiting for the great Shepherd, who will give a crown of life at his appearing.

CHRIST'S KINGDOM.

BY J. S. WHITE.

Will Christ set up his kingdom on the earth that now is, or on the earth made new? If at the time of Christ's coming he will raise all men up from the dead, and if he will then take his people up to meet him in the air, leaving the wicked on the earth, at which time he will set the earth on fire, in which all the wicked will be burned up root and branch; and after the earth is made new, on which Christ will set up his kingdom and commence his reign on Mount Zion, how can any of the wicked that will have been consumed in the melted earth "see Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, and all the prophets, in the kingdom of God, and you yourselves thrust out," unless some of the wicked, who will have died the second death, will again be raised up alive, so they can see the saved ones in the kingdom, and see themselves thrust out?

Jesus said, "There shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth, when ye shall see Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, and all the prophets, in the kingdom of God, and you yourselves thrust out." Luke 13: 28. How [illegible] the saints in the kingdom of God before the kingdom is set up?

"HOW MUCH OWEST THOU UNTO MY LORD."

BY J. WARD.

Dear brother, sister, did you ever ask yourself this question, and then stop to think how much you really owe your Lord? Is not all you have and all you are, that is good and worth possessing his property? Have you had a Christian father or mother, wife, husband or children? Were they not his gift to you? All earthly blessings filling up the period of your life, with life itself, and the time your life continues, are given you by the Lord. How are you spending them? for spending them you certainly are, either for his glory or your shame and eternal loss. You may find institutions to hoard away money for the benefit of self, but self thus provided for may become your worst enemy. You also violate one of the Master's most imperative commands (Matt. 6: 19), "Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal."

The Lord, knowing the human heart perfectly, tells us that where the treasure is there will the heart be also. And so he would chain our heart's affections to a higher sphere than this, and to more enduring riches, yielding us a hundredfold in this life, and in the world to come life everlasting. It is surely both wisdom and duty to make our investments there. The death of such as do so are missed more in this poor world than that of its millionaires. You can invest in heaven's bank whether you are rich or poor; a cup of cold water, or two mites, may draw as much interest, if that is all you can do, as the one gets who builds a synagogue. God reckons not as man. He looks not so much at what is given as at what is left; not that he requires the man engaged in a large business to give away his capital, thus preventing himself from further investment; but he requires us to give as he hath prospered us. Surely he is not a hard Master, and makes no unreasonable request.

Jesus is coming soon, and then he will reckon with his servants. Some we fear will have but a small deposit in heaven, while the bulk of their property will be consumed in the great conflagration, being a complete loss, as it was uninsured in the only office beyond the limits of the fire.

Dear brethren and sisters, this gospel of the kingdom must be made known, and we are all called to do some of the work either in giving or going. The Master expects each to do what they can, if only to the extent of two mites. Let us give gold, silver, or even copper wings to the message, and thus lay up for ourselves treasures where moth and rust doth not corrupt, nor thieves break through and steal. Unless we do what we can we cannot expect to be recognized by the Master, or hear the words addressed to us, "Well done," etc.

THE LORD'S TONGUE.

BY C. B. COFF.

If you are a Christian, brother, sister, that tongue of yours is the Lord's. Think of this when you use it. "What! know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost which is in you, which ye have of God, and ye are not your own? For ye are bought with a price: therefore glorify God with your body and in your spirit, which are God's." 1 Cor. 6: 19, 20.

If you had your neighbor's horse to use for a day, you would scarcely put the lash on him without the thought—this is my neighbor's horse, and I must be careful how I use it. But how thoughtlessly you use the Lord's tongue there in your mouth, which is of more value than many horses. You would not make your neighbor's fine horse go through a bog; but you will put that tongue through all manner of filth.

How very like a gate to a sluice-way is the tongue. Do not hoist it unless there is something good behind. Hell seems to be jammed up against some people's tongues pressing to get out. How much better to make it the outlet of divine grace. "Let no corrupt communication proceed out of your mouth, but that which is good to the use of edifying, that it may minister grace unto the hearers. And grieve not the Holy Spirit of God." Eph. 4: 29, 30. What a volume of nonsense and corruption would be shut off if that admonition of the apostle was obeyed!

Some churches, after the services are dismissed, would seem more "like a Quaker meeting" than they do. How the Holy Spirit is grieved with their talk.

"You treat no other friend so ill."

If you were in the presence of an esteemed minister your conversation would be bent accordingly. Is there a minister of any more account than the Holy Spirit of God? You will find there is not when you arrive at the bar of God. That settles your account there, brother. The testimony of the arresting officer is what gives a fellow away in court. "I saw him do the mean thing," he says. God's Spirit sees and hears. He will seal your case unto the day of redemption. "Sound speech that cannot be condemned; that he that is of the contrary part may be ashamed, having no evil thing to say of you." Titus 2: 8.

Before you criticise Ingersoll's blasphemies much, brother, get that tongue in your mouth tamed down with the grace of God. Perhaps that has been the cause of blasphemy before now if it has not been engaged in it. "Let your speech be always with grace, seasoned with salt, that ye may know how ye ought to answer every man." Col. 4: 6. The speech of a good man will keep over night, while that of the wicked will scarcely bear repeating.

The outward act reveals the inward thought and purpose, and cannot be mistaken. Words may deceive, but actions do not lie. Our example makes a deeper [illegible] that it be of a proper character!—Sel.

RE-ELECTION—VACATION, Etc.

At the Annual Session of the S. A. C. Association, held last week in Chelsea, we received our sixth re-election as Editor of the World's Crisis; and then followed a unanimous vote granting us a vacation of four weeks. This very kind act of the Association is highly appreciated by us; and we are deeply grateful to our Brethren and fellow workers for affording us a much needed rest from our severe and long continued labors. At the close of our vacation we shall have some words of kindly greeting for the patrons and friends of the "dear old family paper," as a prelude to another year's editorial service, upon which we shall enter with more confidence and courage than ever before.

In our brief absence from the Office, the Crisis will be in the charge of Eld. F. Burr, Editor of the Young Pilgrim, of whose ability to make the paper interesting and satisfactory nothing need be said.

Editor.

[Having spent last week at the Springfield Campmeeting, and our hands being full of Association work this week, we substitute for our usual editorial the following from the Quarterly Journal of Prophecy:]

ABRAHAM'S OFFERING.

BY J. COUCH.

"By faith Abraham, when he was tried, offered up Isaac: and he that had received the promises offered up his only begotten son."—Heb. 11: 17.

What did Abraham offer to God as a sacrifice? His son, Isaac. In what sense did he offer Isaac? Did he offer him literally, or in purpose of heart? Isaac was not absolutely offered in death, but in the spirit and purpose of Abraham's heart. Was it possible for Abraham to have purposed in his heart to take the life of his son, as an act of obedience to God, if he had not understood God to require him to kill his son? We answer, he could not.

But Paul says he "offered up Isaac by faith." There could have been but two ways by which the son could have been offered: (1) By actually shedding his blood; and (2) By a real design to do so. There are two stages or parts to each human responsible act. The first is, the heart-purpose to do it; the second is the execution of that purpose. The moral character of the deed is always produced at the first stage, or in forming the purpose.

If there is no intelligent purpose formed before the act, as is the case with infants, idiots and the insane, there is no moral character in the act. But if an intelligent design is made to perform a God-forbidden act, the moral turpitude of the deed is fixed, the same as if the deed were performed, and the designer will be subject to the full penalty of the divine law, even if the opportunity to execute the purpose never comes.

So it is on the other side; if a man intelligently designs to do a deed according to a divine requirement, and Providence does not furnish the opportunity to accomplish it, or, subsequently to the purpose changes the requirement, the full virtue or righteousness of the deed was established by the purpose, and the designer will receive as full reward as if the act had been performed.

This was the case with Abraham in the purpose to offer Isaac "a burnt offering" to God. He purposed and made preparation to do exactly what he understood God had instructed him to do, and therfore fully established his moral loyalty and obedience to God, the same as if the deed had been actually performed.

There was no way for Abraham to establish his loyalty to God by the offering of his son, and yet not have the son's life taken, only by Abraham's understanding that God really intended he should kill Isaac, and burn his flesh upon an altar; for if Abraham had understood God's purpose in the matter, he could not have formed a real design in his heart to kill his son, and therefore could not have offered him in any sense.

It may be said by some, that if this argument be true, then God purposely deceived Abraham in his requirement to offer his son "a burnt offering." This is not true, only in a qualified and justifiable sense. If we are correct in saying that every accountable human act has two distinct parts, one consisting in a design, the other in the execution of the design, and that the accountability depends entirely upon the first, irrespective of the second, then God can truthfully and righteously develop the moral character of the human heart, by requiring an act of obedience which he designed should exist only in purpose. Christ taught that adultery did exist when it only had an existence in design or desire. He said, "Whosoever looketh on a woman to lust after her hath committed adultery with her already in his heart." Matt. 5: 28. God revealed to Abraham his true design when he said: "Take now thy son, thine only son Isaac, whom thou lovest, and get thee into the land of Moriah; and offer him there for a burnt offering upon one of the mountains which I will tell thee of." Gen. 22: 2. But he withheld from him, until the proper time, as he had a perfect right to do, the truth that he only designed the offering to be made in the heart, and not in the execution by the "knife." All the truth relating to the divine plan in this case was not at first revealed, but was subsequently fully developed. This principle of revealing truth by instalments, just as needed to produce tests of faith, which could not have been produced if all the truth had been at once made known, runs through the entire plan of God.

Jonah never could have preached with such power and efficacy if he had known what the final result of his message would be. If the Apostles had understood many things revealed by the Prophets and plainly taught by Christ, they could not have been tested in their loyalty to Christ as they were at his trial and crucifixion.

The same principle is involved in the case of the virgins in the parable of Matt. 25. They would not have gone forth to meet the bridegroom, as represented, if they had understoood that the bridegroom would tarry from the time of their going to meet him to a later period. Some of the Fathers understood that the premature movement and tarry of the bridegroom in the parable were designed to represent a movement of the church, by which God purposed to try the faith of believers by a principle like unto that which tested Abraham's faith, i. e., the church would believe that God was directing her in a movement which would ultimate in her literally and personally meeting Christ, the heavenly Bridegroom, but which God only designed should be a movement of a spirit and purpose of heart to meet him, as it was with Abraham, and not at that time the personal coming. Geo. Whitefield said, in reference to this subject, "Because he tarried for awhile to exercise the faith of saints, and give sinners space to repent, scoffers were were apt to cry out, 'Where is the promise of his coming?'" Matthew Henry, the morning star, among English commentators, in commenting upon Christ's tarry, said: "It [the Bible] intimates that he will delay his coming so long that wicked people will begin to defy it, and to say, 'Where is the promise of his coming?' . . . His delay will harden them in their wickedness. Even his own people will begin to despair of it, and to conclude he will never come, because he has passed their reckoning." "But though Christ tarry past our time, he will not tarry past the due time. Voice of the Church, page 211.

The wise virgins in the parable were represented to be confidently expecting to meet the Saviour personally and visibly, when they went forth to meet the bridegroom. By this act of going to meet the Bridegroom, the condition of their hearts as to loyalty to, and love for Christ was exhibited. By it they developed the purpose they had to do what they understood. God designed they should do just as Abraham arranged to do just what he apprehended the Lord designed that he should do. Their understanding in both cases differed from God's ultimate design, but led them to do what God purposed should be done to accomplish this; and a part of the truth relating to Abraham and the virgins was designed to remain undeveloped until the purity of their faith should be fully tested. Exactly the same principles were applied to the disciples in their experiences in the trial of their faith. If Christ had given them, before his crucifixion, a clear understanding of how he should be betrayed, tried, condemned, crucified, resurrected, glorified and received up into heaven, and that all this was necessary to complete the plan of salvation, how entirely different would have been the testing trial of their faith and hope in passing through those tragic scenes of Christ's sufferings. The disciples did not suffer those special trials on account of any delinquency in them, but because a part of the truth was withheld by the Lord until their necessary test of faith had been experienced. The disciples did not lack a knowledge of what Christ's and their own experiences would be, because they had not been revealed by the prophets and taught by Christ, for all had given a history of them, but it was because God designed that some of the truths relating to them should not be understood until a certain time in their history. Jesus expresses this thus: "I have yet many things to say unto you, but ye cannot bear them now." (John 16: 12). A physician orders his remedies to be given at certain times, according to the stages of the disease. So God designs that his truth shall be understood and experienced at certain stages of believers' advancement.

Special truth can never be correctly understood and applied until the special period comes designed for its application. It can then, and only then, accomplish the object for which it was given.

God had a grand and glorious purpose to accomplish in suffering Joseph's brethren to sell him to an Egyptian caravan, and thus throw a loving, delicate brother into the hands of cruel taskmasters. But God, to develop the virus of jealousy which lay coiled like a serpent in the brethren's hearts, and to manifest Jacob's fatherly love for his son, and his undying love for Joseph's mother, had to withhold the development of his ultimate purpose in the case for a time, so that the wickedness of those who sold their brother might appear, and also that Joseph might become a deliverer, typical of Christ, who was sold into the hands of oppressors for thirty pieces of silver.

If the entire plan of God relating to the case had been at once revealed, the character of the acts of the parties and their experiences would have been radically different, so that God's purpose in subjecting them to a testing fiery trial could not have been accomplished.

The important principle, that God exercises a divine right of withholding from people for a time certain truths for the purpose of causing them to do what they would not have done if the entire subject had been earlier revealed, is fully established by Bible history and personal experiences.

If Christ, when Mary and Martha were experiencing the bitterness of his delay to come to them and rebuke the disease of their brother, when he was fast sinking into the grasp of death, had sent them word that he should delay to come until their brother was dead, so that he might manifest a greater power than that which could restore the sick, even that which can raise the dead to life, the sisters certainly could not have experienced the same grief or test of their confidence, that their brother, though dead, should rise again at the last day, as they then had.

If the Lord had revealed to Abraham that he only designed that he should offer his son a burnt sacrifice in his heart, and not literally, but that he would provide, instead of the son, a ram to be offered, Abraham's faith could not have been tested; and the church by his act could never have been taught the nature of the faith required of believers. There was a necessity, in order to accomplish the divine purpose in the case, for God to withhold from him a part of the plan until another part should be experienced. So it was in the case of Jonah, the exode, the first advent, the sickness, death and resurrection of Lazarus, the going forth of the virgins, and many other cases recorded in the Bible. The principle has a general application, which requires a gradual unfolding of the plan of God through all the ages unto the consummation. It should teach us to be very careful about charging God's servants with folly, or God with deceiving them. God's ways are sometimes mysterious, but when they are fully developed they manifest his infinite wisdom and mercy. Amen.

WESTERN EDITORIALS.

IN THE EAST.

Our Eastern trip has thus far been pleasant. We took in the Sebago Lake Campmeeting, managed by Brn. Mark Stevens and A. W. Sibley, and enjoyed it much. This is a very nice location for a Campmeeting if brethren would only augment the number of tents. The lake is one of the finest in the world. The meeting this year was a profitable one. We formed many new acquaintances at this meeting, which we shall not soon forget.

We visited two churches — Somerville, Mass., and Dover, N. H.—and found them prospering.

Our Association meeting will be reported by its Secretary in due time, and we will not forestall, further than to say that it was a meeting of unusual interest to the cause at large, and to the publishing interest in particular. Our mission work—home and foreign—presented a cheering outlook, as will be seen by the report.

We hope to visit Alton Bay Camp a few days before starting for the General Western Camp at Manchester, Iowa. W. S.

Onward.—Many lovers of truth will rejoice to learn that the Crisis is augmenting its list of subscribers, and that the Society is doing a larger work now than ever before in the various departments of its publishing interest—books, tracts and periodicals. But we trust the friends of the Crisis will not be content with the present Crisis list, but at once make a new effort to increase it in every part of the field, East, West, North and South. Lay members, as well as ministers, can aid in this work. W. S.

"BEAUTY OF HOLINESS."

Bro. Grant's tract, bearing the above title, should be read by all. It repudiates the theory of "inbred sin," and presents the theory of holiness from the right stand-point. Let all holiness people read it, and all others interested in this gospel theme. Sold at our office. W. S.

"HELLOLOGY."

Such is the title of an English work that has fallen under my eye, which suggests a train of thoughts. The hell of mythology, the hell of Mahommedanism, the hell of Catholicism, and the hell of Protestantism, are quite different from the hell of the Bible. The Protestant hell is but a revision of the Catholic hell; so we will glance at the picture drawn of the former by the Rev. J. Furniss:

1. Its locality. "Every little child knows that God will reward the good in heaven and punish the wicked in hell. Where, then, is hell? Is hell above or below? Is it on the earth, or in the earth, or below the earth? It seems likely that hell is in the middle of the earth." "We know how far it is to the middle of the earth. It is just four thousand miles. So if hell is in the middle of the earth, it is four thousand miles to the horrible prison of hell."

2. Its size. "When the gates of hell had been opened, St. Frances with her angel went forward. She stood on the edge of the abyss. She saw a sight so terrible that it cannot be told. She saw that the size of hell was immense. Neither in height, nor in depth, nor in length, nor in breadth, could she see any end of it. Is. 34. 'None shall ever pass through it.' She saw that hell was divided into three immense places. These three places were at a great distance from one another. There was an upper hell, and a middle hell, and a lower hell. Wisd. 17. 'Night came upon them from the lowest and deepest hell.' She saw that in the upper hell the torments were very grievous. In the middle hell they were still more terrible. In the lowest hell the torments were above all understanding."

3. Its fire. "But the fire of hell will never go out: it will burn forever. It is unquenchable fire, Matt. 4. St. Teresa says, that the fire on the earth is only a picture of the fire of hell. Fire on earth gives light. But it is not so in hell. In hell the fire is dark."

"The great fires of hell have been smoking now for nearly six thousand years. They will go on smoking forever. There is no chimney to take this smoke off; there is no wind to blow it away. See those great, black, heavy sulphurous clouds rising up every moment from the dark fires. They rise up till the roof of hell stops them. The roof drives them back again. Slowly they go down into the abyss of hell. There they are joined by more dark clouds of smoke leaving the fires. So hell is filled with sulphur and smoke, in which no one on earth could breathe or live. How do they live in hell? In hell they must live but they are stifled and choked each moment, as if they were dying."

4. Its king. "We must go on till we come to the middle of hell. There we shall see the most horrible sight that ever was or will be—the great devil chained down in the middle of hell. We will set off on our journey. Now we are coming near the dwelling-place of satan. The darkness gets thicker. You see a great number of devils moving about in the thick darkness. They come to get the orders of their great chief. Already you hear the rattling of the tremendous chains of the great monster! See! there he is—the most horrible and abominable of all monsters, the devil. His size is immense! Is. 8., 'He shall fill the length of the land.' St. Frances saw him. He was sitting on a long beam which passed through the middle of hell. His feet went down into the lowest depths of hell. They rested on the floor of hell. They were fastened with great, heavy iron chains. These chains were fixed to an immense ring in the floor. His hands were chained up to the roof. One of his hands was turned up against heaven to blaspheme God and the saints who dwell there. Apoc. 13. His other hand was stretched out, pointing to the lowest hell! His tremendous and horrible head was raised up on high, and touched the roof. From his head came two immense horns. Apoc. 13. 'I saw another beast having two horns.' From each horn smaller horns without number branched out, which like chimneys sent out fire and smoke. His enormous mouth was wide open. Out of it there was running a river of fire, which gave no light, but a most abominable smell. Job 41, 'Flame cometh out of his mouth.' Round his neck was a collar of red-hot iron. A burning chain tied him round the middle. The ugliness of his face was such that no man or devil can bear it. It was the most deformed, horrible, frightful thing that ever was or will be. His great fierce eyes were filled with pride, and anger, and rage, and spite, and blood, and fire, and savage cruelty. There was something else in those eyes for which there is no name, but it made those on whom the devil's eyes were fixed tremble and shake as if they were dying. One of the saints who saw the devil said she would rather be burnt for a thousand years than look at the devil for one moment."

* * * * * * *

"As the devil is king of hell, he does two things. First, he gives his orders to the other devils about tempting people in the world. Without his leave, no one in hell can stir hand or foot. Millions and millions of devils are always round him waiting for his orders. Every day he sends wicked spirits, whose numbers cannot be counted, into Europe, Asia, Africa, America, into every country, and town, and village, and house, and to every human creature. He sends them for temptation and the ruin of souls. He tells each devil, whom he must tempt, what he must do, and when he must come back. St. Frances saw that when these devils came back, if they had not made people commit sin, they were cruelly beaten."

* * * * * * *

"As the devil is king of hell, he is also judge. When a soul comes into hell, condemned by the judgment of God, he executes the judgment. He fixes whereabouts in hell the soul is to be, how it is to be tormented, and what devils are to torment it."

"As soon as the sentence is given the soul is snatched away and hurried to that place which is to be its home forever and ever! Crowds of hideous devils have met together. With cries of spiteful joy they receive the soul."

"Immediately the soul is thrust by the devils into that prison which is to be its dwelling-place forevermore. The prison of each soul is different according to its sins. St. Teresa found herself squeezed into a hole or chest in the wall. Here the walls, which were most terrible, seemed to close upon her and strangle her. She found her soul burning in a most horrible fire. It seemed as if some one was always tearing her soul in pieces, or rather as if the soul was always tearing itself in pieces. It was impossible to sit or lie down, for there was no room. As soon as the soul is fixed in its place, it finds two devils, one on each side of it."

5. Its duration. "Perhaps at this moment, seven o'clock in the evening, a child is just going into hell. To-morrow evening at seven o'clock, go and knock at the gates of hell, and ask what the child is doing. The devils will go and look. Then they will come back again and say, the child is burning! Go in a week and ask what the child is doing; you will get the same answer—it is burning! Go in a year and ask, the same answer comes—it is burning! Go in a million of years and ask the same question; the answer is just the same—it is burning? So if you go forever and ever, you will always get the same answer—it is burning in the fire!"

"Let us look at hell once more before we leave it. See that man who just asked for mercy and could not get it. He cannot bear the scorching fire which burns his body through and through. But he must bear it. On the earth the hungry man looks for bread, and at last he gets it. A sick man looks for his pain to get less, and at last it gets less. The man in hell looks for the burning to stop—but it does not stop. Then he begins to think how long will the horrible burning [illegible] His thoughts go through millions and millions of years that cannot be counted. Will the burning stop then? His understanding tells him, No—never—never—never!"

This will suffice as a sample. But when such statements are made, men should claim the right to inquire, Who said that—God or man? And what right has man to say all this?

In some of the minor details, the Protestant hell differs from the Catholic hell, but in its leading principle—endless torture—there is no difference. When we read such pictures of futurity, so in conflict with divine testimony, our love for the truth of the Bible is augmented. God will ultimately make a total riddance of sin and sinners from his universe, for the hell of the Bible will actually burn those consigned to it, and not be eternally trying to burn, and making an everlasting failure, it being a hell of destruction, and not of preservation. W. S.

Holiness is self-demonstrative. He whose heart is pure surrounds himself with a spiritual atmosphere, and adorns his life with a constant succession of godly and benevolent actions. As a man traveling to a distant country thinks, reads and talks of the land he longs to see, so the holy man thinks, reads and speaks of the city of God whither he is journeying. Hoping to receive an inheritance in that dwelling-place of sinless souls, "he purifieth himself as he is pure."—Ex.

ALTON BAY CAMP.

Bro. Stockman:—The Campmeeting is fully inaugurated and well started off. The afternoon and evening meetings have been interesting all the week. Friday and today (Aug. 20) our numbers have increased by boat and cars, so at the commencement we have large congregations, and there is evidently a strong desire and faith in the soon coming of our Lord and the realization of our hope. The meeting has started off on the high plane of Adventism, and if the steam force increases as fast as the Advent choir accumulate, we shall have a revival of our religious faith, and the meeting will be a great blessing to the cause of Christ and his soon coming all over the country.

The preaching this forenoon by Eld. B. S. Emery of Maine was timely and comforting. He gave us the key-note from the text, "Let not your hearts be troubled. . . . I will come again." He showed us the grief and sorrow manifested by his disciples at his leaving and going away; that the same love of Jesus would show itself in joy and rejoicing at the sound, "I will come again." And surely it was heartily responded to by a large congregation of believers, and followed by a stirring exhortation from Bro. Couch.

The indications are that we shall have a great meeting. The committee have their heads and hands full to meet the demands upon their energies. It is in the height of excitement as to cottages and stopping places. The weather is delightful, and the people are peaceable and pleasant, so we all get along first rate, and as "like begets like," we expect it will grow better.

At two P. M. a very large congregation assembled at the Tabernacle to hearken to the afternoon message. Eld. J. Parsons of New Hampshire was the speaker. He used for his text, "What is truth?" He showed that the word spoken by prophets, apostles and Jesus Christ was truth, and had, in spite of cavil, shown itself to be such by the clearest fulfilment of its declarations during these last hundreds of years. Its safety in believing and following it by obedience, as in the case of Noah in the days of the flood, also as it will so be in the days of the coming of the Son of man.

The meeting is going well. The trumpet is giving the certain sound here, and blessings must follow, which influence will be felt on community. More anon.

Alton Bay, Saturday evening, Aug. 20.

Eld. D. B. Oviatt, of Wellsville, N. Y., has just followed my example in renouncing the Seventh Day Adventist doctrine. For the last five years or more he has been President of the Pennsylvania Conference, and at the head of all the work in that State, having the management of everything. Just a few weeks ago, against his earnestly expressed wish, he was again elected to this office for another year. Now he resigns all his offices, and withdraws from the church, not knowing where to go nor what to do. He only knew that he could not believe and teach that system longer.

Though we were warm friends, and often together, yet neither of us knew that the other had any doubts or fears about the doctrine. Come to compare notes now we find that both of us have had the same experience. I have reason to believe that there are scores of others having a similar experience now who keep it all to themselves. May God pity them if they are suffering what we did in that system of bondage.

What evil motives will our Advent people now attribute to Eld. Oviatt? They must trump up something. What will it be? Ambition for a higher place? That will not work. No, I know Eld. Oviatt to be an excellent man, one who fears God, and who will make any sacrifice to be right.

D. M. Canright.

CRITICISM.

Criticism is of great benefit, if properly exercised, to discover or bring to light any defects in any structure or parts of machinery, or acts or words of any individual or bodies of men. Indeed, it is the foundation of free speech, a helper to universal right. It may be called the filter of language and channel by which we interchange thought and compare notes. But it is, like other good principles, often used in an unrighteous way, by subtle insinuations and sly hints. This method can be traced back to its foundation—egotism. But Christians have "such a hope, we use great plainness of speech." 2 Cor. 3: 12. P. W. Hough.

The world is full of talk; and a great statesman wisely said: "Much talking is the enemy of acting."

MEETINGS IN OREGON.

The Quarterly Conference and meetings appointed for this place have just closed. Though they came in the midst of harvest, the meetings were well attended, and we never saw better attention given during preaching than here. The next Conference is appointed for Damascus, Oregon, Nov. 25th. Though there were no conversions, the present truth is being joyfully accepted by members of different denominations. There were many heart-cheering testimonies. There was one aged brother who said he could not live long at best, but that his "immortal soul would wing its way to the paradise of God, there to dwell forever;" but he got his "wings" clipped by the truth, and subsided.

The preaching was by Eld. Preston and Cole, Eld. Steers preaching twice from his large chart. There were many urgent requests made that we return in Sept., after the rush of harvesting is over, and hold a protracted meeting with a full course of lectures on prophecy, illustrated by the chart. The Lord willing, such a meeting will be held. Our dear Bro. Cole is poor in this world's goods, but is through much tribulation keeping Immanuel's banner flying in this part of the field. Yours for Christ. Alson W. Steers.

PREPARATIONS FOR CAMP.

There have been many good suggestions for what is needful to fit us to be benefitted by attending a Campmeeting. But my opinion is that the most needful has been overlooked, or been set forth in different language; namely, being filled with the Spirit. This is a true doctrine, and needful whether at home or at camp. "For if any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his." It is essential that we feel the burden for the perishing, as he did when he wept over Jerusalem's approaching doom. He is not alone, but all his servants, so far as we know, possessed the same spirit. Isaiah said, "Look away from me; I will weep bitterly: labor not to comfort me, because of the spoiling of the daughter of my people."

Brother or sister, is there no call for sincere humility and deep sorrow on our part? Look around you. Perhaps you need not go from home to fill your heart with grief. How can we be indifferent with such conditions around us? See Jer. 9: 1; Rom 9: 1, 2. This is the spirit we want before we go to Campmeeting, that we may be like Jacob. Let us prevail with God if we feel a lack of this spirit. It is free for all. "Ask, and it shall be given," is as true today as it was then, and we need not wait for it until we go to camp; for if we "draw nigh to God" he will draw nigh unto us, at home or abroad. Glory to his name!

By saying this I do not wish to discourage, but to encourage all to come to do battle for the Lord. It may be the last one we will ever attend in mortality (at least so I think, if I am permitted to meet with you at camp). Come one, come all; it will not cost much; but if we come filled with the Spirit we will share rich dividends. Again I say, Come. P. W. Hough.

CONTINUED REPORT OF MISSION WORK IN NEBRASKA.

Our meeting at Grant, Keith Co., proved to be a good one in the name of the Lord. From its commencement the Spirit of God was with us in power. Sinners were convicted, backsliders feared, and had professors yielded to their convictions of truth, many no doubt would have come to Christ. But, alas! Churchanity seems to have taken the advantage of their Christianity, and the bands of church society are too strong for many of them to break; so, after being aroused and startled by the proclamation, "Behold He cometh!' they return to their dreams of better days to come.

The M. E. people held their Conference in our tent, and at the sacrament the Presiding Elder repeated the words of the Saviour, "As oft as ye do this, do it in remembrance of me"; not even once quoting, "Until I come." What does it mean, more than twenty times repeated, and as many times spoiled by cutting into? The reason is obvious. They have lost sight of the necessity, the magnificence and glory of his coming again, for with their hope they receive their reward at death, and hence no glory in his promise, "I will come again," and but little sweetness and cheer in all the resurrection promises of the Bible.

We remained at Grant two weeks and a half, and quite a number are now rejoicing in the truth. One good old M. E. minister has embraced the truth, and is now rejoicing in hope of a glorious reward when Jesus comes. One Seventh Day brother and a physician also abandoned his law theory, and will now labor in the interests of the gospel and present truth.

We have now held forty-eight services in the tent, preached forty-five times, distributed eight thousand pages of tracts, twenty copies of the Crisis, and twelve copies of the Quarterly Journal of Prophecy. In all this the Lord has helped, and we praise him for the privilege of carrying the light to those who sit in darkness, and our peace is like a river. We board ourselves, cook by a gasoline lamp, sleep on our cots, and frequently sing, "A tent or a cottage, we will not care," etc. We rest a few days at our daughter's, then to Boone County, to work in the Master's vineyard there.

FROM D. B. HUNT.

Bro. Stockman:—Permit me to express my thanks to the brethren and sisters for their hearty response to my call for tracts and papers. Sister H. Voncleif has sent me by express a packet of Sunday School papers and tracts. I have a supply on hand of the Crisis, but if any of the brethren have Sunday School papers or tracts lying idle, send them along, and they will be thankfully received. I would like to have some of those tracts entitled "Ghostology."

Last Sunday (taking my vacation) I went to the Free Baptist meeting and Sunday School (where a few years ago I and my Sunday School were turned out of doors), laden with tracts and the Young Pilgrim. I asked the superintendent if I might distribute them in school, or in the street after school closed. He said, "Yes, in school." So I gave to each one a paper and tract. One lady (very denominational) said, "You are very liberal." A few days after, one of our brethren who was there said he overheard the superintendent say to the minister, "I took his paper, and found nothing in it that would hurt anybody." His reply was, "They have a good deal of Scripture, and they are as smart as a whip." Yours in hope.

Knoxville, Tioga Co., Pa.

FROM BRO. T. J. DANIEL.

Bro. Stockman:—I have good news to tell you. I commenced a meeting here one week ago, and notwithstanding the many hard things said against us, the people would come to hear, and we carried the meeting on until last night, and the house was filled to overflowing every night. The Lord was with us, and "added to the church daily such as should be saved." We had thirty-six additions during the meeting, and they were among the best men and women of the community, and they are watching, waiting, hoping and praying for the soon coming of our blessed Lord, and the establishing of the everlasting kingdom.

I thank the Lord that we have no creed to defend except the Bible. I thank him that I have heard the glorious truth. I feel happy to-day, my brethren, and want to live a life devoted to the cause of my Master. I want to live without murmuring, repining, or complaining. Oh, pray to God for me, and for the waiting ones here in Arkansas. Let us ever be found fighting the good fight of faith, and we shall soon receive the "crown of life that fadeth not away," for the Life-giver will soon come and receive us unto himself. Then I expect to meet with many of like precious faith. I want some of the brethren to write to me, and I want the preaching brethren to pass this way when they can. I am ever yours in the blessed hope.

SECULAR NEWS.

Foreign.

London, Aug. 19. Mr. Chamberlain and Mr. T. W. Russell have withdrawn from the Unionist party, in consequence of the proclaiming of the Irish National League by the government. The proclaiming of the league was the subject of excited discussion in the lobbies of Parliament this evening. Gladstonians assert that the government is unjust and imprudent in proclaiming the league. The Parnellites say that the government wish to create trouble and outrage in Ireland during the coming winter; that the proclamation will force the extremest measures of the league to the front, and that the government will shortly bitterly repent their action. All the important documents of the league have been removed from the headquarters in Dublin.

The Pall Mall Gazette this afternoon very vigorously attacks the government party for adopting in the House of Commons last evening the Earl of Cadogan's amendment to the Irish land bill relating to town parks. The Gazette urges the Liberals to revolt against the government's Irish policy in the House of Commons, to obstruct the passage of supply measures and thus force a dissolution.

Mr. Russell writes that he cannot continue to support the government, the latter having violated its promise in regard to the land bill. Mr. Russell will cancel his engagements to speak at Unionist meetings during the recess. Mr. Russell is member of Parliament for the south division of Tyrone, and was elected as a Liberal-Unionist.

London, Aug. 19. In order to emphasize their indignation, a number of Liberal members of the House of Commons have decided to join the league. Many Irish papers appeared with black borders this evening. The announcement of the proclamation was received quietly in Ireland. At Limerick to-day 26 new members joined the league.

London, Aug. 19th. The Daily News says: "It is difficult to exaggerate the significance of Mr. Parnell's speech. This government of wiseacres has seldom floundered into a more desperately false situation."

The Telegraph sees no reason to modify its original opinion that the House of Lords amendments were a deplorable error in tactics.

The Chronicle says: "It would be as easy to make an empty sack stand up stiff and straight, as to support the government's chameleon-like policy. 'A plague on both your houses,' is the natural verdict of the English and Scotch Unionists."

St. Petersburg, Aug. 18. The Moscow Gazette urges the Russian government to act with vigor in regard to Bulgaria. The occupation of Bulgaria is needless as yet, it says, but Turkey should be held responsible for the violation of the Berlin treaty, and threatened with the occupation of Trebizond and Erzeroum unless order be restored in Bulgaria.

Domestic.

Chicago, Aug. 18. A special to the News from Chatsworth, Ill., says: "The coroner's jury investigating the cause of the Chatsworth railway disaster agreed on a verdict this morning which holds Timothy Coughlin, foreman of section 7, to the grand jury, and negatively exonerates the company. The management is not censured for running a double header, for a lax system of track inspection, or for anything else. The verdict simply implies that the failure to patrol the track for six hours before the train came, and the habit of burning grass close to the track, are subjects for criticism. The three or four friends of the road on the jury had better staying qualities than the two or three of those who wanted to fix a portion of the blame on the management.

Denver, Colorado, Aug. 18. News from Sheriff Kendall's party at Meeker says it is the general belief among the settlers there that Eeny, the son of Colorow, has been killed. They say he was shot through the head and fell from his horse. The Utes picked him up quickly and bore him away. If this is true, there is no doubt that Colorow will stop at nothing to avenge his son's death. At Meeker there are 150 men who will defend to the last the four hundred women and children who have sought refuge there. The adjutant-general intends to force march a company of militia to Meeker to aid the settlers. Colorow is in the mountains north of Meeker, awaiting the arrival of 75 bucks from the agency, who are on their way to join him. When he hears of the killing of his son he will seek revenge, and will, it is feared, begin at Meeker.

Republican City, Neb., Aug. 19. The worst storm of the season visited this section last night, blowing down buildings, unroofing houses and causing general havoc. A large brick schoolhouse, nearly completed, was wrecked and the carpenters buried in the ruins. J. J. Tanning and a man named Allen were killed. Six others were seriously injured, two fatally. H. H. Witherall's house was blown away, and his wife and two children buried in the debris and all more or less injured. Several other buildings were carried away or wrecked, and several persons were badly hurt. The damage cannot be estimated at this time. Hailstones an inch in diameter fell during the storm.

BY WM. F. COLLIER.

This is a tastily printed pamphlet of thirty-two pages, with tinted cover. The author claims that in the book of Revelation the literal truth is given by symbols. NOTICES.

THE WHITE RIVER JUNCTION GENERAL CAMPMEETING.

As previously announced, this meeting commences SUNDAY, AUG. 28TH, and closes SUNDAY, SEPT. 4TH. It takes the place of the old Bethel, Vt., Campmeeting, which is now discontinued. The meeting is removed to the new location to extend the general interests of the meeting, and to reach more of the people around, both saints and sinners. It is hoped and expected, therefore, that all the Advent people, not only in Vt., but in N. H., Mass., and even into Canada, will be interested in it, and attend to labor for the salvation of the perishing. The earnest desire is felt that all may come with full concentration of all their powers to work in the last days of time to bring the Advental truths we love before the people, and to get them interested therein and saved. The grounds are situated on the side of the Passumpsic R. R. track, three-fourths of a mile from the Junction Depot, and are reached by the trains passing North and South. A platform and covering have been built at the grounds, and all Passumpsic passenger trains will stop there.

Passengers from the South will keep their car until they reach the grounds. Those from the East and West change at the Junction for the Passumpsic train going North, and as all trains connect at the Station, the transfer is very easy.

The lines of Rail Road from all directions and connections will bring passengers for greatly reduced rates, and will sell through return tickets to the camp-ground.

The arrangements to bring and return the people thus are made with the Boston and Lowell R. R. of the Passumpsic and White Mountain Divisions, The Northern, Central Vermont, Montpelier and Wells River, Cheshire, Fitchburg, the Conn. River, and St. Johnsbury and Lake Champlain Roads.

From Sherbrooke, P. Q., and Lancaster on the North, Concord and Alton Bay on the East, Boston and Springfield, Mass., on the South, and Montpelier, Rutland, and adjacent places on the West, the tickets can be had for this meeting good from Aug. 22nd to Sept. 6th. The fares, to some extent, are as follows:

From Boston, either by the Boston and Lowell or Fitchburg, the fare is $6.40. This is a regular excursion ticket, and is good at any time until Oct. 31. Lowell excursion rates are 50 cents less.

From Concord and other places on the Boston and Lowell and Northern Roads the fare is as follows: Concord, $2.00; Penacook, $2.75; Boscawen, $2.70; No. B——, $2.75; Franklin, $2.25; Bristol, $2.70; East Andover, $2.00; Potter Place, $1.75; West Andover, $1.70; So. Danbury, $1.60; Danbury, $1.50; Grafton, $1.30; Grafton Centre, $1.20; Canaan, 95 cts.; West Canaan, 75 cts.; Enfield, 70 cts.; East Lebanon, 55 cts.; Lebanon, 40 cts.; West Lebanon, 20 cts.; Laconia, $2.60; Lake Village, $2.70; Weirs, $2.90; Meredith Village, $3.00; Ashland, $3.30. The last five places are meant to ticket so as to change at Tilton, and cross to Franklin by stage and save fare. The distance is three miles, and there is one hour of time for the change.

From Northfield the fare is $3.50 by Concord. Via. of Wells River fares are: Plymouth, $3.25; Rumney, $2.95; West Rumney, $2.85; Wentworth, $2.65; Warren, $2.45; West Summit, $2.30; Haverhill, $1.90; North Haverhill, $1.80; Bath, $1.70; Lisbon, $1.90; Littleton, $2.35; Whitefield, $2.80; Lancaster, $3.25; Sherbrooke, $5.10, and all points South on the Passumpsic at about fare one way.

From Hyde Park fare is $4.05; Morrisville, $3.95; Walcott, $3.65; Hardwick, $3.45; East Hardwick, $3.30; Greensboro, $3.20; Walden, $2.90; West Danville, $2.75; Danville, $2.65; West Concord, $2.55; Springfield, Mass., fare is $4.40. On other lines fares may be learned by inquiring at ticket offices.

We are hoping to have a ticket from Boston via. B. and M. R. R. to take passengers to both the Alton Bay and White River Junction meetings and return to Boston. If so, rate round trip will be about $8.00. There will be tickets on sale at Alton Bay for White River Junction and return for $5.00, perhaps less.

There will be provision for all who come. Board at 75 cents per day. Rooms at reasonable rates. Lots to lease for building cottages, and cloth tents to rent to those who wish, and will drop us a card stating what size, etc. Every possible thing will be done for the comfort of those who come. Brn. Stockman, Hemenway, Wallace, Mathewson, and others are expected to be present. All trains taken in the A. M. land passengers at the camp-ground by 1 P. M.

GENERAL WESTERN CAMPMEETING.

The General Western Advent Christian Campmeeting will be held this year at Manchester, Iowa, beginning Saturday, SEPT. 3d, and will be held over two Sundays, closing Sunday evening, the 11th. It is earnestly hoped that all the Adventists of the West will try and come to this meeting. These general meetings are indispensable to the success of our cause. Let every missionary come in from his chosen field of labor. Let every pastor come, and bring at least a portion of his flock. Parents, bring your sons and daughters to this yearly feast, and let us make this the largest and best meeting ever held in the West. Let the isolated ones come and tell their wants, and fill their cups with social and divine blessings, that we may all strike for greater things hereafter. We are beginning to get into working order. Now from all the land let us rally our forces at Manchester, and make the noble State of Iowa rejoice at our coming. Make a sacrifice if necessary to be at this meeting. Come to work for God and the perishing. Bring a full outfit for camp life. Bring quilts, comforters, blankets, rubbers, umbrellas, towels, pails, basins, straw ticks, pillow slips, and don't forget the pocket books. Tents for family use will be provided for all who wish to rent them, of any size and shape. All who choose to do so can furnish their own tents, as perhaps many may. And as you read of this notice, begin to pray as never before for God's blessing upon your own soul, and upon all who attend the Manchester meeting. We have every reason to believe that not only the committee but all who reside in the vicinity will do their utmost to make the meeting a success.

Manchester is on the Illinois Central R. R., forty-six miles west of Dubuque. The Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul R. R. crosses the Illinois Central at Delaware, six miles east of Manchester. The Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Northern R. R. crosses the Illinois Central at Independence, twenty-four miles west of Manchester. The Minnesota and North Western runs north of the camp-ground about five miles. Thorpe is the nearest station to the camp, and if the committee could be informed in time, teams would be at Thorpe to meet passengers. Those who wish to be met there and conveyed to the ground should write the committee early at Manchester. An effort is being made for reduced rates which, if effected, will enable all to return upon merely nominal fare.

W. J. HOBBS, President.
PHILO HITCHCOCK, Secretary.

NOTICE.—The Nineteenth Annual Advent Christian Conference of North Iowa will be held on the camp-ground at Manchester during the Campmeeting held from SEPT. 3d to 11th. Brethren, be sure to be there at the commencement of the meeting.

GEO. G. EMERY, President.
WM. H. CONNELL, Secretary.

CAMPMEETING.—The Northern Illinois A. C. Conference Campmeeting will be held at Genoa, DeKalb Co., Ill., beginning Saturday evening, AUG. 20, and holding over Sunday, AUG. 28. Genoa is on the Chicago and Council Bluffs division of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway, 50 miles west of Chicago, 22 miles west of Elgin, and 21 miles east of Davis' Junction. If a reduction of R. R. fares is obtained, notice will be given.

It was voted at our last Conference that the Campmeeting Committee confer with the brethren and sisters at this Campmeeting with reference to their controlling the Campmeeting hereafter, instead of its being governed by the Conference as in the past. To avoid interfering with the preaching, we appoint seven o'clock Tuesday morning, AUG. 30th, as the time to consider this matter in the Mission Tent. We hope our preaching brethren and all brethren and sisters interested in the Campmeeting will come so as to attend this meeting, filled with the Spirit of Christ, and take such action as shall best glorify the Lord. Like one of old, may our gathering together this year be in the fulness of the blessing of the gospel of Christ, that the power of the Holy Spirit may be felt throughout the encampment, sinners be converted, and the church made ready to meet her soon coming Lord. For this end let us all pray.

REJOICE AND SING!

Friends of God, rejoice and sing!
Shout! be glad! the Lord is King;
Soon shall heathen temples fall,
Christ be owned as Lord of all;
Hear you not Jehovah's call?

Sin's dark reign shall soon be o'er;
Death shall triumph never more;
Lo! he rose who once was dead,
All his foes are captive led,
Far and near the tidings spread.

Magnify the Saviour's name;
God's great love to man proclaim;
Day shall break, and night shall end,
Shouts of praise to heaven ascend,
Countless hallelujah's blend.

Bid all unbelief be gone;
See! God's ark is moving on.
How can ransomed souls delay?
Forward! while 'tis called to-day,
Shining legions lead the way.

Error cannot always last;
Superstition's day is past;
Truth can always stand the test,
Christ can make the nations blest,
Christ alone gives peace and rest.

Duty's path at length is clear;
Cast aside each thought of fear;
Make the Saviour's glories known,
Bring the nations near his throne,
He can save, and he alone.

PRAYER.

BY S. G. NEIL.

Prayer to God is of the utmost importance, and absolutely necessary; important because God, who knows our necessities, hath enjoined it upon us. The people of God in every age have loved and practised prayer. Patriarchs and prophets, apostles and saints, have given themselves continually unto prayer. "It is good for me to draw near unto God." Jesus loved and performed prayer. "In the days of his flesh, . . . he offered up prayer and supplications, with strong crying and tears unto him that was able to save him from death, and was heard in that he feared."

The most successful laborers in the Lord's vineyard have been men of prayer; and oh, brethren, if we would be used in leading thousands to Christ, and seeing Zion prosper all around us, we must spend much more time on our faces alone with the Bible and God. To-day God our Father looks down from heaven and weeps to see what little time his children spend in secret prayer before him.

Let us imitate Jesus. He went alone into the valley, on the mountain, in the wilderness, and in yonder garden. See him away from his disciples, cut off from all company. The night is dark, his path lonely, his face careworn, his feet blistered by the roughness of the way, his garments dusty. See him kneel in prayer. Watch him. His bosom swells, his heart breaks forth, tears flood his eyes, and drops of blood as it were fall upon the ground. Hear him as he utters that memorable prayer, "Father, if it be possible let this cup pass from me; nevertheless, not my will, but thine be done." He sees the rushing crowds, going fast to destruction, and to save them he drinks the bitter cup; for them he weeps, for them he prays, for them he dies.

Shall not we then, as Christians, who believe the Judge is even at the door, imitate our Great Head, and sacrifice all that is dear. Shall we not get alone with God, and shut ourselves away from the busy, toiling, sin-stricken and dying world, until we receive the baptism of the Holy Ghost, until we are men and women of Pentecost—men and women of power and prayer.

Prayer winged with faith will move mountains, shift darkness, calm storms, empty saloons, fill churches and chapels, flood meetings with salvation, and bring glory to our God. Oh, for believing prayer! Prayer is the humble expression of our wants and desires to God. It is the heart's appeal to God in every time of necessity. Prayer is an acknowledgment of the being and providence of God. "He that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of all them that diligently seek him." That is, have a full belief in his almighty power, faithfulness, mercy and salvation, and also a dependence upon him for the supply of all our needs. Prayer must be constant. "Men ought always to pray, and not to faint." God loves fervor and importunity in prayer.

We must not tire in praying for any special blessing. The engagements of this life have the tendency to make men faint. Pray always, for God is always waiting to be gracious. "He fainteth not, neither is he weary." "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength: they shall mount up with wings as eagles: they shall run and not be weary: they shall walk and not faint."

If ever the world stood in need of men and women of prayer it is to-day. Look around you, into your own home, into your own neighborhood. Look abroad and see what a mass of corruption and misery in consequence of sin. There is a great hue and cry sometimes about the crowds in this country who never cross the threshold of a church or chapel; but I say, look at the millions up and down the land who never worship at the feet of Jesus. Look at the masses who never name the name of Jesus but with an oath. Look at them until tears flow, brain burns, blood boils, bosom heaves, pulse beats quicker, and until your whole being is filled with burning love and flaming charity.

Let us rise from our knees with clean hands and pure hearts, and stand (as only praying men and women can stand) and warn our brothers and sisters of the judgment to come. Many young men and old men are looking about for a profession. Here is a profession. Here is employment. Do you want wealth? Here is wealth. Do you want honor? Here is honor. You can have the pleasure and honor and wealth that comes from God and will endure forever.

Brethren, be up and doing. Help us save the lost. Come to the rescue. Help us by your prayers, by your sympathy, and by your money. Send it in to the Treasurer of the Home and Foreign Mission Fund. Let us share in the sacrificing here, and we shall share in the glory hereafter. Work and pray. The sands of time are fast passing away. The end of all things is at hand. Jesus is soon coming to claim his own. "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with all thy might."

Bristol, Ct.

DUTY is ours; results are God's. "In the morning sow thy seed and in the evening withhold not thy hand; for thou knowest not whether shall prosper, either this or that, or whether they shall both be alike good.—Ex.

LOVE AND JUSTICE.

BY W. H. LANNIN.

The love of Christ was divine. It had no limit to its fervency. "God commendeth his love toward us, in that while we were yet sinners, Christ died for the ungodly." Christ loved Jerusalem, yet he was constrained to say, "Behold, your houses are left desolate unto you." God could not have saved the people of Jerusalem by any other method than the one he adopted. Mercy and justice had to blend together; love and truth had to kiss each other. His divine law could not be twisted to suit a crooked and perverse people. In his divine wisdom he had opened up the only way of escape. "He brought life and immortality to light through the gospel." Divinity had accomplished the work of reconciliation by the mysterious plan of redemption, and now the earnest appeal is, "Be ye reconciled to God." The Jews rejected their only way of escape; they willfully closed their eyes and ears; they refused to look unto Christ as their deliverer. At last mercy, who lingered long, moved sadly away, and judgment took his seat, and thus the loved city was "ground to powder."

Men have ever found fault with God's justice and judgment. They are ignorantly unable to reconcile a God of love with a God whose judgments end in an utter destruction. Let me humbly say that God is perfect in all he does. The salvation offered unto men is a perfect salvation. It is not one whit imperfect. It is full and complete. Men may profess a half salvation, but this kind is human and not divine. Men mix up truth with error, but God keeps them eternally separate. Salvation (or life) is God's gift to those who "believe with the heart unto righteousness." Death is the necessary reward or wages paid to those who obey not the gospel. Human love is in its very nature imperfect. Its most fervent zeal is blind to justice, hence we have the saying, "Love is blind and can see no faults." Humanity by nature is one sided. She looks one way, she observes one object. Her balance between love and judgment, justice and mercy, is seldom equally poised.

A mother can naturally discern the underlying faults in the children of other people before she can see them in her own. She is ready to excuse her own before she can be charitable unto others. Not so with the great Searcher of human hearts. He cannot look upon sin with the least degree of allowance. "As the heavens are higher than the earth, so is God's ways higher than man's ways, and his thoughts higher than our thoughts." God's love is boundless, so is his eternal justice and judgment. Not an attribute in God's administration exceeds any other in power or might. All his laws are in eternal harmony with each other.

We notice further that it is man's duty to "know the things that belong unto his peace." In this present evil day no man has any right to bolster himself up by the carnal plea of "not knowing." We all have a right to know. If we are blinded by the allurements of a fast and wicked age it is because we are led away by our own lusts and enticed. God never hides truth from any one until people close their eyes upon truth. Men degenerate from God by their own will and conduct, and thus their moral sun sinks below the horizon of God's life-giving universe.

REPORT OF TENT WORK.

Bro. Stockman:—As many readers of the Crisis are interested in the mission work in the Province of Quebec I will report again. Our last left us on the way to Lake Megantic, which is the present terminus of the Canadian Pacific R. R., about ten miles from the State of Maine line. We pitched our tent here July 31st on the shore of the beautiful lake. Friends trembled for our safety, as threats had been made that our tents would be torn down and cut to pieces if we come here. They knew the town was filled with rough men, it being the headquarters for the construction of the R. R. through into the State of Maine, five hundred men coming here for supplies and rum.

Our faith was severely tested, but we were willing to suffer, if need be, to advance the cause of Christ. But the trouble was imaginary, as the Lord helped us in all our arrangements for the meeting. By faith in him perfect order was maintained in and around the tent. It is safe to trust him under all circumstances. A number of the brethren and sisters from Scotstown came to our assistance both Sundays, a distance of twenty-six miles. Bro. D. Halfpenny, a Methodist local preacher (one of the old stamp) was present the first Sunday, and entered into the work heartily, endorsing fully Bro. Fairbank's discourse from Titus 2: 11, 12. Eld. I. W. Sornberger was with us both Sundays, and spoke the word with power. We closed our meetings Sunday night, July 31st. We should have stayed another week but some of our band were worn and sick by long continued labor, having attended meetings every evening except two since May 26th. Monday morning we parted to meet at Cookshire Aug. 5th.

The visible results of this meeting were not up to our expectations. The congregations were changing. Men who were present one evening would be many miles away the next. New ones came every night, so we had the chance to warn a great many during the meeting. Some accepted the light and truth. One dear sister went forward in gospel baptism which left a good impression on the people, it being the first case of immersion ever witnessed within twenty-six miles of this place. Our last meeting was wonderful in power and conviction on the people. At the close some thirty or forty expressed a willingness to accept Christ, so we left with a good interest and many warm friends.

This little village is cursed with six deadly dram shops, which pour a tide of ruin and desolation into many families, and can only be stopped by the saving grace of God. The great trouble we find in talking to these slaves to drink is to make them believe that the Lord can and will take away their appetites, and make them free men in Christ if they come to him. They doubt it inasmuch as they see many Church members and ministers who are as virtually slaves to habits and carnal appetites as they are themselves.

Brethren, let us "cast the beam out of our own eye," then can we see clearly to pull these poor unfortunates out of bondage. Pray for us in this mission work. It is cheering to feel that we have your prayers and sympathy as we go from place to place without invitation, among entire strangers, looked upon with suspicion, and bearing reproach and ridicule for Jesus' sake.

H. W. DAVIS, Tent Master.

TRUE HAPPINESS.

BY C. J. BUDLONG.

Happiness is undoubtedly an end to which all would aspire. The question then arises, How is it to be attained? On that point before every other we must be informed, lest we be deceived by the semblance of happiness, as many have been.

Real happiness cannot be found in the accumulation of worldly wealth, neither can it be found in ministering to the sensual desires of our animal nature, nor yet again in becoming versed in the sciences and wisdom of men.

All who have followed the giddy round of worldly gaiety, and have tasted "the pleasures of sin for a season," have been forced to confess that like Solomon of old they have found that "all is vanity and vexation of spirit, and there is no profit under the sun." The truth is, naught but Christ can satisfy. He alone can quiet the longings of the human heart, and make it wholly tranquil and happy. Not until we are entirely consecrated to God, and can truly say from the heart, "Not my will, but thine be done," can we experience that joy and peace which he alone is able to bestow.

The writer knows from personal experience that the joys of the world are but transitory. All its pleasures are intermixed with pain and grief; all its seeming beauty is but the allurements of satan to entrap the feeble pilgrim. But Christ is able to keep us from the power of all temptations; and if we will only be united to him as the living branches are to the vine, our lives will flow on like a limpid brook, ever reflecting in its mirror-like surface the image and beauty of our Creator. He will entirely fill our heart and illuminate our pathway with the light of his love; and when at last we come to "pass through the valley and shadow of death," we shall "fear no evil," knowing that before many suns have set "He who is our life shall appear," and welcome us into the realms of eternal day, and into a land that is "full of pleasant places and happy abodes," and where we shall go no more out forever. May God help us to be true to him for Jesus' sake.

"I MUST BE THERE."

BY H. S. WEBSTER.

The thought of blessing, honor and glory, when the jewels of the Master shall be gathered, and not being a partaker is dreadful. I feel "I must be there." I cannot afford to lose my interest in that great and everlasting prize that will be given at the end of the Christian race. What will quicken and nerve one to action more than this, that it might be possible to lose the prize after years of struggles and trials, toil and tears, even in weakness trying to point others to the goal where lies the greatest gift that can be bestowed upon the human family, and this is eternal life, and a home to live in forever, free from pain and sorrow. Truly it is worth striving for, enduring hardness as a good soldier, fighting the good fight of faith. Ofttimes doubts intervene, but faith like Abraham of old, believing in the face of seeming impossibilities, is the faith that will overcome. Satan is always near to place hindrances in the way, but trusting in God the victory is sure. "Though foes assail, and dangers affright," he that is for us is more than all that can be against us.

I must be there, and you too must be there. Dear one, halting between two opinions, you cannot afford to lose the things in store for those that love God, and believe in the name of his son Jesus Christ. Wonderful things the loving Father will bestow upon his faithful children, even those faithful over a few things according to their several abilities. Where much is given, much is required. Faithful in the least shall also receive reward. And this reward shall we not be determined we will have, at the loss of all earthly things? The crown of life, joy and bliss untold, glory, honor and immortality; a home where sorrow and death cannot come. This is only a part that Jesus will give the waiting ones at his coming. We must go on only a little while. "He that is to come will come," and we must be ready. Will it not be blessed to hail with joy that glad day when "the ransomed of the Lord shall return and come to Zion with songs," and sorrow and sighing shall flee away?

BRING UP CHILDREN RATIONALLY.

It is as natural to a child to be happy, as it is to a fish to swim. But for this they need a certain amount of "letting alone." It is a great mistake for parents to hamper their children with foolish restrictions. We pity the little B's our next door neighbor's children, from the bottom of our heart. There is a picket fence in front of the house, and they are scarcely allowed to go near it, lest they should climb and hurt themselves. They cannot climb a tree for the same reason. They may not skate or swim, or have a gun. The consequence of this training is that their parents have made cowards of them all, with the exception of little Bessie, who is the most daring little mischief that ever wore a sunbonnet, and she has learned to be deceitful and plays her mad pranks well out of sight of her parents' eyes. We caught her the other day walking the railing of a bridge that crossed the track of a railroad a hundred feet below. The railing was not a foot wide, and she triumphantly told us that she had walked it while the train was passing under. It was enough to make one shudder.

Don't fancy your boy made of glass. Grant a reasonable request, and let him feel that when you refuse, it is for his own good. Between the Jellybys and the Gradgrinds of life, children have a hard time of it. The youngest child needs some sort of agreeable occupation, and a certain amount of physical freedom. There is nothing more painful to young people than to feel that life is one dull routine, and that "nothing ever happens" as we once heard a disconsolate lad remark.—American Agriculturist for August.

Bro. Bailey was in the best sense of the phrase a whole-hearted man. He was converted some fourteen years ago, and united with the Baptist Church. He gradually became interested in the Advent faith, and a few months ago withdrew from the church of his early choice and united with us. He was a lover of the Lord's coming. He was anticipating a rich feast of spiritual things at the late Springfield Campmeeting, and had moved his family on to the ground early, but he died in his tent on the ground on the Sunday before the meeting commenced on Saturday. He was a man of robust health, and his death was very sudden, caused by stepping on a nail which produced lockjaw tetanus. He was for some years and at the time of his death the chaplain of a reform club, also a member of a gospel workers' praying band, and an Odd Fellow. He was an enthusiastic worker wherever work was needed, especially at the jail, the reform club, and the church. Our place of worship was well filled on the occasion of the funeral, when we discoursed upon the "memory of the just," assisted in the service by Revs. Buckingham, D. D., Congregational, and Swallow, Baptist. The Odd Fellows' beautiful burial service was rendered at the grave, around which were gathered delegations from three lodges of Odd Fellows, various Temperance organizations, and two churches, and all seemed to feel a sense of personal bereavement. A remarkably good and faithful man has fallen in the death of Bro. Bailey, and we think he was fully prepared for eternal life. May the widow's God and the orphan's Father richly bless the bereaved family, and reunite them in his soon coming and glorious kingdom.

G. H. WALLACE.

CHAMBERLAIN. In Rochester, N. H., June 13, 1887, suddenly of heart disease while at his work, Bro. Gilbert Chamberlain, aged sixty-nine years, ten months and nineteen days.

Bro. Chamberlain was born in Rumford, Me.; was converted and united with the Methodist Church in Portland, Me, where he remained a worthy member until about twenty years ago, when he heard and embraced the truth of the soon coming of Jesus. He was then transferred to the Advent Christian Church of Portland. He subsequently moved to Chelsea, Mass., where he was a worthy and active member of the Advent Christian Church, and was quite prominent in the work of building the Advent Chapel of that place. About eight years ago he moved with his family to Rochester, N. H., where he has been a very worthy member of the A. C. Church, a constant attendant at the public service, always at his place and duty in the prayer meeting, and has ever shown to the world by his testimony and exemplary life that he believed in the doctrine of the soon coming of Jesus. He leaves an aged and infirm companion, two daughters, two sons with their families, besides two brothers and one sister, to mourn but a little while, and then will come the glorious reunion. The night before he died, in his last meeting, after the sermon he gave his last heart-cheering testimony, telling us of his faith in the soon coming of Jesus to reward his saints, and how he loved his appearing. He was buried from his late residence, where a large number of all classes and denominations came together, showing thereby their respect for the deceased, and their sympathy with the bereaved family. Funeral service conducted by the writer, assisted by Eld. E. Johnson.

ENOCH MORRILL.

Bro. Roberts was converted when quite young, and was baptized by the writer eighteen years ago, and has since lived an exemplary life in every sense of the word. He was employed as teacher of writing in the Commercial College at New Hampton for eleven years, and was highly esteemed by all who knew him. He was carried to Strafford, N. H., the home of his childhood, where funeral services were attended by the writer, assisted by Eld. Neale, pastor of the Baptist Church. A very large number of his townspeople were present to sympathize with the friends, and look on the form of a noble man and a faithful Christian. He leaves a widow, one brother and four sisters, who longingly look for the time when the Lord will come and give back to their arms the dear husband and brother.

JOHN PARSONS.

SCRAFFORD. In Aurora, Ill., June 11th, 1887, Naomi M. Scrafford, aged sixteen years, eleven months, and thirteen days.

Her confiding and longing heart had sought for rest and satisfaction which the world promises, but never gives. Pierced through and through with the fatal thorns which lay concealed under the roses, so seductively displayed, in her helplessness she turned her penitent gaze toward a forgiving Saviour, who most graciously bound up her bleeding heart. Trusting in his promises she quietly fell asleep. Words of comfort were offered by the writer, based on the immutable promises of God. Text, Luke 8: 52,—"Weep not; she is not dead, but sleepeth."

C. W. SMITH.

SPAULDING. In Brooklyn, Ct., July 16, 1887, Wilfred J. Spaulding, aged seven years, six mos. and twenty-one days.

The subject of the above notice was a very promising and active boy. None knew Freddie but to love him. He was killed almost instantly by falling from a loaded brick wagon, and was crushed by the wheels. The heart broken father, who was driving the team, had barely time to pick him up in his arms and he had ceased to breathe. Our Bro. and Sr. are comforted with the truth that he will come again from the land of the enemy. Words of comfort were spoken to the large circle of sympathizing friends from 1 Tim. 1: 10 by the writer, assisted by W. N. Tenney.

A. S. WILLIAMS.

VEASEY. In [illegible], N. H., July 3d, 1887, Bro. Thomas D. [illegible], aged seventy-three years and seven months.

Our brother gave his heart to the Lord, and was one of the active ones in the '43 move, and ever after was a firm believer in God's leading out a people to look and wait for his Son from heaven. He delighted to meet with the saints, and his home will be remembered by many of God's servants as a welcome place for rest, also for meetings; but his care and labor for others is ended, and he rests in hope. He leaves a companion in feeble health, and an only son and his family, who will miss much the absent one.

J. G. JEWETT.

WILLCOX. In Troy, Vt., May 22nd, 1887, of whooping cough and pneumonia, our little granddaughter, Rotha Adella Willcox, aged two years, two months and sixteen days.

We sorrow not as those without hope. We pray the blessing of God may rest upon the sorrowing parents, and help them to be faithful, for soon little Rotha will live again, not to sicken and die, but bloom with immortal beauty and eternal life.

MRS. H. DROWN.

CHICK. In Wakefield, N. H., June 29th, 1887, Mrs. Cora E. Chick, aged twenty-six years, six months.

Funeral services were held at the church in Effingham. Words of comfort were spoken by the writer.

A. STILLINGS.

STRONG. In Gardiner, Me., Clyde Elmore Strong. He was born May 19th, 1885, and died July 22d, 1887, aged [illegible] months, three days.

Farewell, [illegible]
To take you [illegible]

MRS. [illegible]

GOODROUGH. Fell asleep in Jesus at Union City, Penn., Bro. [illegible] Goodrough, aged forty-nine years, [illegible] and twenty-eight days, in full assurance [illegible] resurrection, when the Saviour shall come the second time.

C. R. GOODROUGH.

She was one of our oldest and most devoted members, always in her place in the house of God, and always faithful in prayer and exhortation. For more than thirty years she lived in expectation of meeting her blessed Saviour and being made like him when he comes. She died in peace, and rests in hope of a glorious resurrection. The church will miss her much. Funeral attended by the writer, assisted by Rev. Mr. Warren, Presbyterian, and Rev. Mr. Birdsall, Disciple. We tried to comfort the mourning friends with the resurrection hope.

A. P. MOORE.

DAYTON. At Bristol, Conn., April 10th, 1887, the result of a paralytic stroke received about fourteen years ago, Wm. Dayton, aged seventy-four years.

Bro. Dayton was a Christian. He accepted the truth of the Lord's coming in 1843, since which time he rejoiced in hope, and was patient in tribulation. He knew the meaning of Paul's grandest of all experiences, "Christ in you the hope of glory." "After life's fitful fever, he sleeps well," and we "know that he shall rise again in the resurrection, at the last day." We tried to cheer the friends who mourn his loss.

JOHN C. ST. JOHN.

WELCH. In Concord, N. H., Oct. 8th, 1886, Mrs. Louis Welch, aged eighty-five years, seven months and twelve days.

Our beloved sister in Christ was born in this town in 1800. She found Christ mighty to save when twenty-three years of age. She was the mother of nine children, three surviving her. We have worshiped together for many years, and our aged sister loved the gospel of the kingdom, as do also her children, who expect to meet mother soon with all the redeemed.

JOHN G. HOOK.

SEAVEY. In Concord, N. H., March 5, 1886, Paul W. Seavey, aged seventy-two years.

Bro. Seavey was a Christian for many years. Formerly he was a Methodist. For some twelve years he was a believer in the soon coming of our Lord and his kingdom. His wife survives him. He also leaves four sons, who carried him out and buried him. A good man has finished his course, and is resting in hope of life everlasting through the Lord Jesus. We endeavored to comfort the bereaved with the word of the Lord.

JOHN G. HOOK.

ROGERS. In Saginaw, Mich., May 10th, 1887, our dear son, William F. Rogers, fell asleep in Jesus with a full assurance of acceptance with Christ, and a hope of immortality when the Life-giver shall come.

He embraced religion and was baptized when fifteen years of age, and joined the Freewill Baptist Church. Soon after he became acquainted with the doctrine of the Advent Christian Church, and was a firm believer of that precious faith until he fell asleep.

WM. & MARY A. ROGERS.

TOLMAN. In Rockville (Camden), Me., May 24th, 1887, Amie Frank, little son of Mr. & Mrs. Otis Tolman, aged one year and four months.

While little Amie is sweetly sleeping in Jesus, waiting the summons from on high, the blessed hope of the glorious gospel of Christ sustains and comforts the weeping mother. May God grant that very soon that hope may become the hope of the dear father, and may all the family share the glory of the world to come. Words of comfort by the writer.

M. M. STEVENSON.

EASTWOOD. In Conquest, N. Y., June 10th, 1887, of dropsy, Bro. Worden Eastwood, aged seventy-six years.

Bro. Eastwood was comforted for long years with the good hope of Christ's soon coming, and immortality at the resurrection of the just. He leaves a lone wife and other friends to mourn, but not without hope. Words of comfort by the writer to a large and sympathizing congregation.

E. C. COWLES.

PERKINS. In Galesburg, Mich., of paralysis, Joseph J. Perkins, aged seventy-four years, one month and seventeen days.

Bro. Perkins had long loved the appearing of the Saviour, and "that blessed hope" was like an anchor to his soul to the last. He leaves a wife and a large family of children, as well as the church in Galesburg to mourn his loss. Funeral attended by the writer, assisted by Brn. L. P. Bristol and John Carver.

A. P. MOORE.

SPAULDING. In Brooklyn, Ct., March 4, 1887, of pneumonia, Olive D. Spaulding, aged sixty-two years and eight months.

Words of comfort were spoken to the sorrowing friends by the writer, from Jer. 9: 21.

A. S. WILLIAMS.

THE BEST APPLES ON TOP.

Two worthy deacons from a village church have just left my study. They came to see if I knew of a "good even minister for their parish." They did not want a great or brilliant man, but an even man. Said one; "We have had five pastors in twelve years, and all of them 'put their best apples on top,' preaching first-rate sermons for three or four months, and then growing poorer and poorer." The good men were anxious to find a man who would hold out. It is surely bad for ministers or farmers to put their best apples on top. This is the main reason for so many short pastorates. A man to wear must not only preach as well, but better each succeeding year. As long as a man grows, the people will be contented with him. Pulpit sluggishness has more to do with short pastorates than the fastidiousness of the pew. Too many preachers mistake facility for growth, but this very increased ease on the part of the preacher frequently decreases his power as a speaker. That which costs us but little, moves others less. Preachers, like trees, should give more and larger fruit the older they grow.—Rev. Smith Baker, of Lowell.

UNDERSTANDING ALL KNOWLEDGE.

A man may know all about the rocks, and his heart remain as hard as adamant; he may know all about the winds, their courses and their currents, and be the sport of passion as turbulent and fierce as they; he may know all about the stars, and his fate be the meteor, that blazes for a little while, and then is lost, quenched in eternal night; he may know about the sea, and be a stranger to the peace of God: his soul may resemble its troubled waters, which, lashed by storms and ruffled by every breath of wind, cannot rest, but throws up mire and dirt; he may know how to rule the spirit of the elements, and not know how to rule his own spirit; he may know how to turn aside the thunderbolt, but not the wrath of an angry God.

You may know all, in short, that man's genius has discovered or his skill invented, but if you do not know Jesus Christ, but if your eyes have never been opened to a saving knowledge of the truth, what will that avail you when they are fixed in their sockets glazed by the hand of death? Equally by the death-bed of the greatest philosopher, as of the hardest miser that ever ground the faces of the poor, there is room and reason for the solemn question, What shall it profit a man if he shall gain the whole world—all its learning, its wealth, its pleasures and honors—and lose his own soul?—Selected.

FROM WM. H. [illegible]

Bro. Stockman:—I can say, with other readers of the Crisis, I love to receive the paper, and I always commence with Bro. Grant's letters, but am pleased with all the reading. One thing I love in our paper is that it is kept clear of worldly advertisements, and therefore I can hold it up to my neighbors as a gospel paper, and one full of spiritual food.

I pray God to open the eyes of all Adventists to do their duty, and especially to pay for the paper, and not to have to be reminded of the same. I do hope they will cleanse themselves of all unrighteousness, and get rid of tobacco. Let such take the tobacco money and pay up their dues on the Crisis. I praise God that I am free of such things: and further, I have not taken a cup of tea or coffee for twelve years; the same is not used in my family.

I always look for Bro. Cargile's and Hiram Munger's letters. How I should like to see them and listen to the Bible truths. I can say "Amen" to Bro. Munger's letter to the Springfield Republican. Keep the Crisis full of practical truths. The Christian path is onward. Yours in Christ.

PRAYER ANSWERED.

A True Story.

On the summit of Washington Mountain, overlooking the Housatonic Valley, stood a hut, the home of John Barry, a poor charcoal burner, whose family consisted of his wife and himself. His occupation brought him in but a few dollars, and when cold weather came he had managed to get together only a small provision for the winter. This fall, after a summer of hard work, he fell sick and was unable to keep his fires going. So, when the snow of December, 1874, fell, and the drifts had shut off communication with the village at the foot of the mountain, John and his wife were in great straits.

Their entire stock of food consisted of only a few pounds of salt pork and a bushel of potatoes. Sugar, coffee, flour and tea had, early in December, given out, and the chances for replenishing the larder were slim indeed. The snow storms came again and the drifts deepened. All the roads, even in the valley were impassable, and no one thought of trying to open the mountain highways, which even in summer were only occasionally traveled, and none gave the old man and his wife a thought.

December 15 came, and with it the heaviest fall of snow experienced in Berkshire County in many years. The food of the old couple was now reduced to a day's supply, but John did not yet despair. He was a Christian and a God-fearing man, and his promises were remembered, and so, when evening came, and the northeast gale was blowing and the fierce snow storm was raging, John and his wife were praying and asking for help.

In Sheffield village, ten miles away, lived Deacon Brown, a well-to-do farmer fifty years old, who was noted for his piety and consistent deportment, both as a man and a Christian. The deacon and his wife had gone to bed early, and in spite of the storm raging without, were sleeping soundly, when with a start the deacon awoke, and said to his wife: "Who spoke? Who's there?" "Why," said his wife, "no one is here but you and me; what's the matter with you?" "I heard a voice," said the deacon, "saying 'Send food to John.'" "Nonsense," replied Mrs. Brown, "go to sleep. You have been dreaming." The deacon laid his head on his pillow and was asleep in a minute. Soon he started up again, and waking his wife said: "There, I heard that voice again, 'Send food to John.'" "Well, well," said Mrs. Brown. "Deacon, you are not well; your supper has not agreed with you. Lie down and try and sleep."

Again the deacon closed his eyes, and again the voice was heard, "Send food to John." This time the deacon was thoroughly awake. "Wife," said he, "who do we know named John who needs food?" "No one I remember," replied Mrs. Brown, "unless it be John Barry, the old charcoal burner on the mountain." "That's it," exclaimed the deacon. "Now I remember, when I was at the store in Sheffield, the other day, Clark, the merchant, speaking of John Barry, said, 'I wonder if the old man is alive, for it is six weeks since I saw him, and he has not yet laid in his winter stock of groceries.' It must be old John is sick and wanting food."

So saying, the good deacon arose and proceeded to dress himself. "Come, wife," said he, "waken our boy Willie, and tell him to feed the horses and get ready to go with me, and do you pack up in the two largest baskets you have a good supply of food, and get us an early breakfast, for I am going up the mountain to carry the food I know John Barry needs."

Mrs. Brown, accustomed to the sudden impulses of her good husband, and believing him to be always in the right, cheerfully complied, and after a hot breakfast Deacon Brown and his son Willie, a boy of nineteen, hitched up the horses to the double sleigh, and then, with a month's supply of food, and a "Good bye, mother," started at five o'clock on that cold December morning for a journey that almost any other than Deacon Brown and his son Willie would not have dared to undertake.

The northeast storm was still raging, and the snow falling and drifting fast, but on, on went the stout, well-fed team on its errand of mercy, while the occupants of the sleigh, wrapped up in blankets and extra buffalo robes urged the horses through the drifts and in the face of the storm. That ten mile ride, which required in the summer hardly an hour or two, was not finished until the deacon's watch showed that five hours had passed.

At last they drew up in front of the hut where the poor trusting Christian man and woman were on their knees praying for help to Him who is the "hearer and answerer of prayer," and as the deacon reached the door he heard the voice of supplication, and then he knew that the message which awakened him from sleep was sent from heaven. He knocked at the door; it was opened, and we can imagine the joy of the old couple when the generous supply of food was carried in, and the thanksgivings that were uttered by the starving tenants of that mountain hut.—Sunday Herald.

SIGNS: MATT. 24: 29–35.

BY F. W. CLOUGH.

There are four diverse views held and taught concerning Matt. 24. The first we notice, is that the entire prophecy was fulfilled prior to, and at the destruction of Jerusalem, A. D. 70; its advocates claiming that the expression "this generation shall not pass, till all these things be fulfilled," determine the location of the fulfillment of the prophetic events.

Said view contains fatal defects, and among them are these: 1st, "this generation" (claiming the Jews as a nation) in said case would be only a natural or human generation. 2nd, as he did not talk to, or of the Jews, but to his disciples, privately, so they cannot be "this generation." 3rd, the theory claims the absurd conclusion that Jesus Christ came in all his glory when Jerusalem was destroyed in A. D. 70.

The second view we notice, is that the prophecy relates to the Jews; but unlike the first theory, claims the tribulation to come down this side of the siege and destruction of their city, A. D. 70, occupying all the time during which they have been scattered and trodden under foot, and that none of the signs predicted in Matt. 24: 29–35 have yet been fulfilled, because the tribulation upon the Jews yet continues.

Said view involves the incorrect claim that any one human generation can be so long-lived. In the ancient genealogy recorded in the Scriptures, a generation is used to designate the length of the life of a family—a father. It also claims that the length of the tribulation is not given in prophecy, so that the knowledge of the proximity of the signs and the coming of Christ, must remain somewhat obscure until the Jewish tribulation is ended; in which case we may now be within a short time of the second advent, or we may not be within one hundred and fifty years.

The third view we notice claims that the tribulation and the signs are all yet future, and at the longest will not last longer than about six years, and that prior to the time when the severest tribulation ever known comes; that there is no prophecy, no measurement of time given, by which any certainty of its approach can be determined [illegible] the prophetic measurements of 2300, 1260, 1290, 1335, are so many 24 hour days, instead of so many years, and that Matt 24 is all to be fulfilled in the future.

Said view like the others, furnishes no light upon the approaching advent until it is upon us. "But to the law and the testimony." "Ye are not in darkness that that day should overtake you as a thief." "We have also a sure word of prophecy, whereunto ye do well that ye take heed, as unto a light that shineth in a dark place, until the day dawns." "Surely the Lord God will do nothing, but he revealeth his secret unto his servants the prophets." "The revelation of Jesus Christ which God gave unto him, to show unto his servants things which must shortly come to pass."

The fourth view we notice (we believe it the true one) claims that the tribulation in Matt. 24 is the persecution of the saints by Papal Rome for twelve centuries, and that it closed with the closing years of the last century. Jesus denominates it the greatest tribulation from the beginning to the end of the world, Matt. 24: 21. He tells us it will be (from the time he uttered the prophecy) upon the elect, and all of the apostolic writers address Christians as the elect of God, during this dispensation. Daniel 7 shows that the saints are given into the hands of Papal Rome until his dominion is taken away; see also Dan. 11, Rev. 11, 12, 13th and 17th chapters.

Prophecy also shows that they would fall by flame, sword, spoil, captivity, "even to the time of the end," and that in the time of the end" knowledge would be increased, many would run to and fro, and that marvelous developments would be witnessed, which, though signs of themselves, would be mistaken by the unlearned in divine truth, and the unconverted as the advancement in science, the grand development of the human, "the world in its infancy"; while in fact they are the indisputable proofs of our nearness to the end of the present dispensation.

Prophecy shows also that in such a state during "the time of the end," human society would be at ease, would cry "peace and safety" until sudden destruction would come upon them. Regarding the great tribulation upon the elect, Goodrich tells us (page 160) that "it is computed that not less than 50,000,000 Protestants" suffered death under the persecutions of Papal Rome, and that they (persecutions) even exceeded in severity those under the Pagan emperors.

Matt. 24: 29–35 brings to view a list of wonderful signs occurring in the physical world, beginning immediately after the tribulation of those (1260) days, and to last during "the time of the end." Has the sun been darkened, and that at the close of Papal persecution? It has. Has the moon refused to give her light? It has. Have the stars fallen since? They have. Have the powers of the heavens (the forces in heaven) been shaken since? They are now in that condition. What next? "Then [the next event] shall they see the Son of man coming in the clouds of heaven, with power and great glory."

Coincident with this development of a list of signs occurring in the physical world, [illegible] in the religious world, in the social world, in the scientific world, in the financial world. In any department you are pleased to note, changes declared in prophecy are seen, and vividly seen by the careful observer. God's time for signs is during "the time of the end"; will he leave out any one part of the list? Certainly not. Then, during "the time of the end," when "ye [not the disciples he spoke the wonderful prophecy to, but those who should live when the signs would occur—the church] shall see [understand them, or know of their fulfillment] all these things, then know that the kingdom of God is near even at the doors."

"This generation shall not pass until all these things be fulfilled." A new era in the history of the church of God has dawned and has now come, in which believers are especially awakened to the fact that the heavenly bridegroom is about to come, Adventism, if you wish to call it so. So that we can say in the language of Peter, "This is that which was spoken of by the prophet." The first three views I have noticed, involve obscurity until almost the hour of the second advent; the latter introduces the most satisfactory fact that the dear children of God, anticipating life in the kingdom of God, are made aware of the fact of the proximity of the day of redemption as it draws near. Just think of the inconsistency of the claim that the bride of Christ is to remain in darkness regarding the day of nuptials. Indeed, it is not so; the time is "appointed," and her love has been tested in searching to know when; premature conclusions do not discourage her; her love for her lord is not lessened by what any indiscreet theorist has done with the prophetic periods.

My own opinion regarding the 2300 years, is that they ended in 1843, and accomplished the design of the great and all-wise Father in calling the bride of his Son out to wait for him. That the 1335 years will end in 1889, and that that date will witness Jesus Christ and all his redeemed host in full possession and occupancy of this earth. That some time prior to that date, between the present and the ending of the 1335, the personal advent of Christ will occur, the dead will be raised, the final separation and appointed destiny of men will be reached, and finally the regeneration, bringing perfection and eternal life. The day draws near, the day-dawn is now, the morning star tells us to awake for now it is the morning watch of this night of waiting. I have no disposition to exchange the old and tested views of prophetic truth for new and visionary opinions. Then be calm, do not be impatient. God is his own interpreter, he will [illegible]

THE KINGDOM OF GOD.

BY WM. F. COLLIER.

"There shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth, when ye shall see Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, and all the prophets, in the kingdom of God, and you yourselves thrust out." Luke 13: 28.

This text has been made suggestive of the following question: "How can the wicked see the saints in the kingdom of God before the kingdom is set up?" The point claimed to be involved in this question is, are the wicked as well as the righteous dead to be raised to life at the coming of Christ in the end of this age? It is suggested that if the affirmative is true, and if all the wicked are then on this old earth to be burned up root and branch, how can the wicked who will have thus suffered the second death, be again raised to life upon the new earth, so that they may see the saved ones in the kingdom, and they themselves thrust out?

Well indeed, this proposition would seem difficult if the teaching of Jesus did not so clearly show its fallacy. Let us therefore search among his sayings for an understanding of the expression: "the kingdom of God," as used in the verse quoted. Jesus said to the Pharisees, "The kingdom of God is within you [among you, margin]." Luke 17: 21. Clearly this announcement is a hyperbolical expression. Component parts of the kingdom, that is its children, also the king—Jesus—were among the Pharisees. Thus the inhabitants of the future literal kingdom of God were made to represent that kingdom.

Again, "And, behold, the whole city came out to meet Jesus." Matt. 8: 34. Of course it was only the people that came out to meet him. Thus, again, a whole city is personated as instinct with life, to represent an act of only a component part; viz., the inhabitants of the city. The Scriptures abound with expressions like the foregoing, wherein a component part of a thing is made to represent the whole, but the examples quoted must suffice. The verses which immediately precede the text (verse 28) under consideration, plainly teach that the "weeping and gnashing of teeth" referred to, is to be fulfilled at the judgment of the great day of God.

Verse 25 begins as follows: "When once the master of the house is risen up and hath shut to the door." Let us then at once refer to what Jesus says regarding the events which are to transpire when the master of the house rises up to judgment. "As therefore the tares are gathered and burned in the fire; so shall it be in the end of this world. The Son of man shall send forth his angels, and they shall gather out of his kingdom all things that offend, and them which do iniquity; and shall cast them into a furnace of fire; there shall be wailing and gnashing of teeth." Matt. 13: 40, 41, 42. Thus Jesus plainly teaches that "all" the wicked are to be gathered out of Christ's kingdom—the kingdom of God—before they are destroyed from off this old earth, in the end of this world (age).

But how can this event then be accomplished, if the kingdom of God is not to be set up—established—until after the old earth has been melted, and the new earth has appeared? I answer, on the same principle advocated in the foregoing. The resurrection of all the dead having been accomplished, in the same hour—at the same time—as Jesus has declared (John 5: 28, 29), it is clear that a component part of the everlasting kingdom of God, viz., all the saints of God that have ever lived, also all the wicked that have ever lived, must stand together before God on this old earth, in the end of this age.

Now, on the principle advocated above, when the angels have gathered the wicked out from among the "children of the kingdom" (verse 38), will they not have gathered them out of his (Christ's) kingdom? This question is clearly and positively answered in the affirmative in verse 49: "So shall it be in the end of this world: the angels shall come forth, and sever the wicked from among the just." Thus it may be clearly seen that the two expressions, "Sever the wicked from among the just," and "gather out of his kingdom all things that offend, and them which do iniquity," are announcements regarding the same event, and mean the same thing.

Why, then, may not the wicked see Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, and all the prophets in the kingdom of God, that is, among the children of the kingdom, and they themselves thrust out; when, in the end of this age, they have been severed out from among the children of the kingdom? If the foregoing is scriptural, then it is not necessary to argue the postponement of the resurrection of the wicked dead until a thousand years after the end of this age, in order that those wicked Jews may see Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, and all the prophets in the kingdom of God, and they themselves thrust out. Amen.

LABOR AND CAPITAL.

BY J. S. WHITE.

These terms in their nature have existed from the time of Abraham, and may have been before his day, down to our time. "Abraham was very rich in cattle, in silver, and in gold." Gen. 13: 2. The capitalist and laborer are more or less dependent on each other. One party cannot succeed without the other. The workingman depends on him who employs him, and the employer depends on the laborer for the continuance of his business.

Abram at one time had three hundred and eighteeen servants. These servants served him, and by their service he was made rich. Abram no doubt used his servants well, and they were dependent on him for support. There was harmony between the employer and the laborer. In those days there was a great war among the nations, in which Lot was taken and carried off with his family and his servants and all that he had. When this was told to Abram he armed his servants and pursued after the victor, slew their kings, and rescued Lot and all that belonged to him. It does not appear that Abram's servants, when they were called to arm themselves and go into battle with those kings and their armies, said to Abram, "This is extra work, and you must give us extra pay, or we will strike." Probably they did not talk the matter over among themselves, saying, "Abram cannot do what he proposes to do without our help; and so he will be compelled to comply with our demands, and if he refuses we will strike, and then he will be compelled to yield."

Abram's servants did not belong to a clan of Anarchists, or Socialists, or Knights of Labor strikers. They worked for Abram, and were willing to do the work he required. They did not claim that though Abram was made rich by their labor, he should divide up his wealth among his servants. Perhaps in those days there were no outside persons ready to stir up strife between Abram and his servants, by showing the great riches of Abram and his increasing income in contrast with his servants, so as to make them believe that they were "in a condition akin to slaves," and if so "they would be justified in waging war upon it"; and to say that those who worked for Abram were in a "condition of semi-slavery," which would be akin to slavery, and half-slavery. Some in our time, who have worked for those who have employed them, have claimed that they "are slaves"; and for the reason that they do not have all the pay they demand, and that they cannot dictate and control the business of those who employ them.

In this state of society what could more effectually inflame the passions of those excited persons who claim that they are "in a condition akin to slavery" than to have spread out before them the great wealth in the possession of some, and the great increase of property of some, and the enormous salaries of many, and saying to the laboring classes, "If you are in a condition akin to slavery or semi-slavery, you are justified in waging war on it," leaving the manner of the war open to the choice of the combatants; so they might make war with their fists, clubs, stones, brick-bats, boycotting and burning. All this is incendiarism; and those who encourage waging this war, without qualification are abettors to the war, and are morally and legally as responsible as those who actually engage in it. The action of both parties is incendiary. "One who maliciously burns a house or excites discord."—Webster.

What does it avail for one to advise others to keep out of this controversy, while he is engaged in stirring it up in the most effectual way he can devise? The classes which have claimed that they are in a condition of slavery have been told by outside influence that they are in semi-slavery, and are justified in waging war, leaving the strikers to their choice of weapons, even to the use of firearms and bomb-shells. The means by which the diabolical war has been carried on are now nearly laid aside. The move now is to get possession and the control of the government. What then?

The only way to lead a holy life is to obtain a holy heart.

LECTURE WORK.—THE M'KINSTRY LECTURES.

We referred, in our former article, to interesting cases which come to our notice in our lecture work. Such cases are of "all sorts," and illustrate character, and interest in, or ignorance of, the great truths we advocate.

In one of the places we visited, a Congregationalist clergyman attended a number of the lectures, and showed himself very friendly, but quite "at sea" as to a knowledge of prophecy. He was much surprised when the prophecies were applied to history. At the close of the lecture of the Medo-Persian empire, he came forward and greeted us, and said, "I knew, of course, that the story of Xerxes was in History, but I did not know he was a subject of prophecy." A few days after he came to our rooms and earnestly asked: "Where, in the Bible, is that prophecy concerning Xerxes?" He was kindly told, and we hope he will be better acquainted with the prophet Daniel in the future than he has been.

We left our readers before at the close of lectures in Milltown, Maine. Our next course was at Princeton, Me. Here the little body of Adventists have a beautiful, new chapel, although they have but little preaching, Bro. Corliss and some others occasionally visiting the people there. We found some warm hearts there. Brethren have experienced considerable opposition, but the devil overshot the mark, and the opposition has helped more than it has hindered. The lot of land for the house was bought of the town. The town clerk, being an opposer, refused to record the vote to sell. This, he thought, would illegalize the sale, and prevent it. A special town meeting was called. A man, who was in no way an Adventist, said in that meeting: "This lot ought to have been given to these people, but, as it is sold, I move the town give them gravel from its other lots to grade their lot." This vote passed, and the sale was confirmed and put on record. After the meeting several came and begged the privilege of giving to aid, and so there was much help which resulted from the opposition. The chapel is a model of a substantial building, and cost only $1100, and is nearly all paid for.

We had a good attendance at the lectures, although it was Fair week—an "Agricultural Fair" they called it. This meant a "side show" of a few big pumpkins, squashes and potatoes in a tent, and five (5) horse trots, and officially advertised dances evenings. Alas for these degenerate times!—"worse and worse." The interest in the lectures increased to the last, and many new ones saw light shining as they never saw it before, and older brethren were refreshed. Our brethren of years of experience appreciate the truth. They do not say, "Oh! we know it all," but they find much that is new and instructive, and love it.

One case of interest is in mind. We made our home, very pleasantly, with Bro. and Sr. Denplisis and family. Bro. and Sr. D. are thorough Adventists. Bro. D. has a brother living in New Brunswick, to whom he has been sending his Crisis, tracts and books, until he had become quite adventualized in theory, but was not a Christian. This brother came on a visit, not knowing just what he was coming to; and, although he heard but a few of the last lectures, he became so moved that he started out in the Christian life, and now he wants the lectures in his place. He is a prominent business man. God bless him.

From Princeton we came to Houlton, Me., through New Brunswick, as this is the only route. There is but one Adventist family in the village, although there are others so nearly related that they are deeply interested in the truth. We made our home here with Bro. and Sr. Daniel McLeod and family, where we were happy to be. Several brethren live six or eight miles out, who came regularly in to hear the lectures. Music Hall was hired, two or three brethren bearing the expenses. There is doubt and skepticism and worldliness among the people here, but we found kindness and good treatment at the hands of the prominent business men of the place. Our audiences were not as large as we expected, but there were at least one hundred people, who candidly listened to the lectures through both courses, and heard what they never knew before. Two strong, able men started for the kingdom at the close of the last lecture. The brethren were much encouraged. There is a good opening here to establish an Adventist meeting, but there is one drawback—"the laborers [this way] are few." There is a lack of efficient preachers. Only a very few scattered ones are here. But we wait until another issue before saying more.

ELD. & MRS. L. C. M'KINSTRY.

HATED THE GOD HIS FATHER PREACHED.

BY H. R. SEVEY.

This was said to me by one who had found Jesus to be precious to him in forgiving his sins, filling his soul with peace and joy, and opening his eyes to see the truth and justice of God in the destruction of the wicked. He said, "My father would preach the eternal conscious torment of the wicked, and would describe its duration by saying that if this earth with all its contents was to be carried away to another planet by an insect so small that it could scarcely be seen, and commencing on the leaf of a tree take a bit and be gone on its journey thousands of years and return for another piece, which would take millions of years to carry away one leaf; then another and another, until all the tree was gone; then another and so on until all the forest was gone; then suffer on in their misery through endless ages." "Oh," said he, "such a God of injustice I could not love. And then my father would say, God is love, and justice. And I could not see love or justice in such a punishment for so brief time of sinning. But when I saw that man by disobedience brought death upon himself, it all looked like justice. If he disobeyed the just commands of his Creator, it is merciful to let him return to his former condition, as though he had not been. Such an one I could and do love, for it is all right and just, and no one can claim injustice from the hand of his Maker."

The horrid doctrine of eternal torment, with its kindred doctrines, grows out of the devil's lie, namely, "Thou shalt not die." Let every Christian raise his voice against such a dogma, and honor a loving God.

A LETTER TO A SEVENTH-DAY ADVENTIST BROTHER.

Dear Bro. E. K.:—On my arrival from the Springfield Camp, I found your letter awaiting me, and as my time at present is limited, I must be brief in my reply, but a few points I deem essential to notice. Your answer to my question in regard to which law is meant by the term, "the law," is just what I expected it would be. It is correct, therefore just what I desired it should be. You say "in every instance where the phrase 'the law' occurs, either the text or context always shows to which law it relates."

Now, dear brother, from your own standpoint please read very carefully Rom. 7: 1–8, and apply your own rule and see where you stand in the light of God. You will find the law there represented by the husband. Paul and his brethren are represented by the woman who could not be married to another husband so long as the first husband—the law—lived, without committing adultery. Christ is represented as the second husband to whom they might be married after the first husband—the law—was dead. Paul said addressing his brethren, "But now we are delivered from the law that being dead wherein we were held that you should be married to another [husband], even to him who is raised from the dead" (Jesus).

What law is here meant by the "law"? You say, "the context will show," and I say amen. The context, Rom. 7: 7 says, "For I had not known lust, except the law had said, 'thou shalt not covet.'" What law said that? Was it the ceremonial law, if so, where? Is not the law referred to here dead? If we should be married to both husbands at the same time, would we not commit adultery? Dear brother, be very careful and remember that God has said, "Christ is become of no effect unto you whosoever of you are justified by the law, ye are fallen from grace."

You say "that Christ fulfilled the law." That is true. What is it to fulfill? Webster says, "To fill up, to make full or complete." What is it to complete a thing? Webster says it is "To finish it, to end it, to conclude it." Paul understood it in the same sense, for he said, "For Christ is the end [conclusion, fulfillment] of the law, for righteousness to every one that believeth," hence we are justified without the deeds of the law simply by faith. The first husband (the law) said also, "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy." The second husband (Christ) said "Thou shalt not covet." But where did he say, "Remember the Sabbath day"? Please find the place and then obey it, but do not try to drag along the carcass of the first husband (the law). It is a dead body. And let your inquiry be in the language of Paul, "Who shall deliver me from this body of death," or this dead body?

Jesus said, "If ye keep my commandments ye shall abide in my love, even as I have kept my Father's commandments, and abide in his love." Where did Jesus command any one to keep the seventh day of the week holy? He said, "Be ye holy," keep yourselves holy and the day will take care of itself. He kept his Father's law, we are "under law to Christ," we are to answer to him for the keeping of his law, he will answer to the Father for the keeping of his law. Jesus said, "Go teach all nations to observe whatsoever I have commanded, and lo, I am with you even to the end of the age." Where did he command us to keep the seventh day? Did not God command it? Yes, and Jesus kept it, and we are to keep his commandments as faithfully as he kept his Father's commandments.

Paul said, he "did not shun to declare all the counsel of God," he "kept back nothing that was profitable." If the observance of the seventh day was the counsel of God and was profitable, where did Paul tell us of it? In your letter you refer to Eph. 2: 15 and ask "If the same law which was abolished was the one Jesus fulfilled?" and I answer, most emphatically, yes; the word from which abolished is translated means to make thoroughly inactive. In 2 Cor. 3: 7 Paul says, "That which was written on tables of stone was the ministration of death," and adds that it was glorious. What was glorious? The ministration of death written upon the stones. What was done away? Not the glory, but the thing which was glorious (see 2 Cor. 3: 11). What was glorious? That which was written on the stones. Therefore, that that was written on stones was done away. Read 2 Cor. 3: 7, leaving out the supplied word glory, and you will see the point; and in 2 Cor. 3: 13 the same word which in Eph. 2: 15 is rendered abolished is here rendered abolished—rendered inactive.

You ask if I believe "that all righteousness was fulfilled and abolished at the baptism of Jesus? You have only to read in the Scriptures about the righteousness which is by the law, in antithesis to the righteousness which is by faith of Christ, to get my answer. I believe all righteousness which was obtainable by the law was abolished (made inactive), and the righteousness which is by faith was made full, complete, at the baptism of Jesus.

I will call your attention to a few points necessary for you to prove in order to make your position tenable. 1. Where did God command anybody to keep the seventh day of the week? 2. If the Sabbath is now binding upon the uncircumcised church, the penalty for breaking it remains the same, unless modified or changed by the lawmaker. You say "the penalty was temporal death," and it remains so unless changed; if changed show us where. If not changed, temporal death is the punishment of individual sin, and the wicked can never be raised. 3. If the Sabbath is binding upon the Gentile church, the manner of observing it is the same unless changed. If changed, show us in history or the Bible where and by whom. If not changed, how can you build a fire in your dwelling, or gather wood to do so, or go beyond a Sabbath day's journey? God has said, "Ye shall kindle no fire throughout your habitations upon the Sabbath day." Is not one shall of God as binding as another? That shall lasts as long as the Sabbath should last, unless abolished or changed; if so, please show us where. Can we be excused in disobeying God because the climate of New England is colder than Palestine? If God intended his Sabbath to be observed in Greenland, he knew what the climate was. If we could be excused while disobeying God in building a fire because of cold, why could we not be excused in stealing because of hunger or cold? I throw out these thoughts for your consideration before the vail becomes so closely drawn over your mind that it becomes darkened while reading the Old Testament.

You say that "Sabbath-keepers are thoroughly agreed on their interpretation of prophecy." If that were true, it would prove nothing in regard to their doctrine of Sabbath-keeping. The Mormons who believe in the inspiration of Joseph Smith, hold some things in perfect agreement. So do the Catholics and Mohammedans, but that don't even prove that the thing on which they are united is true, or that they are correct in anything else. So the Seventh Day Adventists, who believe in the inspiration of Ellen White, and her interpretation of the third angel's message may be united upon it, but that don't prove them right in regard to the message or the Sabbath.

I will briefly answer your question on Matt. 25, Jesus, in speaking a parable, always uses a thing or circumstance thoroughly familiar to those he addresses. In this case he takes a Jewish wedding as the proper thing to illustrate the condition of the church, which he calls the kingdom of God. In this case, who is the bridegroom? Jesus. Who are the virgins? The people who, from evidence deduced from the Word of God, expected to meet Jesus on time (in 1844). Did they meet him? No. Why not? Because he did not come, he tarried beyond the time set by them. What happened to the virgins because of his tarrying? All the virgins (became drowsy) slumbered and went to sleep. What is sleep? A condition of unconsciousness. What did they become unconscious to? That which had brought them out, definite time. They did not know the definite time of the Lord's coming.

During that time of unconsciousness what happened to the virgins? A part of them lost the oil out of their vessels. What is oil? Grace. In the time between going out to meet the Lord in 1844, and the time when the midnight cry is made, part of them lose out of their hearts the grace which should bring salvation, and substitute law, and say we must keep the law in order to be saved. And at midnight, the darkest time, when they were at a loss to know the definite time of the fulfillment of the prophetic periods, the announcement is made, "Behold, the bridegroom cometh, go ye out to meet him." All the virgins arise and trim their lamps, compare their position to facts now revealed, and lo, half of the Adventists that went out to meet the Lord with hearts full of grace, "justified freely by his grace," have allowed it to leak out, and their very hearts are filled with the law, "justified by the deeds of the law, . . . fallen from grace." They muster around to find some grace, but alas, they are too late, the Master comes, and the door is shut. Dear brother, be careful which side of the door you are on when it is shut. Grace will be on the inside, but law on the outside.

Your brother, E. M. ANDREWS.

DECLENSION.

BY S. O. NEIL.

This is a subject of exceeding importance to every child of God. Dr. Payson says, "The symptoms of spiritual decline are like those which attend the decay of bodily health. It generally commences with a loss of appetite, and a disrelish for wholesome, food, prayer, reading the Scriptures, and devotional books. Whenever you perceive these symptoms be alarmed, for your spiritual health is in danger. Apply at once to the Great Physician for a cure. Under no circumstances, and on no occasion is departure from God a momentary thing with any Christian; on the contrary, I state it positively, and say that it is gradual, and that the distance between the rise of declension and the issue of it is very much wider than many at first suppose. I know the thought is common that it is some sudden temptation, that there are some peculiar circumstances of trial much more grievous than others, which bring about declension. But be assured it is not so. I quite own that circumstances do bring about, apparently at least, the full issue of it; but the seed is sown in the spring-time of declension, and bears its natural fruit in the autumn of declension.

Spiritual decline has its seasons, just as we have the natural seasons which God has secured to us; just as there is the preparation of the ground, and the sowing of the seed in the spring, the ripening of it in summer, and the harvest in the autumn, so there is the seed-time, the summer, and the harvest of declension in our experiences. Therefore the point for every Christian is to be able to detect the beginnings of declension. Pomeroy says, "Declension is marked by all degrees, from the slight, imperceptible chill of affection and faith, to the paralysis of the whole spiritual nature." Multitudes of men who preach the gospel are backslidden. Deacons who bear to the flocks of God the sacred emblems of the Saviour's pangs and death, are often backslidden in heart. Hundreds who talk religion like angels, have lost their first love, and are backslidden in heart. The devil has his hallelujah mountain. Peter's backsliding began at the communion, Adam's began in Eden, and the devil's began in heaven.

Backsliding is curable, if repented of and brought to God, it is readily removed; neglected it goes on to apostasy, and ends in eternal death. Cecil said, "None fall so deep into hell as they who fall in backwards. It is very important to remember that the devil can much more effectually displace God from the hearts of his people, by one of his favors than by some evil thing. The devil will never look for a bad thing if he can find a good one, and hence, the need of our being on our watch as to good and bad alike. To a certain extent, every child of God is afraid of bad things, he avoids them, but what the devil is doing is this: he is displacing God from the hearts of his people, not by bad things, but by good things. Let me refer to an illustration of this. Have you ever been struck with the parable in the 14th chapter of Luke's gospel? It was not a single bad thing that hindered those who were invited from going to God's supper. All the things that engrossed their hearts were good things. Who would say that a piece of land was a bad thing, or five yoke of oxen, or yet marrying a wife? These were all good things, and yet every one of these things displaced the supper of God from the hearts of the invited ones. O what a wile of the devil this is. This is the way hundreds of God's people have been caught. "They have forsaken me, the fountain of living waters, and hewed them out cisterns, broken cisterns that can hold no water."

Look at the case of Samson. In order to understand the condition he fell into, we must understand the position he was previously in. You can never know how far a person has got away from God, unless you know how near he has been. You find a very striking instance of that in what the Lord said to the seven churches, "Remember therefore, from whence thou art fallen." That is to say, the place I have left in the measure of my departure. Now in the 16th chapter of Judges, you find what Samson left. "Then he told her all his heart, and said unto her, There hath not come a razor upon mine head, for I have been a Nazarite unto God from my mother's womb; if I be shaven, then my strength will go from me, and I shall become weak, and be like any other man." Samson was a Nazarite, and a Nazarite was a man who was completely and thoroughly separated to God.

The secret of Samson's power was his Nazariteship, and the moment he divulged that secret, he lost all his power, and became weak as any other man. Well, but you say, "It was in a moment of extreme temptation, that Samson gave up that secret." No, it was not. What was the beginning of declension in this man? In the 14th chapter of Judges you find what it was. "And Samson went down to Timnath, and saw a woman in Timnath of the daughters of the Philistines. And he came up, and told his father and mother, and said, I have seen a woman in Timnath of the daughters of the Philistines: now therefore get her for me to wife." That was much farther back, than his sleeping on Delilah's knees, and telling her the secret of his heart. In this was the beginning, the seed-time of declension, which bore its fruit in the long run. Brethren, how often that has happened. How many pillars of salt are there among the church of God as witnesses to this truth. Entering into unhallowed associations, and losing every feature of distinctness, and thus giving up all testimony.

There is no way by which the dear saints of God are more effectually allured from God, than in this way of unholy association. It is this worldly principle that bids fair to destroy the spiritual life of hundreds; and therefore I warn my younger brethren to be careful. "Examine yourself, whether ye be in the faith." "Take heed, brethren, lest there be in any of you, an evil heart of unbelief, in departing from the living God." How many children of God have, as it were, slept on Delilah's knees, lost the locks of their hair, been shorn of their strength, had their eyes put out, and made to grind in the prison house, the sport and the amusement of the enemies of Christ.

Brethren, how is it with you? Have you forsaken the fountain of living waters, have you lost your first love? Are your affections placed on forbidden objects, are you less frequently in your closet alone with God? You remember the time when you could say, "If I forget thee, O Jerusalem, let my right hand forget her cunning: if I forget thee, let my tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth, if I prefer not Jerusalem above my chief joy." But how is it now?

Bristol, Conn.

"SOME people," says Dr. Holland, "pluck a section of God's eternity out of his hands, and then groan with the burden. If they pray at all, they practically pray for this: 'Give us this day our daily bread, and to-morrow, and next day, and the day after, and next year, and fifty years to come; and lest thou shouldst forget it, or neglect to answer us, we have undertaken to look after the matter ourselves."—Ex.

SOME men have trouble of conscience over the question, whether they "love their enemies" in the sense of the scriptural injunction, who might better inquire first, how far, in the true Christian spirit, they love their friends.—Christian Index.

A LITTLE EDITORIAL FOR THE LITTLE FOLKS.

"Ah! what would the world be to us
If the children were no more?
We should dread the desert behind us
Worse than the dark before.

What the leaves are to the forest,
With light and air for food,
Ere their sweet and tender juices
Have been hardened into wood—

That to the world are children;
Through them it feels the glow
Of a brighter and sunnier climate
Than reaches the trunks below.

Come to me, O ye children!
And whisper in my ear
What the birds and the winds are singing
In your sunny atmosphere.

For what are all our contrivings,
And the wisdom of our books,
When compared with your caresses,
And the gladness of your looks?"

O no, indeed! We cannot allow Uncle Pilgrim to monopolize wholly the little folks. We can consent, without being jealous, that they shall be called his flock, his pets, the lambs of his fold, because he is their special teacher and shepherd; and also because he so happily adapts himself to their wants and their pleasure, although he is not a very young man himself. But we want the children to know that Uncle Pilgrim is not the only person in this big world [who loves] the little folks, and thinks about them too, and would be glad to see them all, and look on their shining faces, their dimpled cheeks, and into their laughing eyes,—some blue eyes, some black eyes, some grey eyes, and some with eyes that twinkle so that nobody can tell just what particular color they were intended to be.

Now, Mr. Uncle Pilgrim, you just keep still; you need not think that all the little pilgrims must smile on you all the time, and on nobody else, just because you have watched and tended the flock with love and anxious care so many years. We think that the old grandpapa Editor of the Crisis ought to be cheered and blest with a glance at their sweet faces and beautiful little forms once in a while. Don't you think so, children?

Now, children, if you would only come down to this great Boston city some day, and come right to the Crisis Office—it's 144 Hanover Street, you know—and come right up one, two flights of stairs into the Editor's room, I guess we should clap our hands and laugh real loud in our joy to see you. For, do you know the Editor of the Crisis thinks—I can't tell what Uncle Pilgrim will say—that a person who does not like children is not fit to be an editor of anything, nor to be a minister either, nor to be in any good place anywhere. There, that is just what I think, anyhow; and I believe Uncle Pilgrim thinks so too, for I guess he is laughing now out of one corner of his mouth, and I would not wonder if he is laughing out of the other corner too, but that hateful mustache hides that side of his face so I can't tell sure.

O, when our eyes ache and our head swims with pouring over the letters and articles for the Crisis, how we would like to do as Martin Luther used to do, get down on the floor and play and laugh with the little children! Yes, we would.

Many years ago we beheld a beautiful scene. It was away down in Maine. One sunny June morning, when the grass was green and sweet, and the bright yellow dandelions were almost as thick as the dew-drops, we saw in one field and in one flock two hundred little lambs, all spotless white, white as snow. O, if you could have seen them play, children! Just think! Two hundred of them! All white as they could be! And what a good time they did have! They jumped right straight up into the air. They skipped from one great rock to another. They bounded here and there in the green grass and bright dandelions. They sprang over each other's backs. They were so happy they did not know what to do with themselves. And, would you believe it, children, all the day long not one of them got angry; not a single one pouted and said, "I won't play with you any more"; from the time the kind old farmer turned them out in the morning for the day's sport, until he put them all in their snug fold at night, not one of them said, by act or look, a saucy word to their mammas; they never said "I shan't," nor "I don't want to," nor "I don't like you," nor "You are mean," nor any naughty word, all the day.

Now, if all the Crisis and Young Pilgrim children could be counted up, how many would there be, do you suppose? Let us see. Now the Crisis is read in about ten thousand homes, and we suppose those homes average about three children each, and that would make thirty thousand Crisis children. And do you know what the Editor of the Crisis and the Editor of the Young Pilgrim would like to see? Well, we would like to see one great, long, wide field all covered with a carpet of sweet grasses and beautiful flowers—roses, tulips, lilies, pansies, azaleas, violets, May-flowers, fuchsias, and daisies, and all kinds that you ever saw—and then the whole thirty thousand of our little folks assembled in that beautiful field on a bright summer day, every one of them clean, every one well, every one happy; not a tear-drop in any eye, not a sadness on any face; every one a nice little singer; in every hand a tiny golden harp, on every head a bright and sparkling crown; and then we would like to sit all the day long and watch them in their sports and glee as we watched that flock of lambs in the old farmer's fields, so many years ago.

And, dear children, do you know that we expect to see, pretty soon, what we have described to you, only a million times more bright and more beautiful? Let me tell you. When the dear Saviour comes down from heaven, through the parted skies, he will shout a great, long, mighty shout, and a great angel will lift up his voice and shout, and the Lord's great trumpet will be blown, and then all the dark clouds will go away out of the sky, and everything that isn't beautiful will be taken away from the earth, and all the dear little children that are alive will be made well and very beautiful, and all the little folks that are sleeping in their little graves will wake up and come out of their dusty beds, and all the earth will be made one great garden, full of all kinds of bright and beautiful flowers and trees and singing birds—the proud and stately eagle will be there, and the golden pheasant, the humming-bird, the sparrow, the robin, the mocking-bird, the nightingale, the ostrich, the oriole, the blue-bird, the dove, and a thousand more that we cannot tell you of now—and all the good children, and all the mammas, and all the papas, that are good and love and serve the Lord, will meet together in that great, bright Eden country, and will live there always; that will be their home; that will be heaven. And the Saviour will be there in the midst of them, and will be their King. There will be no bad people there—no swearers, no liars, no rum-sellers, no drunkards, no robbers; all the people will be good, and kind, and true. And it is in that land of beautiful things that the Editor of the Crisis and the Editor of the Young Pilgrim hope to meet all our little folks. And we shall know every one of you; and we will speak to you, and help you sing the songs of that happy world. Heaven without children would be like Paradise without flowers.

We must not write any more now; but if you will be very nice children—first class—we will write you some more sometime. Mamma must watch the Crisis and tell you when it comes, and read to you if you are not old enough to read yourself. And when you come to Boston, don't forget to come up to the Editor's room; we shall want to see you ever so much.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

On the evening of Oct. 19, a farewell meeting was held in the Boston church for leave-taking of Eld. Miles Grant, who sailed the next day on his foreign mission tour. The chapel was well filled by the friends of Bro. Grant, who feel especial interest in his work. There were on the platform Eld. H. H. Tucker, pastor of the Boston church, who appropriately conducted the services; Eld. M. Grant; Eld. E. M. Andrews, pastor of the church in Chelsea; Eld. F. Burr, Editor of the Young Pilgrim and S. S. Quarterly; Eld. C. Goodrich and Eld. Tozier, of Chelsea; Eld. A. W. Sibley, of Haverhill; Eld. Rufus Wendell, of Cambridge; Eld. J. Gardner of Boston, and the Editor of the World's Crisis.

The evening was devoted to short addresses by the Brn. on the platform, and by several brethren and sisters in the pews, intermingled with singing selected for the occasion. It was a happy and inspiring season, which could not have failed to deeply impress Bro. Grant with a profound and touching sense of his hold upon the sympathy of our people, and the concern they feel for his personal welfare and the enduring success of his labors abroad. Many prayers will be offered in his behalf. And now that he has entered upon his grand mission, we trust that the funds necessary for his support will be freely given. All contributions should be sent to Eld. E. M. Andrews, Crisis Office, 144 Hanover Street, Boston, Mass.; and all money donated for that purpose will be paid at once to Bro. Grant's order.

We find on our table a pamphlet of eleven pages written and published by Eld. William Kellaway of Boston, the same being a review of the notorious case of Rev. Wm. F. Davis, who has been several times arrested, and once imprisoned, for preaching the gospel on Boston Common. Mr. Davis' home is in Chelsea. He is well known as an ordained minister, of high scholarly attainments, unspotted Christian and ministerial character, and a successful Evangelist. Intense feeling exists in this Christian community in regard to his imprisonment. Eld. Kellaway's review of the case is very able, fearless and convincing. The pamphlet can be obtained free of charge at 30 Exchange St. Every citizen of Boston and vicinity should read it.

We have received a note from Ed. Bible Banner in regard to the Notice for the Northern Illinois Conference, for which we return thanks. The regular notice will appear in this number of the Crisis.

Finding their parochial schools burdensome, Romanists are turning their attention to our public schools. They will endeavor to elect school-committees of Romanists, and employ teachers of the Church of Rome. In the little town of Moodus, Conn., the teachers of both the public schools are Romanists, and in one of the schools the teacher has a picture of the Virgin Mary attached to the wall back of her desk.

Recently Father McTighe, who had been elected principal of one of the public schools of Pittsburg, Pa., announced to his congregation that he had resigned the principalship. At eight o'clock the same evening, through the influence of other priests, he was influenced to withdraw his resignation. Twelve nuns who were being examined with reference to their qualifications for public school teaching, refused to teach in the "godless schools" of Republican America. It is said that other Catholic ladies, not nuns, will supersede the Protestant teachers. There is much excitement throughout the city. The "Roman Machine" ever has been, is, and ever will be, the enemy of the Republic of the United States of America. But the "Machine" is doomed to experience awful judgments for her crimes, and that ere long.—Ed.

THE PENAL DEATH.

A correspondent inquires: "If 'the wages of sin is death,' why need the wicked dead ever be raised?"

We briefly reply: 1. In order to receive their "wages" due when pay-day comes—settlement comes first, and God's settlement day is the judgment day; and no calamity preceding that day can be a substitute for the punishment due after its arrival. True punishment must not only come at the right time—after the judgment, and not before it arrives—but it must also be inflicted from the right source—and the first death is often inflicted by man, and not by the Lord. Temporal death, however inflicted, and by whoever it may be inflicted, is a calamity preceding the judgment, instead of being a punishment resulting from the judgment decree.

2. Sinners must be liberated from hades, where the first death places them, before being judged or punished: "And death and hades delivered up the dead that were in them: and they were judged, every man according to their works." Rev. 20: 13. They are judged, not before they go into hades, but after they come out. And this agrees with Paul who says: "It is appointed unto man once to die, but after this the judgment." Heb. 9: 27. Death is first, and judgment comes "after this" calamity which comes upon saint and sinner alike; while upon the saint "the second death hath no power," it being the fate of the sinner subsequent to the judgment. The "second death" is inflicted after a release from hades, and inflicted as a punishment: so the first death cannot be a punishment at all, unless the second death is a second punishment: and that would place one punishment before the judgment, and one after it. No, the punishment is not in temporal death, but "after" it—after hades gives up its dead: not in hades, but after release therefrom: then they will be "judged every man according to their works," after which the wicked will be engulfed in "the lake of fire, which is the second death."

3. Instead of recognizing the first death as the penalty, God is "to reserve the unjust unto the day of judgment to be punished." 2 Peter 2: 9. Then the punishment cannot be realized in any death that precedes "the day of judgment." This agrees with Paul's statement: "We must all stand before the judgment seat of Christ. [Why?] For it is written, As I live, saith the Lord, every knee shall bow to me, and every tongue shall confess to God. So then every one of us shall give account of himself to God." Rom. 14: 10-12. This bowing of knees, and this confessing of tongues is to be before the judgment seat of Christ; and surely dead knees cannot there bow, nor dead tongues confess; so we must appear there alive, after the close of the first death, seeing Christ is to "judge the quick and the dead at his appearing," and not before, and then comes the resurrection. Nor can this appearing before the judgment seat of Christ be restricted to the saints only, as some aver, for the same apostle elsewhere affirms: "We must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ; that every one may receive the things done in his body, according to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad. Knowing therefore [or for this reason] the terror of the Lord, we persuade men." 2 Cor. 5: 10, 11. Sinners must bow and confess their guilt before the judgment seat—saints confess before.

When the divine Judge comes, "every eye shall see him" (Rev. 1: 7), and dead eyes cannot see. Nor can this be restricted to saints, for it is added, "They also that pierced him"—though long dead, they must relive to see him. To the wicked High Priest Jesus said, "Hereafter shall ye see the Son of man sitting on the right hand of power, and coming in the clouds of heaven." Matt. 26: 64. He cannot see him with dead eyes—so he must live again in order to see him coming. Then, too, will be verified the prediction of Balaam, "I shall see him, but not now." All wicked men will see him in the judgment day, for there "before him shall be gathered all nations; and he shall separate them"—placing some on the right hand, and others on the left—and then he will talk not only to the righteous, but also to all those on his left hand; that is, to all the wicked: nor will he talk to dead men, saying, "Depart from me, ye cursed"; nor will he say of dead men, "These shall go away into everlasting punishment." They cannot go; besides, if then already undergoing that punishment what need of this mandate? What a farce to command dead men, and even to command them to enter a state that they had long before entered!!!

But when we notice that this scene is subsequent to the resurrection, and that all the resurrected ones are then addressed, all is plain—saints then enter life eternal, and sinners are remanded to death irrevocable—the second death. W. S.

WESTERN ITEMS.

A new interest should be taken in the home mission for the great West. The funds for this enterprise are scrimped, and the treasury needs replenishing very much. This is a need far in advance of a new paper enterprise, and needs priority of attention. Will friends wake up to this special need? Send funds to H. Pollard, Alexis, Ills., and do it soon. A thousand dollars are needed within a few weeks. Shall the money be forthcoming?

The Wisconsin State Missionary Society is also in pressing need of funds to carry on its mission work. Let Wisconsin friends direct their donations to G. C. Meigs, Arena, Wis.—our Treasurer.

At this writing (Oct. 16) the Central Illinois Conference is in session, at Auburn, Ills. By request we are present, with the design of continuing a few days. The meeting thus far has been refreshing, and friends feel encouraged.

Let our Wisconsin friends prepare for our Annual Conference to be held at Arena, beginning Dec. 14. We look for a good meeting. Come at the beginning, and enjoy the whole. Read the notice elsewhere. W. S.

THE FAREWELL MEETING.

The farewell meeting, held in the Boston Emerald Street Chapel, Wednesday evening, Oct. 19th, afforded much gladness to the heart of the writer. When one is about to undertake a difficult work, attended by heavy crosses and responsibilities, it is then, if ever, that he feels the need of kindly words and friendly sympathy, to strengthen his weakness and stimulate his courage, and chase away his fears of interposing obstacles. He who goes forth with a discouraged heart to labor in the Lord's vineyard is already half defeated by the enemy. It is the special object of satan to discourage those who attempt to advance the cause of Christ, by telling them they are not competent to do the work contemplated. The Spirit of the Lord never produces a feeling of discouragement in those whom he calls to do Christian work. The only right way is to obey promptly, leaving the consequences in the hands of the Redeemer. Many victories have been gained, many prizes won, because of the cheering words from others who were interested in the struggle. So my heart was made to rejoice, my courage was elevated, and a fresh impulse was given for the onset against the strongholds of the enemies of our divine Master. As a kind mother's parting words to her dear boy, when he leaves his happy home to live in a distant land, or to traverse the great deep, follow him as the voice of an angel in his lonely hours to cheer his heart and urge him onward in his noble enterprise; so the loving words, the tearful eyes, telling of the warm sympathy of those dear Christian hearts at that farewell meeting, will be as a silver lining to all the clouds that the evil one may gather over my pathway across the trackless deep, or during my travels in foreign lands to warn the people of the approaching end.

The remembrance of the stirring words of Brn. Andrews, Wendell, Goodrich, Sibley, Burr, Tozier, Gardner, Tucker, Stockman, and others, will serve to give me fresh courage when in some hard fight with the powers of darkness, away from friends and home; and added to this, the assurance that the dear Saviour is my keeper, helper, and guide, and that soon he is coming in all his glory to gather his waiting bride, will make the crosses seem light, when contrasted with the joys of the kingdom of heaven. The sunny days of eternal life are about to begin, when the sharp conflict with satan and his emissaries will be forever no more.

Dear brethren in the ministry, let us be brave in the cause of Christ. Let no worldly ambition, or desire for the praise of men, be allowed any place in our hearts. This is the hour when Christian heroes are needed to face the marshalled forces of the black fiend. The final conflict is rapidly approaching. Let us rush into the hottest of the fight, clad with "the whole armor of God." If we trust wholly in the Captain of our salvation, we have nothing to fear. The victory will be sure, and glorious beyond description. It is sublime to be living so near the grandest of all great events—the coming of Christ, the resurrection of the dead, the marriage supper of the Lamb, and the beginning of eternal life. Remember: "The eyes of the Lord run to and fro [throughout the whole earth, to shew himself] strong in behalf of them whose heart is perfect towards him." 2 Chron. 16: 9. M. G.

Excellent.—The first article in the Crisis, Oct. 19th, on Chistian Unity, is excellent, and deserves a second reading, and then a third, or until the reader is saturated with its spirit. It would seem that every one who has the Spirit of Christ, must say Amen out loud. Amen, and Amen. M. G.

DEDICATION AT ROCHESTER, N. Y.

Sunday, Oct. 10th, was a great day for the church in Rochester. For forty years the Adventist Church of this city have worshiped in halls. Several times they have attempted to build a house of worship of their own; but as many times they have failed, until now, through the untiring efforts of the brethren and sisters, a neat and commodious house of worship has been erected. It is built of brick, with a seating capacity of about three hundred, and is centrally located.

The date given above was the day appointed for the dedication. The day dawned upon us wet and rainy; yet our ministers and brethren and sisters came in from different parts of the Conference field, to enjoy the feast of the day. Flowers and plants were tastily arranged about the house, and all presented a very cheerful and attractive appearance. The morning meeting was of a social character, led by Eld. C. H. Sweet, who is now laboring in this field as an evangelist. Time was also given to the raising of money to clear the house from debt, that it might be set apart a free house. The amount stated to be needed was $1,200, which sum was raised, much to the joy of the brethren and sisters.

At 2: 30, the time appointed for the dedication, a large number assembled, and the following is the order of service: Eld. M. R. Miles, Pastor, presided. After some very choice selections by the choir, Eld. B. P. Stevens read some select Scriptures. Invocation by G. F. Haines, reading of hymn by Eld. C. H. Sweet, sermon by Eld. E. A. Stockman. He took for his text 1 Tim. 10: 11. "According to the glorious gospel of the blessed God." He presented the beauties of the glorious gospel of God in contrast with the errors of the modern gospels of Evolution, Spiritualism, Christian Science, and the gospel of the spiritualistic interpretation of the Scriptures, in a masterly and eloquent style. We all felt to thank God for the glorious gospel, and that he had opened our eyes to these blessed truths.

At the conclusion of the sermon, Eld. C. W. Low offered the prayer. The benediction by the pastor closed the services for the afternoon.

The Rochester Church is in excellent condition, and if she improves upon the present golden opportunity, we bespeak for them a large and flourishing church.

Phil. Armour, the millionaire meat-packer, Chicago, has given $400,000 for a mission which is said to be a model of its kind. It is established in Chicago, and there are one thousand children on its roll-call. There is a school, a kindergarten, and a dispensary connected with this mission, to which only the poorest and the neediest are admitted.—Ex.

FAREWELL TO BRO. GRANT.

It was my privilege to be at the farewell meeting where the brethren and friends assembled to bid Bro. Grant a hearty God-speed, with many good wishes for his welfare, together with prayers for his work abroad in preaching the gospel of the kingdom of Christ as near as hand. Now if Bro. Grant has been called of God to carry the good news to the regions beyond, it becomes the duty of those who remain at home to consider themselves missionaries with him, and sustain him by all possible means, in prayer and purse.

There is not a doubt that God has called him to this field of labor, and the responsibility and success of our Bro., depends largely upon the spiritual as well as financial aid that we may give him. It is not for himself that duty demands this, but as the representative of a large body of Advent believers in America, he goes to foreign lands to proclaim the great leading truths that characterize us as a people. If he does this with a catholic spirit, and a due regard to the great body of European Premillennialists, who hold to certain minor points of doctrine which are non-essential to salvation and holy living, great results may be expected from his missionary labors. Let us follow him with our prayers, and stay up his hands as did Aaron and Hur the hands of Moses. The God of Israel will prevail ultimately, according to his divine purpose and Godhead.

Brethren, if we desire to see a still larger number gathered as the bride of Christ, let us look, and live, and labor. L. W. Smith.

FROM BRO. L. BOUTELLE.

Bro. Stockman:—I am now at the homestead of Bro. W. S. Howden. Preached at the Advent Chapel last Sunday, as their pastor, Bro. Davis has resigned, and left for another field. Here we find those of like precious faith, looking for the blessed hope, and doing what they can to keep the gospel of the kingdom in circulation and before the people. They have a good house [in the] village, and their part of the people to worship in their house. They are praying the Lord to send them a man of God, one who cares more for the saving of men through the foolishness of preaching this gospel of "glad tidings" and soon coming, than he does for himself, or his ease, or what others say or do. Such a man would find a home and friends, with enough to do here and in this region. The trumpet must give the certain sound in our churches, prayer-meetings, and periodicals, specially in our organ, the World's Crisis." Let prayer go up for the vitalizing power to make the words more telling, and let the best living testimonies be poured into the Editor's box.

Bristol, Vt, Oct. 19.

FROM MARSHALL AND J. McCULLOCH.

Dear Brethren and Sisters in Christ:—Rejoice with us, for the Lord has wrought a glorious work here. The struggle has been hard and long, but victory at length turned on the side of eternal truth. All glory to his name. After returning from the Corning and Manchester Campmeetings, we pitched our tent again at Cedar Rapids, Boone Co. For a time it seemed as though the people could not be reached by either the word of God or his grace; but we were positive that we were just where he wanted us.

The weather became cold and chilly, but we procured a stove for the tent, then all said how comfortable and pleasant it was. The brethren took courage, sinners began to tremble, the convicting power of God was manifested. An aged man who had been a great sinner confessed his sin, and God for Christ's sake forgave him. He could not be satisfied until he had been buried in the likeness of Christ's death in the Cedar river. Others soon followed in repentance and baptism, and after a very impressive communion service of which thirty-two partook, representing eight different denominations, we set in order a church of seventeen members, with officers noted for their Christian integrity, and of good report from those without.

Bro. D. A. Dickinson, who for several years was the president of one of our Conferences in Iowa, and a preacher of righteousness and beloved by all, was first elder; Bro. Geo. Fenton, an energetic worker in the cause of Christ, and until this meeting a deacon of the Baptist Church as second elder; and Bro. Hays Keepers, formerly a Christian preacher as deacon, and Bro. Frank Dickinson, a noble young man as clerk and treasurer. With these men standing as they do, and all the others ready for every good word and work, they will certainly prosper. Several others are now ready to unite with them. Arrangements have been made for meetings every Thursday evening, and also on Sundays.

And here we close our tent work for this season. God has wonderfully blest. Hundreds have heard the cry, "Behold he cometh," and all the great Adventual truths of the Bible. Sinners have been converted to God, backsliders reclaimed, and the few scattered pilgrims encouraged, and we are more than ever before rejoicing in hope of the glory of God. We have preached as best we could eighty sermons in this State, baptized six, organized one church, distributed ten thousand pages of tracts, twenty copies of the Crisis, and obtained some ten subscribers for the same. We hold one more meeting in this county, and then to S. W. Iowa for a short season, then to Kansas and Missouri, where we expect to spend the winter. Dear brethren and sisters, pray for us.

"He'll know our feet were weary,
When Jesus comes;
Oh, how his arms will rest us
When Jesus comes."

Cedar Rapids, Boone Co., Neb. Oct. 11th.

FROM F. W. HOUGH.

As there are many (so we learn by correspondence) that would like to know about our health since we returned from Campmeeting—as we were sick and lame while there—in reply we would say that we enjoyed the attention paid to us, and the services, notwithstanding our condition. The preaching was as sound as a nut, and as full of meat as an egg. On my return I was taken so lame I was confined to the house for some time, but am some better. My general health is good as usual, and above all I rejoice in the blessed hope; am glad I ever embraced it and was put in trust to proclaim it and made willing to bear its reproach. We shall soon be delivered; let us be brave for the Master. Your brother waiting and expecting.

Fairbank, Iowa.

FROM JOHN POWELL.

Dear Crisis:—The shibboleth of the Welsh Bro. of Wisconsin, in regard to the mission to Wales, it will do no harm to keep in remembrance; knowing that I offer to donate $50 toward that mission, and I look for a chance to pay that, along with the interest, since the time I laid it by. God is no respecter of persons, but the President of the A. A. M. Society has been in the county adjoining Wales, preaching the coming of the Lord; why overlook Wales? "And this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations." The Welsh is a nation distinguished from all other nations. They never surrender by compulsion, and cannot be driven out of the mountainous part of Great Britain, and they keep their own language. We don't know why we neglect them more than Ireland, or England. There is not one there who believes as we do.

"COME OVER AND HELP US."

BY F. S. STANTON.

For several months, two Sundays in each month, we have endeavored, with the help of the Lord, to strengthen the little interest in Whitman, Mass., which was created by our tent-meetings held there last summer. We have felt much encouraged in the result thus far, and feel that there has been established in this place an interest which promises to grow in the Lord if the above cry is heeded.

The little band in this place are few in numbers, but earnest and hopeful in their zeal for the Lord and the cause of his truth. They have made arrangements to have a cosy little hall to hold their services in, and intend to have some kind of a service every Sunday, yet desire to have preaching as often as every other Sunday. It is necessary for us on account of work in other places, to give more of our time elsewhere, and so we are only able to be with them the first Sunday in each month.

As the expenses of the hall and other matters come quite heavily on the few, any of God's dear children who love to know the cause is prospering, and wish to make it such, desiring to give for the Lord and his truth, can find this an opportunity to donate heartily, knowing it will be received as "from the Lord." Any of our dear preaching brethren who can find a spare Sunday now and then to do missionary work and help along the cause in this place, are earnestly invited to give ear to this Macedonian cry. Expenses will be guaranteed (to a moderate sum), and a good home provided while they remain, to preaching brethren who feel to respond.

Bro. W. E. H. Vaughn is the corresponding committee, and any who desire to inquire about preaching can address him concerning arrangements, etc. Also any who desire to contribute, can likewise remit to Bro. Vaughn. All letters and donations will be gratefully acknowledged. We hope there will be many who will respond, and "come over and help us."

SETTLED AS PASTOR.

Bro. Stockman and Readers of the Crisis:—After a prayerful consideration of the matter, I have decided to accept the unanimous call given me by the church in Nashua, N. H., and begin labors as their pastor next Sunday, Oct. 30th. My settling here as I do is a faith project; but as I feel the Lord is leading, and feeling that a good work may be done here, we have concluded to go forward in the name of the Lord, to do his will. We ask the prayers of all for the success of the Lord's work here, and that we may be enabled to do our whole duty. Your Bro. in Christ.

Warren N. Tenney.

A Pastor in Cumberland has formed in his church "a good intent society," composed of poor persons who have no money to give, but yet desire to do something for the Lord Jesus. These give one hour in the week to some charitable work, or to some labor by which they earn a few pence which is given to the service of the Lord. Each one, according to ability, does something distinctly for Jesus. These people find a blessing in so doing. Should we not each one regularly and systematically set aside a portion for our Lord and Saviour, and say, "This is David's spoil?"

Many of the one hundred and twenty families evicted by the British land syndicate in O'Brien Co., Iowa, are suffering extreme hardship. Old men, invalids and widows are living on the highways in tents made of quilts and sheets. Their teams and cows were seized to pay the cost of eviction.—Ex.

A pious African went to a missionary to present a contribution to send the gospel to others. The missionary thought the negro offered a larger sum than he was able to give, but the African insisted on giving it, saying, "The work of the Lord must be done, and I shall soon be dead."—Ex.

We should set a guard upon the "door of our lips," and be careful that our words be "seasoned with grace."

NEW HARTFORD CHURCH RESOLUTIONS.

Whereas, Rev. Wm. C. Stewart has been, in the providence of God, called to labor in another part of Christ's vineyard, and has in consequence thereof tendered his resignation as Pastor of this church; and

Whereas, we recognize a divine influence in the circumstances which have induced our beloved Pastor to sever the ties which have connected him with this church and the surrounding community; therefore,

Resolved, by the Advent Christian Church of New Hartford, Iowa, that the resignation of Wm. C. Stewart as Pastor of said church, which was offered at the close of his year, be and hereby is accepted. That Rev. Wm. C. Stewart has, by courtesy and kindness, purity of life and doctrine, and by the faithful discharge of the duties pertaining to his holy office, secured the love and confidence of his people in this place, who will be with him in spirit in his new field of labor. That, while Rev. Wm. C. Stewart's connection with this church will close agreeably to his wishes, we, as a church and community, do recommend him as a faithful guide and a worthy counselor, and would commit him to the care of Him who saith, "Lo, I am with you always, even unto the end."

Approved by the above named church.

SECULAR NEWS.

Foreign.

London, Oct. 20, 1887. Mr. Gladstone received an address from the Irish residents at Nottingham to-day. In replying to the address, Mr. Gladstone expressed the conviction that the discord between Catholics and Protestants would cease once home rule was established in Ireland.

Mr. Gladstone addressed an audience of 4000 persons in the Drill Hall at Derby. He was supported by Sir Vernon Harcourt and Baron Wolverton. The crowd climbed to the girders of the roof. When the organist played "God Bless the Prince of Wales," hisses were heard from some parts of the hall. The air of the song "Joey and Jesse," which refers to Messrs. Joseph Chamberlain and Jesse Collings, was also played, and was loudly groaned.

Mr. Gladstone said their opponents were growing weaker, while their own forces were becoming stronger. He was accused of cooperating with those whom he once denounced as marching with rapine and murder toward the disintegration of the empire. All the objections then presented had passed away. He did not believe that any Irish member of parliament now contemplated or desired the dismemberment of the empire. They wanted a union of hearts, and not a union of parchment and paper. Why, he asked, should he be accused of gross inconsistency because he allied himself with Mr. Parnell and the Irish party, who were acting on lines of moderation which assuredly would in the end secure home rule. He flatly denied that his course was inconsistent. When told that he had passed coercion measures, he could only say that a measure such as was contested at the last session of Parliament had never been passed while he was in office. That measure was not aimed at the suppression of crime so much as at the liberty of the press and the right of public meeting, as its application proved. Lawful meetings had been prevented. The act had been used in such a manner as to painfully different from those of any act previously passed. It was more subtle and piercing, and more fatal to the liberty of the people than any bill hitherto passed. It was enrolled as a permanent piece of legislation as much as the reform bill and the bill of rights. Coercion had utterly failed. Instead of trying to drive the disease inward, he believed the Liberals had found a plan which would, by their home rule scheme, solve the long formidable problem. It was said that Ireland consisted of two nations. Italy was once in the same condition, but the parties there coalesced and formed one united kingdom. Why should not Ireland do the same?

Havana, Oct. 20. Numerous springs have appeared in the district of Roque, near Cardenas, and formed several lakes, which are gradually uniting. The village of Roque has been inundated, rendering many persons homeless, and the floods are increasing.

Domestic.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 20, 1887. A passenger and a freight train collided at 6.30 this morning on the Richmond and Danville R. R., near Grier's station, 170 miles north of Atlanta. Robert Ward, the engineer of the passenger train, and Mrs. Hamp McDonald of Asheville, N. C., were killed, and 10 others seriously wounded. The accident was caused by the freight train not side-tracking at Grier's to let the passenger train pass. The passenger train consisted of nine coaches, and passed Greenville four hours late. Both engines were wrecked, with the postal, baggage and express car of the passenger train, and the first three cars of the freight. Engineer Harris and Conductor Reville of the freight train disappeared. A negro saw them running through the woods.

The injured are J. B. Irwin of Asheville, N. C., leg broken and foot badly mashed; Ed. Harnett, fireman of the passenger train, arm amputated and badly scalded, expected to die; J. L. Webster of Columbus, Ga., train-man, right arm amputated and otherwise seriously injured; Jas. Kingan, Greenville; S. M. Dykeman and W. R. Wilson, Atlanta, Ga., painfully bruised; Misses Mary and Nannie Erwin and Willie Erwin of Asheville, N. C., bruised, and Philip Black, brakeman of the freight train, concussion of the brain, very serious.

A League meeting held in Cork overflowed the hall in which it was held. The crowd outside amused themselves with stone-throwing, and subsequently by attacking the building of the Protestant Young Men's Association. The police charged the crowd with their clubs, but were unable to disperse it until, after a protracted fight, Mr. Tanner, M. P., came out from the League meeting and implored the mob to separate quietly. Mr. O'Brien, the editor, who has been arrested under the Coercion Act, was taken to Mitchelstown for trial, the language complained of having been uttered there. The streets were lined with sympathizers, who cheered him and gave him flowers. A Roman Catholic priest from St. Louis, Mo., who is now visiting Ireland, is doing his utmost to injure the cause of the League. In a recent speech he announced himself a believer in the doctrines of Henry George, and urged that no rent should be paid. At the Chicago Convention he had expressed his readiness "to become a chaplain in any army raised to relieve Ireland from the slavery she was enduring." Mr. Harrington who appeared at the coroner's inquest on behalf of the families of the men killed at Mitchelstown, has also damaged his case by intemperate language. He called one of the witnesses a liar, and told another he could scarcely restrain himself from kicking him. Violence of this character will render it very difficult for Mr. Gladstone to convince the English constituencies that the government of Ireland may safely be intrusted to such men.—Sel.

ROMANISM UNMASKED.

Its Revelations are Terrible Indictments of Popery.

FIFTY YEARS IN THE CHURCH OF ROME.

BY FATHER CHINIQUY.

Truly vivid, fascinating, and tragic. No history like it since Luther.

There is no book upon the Romish controversy so comprehensive as this. It is a complete picture of the inner workings, aims and objects of Popery. It is from the experience of a living witness, and challenges contradiction. It is a large but very valuable work, and is fast becoming a standard authority. No lover of his country should remain ignorant of its contents. A handsome volume of 832 pages, printed on clear type, on fine tinted paper. It is bound in strong cloth, marbled edges, and gilt stamp on side and back. Contains two portraits (one representing him in priestly robes) of the venerable Author.

Regular price, $3.50. Reduced to 2.50. Postage 25 cts. extra when sent by mail.

THE PRIEST, THE WOMAN, AND THE CONFESSIONAL.

Terrible, but True Revelations.

BY FATHER CHINIQUY.

To understand the evil results which arise from the practice of Auricular Confession, it is necessary that the testimony of a reliable witness be given. Such is that of the author, who held prominent positions in the priesthood for many years. The book has had a mission for good, and has awakened a desire amongst all classes of the people to unearth the iniquities and abominations connected with this doctrine, and hold them up to the light of day, that the people may see that there is but One to whom we must confess, and he is not a Romish priest.

Over 30,000 copies have been sold in this country, and the book has been translated into many languages, and is having an enormous sale. 296 pages 8vo, with portrait of the Author.

Regular price $1.00. Reduced to 75 cts. Postage 10 cts. extra when sent by mail.

ROMANISM, THE DANGER AHEAD.

The Reason why a good Roman Catholic cannot be a good citizen of this Republic.

BY A. J. GROVER.

In this pamphlet of over a hundred pages the writer has given to the people of America statements of facts and figures which they will do well to reflect upon. The prospect for the future of the United States is not encouraging. Too much cannot be said or written against the evils of Romanism. Let this book have a wide circulation. Price: Paper 40 cts. Reduced to 25 cts. postpaid. Sold at the Crisis Office.

The object of Adams' Chart is to Picture History; to so arrange and tabulate the subjects of history that Men, Events and Nations may be located in time, as School Atlas locates places; to enable the reader to readily ascertain the contemporaneous events of the whole world, decade by decade, and century by century, throughout all historic time, by simply tracing the dated line across the face of the Chart. The march of fifty-nine centuries is delineated, and the great transactions of the world—national, civil, military, religious, maritime, architectural, inventive and literary—with the advent of great men, all are pictorially represented in their time relations, so that an accurate outline of history may be rapidly and easily acquired.

THE WORLD'S GREAT EMPIRES.

BY MRS. L. C. McKINSTRY.

A rare and valuable book. Royal octavo volume of 550 pages, containing the course of nine lectures, which Mrs. McKinstry is giving with so much success, with an additional poem by Elder McKinstry upon the same subject. Representatives of the charts and maps used for illustrating the lectures are contained in the book, besides excellent portraits of both Elder and Mrs. McKinstry. This book contains the history of the world in a direct line, and delineates the fulfillment of prophecy in the history of the rise and fall of the four great predominant empires which have existed in successive order upon the earth. The book has been revised by the author, bringing the history to the present year 1887. A third edition has been published. Price: Cloth, $2.50. Leather, 3.50. 25 cents extra for postage.

THE SPIRIT BIRTH AND ITS SYMBOL.

A SERMON BY MRS. L. C. McKINSTRY.

This pamphlet of 35 pages is a clear and masterly treatise of the text, "Except a man be born of water and of the spirit he cannot enter into the kingdom of God." John 3: 5. The position taken is that all the process of grace from conversion to the literal resurrection of the Christian is involved in the meaning of the text. Published by L. C. McKinstry. For sale at the Crisis Office. Price 10 cts. Agent.

TRUE THEOLOGY.

By John A. Cargile.

In this book of 344 pages the author presents in a clear and scriptural manner the following subjects: 1. Is there a God? 2. The Bible Inspired. 3. The Earth. 4. The Promise to the Fathers. 5 & 6. The Kingdom of God. 7. The Nature of Man. 8. The Soul. 9. The Spirit. 10. The State of the Dead. 11. The Atonement. 12. The Great Salvation. 13. Eternal Life a Gift to the Righteous. 14. Future Punishment. 15. The Leaven in the Meal. 16. Objections Answered, etc. etc.

Eld. D. R. Mansfield writes:—"Had such a book been placed in my hands when I commenced to study the Scriptures, it would have been invaluable to me."

AN EXPOSITION OF THE 20th CHAPTER OF REVELATION.

BY WM. F. COLLIER.

This is a tastily printed pamphlet of thirty-two pages, with tinted cover. The author claims that in the book of Revelation the literal truth is given by symbols. He therefore regards the thousand years as in the past, and thinks it inconsistent with Christ's words to place the resurrection of the just and unjust a thousand years apart. But get the pamphlet and examine for yourself. Price, 10 cts.

WHO ONLY CAN SAVE.

BY L. L. LESLIE.

He alone who died to save;
He alone who spoiled the grave;
He alone who went on high;
Who did death and hell defy—
He alone can save.

Only he who bore our shame;
Only he who overcame;
Only he who shed his blood,
That he might bring us to God—
Only he can save.

He it is the Father gave;
He it is was sent to save;
He it is that must redeem—
All salvation is by him;
He it is who saves.

By the cross upon him laid;
By the intercession made;
By the blood on Calvary;
By the life poured out for thee,
He it is can save.

Works of thine! and what are they?
Can they take one sin away?
Wash out on thy heart one stain,
Or remove its guilt or pain?
None but Christ can save.

He can save the worst who come;
Poor and sick, and blind, and dumb;
Sinners all, unworthy most,
They the farthest off and lost—
He it is can save.

Oct. 17, 1887.

SUNBEAMS.

BY O. W. SEDERQUIST.

A thrill of joy permeates my whole being at the remembrance of God's goodness to me. To the praise and glory of his name, I wish to say to the saints and faithful in Christ Jesus, that victory is always perched on the banner of a vigorous and unyielding faith, with works corresponding.

It gives me pleasure to report the Haverhill church alive, and ready to work for the needy and such as are out of the way. The gospel of the coming and kingdom of Jesus always draws out the loud hallelujah from the active members. Of late a deep feeling has characterized our meetings in relation to the salvation of the multitudes in our wicked city. Both the preaching and prayer meetings have been well sustained during the summer, notwithstanding the many causes to scatter the flock, as seashore and Campmeetings have their attractions and influence; but all are at home now. Harmony and peace prevail, and we are looking for great things in the near future. Pray for us.

WITHOUT THE CAMP.

It has been my privilege for a few weeks past to go without the camp and visit my brethren in several localities. On Sept. 21 I attended the Quarterly Conference of Plymouth and Bristol Counties at Plainville, Mass., and remained until the close of the meeting, which was the best of the kind I ever attended. The preaching was earnest and timely, and the people listened with deep interest. The prayers and exhortations of the faithful were heart-cheering and full of holy unction. A number of backsliders came back to the fold, confessing their wanderings, and quite a number of unconverted souls became seekers after salvation. Some cases were truly marvelous.

Here we met preaching Brn. A. Ross, C. H. Sweet, Dr. E. G. Higgins, F. S. Stanton, Wm. A. Burch, Bro. West, and D. P. Perkins. We had the privilege of preaching three evenings, and otherwise aiding the work as the Spirit led us; and we were abundantly blest in hearing and doing. Truly this was a grand meeting, and we believe some will live in the eternal kingdom who sought and found salvation there.

We spent Sunday, Sept. 25th, with the church at Worcester, where we had a high day in Zion. The Spirit of the Master was present to help preach the Word, and many hearts were stirred, and good was done we believe. We met with the young people in their meeting at 6 P. M., and were delighted to find so many of the young deeply engaged in the good work. At 7.30 we met upwards of a hundred and fifty at the general prayer meeting, and it was a time of special interest; over fifty took part in the service, and many more would if there had been time. Quite a large number spoke of their intentions to double their diligence in the Master's cause. The church in Worcester is working well, and their influence will tell in the coming kingdom.

Next we made a visit to Fall River, Mass., to assist our brethren Burch and Perkins in their tent mission work, and delivered the money given us at Worcester for the tent work. We found them hard at it, with many discouragements, but very hopeful of precious results. We attended several meetings there and rendered such help as we could, preaching, praying and singing. Some have already seen and received the light of the gospel of the kingdom. Our hope and the plan of redemption have been faithfully presented to those who will venture out to hear, and the cause will be greatly strengthened by the efforts put forth.

Permit me to say that Bro. Burch is doing a grand work in Southern Mass.; he works on an independent principle, going out on faith, trusting God to furnish the means to carry forward the work. The New Bedford church stands by him with their prayers and personal influence. They say to him, "God bless you, Bro." Would that all our churches who have pastors would do likewise; there are so many who do not know the real value of a pastor, nor how to appreciate his cares, trials, discouragements and burden for souls. The Master knows it all.

We enjoyed Sunday, Oct. 2nd, with our own church at home. We invited Bro. Grant to be with us, and he came, and the blessing of the Lord came with him; it was a great treat to the church, and many spoke of the good they had received. I listened and said, Amen!

My next was a trip to Goshen, Mass. On our way we had the pleasure of preaching to the Westfield church, and met a goodly number there. After the sermon upwards of sixty took part. Our beloved Bro. Cross is doing all he can to bring men into the kingdom, but he, like all pastors, has his trials; there are always uneasy ones who could not be satisfied with anybody but for a short time.

We arrived on the mountain with Bro. Damon Saturday, Oct. 8, at 3 P. M. Truly it was the land of Goshen, and only needed the candle of the Lord to make it light; darkness had settled upon them, and they like the sons of Jacob need a Moses to lead them to the land of promise. On Saturday morning (the 9th) we met a goodly number in the chapel, and the power of God came upon us. We preached on the condition of the heart, and I tell you there was good fishing for a while; the fish began to bite the gospel hook, and there was some squirming done; but a few stayed on the hook, and confessed, and there resolved to do better in the future. The day was one of profit, afternoon and evening; at the close of the evening we had an altar service, when seventeen or more came forward; the greater part were backsliders.

Oct. 10th we met a goodly number in the evening for a temperance lecture. We tried to show up the rum cause in its true light, and I guess there were some who saw stars. Upon the whole it was one of the best temperance meetings I ever attended, and so said many others. The sword of truth cut its way to the whiskey jug and cider barrel, and during the meeting I circulated a pledge and received some forty signatures, and quite a number held up their hands for prayer. Having a severe cold on my lungs, I was compelled to leave in the morning stage for Williamsburg and home. We are now at home with our church and family, feeling somewhat better, and a little rested after four weeks' journeyings, receiving and giving sunbeams as the Lord poured them out. More anon.

MISSION WORK IN WESTERN NEW YORK.

BY C. H. SWEET.

For some months my mind was exercised in the direction that my long and very pleasant associations with the Adventists of Southern Massachusetts were to be broken up. I had no clear light as to where I should go, but the leadings of my mind were such as to convince me that I was to be called upon to change my field of labor, for a time at least. Brethren invited me to locate in other parts of New England, but I could get no evidence that the Lord would have me accept any of these invitations.

Just before the last annual meeting of our Association, a brother asked me if I would go to western New York and labor through the fall and winter, provided the A. A. Mission Board saw fit to request me to do so. My impressions with regard to the matter were such that I did not dare say no, and yet when I considered the sacrifice I would have to make if I went, I hesitated about saying yes. To tear myself away from former associations and put six hundred miles between me and nearly every intimate friend, including those to whom I was bound by the tenderest of human ties, appeared to me like a great undertaking. Hence it was not until after a severe and a somewhat protracted mental struggle, that I became able to say yes; and even then I secretly hoped that the decision of the Board would be against my going. But when I was informed that they had voted unanimously to request me to go, all my doubts and misgivings vanished and I entered upon the work of preparation for the journey with as much earnestness as I ever engaged in any undertaking. I became satisfied that the move was of the Lord, the Holy Spirit seeming to say to me, "It is all right."

I took formal leave of friends in the immediate vicinity of my home, at a largely attended service held in the Foster Street Church, New Bedford, Mass., on Tuesday evening Oct. 4th, and started on my journey the following morning. I first went to Springwater, N. Y., to consult Eld. G. F. Haines and other members of the N. Y., A. C. Conf. Mission Board, as my labors in the State are to be under their direction. While there I had the pleasure of attending a soul-refreshing prayer meeting, and of forming the acquaintance of some of Bro. Haines' noble-hearted parishioners, all of whom bade me God-speed on my mission.

On Saturday, Oct. 8th, I accompanied Bro. Haines to Rochester, N. Y., and remained over Sunday, participating with him and others in the solemn and impressive dedicatory services held by the A. C. Church in their new chapel. This church, and also the ministers present received me cordially, and manifested a deep and kindly interest in my mission, which caused me to thank God and take courage.

On Monday, Oct. 10th, I came to this place and commenced a series of meetings in an Adventist chapel where no regular meetings have been held for ten or eleven years. We once had a large and flourishing church here, but for reasons that I do not yet fully understand it became so scattered and discouraged that their meetings were discontinued, and their commodious place of worship has remained closed all these years. Our object in coming here is to seek to resurrect their church, and bring it into a condition where they will once more open their place of worship and keep it open until Jesus comes. While many here and in other places expressed a wish that we might succeed, the number of those who really had any faith to believe that we would, was very small indeed. The members of the N. Y., A. C. Mission Board were numbered among the few. Bro. Haines came to my assistance on Tuesday, but returned to his charge this morning.

The interest manifested in our meetings thus far has exceeded our most sanguine expectations. Notwithstanding it is a very busy time with the people here, and evenings have been dark and the roads muddy, yet we commenced with a congregation of fifty which has steadily increased until it now numbers nearly one hundred. Several brethren and sisters who had become somewhat cold in the work of the Lord, have commenced seeking a deeper work of grace, one backslider has returned to the fold, and one young lady who never before made a profession of religion has publicly expressed a determination to seek Christ. The outlook is very encouraging indeed, as much so as I ever saw at so early a stage of a series of meetings.

I trust that I do not need to ask for the prayers of my brethren either East or West, I believe they will look with interest upon this mission. I also trust that you will remember my family, especially my dear wife, whose burdens and responsibilities have been greatly increased by this step I have taken. I hope that my eastern brethren and sisters will communicate with me through the mail occasionally. Do not wait for me to write you. Remember that I am very busy, and that you are hearing from me through the Crisis. My P. O. address for the present is East Shelby, Orleans Co., N. Y.

Oct. 14, 1887.

GOOD NEWS.

The letters of good news greatly multiply, they pile up forty, fifty, and more, within a few months. I am perplexed which to copy for the Crisis. They are all filled with good news, except one from Sister Cress stating the death of her husband, a noble worker. But he died in joyful hope. The increasing calls for our literature, the conversion of some, the advancing light, causes some sectarian pastors and churches much uneasiness. Thank God.

I. C. WELLCOME.

Ben David writes:—"I have received the books you sent me, and am distributing them to mission agents, and to heathen as well as Christians. I go to many villages and declare the truths of the coming of the Lord, and of eternal life only in him. One day I met the Thasildar of Agasteespuram Taluk. He wanted our tracts and books. I gave him 'The Unspeakable Gift' by Mr. Pettingell. He read for awhile, then said, 'This is a valuable book.' At Dennispuram I conducted the noon service on Sabbath. I distributed tracts at Anditope and Titenvily. At Titenvily I conversed with a Mr. Assenwathen Dresser. He said, 'The books and tracts of the Scriptural Publication Society contain the truths which are needed by every sinner. They state very clearly that immortality and eternal life are through Christ only, at his second coming.' He likes to get books and tracts of the Scriptural Publication Society of America. I visited Nagercoil and distributed tracts. I gave a book to a Hindoo, who wants our publications regularly. I visited Dennispuram and Ooyaravily and distributed tracts, and taught some of the people the truths we publish.

At Cadathy I taught the schoolmaster the nature of the soul. At the close, I met a catechist, who asked me, 'Is it true that Mr. Masillamani has joined those who say the soul is perishable?' I asked him to be kind enough to teach me what the soul is. He kept silence and walked away. I afterward visited Tamarakulam, and gave books to a school teacher, and taught him about the mortality of man, and immortality to be obtained through Christ.

I next visited Mylundy and distributed tracts to the Mission agents who come for them monthly. On the Sabbath, I conducted the noon prayer meeting. I then went to Mundarpuram and held a prayer service in the evening, and read to the people out of Mr. Pettingell's book, and gave books to Mr. Cottor English, a schoolmaster. I also distributed books and tracts to the Mission agents, such as dare take them. Many are afraid to take them, because Mr. Sathanathan ordered them not to read the books from the Scriptural Publication Society.

One catechist came to me for books, looking this way and that way. I asked him why he looked thus. He replied, 'I am afraid of Mr. Sathianathan.' Another cathechist came to get books for the Inspector at Anugunary, to whom I said, 'Mr. Sathianathan has ordered not to read them.' Then he took a Berean Quarterly in his hand and said, 'I will take this before him and see what he will order me.' Many catechists and school teachers are very anxious to read our books. May God [illegible] over the world and destroy the evil thoughts of proud men. Some days I teach an English class, also a night school. I remain your brother in Christ Jesus, in hope of eternal life. BEN DAVID."

News from Burmah:—"To I. C. Wellcome, Yarmouth, Me., U. S. A.—Dear Sir and Brother: Your unexpected yet welcome letter of the 22d took me by surprise. I little thought to get a letter from you of whom I have read a great deal. It is right and proper that the Lord's children should know each other even though oceans come between us. My heart always leaps with joy when I hear from a fellow laborer in Christ. I am glad to be able to bear testimony to the fact that life in its purest and best sense is to be had only as a gift from God, through Christ Jesus our Lord and Saviour.

Mr. Pettingell's able work, 'The Unspeakable Gift,' was instrumental in God's hands in putting me on the right track. Subsequent investigations have confirmed me in the truth of what I now hold most dear on the question. I have been rather tardy in answering your letter, your suggestion that I should be your agent in these parts being under consideration. I have no objection to helping you in your good work in the way you mention. You may send me the books and tracts, therefore, to read and to loan or give, and they will be heartily welcomed. I most heartily thank you for the copy of 'The Plan of Redemption' you sent me. I think it a very valuable book. I had read it before, but since receiving this copy from you, I have read it again.

I am of Scotch blood, but am a native of India, having been born and bred there. There are many English-speaking people in this place although a small town; so that a fair field presents itself for the distribution of literature on the life in Christ. There are but few here who hold to the views which I do. Our work is stigmatized by the Baptists, who have a mission here, as being of the devil; yet we are content to bear contumely, even from children of God, for Christ's sake. The Burmese Christians here are in utter ignorance that eternal life is to be obtained only from and through Christ, and that the hope and expectation of the Christian is in the coming back of the Saviour.

Some of the Baptist sect in Rangoon, who arrived at this conclusion, were excommunicated from their church by their so-called pastor, a missionary, professing to preach the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, to perishing heathen. Seeing the condition of these poor Burmese, I have been led to commence the study of the Burmese language, in the hope some day of being able to write and publish pamphlets on the subjects so familiar to you and me, and of such vital importance to the whole race of mankind. You have my best wishes for the success of your Mission, I remain, dear brother, yours in hope of eternal life, T. R."

A second letter from Burmah, says, "Dear Sir and Brother: I am in receipt of your reply to mine, and of ten packages of books and tracts you were good enough to send me. You did not tell me what they cost. I shall not only distribute locally, but also send them to different parts of Burmah and India, to those I think will read them. Many thanks for these packages. Commending you and yours to God, I remain yours for the truth, T. R."

P. S. I have several letters from a man in India who holds one of the most important religious positions in that country, who has come into the faith, and is aiding in the circulation of our literature. Amen.

A PRAYER.

BY CORA E. FAY.

Satisfy me, O my Saviour,
Give of love my soul to fill,
Let me in thy blessed favor
Rest content to do thy will.
Take from me this restless longing,
Cleanse my heart from sinful strife;
May the fears about me thronging
Flee before a perfect life.

Lord, thou knowest all my sadness,
All my wanderings to and fro;
Lead me in the path of gladness,
Where eternal flowers shall grow.
Comfort me when life is dreary,
When I seem to stand alone,
Strengthen me when I am weary,
Cheer when friends and hope are flown.

Be thou here my portion given,
Mine through faith that will not shrink;
Feed me with the bread of heaven,
Let me at life's fountain drink.
Blessed Saviour, guide, uphold me,
Guard from evil as thou hast;
Let thy loving arms enfold me
Till earth's waiting time be past.

The past year's work, conducted by the Western Board, has been more successful than any previous year of our history, both in donations received and in results obtained, and the one fact accounts largely for the other. Our funds during the year have have been made up as follows: Donations of 109 Western givers, $1,170,90. Donations of 13 Eastern givers, 242,50. Appropriations from A. A. Miss. Society, 350,00. Incidental receipts and last year's balance, 80,26. Total available funds, $1,843,66.

The largest Western receipts of any previous year have not exceeded $500.00. Hence we are much encouraged at the marked increase of donations and interest on the part of Western Adventists. We sincerely thank you all, dear friends and co-workers, assured that your reward is laid up in heaven.

But is it not a matter of surprise that in our most abundant year only 122 persons sent us personal aid, and only 109 from all our own Western field? The S. A. C. Association, of 1886, admitted thirty-six votes from sixteen Western conferences. Twenty of them must represent 6,000 church members, and the other 16 an additional though unknown number, all in Western States. Hence our actual voting strength in the West is between six and ten thousand church members, out of whom only 109 persons sent personal aid to Western Home Missions. Shall we not increase this number during the coming year. We modestly and hopefully ask for at least double our present number. Please give us 244 helpers this year, out of the many thousands of Israel. And will not you, dear reader, make one?

H. POLLARD, Secretary and Treasurer Western Board. P. O. address, Alexis, Warren Co. Illinois.

IN MEMORIAM.

A good woman has fallen in death, one who was dearly beloved by those who knew her best, and respected by all within the circle of her acquaintance. She was born in Milton, Saratoga Co., N. Y. April 30th, 1833. She was converted when about fourteen years of age, was baptized in Saratoga Lake by a minister of the Protestant Methodist Church, Eld. Deyoe Isman, and united with that church, of which she remained a member until she removed to Granville. When about eighteen years of age she married John Carpenter of South Granville, and shortly after her marriage she united with the Congregational Church at that place, as there was no Methodist Church there.

Her father, Hiram Ashley, aged eighty years is living, and has made his home with Sr. Carpenter during the last three or four years. Previous to that time he had resided several years with his daughter, Mrs. Rufus E. Deyoe, at South Oil City, Pa. He has now gone to reside with his other remaining child, Mrs. James A. Lee, Saratoga, N. Y. Her mother, Phebe Ashley, of the old and well-known Collamer family in Saratoga Co., died about ten years ago at the age of sixty-three years. Bro. Ashley is an ardent believer in the Advental truths of the Bible, as was his daughter Sr. C. Two children mourn the loss of this godly mother, Mrs. David Potter of South Granville, and Mr. Charles Carpenter who resides at the old homestead, with his wife and little boy. Sr. C. was bereft of her husband by death about six years ago. She has passed through severe trials, and never of robust constitution she has fallen before reaching old age. But we believe she is sleeping in Jesus, and the mourning ones are comforted by the hope of meeting her in the deathless land.

It was my privilege to spend a Sabbath last fall with this estimable family, and to preach at the church of which our sister was a member. She was taken sick shortly after, and has been failing since, until her death. She was a great sufferer but patient and resigned. By special request I officiated at the funeral service assisted by her pastor, Eld. Frazer. There was a very large attendance at the service, which was held in the commodious house at the old homestead; and we believe every heart was comforted while we discoursed from Rev. 21: 4, And there shall be no more death."

"We have laid her to rest 'mong the jewels of His,
Folded close in death's icy embrace;
We have pressed the last kiss, we have dropped the last tear
On the dead and beautiful face.

For we know there is One who her ashes will keep,
And redeem her fair form from the grave;
And the blossoms of sweet summer wave.

Fare you well for a while, faded star of our home,
Sweetly rest from all sorrow and pain
Till the Prince of the angels in triumph shall come,
And restore your lost glory again."

We bespeak the sympathy and prayers of our Father's children, in behalf of the aged father who has been greatly bereaved by this death, for his daughter was all to him in his old age that a devoted daughter could be, and he feels his loss keenly. Pray also for the son and daughter, that they may fulfil the last wishes of their mother by giving their hearts to her and our blessed Jesus. W. O. HIGLEY.

YORK CO., CONFERENCE.

The last quarterly session of this Conference was held with the A. C. Church at Biddford, Me., commencing Thursday afternoon, Sept. 29th, and continuing over the following Sunday. The afternoon services were conducted by Bro. Jere Hill in the absence of the President, who was called away to attend a funeral. Bro. O. H. Wallace preached in the evening. His subject was seed-time. Friday forenoon social meeting led by Bro. Hill. In the afternoon a sermon by Bro. G. L. Tracy and in the evening a discourse by Bro. O. H. Wallace, subject, "The Harvest."

The business session of the Conference was held Saturday forenoon. The President Bro. Jesse Gay in the chair. The subject of mission work within the limits of the Conference, was discussed at considerable length, which resulted in instructing the finance committee to procure the services of an evangelist to labor in destitute places the coming quarter. Time and place of next meeting were left with the President and Secretary. A rising vote of thanks was extended to the brethren and sisters of Biddeford for their hospitality and kindness shown toward us during this meeting.

We had reports from the following preachers: Jesse Gay, Jere. Hill, G. L. Tracy, O. H. Wallace, F. Philbrick, M. F. Norton, and Sister V. A. Hill, also Bro. E. P. Woodward of Harrison, Maine. At two o'clock in the afternoon a sermon by Bro. E. P. Woodward, and at half-past three a children's meeting, conducted by Sr. Abbie Wood. We submit the following clipping from the Biddeford Weekly Times for report of meetings Saturday evening and Sunday. Rev. E. P. Woodward of Harrison delivered his highly interesting lecture on "The Destruction of the World" at the Advent Chapel, Saturday evening, despite the rain a large audience was in attendance. The closing exercises of the Conference on Sunday were of a very interesting nature, and at each service the seating capacity of the chapel was well taken up. At the afternoon preaching service extra settees had to be brought into use. The day's proceedings opened with a love-feast at nine o'clock, under the direction of Eld. J. Hill of Goodwin's Mills. At 10.30 Mrs. Abbie Wood, of Portsmouth, preached an able sermon from Titus 2: 11, "For the grace of God that bringeth salvation hath appeared to all men." Rev. E. P. Woodward preached the afternoon sermon, after which Mrs. Wood conducted a children's meeting. The closing sermon of the Conference was preached by Mr. Woodward in the evening.

T. J. COOLBROTH, Secretary.

SPEAK KIND WORDS.

O speak kind words to one and all,
As through the world you go;
Let helpful deeds beside your path
Like flowers of beauty grow.
The fragrance of a loving word
Will linger in the heart,
As sweetness haunts the flowers we prize
When summer days depart.

As we go journeying on through life,
Perhaps we may not know
The good our loving words have done
To those who come and go.
But God will know, and surely he,
In his good time and way,
The giver of each kindly word
Will royally repay.
So speak kind words to one and all,
This life is all too brief
To waste in discord and in strife,
And fill the heart with grief.
With sunshine born of loving words
Let's scatter clouds of pain,
And thus make bright the sorrowing face,
As skies are after rain.

THINGS TO BE LOVED.

BY C. H. WILLIAMS.

Man's love is naturally diversified in this world. Some love one thing and some another. But when divine grace modifies their moral nature, they are united in the love of divine things; and those things are only seen through the telescope of faith, "which cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God."

Therefore the impress of divine truth unifies in sentiment and affection, qualifies in ability and action, and sanctifies in its results; so that we love God supremely, and all the good things promised and contemplated to be ours at the appearing of Jesus. This event in prospect, brings out the acme of Christian love; for we not only love God for the things he has in store for us, but we love the coming of the dear Redeemer who is to bring us into the full fruition. See 2 Tim. 4: 8, Titus 2: 13, Heb. 9: 27, 28.

We forbear expatiating upon this glorious and inexhaustible theme, and conclude our brief article by exhorting all of our unsaved readers to launch out into the boundless ocean of God's love, and ever allow the spiritual element to predominate over the carnal, that only the good and pure may be loved.

CORRESPONDENCE.

FROM M. M. & A. A. YOUNG.

Thinking the readers of the Crisis would like to hear how the blessed Lord is blessing the church at South Berwick, Emery's Bridge, Maine. Here in this place there was a Christian Baptist Church; it had run down, there was no meeting, the doors had been closed for eight years, and the enemy of all souls had complete victory in the place. The Salvation Army sisters held some meetings, and under their labors there were some conversions, but they got discouraged and left.

They sent for me and my wife to come and labor with them in the Lord about one year ago, and the God of all grace began to bless our labors to the salvation of souls. We have won victory after victory in the name of our Master. Glory to our blessed Christ and Master, praise his holy name. Our meetings are like the meetings I used to enjoy before forty-three. One week ago last Sabbath was a blessed day for the church. We all gathered on the banks of the Newitchwarnick river to attend the baptism of seven happy souls in the Lord, making fourteen in all, and more to follow soon. Last Saturday myself and wife organized a church and twenty members joined, and there are twenty more to join. Praise God, the Father, and the Son and the Holy Spirit. Let everything that hath breath praise the Lord.

FROM SISTER B——.

I have just been reading the address by Bro. Stockman to the Brethren of the S. A. C. Association in September, given us in the Crisis of Oct. 12. The facts brought before us by his words we often think of, and my heart burns within me to make sure and do or say what is given me of the Lord to all my neighbors, friends and relatives, that I may not be left out in the harvesting time, because my work was done by another.

For the highways and hedges of our towns and cities have many who own they are tired of attending church at the other denominations, the sermons are so dry. They are poor, maimed, halt and blind in spiritual life, and have turned their attention to the comforts of this life at their own firesides; besides the many poor ones who think they cannot dress neatly enough to attend church. The Holy Spirit still calls after them by the quickening of conscience, and we may all try to help them understand God's eagerness to save them, by a prayer or text from God's Word. May our home missionaries be helped by our willing obedience in word and act, till Jesus comes in power and great glory, is the prayer of your sister in Christ.

Chelsea, Mass.

FROM MRS. L. D. HOWE.

Bro Stockman:—I have been a subscriber and a reader of your valuable paper for eight years, and I thank God that I have been enabled to have it. I came here one year ago from California, to take care of my aged mother, who has been blind for seven years. Now I am called away to care for my son, my only child, who is very sick in Mexico; and I want the dear ones scattered abroad to know of my whereabouts. I intend [illegible] before I knew where the needed money was to come from, but I left it all with the Lord, and he will send it along. Bless his precious name. I did feel sad to part with the little church at Westboro, where I have attended since I came here. I know I will not see their dear faces again until Jesus comes. There is only a handful of them, but they are the Lord's dear children, and it is a comfort to know that I have their prayers. I am passing through a great trial now, but I know our heavenly Father "does not willingly afflict," nor beyond what we are able to bear. All my prayers have been answered thus far, he will not desert me now. Christianity is in a low state here, but I am going where there is none.

My P. O. address will be Yuma, Ariz.

FROM S. T. BOWERS.

Dear Editor:—Your paper is one of the most interesting and instructive I meet with anywhere. It is only a few years since I became acquainted with the truths it teaches. Along with the multitude, I was taught that the punishment of sin was conscious, unending torture. It was the blind leading the blind, so we both fell into the ditch of error. The Crisis has been one of my best teachers, setting before me the Bible truth that the end of sin and sinners will be everlasting destruction, and enabling me to see my Creator's character in its true light.

The truth sets before our minds God's justice, while error quite obscures it. I was also taught that rewards and punishments are given before the judgment. But now I see clearly that the Bible teaches that when our righteous judge shall appear, the race will reap the reward of their doings. A few days ago I took up an old Crisis, Dec. 24th, 1884. There was an article in it by yourself, "The Waiting Period." The thoughts it contained were good to read and think about. May the blessing of God and the help of the Holy Spirit be with you in proclaiming the truth and helping to prepare a people for the coming kingdom. Yours in the waiting and the watching.

Campville, Conn.

FROM GEO. J. FRENCH.

Dear Editor:—We undertook to conduct a tent meeting in Carthage, the county seat of Hancock Co., Ill., assisted by Eld. H. Pollard and J. F. Adair, alternately. But the continued rain obliged us to abandon our effort. Fourteen pointed sermons, however, were poured into the ears of attentive listeners. We believe this meeting was, after all, a success; for it was in altogether a new field, and much prejudice was removed, and there is a desire for our return this coming winter to give a series of sermons upon the truths we hold so dear.

Denver, Ill.

FROM W. H. CARGILE.

Bro. Stockman:—I am a reader of your paper, and am very well pleased with it. I am a member of the Advent Christian Church, and I love to read the Bible truths that I see in your paper. I love to read God's Word anywhere I find it. We have a good country here in Texas for farming. We have good schools and splendid churches. Hoping to hear from you soon through the paper, I am yours in the Lord.

TILL HE COME.

Till He come I would be waiting,
Waiting till the shadows flee—
Waiting till the morning dawneth,
And its brightness falls on me.

Till He come I would be waiting—
Waiting morning, noon and night,
In the sunshine and the shadow,
In the darkness and the light.

Till He come I would be waiting—
Waiting as thy loving child—
Waiting all my Father's pleasure,
To his wishes reconciled.

Till He come I would be waiting—
Waiting for the rising day,
Till the shadows are uplifted,
And the darkness passed away.

CONFERENCE REPORT.

The fourth Quarterly Conference of the A. C. C., District No. 5, Kansas, convened with the Kirwin church, Sept. 2, 1887. Sermon on Friday evening by Bro. Kendall; subject, "Men should praise the Lord for his goodness to the children of men."

Business session Saturday P. M. Officers all present. Secretary's report of previous meeting read and approved. Devotional committee appointed. Brn. Slater and Kendall were invited to seats with us in conference. Committee appointed to investigate credentials of Bro. Kendall. Com. reported favorably.

Moved and carried, that Bro. and Sister Kendall become members of this Conference.

Report of Evangelist accepted. Report of ministers: Bro. Lamphere is laboring some; Bro. Finch doing what he can; Bro. Case laboring constantly; Bro. Kendall laboring constantly; Bro. Slater laboring with the churches at Linn and Waterville; Bro. Knox doing what he can for the Master.

Srs. Case and Kendall were elected delegates to the State meeting. License was granted Brn. Kendall and White to preach the Word. Officers elected: Bro. N. T. Case, Dist. Evangelist; Bro. Erwin, President; Bro. Lamphere, Vice President; Albert White, Secretary.

Adjourned to meet with the Liberty church of Osborne Co. when called by President. [illegible] ter. Text, Dan. 12: 3. Good attendance, good order, and interesting discourse.

Met at 10 A. M. Sunday for love-feast, which was well attended. Preaching at 11 by Bro. Kendall; subject, "The nature and destiny of man." Good attendance and attention. Preaching at 3 by Bro. Finch; subject, "Baptism." An unusual attendance, and good attention paid to the subject as presented. We then repaired to the river, where three were baptized by Bro. Finch.

Preaching in the evening by Bro. Case. Prophecies fulfilled and unfulfilled, showing that we were nearing the end of this world, was the subject presented. After this the Lord's table was prepared and all Christians invited to partake with us. Thirty persons in obedience to the command of the Saviour partook in remembrance of him. Thus closed one of the most pleasant meetings ever held by us in North West Kansas, and we trust that the blessings of God may attend that and all meetings here and elsewhere, and when the final meeting shall come, we may be rewarded with eternal life. ALBERT WHITE, Secretary.

CONFERENCE REPORT.

A meeting of the Home Mission Society of the North Iowa Advent Christian Conference was held at Manchester, Sept. 10, 1887. Meeting opened by prayer. Minutes of last meeting read and approved; the Secretary's report was also accepted. The Treasurer being absent, and the report not being received, it was voted that the Secretary settle with the Treasurer before he deliver his accounts and moneys to the officers elect.

Eld. J. Ridley reported his labor as evangelist: Had held a meeting at Buffalo Grove Oct. 15–17; a good interest was manifested and one made a start for the kingdom. Had labored considerably at Elgin; first meeting commenced Feb. 3, and lasted over the 13th, then from March 24th to 29th, then afterward from May 21st to 23d. As a result much prejudice was removed, the cause of truth triumphed over the Seventh-day dogmas, one professed Christ and was baptized. Had spent twenty-eight days in mission labor, and had received from the mission fund $28.

Eld. Emery had held a series of meetings in the western district, and had Eld. Wm. C. Stewart help him, and had paid him his expenses—$15. There is now in the treasury $45.90.

Eld. L. Hubbell was re-elected President, Eld. J. Ridley, of Burr Oak, Secretary, and J. D. Bushnell, of Manchester, Treasurer.

I hereby certify that I have, since the meeting, received Bro. Banton's report, and find his accounts correct as far as I know. The moneys that had been sent him on subscription, etc., had been credited; he had mailed his report and accounts on the same day that he sent the money belonging to the Society, but it failed to reach Manchester for more than two weeks afterward.

WM. H. CONNELL, Secretary.

TO TRUST God when our warehouses and bags are full, and our tables are all spread is no hard thing; but to trust him when our purses are empty, but a handful of meal and cruse of oil left, and all the ways of relief stopped—herein lies the wisdom of a Christian's grace.—ED.

FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.

LETTER FROM ELD. MILES GRANT.

I have reported labors up to Friday night, Nov. 11th, when I closed the series of meetings at Moy, Tyrone Co., Ireland. The pastor there manifested a most excellent spirit, and had a heart all ready to receive the truth, as well as his deacons and others. I felt assured the Lord sent me to that place.

Saturday, the 12th, I went to Donaghy, sixteen miles from Moy, where Bro. Samuel Haddon is pastor. He has been there eleven years. He is a very fine man, a Congregationalist. I found a hearty welcome in his pleasant home, where I am now writing. This place is about thirty miles west of Belfast.

Near the "Manse"—parsonage—is an extensive peat field, from which great quantities of peat have been dug to supply fuel. The original bed was some forty feet deep, but now some of it has been dug to the bottom, where is found a forest of great fir trees. About all that remains is the stumps, which are dug out and split up for kindling wood, making the best I ever used, as they burn as freely as pitch pine, but with much less smoke. This fir forest must have been very old; perhaps as old as the flood. The peat bed might have been formed over the forest by a deposit at the time of the flood. I was informed that the people had no knowledge as to the age of the peat bed, or of the fir forest.

The meetings at Donaghy awakened a new interest in the study of prophecy. The people came from several miles around. One man walked three miles and back each night. The church was filled, and the best attention given. It was a pleasure to speak to those who were so anxious to hear. I am informed there has been no such preaching before in this station. The people were utterly asleep as to the prophecies relating to the coming of Christ, and the setting up of the kingdom of heaven upon the earth when he shall come. They raised no opposition, but seemed to be all ready to receive the truth with gladness. They were anxious to hear more. I was with them one week, and felt thankful to the Lord for sending [illegible] near coming.

I was especially pleased with the spirit of the pastor. He took great pains to make my visit pleasant and profitable; and the Lord smiled upon him in a gracious manner. He has a happy family, and a delightful home. I have not spent a week at any time in Europe more agreeably than in this place. His heart was wide open to receive all the truth he could obtain. We had many most interesting talks about the reasons of our hope. He asked many questions, as an honest inquirer after truth, but did not even attempt to support the popular errors of these last days. He was delighted with the harmony of the Bible, and science, facts and common sense on the subject of conditional immortality. It is pleasant to find a minister who dares to think for himself, and is willing to bear reproach for truth's sake.

Some one from Belfast took occasion to write to Donaghy, warning the people against attending the meetings; but it seemed as though the letter only made them the more anxious to hear; and the more they heard the better they were pleased. We have reached a period when it is quite difficult to enforce the gag law. Papacy owed a large amount of its horrid success to the use of the gag law; but, thank the Lord, those days are in the dark past, and those who attempt their continuance justly deserve the frowns of the most civilized and Christianized people. Truth and honesty covet the light and the most critical investigation. The pastor is too much of a man to be kept away from the truth through fear of its enemies. He loves it too well to sell it for a mess of pottage, as Esau sold his birthright. The Lord is raising up a class of noble, true men, of sterling character, to proclaim the whole truth in these last days. I am informed that H. Grattan Guinness, of London, recently addressed great audiences in Belfast, where he spoke out decidedly in favor of conditional immortality, the destruction of the wicked, and the saints' inheritance on the earth. We may well exclaim, Praise the Lord.

I spent many pleasant hours in conversation with Bro. Haddon on the harmonious teaching of the Bible, as to the nature of man, the literal coming of Christ as a near event, the saints' inheritance upon a renewed earth, the resurrection of the dead, the end of the wicked, and the unconscious sleep of man between death and the resurrection. We examined about all the objections that have been raised against the truth on these subjects; and he seemed specially pleased to find the Bible is all on one side, teaching most plainly that eternal life is a gift through Jesus Christ, to be received only by the saints, when Jesus shall return. He was astonished to find the truth so clearly set forth in the Scriptures on these subjects, which had before seemed so confused, and even contradictory to common sense and facts. He wondered why all did not see the light, when the sacred pages are so brilliantly illuminated from Genesis to Revelation. The blindness of the people seemed unaccountable, when they had before them an open Bible. It was no wonder that Pagan Papacy had believed and taught a purgatory and prayers to saints, and eternal torment for the lost; and other great errors growing out of these; but it was strange that Protestants should continue to drink out of the cup of the Roman harlot. Had they followed the teaching of Martin Luther, they would have escaped from the dark errors that now flourish so generally in the Protestant Churches. Said Luther:—"The dead count neither days nor years." "All souls lie and sleep till doomsday." "When awakened," they "will seem to themselves to have slept scarcely a moment."

In the "Historical View of the Controversy Concerning an Intermediate State," pp. 64, 65, Mr. Blackburne says: "Luther espoused the doctrine of the sleep of the soul upon a scriptural foundation, . . . and continued in that belief to the last moment of his life." "Luther . . . was clearly and indisputably on the side of those who maintain the sleep of the soul." It is also stated that in this "opinion he followed many fathers of the ancient church." Ibid, p. 348. In the same work we read:—"The doctrine [of the sleep of the dead] was held by the first reformers." Feuardentius called "Lutherans new Sadducees," because they held to the teaching of Luther, "that the dead so sleep as to know and feel nothing."

In his defence, Luther said: "They affirm that I bring forth novelties, but I affirm that they are not novelties, but truths which have been lost sight of. I am accused of rejecting the doctors of the church. I reject them not, but test their writings by the Bible. . . . The majority are always on the side of falsehood." Luther's great motto was: "The word of God, the whole word of God, and nothing but the word of God.' We have reached a period when every disciple of Jesus should adopt the same motto. Men's opinions are of but little value, unless they are founded upon the word of the Lord. No Christian should hold any doctrine that is not plainly expressed in Bible words. The inquiry of all should be, "What saith the Scriptures?"

It is to be hoped that the seed sown at Donaghy will produce much fruit to the glory of God. It is of special importance that the pastors of churches should see the truth, in order that they may lead their congregations into the light, and have them all ready to meet Jesus at his coming.

THE TIMES AND SEASONS.

BY R. C. BRONAUGH.

Bro. Stockman:—I thoroughly endorse the remark in your editorial notice of my letter to the Crisis of Nov. 16th, that "we have only to say that if our Lord does not come before, we hope he may come in 1889." While we are entitled to say that we know from the fulfilled signs that our dear Lord's [illegible] know that summer is near when the trees begin to put forth their leaves (Matt 24: 32, 33), yet it is equally true that "of that day and hour knoweth no man," verse 36. It is therefore greatly to be regretted that there has been so much of positiveness indulged in by well-meaning but over-confident writers in the past, in their mistaken endeavors to designate the precise year in which our Saviour's advent might be expected.

I have thought much upon this subject within the past twenty years, but have never been able to perceive that the several prophetic periods could apparently be each reconciled with predicted events marking their termini, so as to indicate any year except 1889 as the probable ending of the 1335 years of Dan. 12: 12. But, if that be the true date of the expiration of that period, it yet may be that the Lord will translate his saints at an earlier time. In fact, if Daniel is to stand in his lot on the "new earth" at the end of those days, it would seem of necessity that the translation must occur some time beforehand; and as a year intervened between the time when Noah entered the ark from the antediluvian world, and the time when he stepped forth from it upon the post-diluvian earth, so a like period or a longer one may be occupied in the transition from the present world to the new earth state. And it therefore behooves us to watch and pray always, for we know not at what hour our Lord may come.

I would not trespass unduly upon the valuable space of the columns of the Crisis, but as it is constantly falling into new hands, I desire to submit to the thought of such that the "time, times and a half," of Dan. 7: 25 and 12: 7, and of Rev. 12: 14, are shown to be equal to 1260 prophetic days, by verse 6 of the 12th chapter of Revelation; and that a prophetic day is equivalent to a literal year, appears from Numbers 14: 34 and Ezekiel 4: 6. It is believed that those 1260 years and the 1290 and 1335 years of Dan. 12: 11, 12 began simultaneously, in A. D. 554, because that then the last of the three "horns" or kingdoms of Dan. 7: 8, 24, having been plucked up by the roots, or completely subdued, Rome, the capital "seat" of the dragon, or Pagan Roman government, was finally surrendered unto the beast, or Papal Roman government. Rev. 13: 2.

In A. D. 554 the supremacy of the Pope in the church was established by law throughout the entire empire; whereas it had previously prevailed, by Justinians edict of A. D. 533, in the eastern empire only. It would therefore appear that A. D. 554, rather than A. D. 533, is the proper point from which to begin the reckoning of the 1260 years of Papal "dominion." Commencing them in A. D. 554 they would end in A. D. 1814, in which year the "Holy Alliance," a confederate assembly of the representatives of the power of the principal nations of Europe, declared in favor of universal religious toleration, and by that act of supreme legislative authority, sat in judgment upon and took away forever the Papal dominion over the saints (Dan. 7: 26), which authoritative legal termination of that dominion was reiterated by the same high tribunal in 1815.

Thirty years thereafter, in 1844, at the ending of the 1290 years, occurred the sad disappointment of those who were expecting the Lord then to appear. This premature movement in anticipation of the Saviour's advent seems to have been in manifest and remarkable fulfillment of the going forth of the virgins. Matt. 25: 1–13. Following that disappointment came the tarrying time of the bridegroom, and the waiting time of Dan. 12: 12. If this be the true understanding of the matter, then 45 years more, being the difference between the 1290 and the 1335 year periods, will bring us to the end in 1889. I believe that the Advent people are fulfilling that parable of the virgins; and if that be so, then I see no way of avoiding the conclusion that the tarrying or waiting time began in 1844 and will end in 1889.

The opening of the sixth seal, Rev. 6: 12, was marked by the great Lisbon earthquake, which occurred in 1755. Twenty-five years later, and "immediately after" the tribulation of the martyr age under the fifth seal, the sun was miraculously darkened, on May 19th, 1780. Matt. 24: 29. On the night of Nov. 12th and 13th, 1833, the falling of the stars occurred. Our Lord declared that the generation which should witness that scene would not pass away before he should come. His reference to that period of nearly a generation in length appears to harmonize with the forty-five years of waiting, foretold by Daniel. A person ten years of age in 1833 would now be sixty-four years of age, so that the generation intended must soon now pass away, unless Jesus shall sooner come.

Surely these considerations suffice to awaken the ardent hope and to justify the not unreasonable belief that the 1335 years will expire in 1889, and that our Lord will come then if not before. Blessed hope! Transcendently glorious anticipation! "Even so, come quickly, Lord Jesus," and deliver thy longing, loving people. And meanwhile may God direct our hearts into the patient waiting for Christ, and graciously inspire us with renewed energy to make much more earnest efforts than we have yet made to save some from among the perishing multitudes around us. Holy Father, help thy people, every one, to be faithful, for we know that the Master is coming soon to reckon with us, although we do not know just when.

And now, beloved, let us be cautious not to indulge in dogmatism upon this subject, for fondly as we may hope, or strongly as we may be persuaded in favor of this or that conclusion, we should still remember that we do not and cannot know the day, hour, or year when he will appear. Let it be our chief concern to be all the while ready.

ETERNAL LIFE.

BY G. H. WALLACE.

1. What is eternal life? To this question there is but one natural answer, that is, life which lasts eternally. Some very excellent Christian people have become dreadfully befogged in their notions of what eternal life is. They seem to have no difficulty in understanding what life is, but when the question of eternal life is propounded, that means, not the fact of life perpetuated eternally, but a happy condition.

God, who cannot lie, has promised eternal life; but if there were no other promises associated with the promise of life, who could tell or even conjecture its condition? The fact that eternal life is the subject of divine promise is all that would lead a person to suppose that it is to be attended by a happy condition. While it is a fact those who have eternal life will be eternally happy, it remains a fact that the condition, whatever it may be, does not define the fact of life. The simple truth is, before we can enter upon a happy career in the world to come, we must have life which will be eternal. Otherwise, whatever the condition and environments, the same fear of death will exist which has brought us into bondage here. Heb. 2: 15.

2. Upon what condition is eternal life obtained? We waive all argument of the question of the salvation of the irresponsibles, by saying that Jesus Christ came into the world that through him the world might be saved, John 3: 17; and all that can prevent universal salvation is actual, personal sin against the light of life. God has spoiled the old dogma of responsibility for inherent sin, by the sour grape figure of Ezekiel 18. In fact, while natures and dispositions of sinful tendencies may be inherited, no such thing as inherent sin exists.

But we are considering this part of the question for the benefit of those who by age, intelligence, and privilege, are responsible for themselves to God. The gift of eternal life to you, my dear friends, depends first, upon your faith in Jesus Christ. John 3: 16, Acts 16: 31, Rom. 5: 1. Second, upon your confession of your sins to God. 1 John 1: 9. And third, upon your maintaining, by the help of God's grace, a consistent Christian deportment. Ephes. 4. These three conditions briefly outline our part. It is God's to forgive sins, cleanse the heart, and cause grace to triumph unto eternal life. Rom. 5: 21.

3. When will eternal life be received by the Lord's people? How many times we have been told by sincere Christians that we have it already; some claiming possession by inheritance from our poor old bankrupt ancestor, Adam; others supposing that they received it at the time of their conversion to God. To the first we say, that in Jesus Christ is life, and he is the life of the world, as well as its light upon the subject of life; but Adam is dead, as are most of his posterity.

To the second class we say that when eternal life is imparted to the church, they will never become the subjects for funerals, but they will be like angels in point of deathlessness; but it will require resurrection power and change to make them thus. 1 John 5: 12: "He that hath the Son hath life," does not prove present possession of eternal life, but rather that it has been secured to us in him, to be imparted to us by him at his coming. Col. 3: 3, 1 Thess. 4: 13–18. This, my dear brother, is your treasure which is laid up for you in heaven; not to be given to you when you die; it was not given to you at conversion, but it is yours, and if you do not forfeit it by sin, it will be given you by the Lord when he comes.

The idea of present possession of eternal life is completely ruined by the numerous texts which, like that in 1 Tim. 6: 12, exhort the church, even as good people as Timothy was, to "Fight the good fight of faith, and lay hold on eternal life." By conversion they had become candidates for eternal life, which had been deposited in Christ for them, but which they had not received and could not [illegible] who is their life and our life shall appear. Col. 3: 3.

This is one thing which makes scripturally instructed Christians anxious for the Life-giver to come back to his purchased inheritance. The Christian dead are in their graves; and if Jesus does not come, the Christians living must follow them thither. And while anxiety and opposition will not change the divine appointment of the day of his coming, Christians cannot help feeling glad that this awful drama of sin and suffering is soon, yes, thank God, very soon to terminate, and the "hope of eternal life" to be realized.

A PERSONAL DEVIL.

BY J. S. WHITE.

Does the Bible inform us that there is a personal devil who can talk and reason? "Ye are of your father the devil, and the lusts of your father ye will do: he was a murderer from the beginning, and abode not in the truth, because there is no truth in him. When he speaketh a lie, he speaketh of his own; for he is a liar, and the father of it." John 8: 44.

Jesus informs us that there was a devil from the beginning, and that he could and did talk, and that he was a liar and the father of it. "Then was Jesus led up of the Spirit into the wilderness to be tempted of the devil. And when he had fasted forty days and forty nights, he was afterward an hungered. And when the tempter came to him, he said, If thou be the Son of God, command that these stones be made bread. But he answered and said, It is written, Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God. Then the devil taketh him up into the holy city, and setteth him upon a pinnacle of the temple, and saith unto him, If thou be the Son of God, cast thyself down: for it is written, He shall give his angels charge concerning thee; and in their hands they shall bear thee up, lest at any time thou dash thy foot against a stone. Jesus said unto him, It is written again, Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God. Again, the devil taketh him up into an exceeding high mountain, and sheweth him all the kingdoms of the world, and the glory of them; and saith unto him, All these things will I give thee, if thou wilt fall down and worship me. Then saith Jesus unto him, Get thee hence, Satan: for it is written, Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve. Then the devil leaveth him, and behold, angels came and ministered unto him." Matt. 4: 1–11.

In this narrative there is as much evidence that the devil came into the wilderness and talked with Jesus, as that Jesus went into the wilderness and talked with the devil. The devil made three propositions to Jesus, by way of tempting him to do wrong, and Jesus replied to them by way of rebuke. There is the same evidence that the devil was there personally as that Jesus was there in person. We have been told that there was no devil there talking with Jesus, except what was in Jesus; that Jesus had an evil nature, which tempted his good nature. That is, one part of himself, the evil part, tempted his good part, but the good part of Jesus overcame the evil part, and the evil part left him for a season." Luke 4: 13.

Suppose we say that Paganism was the devil that came to Jesus to tempt him to evil, but Jesus rebuked him, and Paganism departed from him for a season; which implies that Paganism may come back and try again to tempt Jesus. Or, suppose something else, called the devil, came to Jesus and tempted him. Suppose anything you please to call the devil, so that you may get rid of a personal devil. Why not?

"Again there was a day when the sons of God came to present themselves before the Lord, and Satan came also among them to present himself before the Lord. And the Lord said unto Satan, From whence comest thou? And Satan answered the Lord, and said, From going to and fro in the earth, and from walking up and down in it. And the Lord said unto Satan, Hast thou considered my servant Job, that there is none like him in the earth, a perfect and an upright man, one that feareth God and escheweth evil? and still he holdeth fast his integrity, although thou movedst me against him, to destroy him without cause. And Satan answered the Lord, and said, Skin for skin, yea, all that a man hath will he give for his life. But put forth thine hand now, and touch his bone and his flesh, and he will curse thee to thy face. And the Lord said unto Satan, Behold he is in thine hand; but save his life. So went Satan forth from the presence of the Lord, and smote Job with sore boils from the sole of his foot unto his crown." Job 2: 7.

This is conversation between the Lord and Satan, at a time when the sons of God came to present themselves before the Lord. "And the Lord said unto Satan, From whence comest thou? And Satan answered the Lord, and said, From going to and fro in the earth, and from walking up and down in it." If there is evidence that the Lord was there personally, there is the same evidence that Satan was there personally. Some who tell us that there is no personal devil, also say that there is no personal God. If they deny the one, they are consistent in denying the other. Deny the personality of Jesus in the wilderness talking with the devil; the reply is that it reads so. Does it not as plainly read that the devil came to Jesus personally and talked with him, as that Jesus was there and rebuked the devil?

It may be said that there was no outside party that testified that the devil was there personally. Nor was there any one to testify that Jesus was there personally. But you may say that Jesus was there, for the Bible reads so. The Bible just as plainly reads that the devil was there personally. Deny the personality of the devil on that occasion, and you may as well deny the personality of Jesus, so far as the Bible reads. There may be many devils, and many kinds. Some persons may be called devils because they are under the influence of the devil, and act like him. There is a leader of the devils, Beelzebub, the prince of the devils. Jesus said, "The prince of this world cometh, and hath nothing in me." The prince of the devils is the devil, not a devil, as if there may be many of them.

The devil is permitted to have great power, no less power than that of Jesus, who is to be the Judge of the quick and dead, and who has all power in heaven and earth, and will subdue all things unto himself, and will bind the devil and Satan. The power and the person who will bind the devil and Satan will come down from heaven, not a human being, who had never been in heaven. The angel representing himself, or one greater than himself, who is the Lord of lords.

One of the great efforts of the devil is to make people believe that there is no devil, and by so doing he can have a better chance to deceive them. Perhaps, if the devil ever laughed, it was when he was thinking of his success in getting people, especially professedly good people, to believe there is no personal devil. It may be said as evidence that there is no such devil, that no man has ever seen him. Who has ever seen the Lord, who talked with Satan in the time of Jude, since that time? And who has seen Jesus since the days of the apostles? Does it follow that there is no Lord?

THE PARABLE OF THE TEN VIRGINS.

BY WM. F. COLLIER.

A parable differs from an allegory in that the latter is a figurative representation. The former may be either a real or a supposed history, [illegible] of other [illegible] history, [illegible] may be drawn for instruction. We should observe that the things and events of parabolic history are not to be literally repeated in the history which a parable represents. To illustrate by the parable of the tares of the field, Matt. 13, the man who sowed the good seed represents, not another man like himself, but Jesus, the Son of God; the field is (represents) the world; the good seed represents, not other literal seed like itself, but rather "the children of the kingdom"; the tares represent "the children of the wicked one"; and so on to the end of the parable.

In this manner all history presented as a parable must be fulfilled, otherwise history could not be a parable. Many claim that the parable of the virgins (Matt. 25) covers the whole history of the gospel church. But please observe that the very first feature of the parable represents his servants as going forth to meet their Lord; and does it seem reasonable to believe that the infant church is therein represented as at once going forth to hail the return of her then departing Lord? His presentation of this parable was preceded by a prophetic history of events covering a period of many centuries. This they must at least to some extent have understood by the nature of the events brought to light in this history. He plainly taught them that the sign of his coming would not appear until after the appearance of certain celestial signs which were to follow the great tribulation spoken of by Daniel, the prophet. Matt. 24: 29, 30.

After announcing the parable, he assured them that his going away would be "as a man traveling into a far country" (verse 14), not to return until "after a long time" (verse 19). Therefore, the claim that the events of this parable are representative of events covering the whole history of the gospel church, is clearly contrary to the plain teaching of the blessed Jesus himself. We ask, then, to what period of the church's history does this parable apply? I unhesitatingly answer, after the appearing of the celestial signs during the period of the "time of the end." Dan. 12. A man does not start out to meet his friend until he has some knowledge as to the time the friend is coming.

Jesus instructed his friends—the church—to know when the event of his coming would be "near, even at the doors." Matt. 24: 33. But they were not to know this until they had seen the fulfillment of certain events which were to immediately precede the event of his coming. Therefore, again, inasmuch as his servants could not know—understand—regarding the season of their Lord's return, until after twelve hundred and sixty years' desolation of the church, by order of Papal Rome, it is clear that they did not go forth to meet him as soon as he had gone away.

Once more, further evidence on this line may be adduced from the fact that the events of this parable are presented in chronological order, making it very plain that the word "then" which commences this parabolic history, locates its fulfillment parallel with the history of the last generation of the Christian church, commencing at the time when Jesus commands his servants to "know that it [he, margin] is near, even at the doors." Matt. 24: 33. Then shall the fulfillment of the likeness—parable—commence; but it will not have been completed until our Lord—the heavenly Bridegroom—shall have come to take his waiting bride. Not only does this parable show the moral condition of those who would go forth to meet the heavenly Bridegroom, but it also represents their physical history, their course of action, while announcing to the world regarding the probable time of their Lord's return.

The expression, "The kingdom of heaven," which follows the word then, simply signifies a component part of the literal kingdom, viz., the true children of the kingdom occupying the stage of action during the time of the end. The virgins, the lamps, the oil, the bridegroom, and the going forth to meet him, doubtless were all real and literal; but, as shown above, this same literal history is not to be reproduced in that which the parable represents. Evidently these virgins represent those servants who were to make the proclamation regarding the time and coming of the King of glory to take his waiting bride. These lamps represent the prophetic word of God. (See Psa. 119: 105, also 2 Peter 1: 19.) The literal oil in their literal vessels, doubtless represents the real, living, indwelling prophetic faith of those that go forth to meet their Lord.

That this is scriptural may be clearly seen in the fact that as literal oil may be made to give light for men to see temporal things, so a man possessed of living faith in the prophetic Word of God, may clearly see and understand future spiritual things. (See Heb. 11.) Admitting that faith alone does not entitle one to a passport into the marriage of the Lamb, we still claim that without consistent Bible faith we cannot have admittance there. For "without faith it is impossible to please God." Heb. 11: 6. "The just shall live by faith." Rom. 1: 17. There is always special faith required when new dispensational truth is brought to light, as shown by the following rebuke from the lips of Jesus himself: "Nevertheless, when the Son of man cometh, shall he find [this] faith on the earth?" Luke 18: 8. This text with the context which precedes it, when read with other scriptures referring to the Son of man, indicates that dense scriptural darkness will enshroud his professed people when he comes, because of their great lack of persistent dispensational or prophetic faith.

Although the literal vessels of the wise virgins were well supplied with oil, doubtless they, as well as the foolish virgins, would have been left in darkness and therefore would have been too late to have entered the marriage, had they not made a practical use of their oil, by oft replenishing [illegible] those who are represented by the wise virgins, are shown to make a practical use of their prophetic faith by oft presenting the ever-increasing evidences of the speedy coming of the heavenly Bridegroom, thereby "giving the household meat in due season." Matt. 24: 45. Thus doing they are approved of God, and hence their presence at the marriage of the heavenly bridegroom is assured. (Concluded next week.)

DEFINITE TIME.

BY L. D. CAREY.

To prove that God's people can never know anything about the time of Christ's second coming, we are referred to Matt. 24: 36. When our Saviour uttered these words, he did not say they never should know, but that they did not know then, eighteen hundred years ago. When the angel was revealing to Daniel what should transpire when he was dead and gone, God's people at that time did not understand it. But Daniel was deeply interested, and interrogates him: "Oh, my Lord what shall be the end of all these things?" But he told him the words were to be closed up and sealed "till the time of the end." "But the wise shall understand." Somebody, then, will understand and know something about these things, "in the time of the end."

But how are they to know? I answer, by searching the Scriptures, for we have no other means of knowing. God tells us that "he will do nothing but he revealeth his secrets unto his servants the prophets." Amos 3: 7. He never brings a judgment upon a people without giving them due warning. Noah preached a very unpopular doctrine to the generation then living, but they would not believe his message. They no doubt thought him a fool or crazy fanatic, but he was faithful to his mission and was saved. Christ says, "As it was in the days of Noah, so also shall the coming of the Son of man be." So it was with the cities of the plain; he warned them but they would not heed it, and perished in the flames.

Such have been God's dealings with man in the past. I ask, then, in all candor and honesty, is it reasonable or scriptural to believe that this same God will bring a still greater judgment on the world without due warning? Nay, verily. The soon coming of Christ and the great judgment-day are being preached by the faithful watchmen on Zion's walls, and the press is sending out its silent messengers by the ton in every dialect and tongue, throughout all lands and climes. Christ says, "this gospel must be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations and then shall the end come." He is talking about the end of this world or age. Missionaries tell us this has been done.

Listen to what God says through his prophet. "My people are destroyed because they reject knowledge." For this reason were the Antediluvians and Sodomites destroyed. The apostle tells us how we can get this knowledge and that is by finding out what the prophets have said. Peter commands Christians to "take heed unto the sure word of prophecy," that they may know their whereabouts on the stream of time, and what is coming on the earth. Christ, in Matt. 24, gives a long list of important events that must come to pass before his second advent. When we see certain things begin to come to pass, (verse 29) "then know that it is near, even at the door."

These signs are all in the past and in process of fulfillment, and the next thing in order is the sign of the Son of man in heaven, (verse 30.) The apostle Paul is very plain on this point. He says, "But ye, brethren, are not in darkness that that day should overtake you as a thief." Why? Because "they are the children of the light." Many more texts might be adduced, but this is enough to convince any unprejudiced mind that God's people may know something definite relative to the greatest event in the world's history, in which is involved the destiny of all things earthly. To say we know the exact hour is one extreme, and to say we don't and can't know anything about it is the other extreme. The last is worse than the first.

Noah preached one hundred and twenty years without knowing when the judgment would come. But God, because of his faithfulness, revealed it unto him seven days before the flood came. Who knows but God's people may yet know, if they do not now, the definite time of Christ's coming? With so much scripture pointing to that time, who would dare to say they never can know? The fact that some have been mistaken in the past is no argument or proof that definite time is not in the Bible. If it is there, and it can be nowhere else, somebody will understand it before the advent.

Light is breaking in the oriental skies. The morning star heralds the approach of day, which will usher in eternal glory and blessedness to the saints, but the blackness of darkness forever to those who are unprepared to meet their God. Amid the voices of that happy redeemed throng we shall distinguish the voices of the loved ones that have been torn from our embrace by the cruel hand of death; we shall meet them face to face and enjoy their pure society in the "new Eden" forever and ever. Precious promise! Glorious hope! Dear reader, shall we meet each other there? I mean to be there.

"I long to be there, and the thought that 'tis near,
Makes me almost impatient for Christ to appear,
To fit up that dwelling of glories so rare,
The earth robed in beauty, I long to be there."

Salem, Oregon, Nov. 17th, 1887.

EARNESTLY STRIVING.

BY H. [illegible]

What a busy, bustling world we live in. Go where we may, we find the same mighty struggle for that which perishes with the using. Men's minds seem to be on fire with the one great all-absorbing desire, and with straining nerves grasping after worldly riches, and by headlong, rushing speed wear out the mainspring of life and go down into a sinner's grave before they are threescore and ten, never having taken time to look beyond this present, fleeting existence, but all enraptured with the present and natural. No spiritual vision has ever enraptured their aspirations. O God, have mercy on poor, fallen human nature; send the light of future glory, of spiritual, immortal blessedness into the darkened hearts of earth's teeming millions.

God demands that men ask, and it shall be given them; seek, and they shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto them; for every one that asketh receiveth, and he that seeketh findeth, and to him that knocketh it shall be opened. These imperative truths must be heeded. Dispensational regal law cannot change. God does not step down a single hair's breadth to human favoritism, but all the one way or not at all. Anything short of this would not be God-like. Equal conditions is the watchword. If we are wells without water, or clouds that are carried about with a tempest, to whom the mist of darkness is reserved forever, we have only ourselves to blame. O, what a fearful neglecting of golden opportunities, a frightful wasting of precious time!

Why not seize the moments as they fly, and use them to the glory of God and the benefit of our fellows, taking our proper place low at the foot of the cross, and learning of the greatest, grandest teacher sinful earth ever beheld, that we may not by great swelling words of vanity allure through the lusts of the flesh those who have escaped from them, who yet live in error, not promising any liberty, when we are ourselves the servants of sin and corruption? God commands us to "love not the world, neither the things that are in the world." In view of this, let us set our supreme affections [illegible] eternal realities, soon to be manifested in all their grandeur to all saints, remembering that the eyes of the Lord are over the righteous, and his ears open to their prayers. This gives us confidence and inspiring hope, strengthening our faith, begetting stronger desires for heart purity and holy acts; bearing in mind that Jesus himself bare our sins in his own body on the tree, that we, being dead to sin, should live unto righteousness, by whose stripes we were healed. For we were like sheep going astray; but are now returned unto the Shepherd and Bishop of our souls. God help us to stand firm.

NOISY WORKERS.—We sometimes hear the advice, "Do all the good you can in the world, and make as little noise about it as possible;" but some persons, judging by their action, read it, "Seldom do a good action; but when you do, loudly proclaim it, and make as much noise about it as you can." Those who seldom do any good, generally have such a hard tug to bring themselves to it, that, when done, it really seems to them, if to nobody else, a marvelous and meritorious affair. Is it not a matter of fact, that those who seldom do good really seem as if they could not help making a great deal out of a little? Is this my picture? Is it yours? We will not inquire if it belongs to anybody else.—Sel.

ARE WE OF GOD?—SHALL WE GO BACK?

Whom God calls to important ministries, them he also guides, blesses and honors. The Master always endorses his chosen people, and sets his divine seal to their work. He was with his apostles in signs and wonders and miracles. He endued the reformers with "power from on high," and crowned their work with signal success. When summoned before magistrates to answer for their faith and works, the Holy Ghost brought all things to their remembrance, and taught them what to say, as in the case of Luther at Worms. Persecution failed to stifle the truth. The fires of martyrdom could not silence their voices. Their message, wreathed in flames, defied all opposition. God was with them. And the Divine Presence was the proof of their "calling."

Can the Adventists claim the shield of God and the power of the Spirit as the certificate of their heavenly calling and the divine order of their ministries?

In modern Christian times few examples can be found of such remarkable and abundant displays of divine power, in the preaching of the Word, in special and almost miraculous answers to prayer, in the confusion and prostration [illegible] men, and in wonderful providential deliverances, as characterized the [illegible] Advent movement. In the face of opposition unparalleled since the times of martyrdom, the "sure word of prophecy" which they declared made way, and drew together believers and advocates in every civilization of the globe. The preachers of the "coming and kingdom" were flames of fire. They were furnished directly from the Throne. Nothing could dampen their zeal. In poverty and distress, in hunger oft and nakedness, denounced by pulpit and press, hooted in the streets, sometimes mobbed, and often violently entreated; not knowing in the morning where they could find shelter at night, they went wherever the Spirit led, declaring, day and night, in school-houses, in barns, in the open air, in remote country towns and at thronged seasides, the awful, grand, glorious tidings of "the day of the Lord at hand." And God was with them every place, in mighty power and in much assurance. Nothing else in the history of the church has approached so near to a repetition of Apostolic times and scenes. The first decade of the Advent movement is marked as an epoch of wonderful divine manifestation.

But it is objected that more or less fanaticism has attended the preaching of Advent doctrine. Certainly; but what of it? Has not fanaticism been developed in the wake of every great religious movement? What if the disciples had forsaken their Lord because Peter, in a fit of rashness, cut off the right ear of the high priest's servant! What if we reject the gift of the Holy Ghost because Simon undertook to purchase it with money! What if we repudiate the doctrine of "free grace" because of the extravagances and abuses which followed Wesley's preaching!

"It is only true doctrine that Satan seeks to discredit by driving some of its friends into excesses. The devil never obstructs a lie. Said Charlotte Elizabeth: "It has often struck me what efforts the enemy has made to stifle this doctrine.... But shall the abuse of a sublime truth by the great enemy lead us to reject it? As well may we blot out the ninety-first Psalm because the devil quoted it, and for a truly devilish purpose. No; he knows that the shedding forth of greater light on this important branch of Christian knowledge is one of the signs of Christ's actual coming, a token that his own time is short; therefore he endeavors to stifle it, and ere long he will bring in false Christs, to deceive if it were possible the very elect. We have need to be found watching."

We deplore fanaticism. But to admit that fanaticism invalidates the cause which it follows, would be to reject every sound doctrine ever advocated, even the teachings of Christ himself. There are natural reasons why Adventism has been cursed with more than its proper share of fanaticism. We allow unusual latitude of conscience and liberty of speech. We are not a creed-bound people. Our places of worship are open to all. The Bible is the chart of our faith, and every one reads it for himself. We do not mean to tolerate palpable heresy, but we have great respect for honest convictions. And so some fanatics have followed us simply for what opportunity they could find.

But time has corrected many fancies and extravagances, and our people are now, we believe, as orderly and well-behaved as the Methodists were in the days when they had life and power. If Adventists should "lose their strength" and lie for hours unconscious on the floor of our chapels, or on the ground at our Campmeetings, we would be published through all the land as a "set of crazy fanatics." Yet so have we often seen it at Methodist meetings—in our boyhood days.

Our chief danger at present is not fanaticism, but formality, worldliness, reliance on soundness of belief more than upon being filled with the Spirit. What we most need is a more complete baptism of the Holy Ghost, that we may press the good news of Christ's coming at hand with renewed courage and zeal. But has not the time come when the Advent people may, without detriment to Adventual truths, return to popular denominationalism, and find homes and religious liberty in the churches of their choice? In reply to this question, we beg leave to say that "the gifts and calling of God are without repentance." Rom. 11: 29. We know of no instance in Christian or Jewish history in which God has called and commissioned a people to the proclamation of a message and the discharge of solemn trusts and then relieved them of their "calling," unless they had proved unfaithful.

The Lord called Abraham out to be the father of a great nation, and he did not call him back into an idolatrous land. Noah was separated and called to be a "preacher of righteousness," and was not relieved until the divine judgment was accomplished upon the antediluvians, and the race was placed on a new basis. The children of Israel were called out of Egyptian bondage, and although their journey to Canaan was very long and very trying, and although God had to punish them severely, he did not remand them to the land of the Pharoahs. The Gentile church was "taken out" to be a people "for his name," and to publish the gospel of salvation. And of this choice God has not repented. Luther and Wesley were separated unto special work; and their commissions were commensurate with their earthly existence. There is no retrogression in God's purposes or work. The Almighty Father makes no mistakes. If he "called out" the Adventists from modern ecclesiasticism to publish certain specific prophetical and doctrinal truths, he will not revoke their calling until their message has had complete accomplishment, unless they prove recreant to their trusts.

But has not the popular religious feeling toward Adventism so changed and softened as to render it practicable for our people to return to the churches and enjoy sufficient liberty in the expression of their views? No! Emphatically NO! Adventism is no more wanted in the churches to-day, as a whole, than it was in 1844 or 1854. Persons are constantly coming to us who declare that they are not tolerated in their religious relations in even the most guarded expressions of their faith. And the cases are extremely rare when any Christian minister is willing to exchange pulpits with any of our preachers.

The "blessed hope" of the coming and [illegible] urrection of the dead bodies of the saints, and the reign of Christ in a literal New Earth, is considered an innovation upon advanced religious thought; a disturbing element in refined Christian circles. The Son of God in person—the same that died on the cross, that slept in the grave, that arose to life, and talked and ate with his disciples before his ascension—is positively not wanted by the dominant religious sentiment of to-day. And the preaching of Second Adventism, as we believe the Scriptures to teach it, is highly offensive. Our people cannot, therefore, allow themselves to drift into other churches without positively abating and practically abandoning their faith.

Between a personal and a spiritual second coming of Christ there can be no agreement. A literal corporal resurrection is absolutely irreconcilable with a spiritual resurrection at death. A kingdom and citizenship of actual physical "flesh and bones" persons have nothing in common with a kingdom of disembodied spirits. The literal reign of Jesus, on a literal visible throne, over literal subjects, on this solid earth—purged of the curse—is a view as entirely opposed, in every feature, to a spiritual reign of Christ, as the personal, real and visible are to the impersonal, ethereal and spiritual. There is no middle ground. There can be no harmony between theories so absolutely opposite.

The Second Advent of Christ is as objectionable to the average church member of to-day, as the First Advent was to the average Jew. So long as Adventism is regarded by the churches as a heresy and a frightful fanaticism, it is not easy to see how Advent believers can return to the fellowship of the churches without surrendering their doctrinal convictions.

This is no time for recantation. We are too near the promised possession to admit of retreat. Standing amid the consummated evidences of an early crowning of our long-cherished hope, we cannot pause to consider the expediency of compromise. Having put our hand to the plough we cannot look back. We have no desire to retrace our steps. Think of the Israelites after forty years of hardships; having passed the Red Sea, Sinai and Nebo; after witnessing all the miracles of the wilderness; after living on the manna, and worshiping in the light of the "pillar of fire;" after hearing the voice of God and beholding the glory of his presence, turning back from the very banks of the Jordan and setting their faces towards Egypt, and the scenes of their toils, tears and oppressions! No; we cannot go back. The harbor is too near for poise of oar or shortened sail. The Lord of hosts is with us; the God of Jacob is our strength.

What we need just now is to re-light our torches at the pentecostal fires, and flash out the light of coming glories with zeal ever increasing as the august hour draws near. Said Cotton Mather: "But this word of God is in my mind like burning fire shut up in my bones; nor can I any longer forbear, but must again and again denounce this doom to the earth, sufficiently prepared for the fire, and a sorceress condemned to the flames. Yea, though some Nero should command me to be burned in the flames, I will not cease to preach and foretell, with an earnest voice, the dissolution, renewal and purification of the world by fire. Yes, O beloved! prepare; and in the exercise of hope, haste unto the coming of the Lord: and, seeing that ye look for such things, study that ye may be found of him without spot and blameless."

We have come to a moment of supreme solemnity. The curtain between us and eternal things trembles as with the breath of God. It may be lifted at any moment. Blessed will be that People of whom it will be said: "Because thou hast kept the word of my patience, I also will keep thee from the hour of temptation, which shall come upon all the world, to try them that dwell upon the earth."

A SHIP UNDERGIRDED BY PRAYER.

At the close of our late civil war, I was sent South by the Home Mission Society of my denomination for mission and school work among the freedmen. My first work was at Beaufort, S. C. There were about six thousand emancipated slaves at Hilton Head, a short distance from the city, who had followed Sherman in his wonderful march "from Atlanta to the sea." They were provided by the government with rude shanties, and served with daily rations from the commissary department.

There was no limit to their gratitude for their deliverance from a bondage that was worse than death. True to their characteristic religious instincts they had erected a church made of poles, and floored and seated with unplaned boards, with a rude desk of like material, which was abundantly if not tastefully supplied with flowers. In that rough chapel we preached on Lord's day to that sable audience, whose eagerness to hear surpassed anything we had ever witnessed before. They listened with their ears and eyes and hands and feet—they listened all over. And their plentiful responses in bowing, and smiling, and clapping softly their black hands, and rising and courtesying, and, when they could no longer contain themselves, bursting into a storm of "amens," "dat is so, massa Jesus," and, "O, bless the white pastor, massa Lord," was enough to have aroused the most frigid orthodoxy on earth into a flame of emotion. We shall never forget the effect of those scenes of worship upon our own mind and heart.

Well, after some months of labor at Beaufort, I was ordered to report for duty at West Virginia. It was at the beginning of the year; and before leaving I was requested to have a farewell meeting. At the close they gave me, one by one, the "parting hand," each expressing, with sobbing emotion, the wish to meet the white pastor "in the kingdom"; and when I bade them farewell they all joined in singing several wild plantation airs whose pathetic power thrills me even now.

As I started to go, an old and very black man, who had been a slave preacher for many years, comforting his oppressed and deeply wronged people, in the dark hours of their toils and cruel punishments, with the hope that Massa Jesus would come some bright morning and set them all free, and bring back their children sold away from them by their heartless masters—that old black man seized my hand, and with a look that told my heart that he knew where to find God, said, "Dear white pastor, I wants t[illegible] once more before [illegible] bowed together on the ground, and as he unbosomed his feelings to the Lord, it seemed to me I never heard any praying before. Such reverent familiarity of speech, as of one tried and trusted friend speaking to another! Such tones of confidence, and assurance of being heard and answered! Such simple yet lofty expressions! I felt that deep in that scarred black bosom was a heart that touched the heart of God. I would go many a mile to hear and feel the power of that prayer again. He asked the Lord to be sure and remember the "white pastor's family" and "never let them want for a morsel of bread." And then he told the Lord the white pastor was going to take ship for home, and described the perils of a voyage at sea in that season of the year with graphic power that seemed inspired, winding up with these words: "Now, Lord, you hold the great ship in your big fist, and don't let her go to the bottom with the white pastor board of her."

We sailed from Charleston, S. C., for New York on the first day of January. We had on board a regiment of soldiers, homeward bound; the officers in the cabin, the men in the hold. My state-room companion was a surgeon from New York city. Our steamer was new and strong. We doubled Cape Hatteras in the night, and met a most terrific storm of hail and snow. The wind was high and wild. Our steamer creaked and rocked and plunged, as though she were a toy on the brow of a tempest. I was in my berth fearfully seasick, clinging with my might to keep from being flung out. The doctor came rushing from the deck, exclaiming, "We shall go to the bottom; nothing can save us; we shall all be lost"; and he wrung his hands in agony of fear, repeating, "I shall never see home again." I asked, "What does the captain say?" There was great uproar in the ship. All were terrified. And there swept over me a feeling of despair, and as I said to myself, "Is it so? shall I never see home again?" the words of that old black man's prayer fell on my ear, in tones as clear and strong and fervent as when, awe-struck, I heard them from his lips when we knelt together on the shore at Beaufort; and instantly I felt as calm and safe as I do now. I knew no storm could be wild enough to drown that old man's voice, nor tempest terrible enough to sink our ship undergirded by that freed slave's prayer. He who rules the restless sea said to the wild waves, "Be still"; and we came in safety to our "desired haven," though a staunch steamer just behind us was fatally stranded.

AND NOW IT IS RUSSIA'S TURN.

The French crisis has passed with less excitement than attends a presidential election in our large cities. But anxiety at the great political centres is hardly allayed when a new menace of the peace of Europe comes to the front. Russia has been for some time silent, but not inactive. And her wily hand is being shown in a very suggestive way just now. The following from the Boston Journal of Dec. 8 will be read with interest:

"The menacing movements of Russia on her western frontier are attracting increased attention in Europe, and the uneasiness which they occasion is fast passing into alarm. Such extensive movements of troops as are reported can hardly be made without a motive, and the motive can scarcely be a pacific one. The Russian government vouchsafes no explanations, and all the arrangements are made with so much secrecy that no details have been made public. All that is certainly known is that large bodies of Russian troops have been massed upon the frontier, and that other bodies are in motion behind them. At first it was thought that the movement was directed towards Germany, but it has become reasonably clear that Austria is the object of the Russian menace, and the tone of the Austrian papers is full of alarm, and the money markets of Vienna feel the depressing influence of the situation. It seems almost incredible that Russia should precipitate war at the beginning of winter. If Austria were the only Power concerned, it might be that the Czar would hope to make short work with her, but if the recently-formed alliance between Austria, Germany and Italy means anything, it was certainly designed to meet such contingencies as this. A hostile movement on the part of Russia would involve a large part of Europe in war. The slight which Russia experienced in the Bulgarian adjustment rankles in the breast of the Czar, and sometime Russia will pretty certainly seek revenge. But it would be simple madness to take such a time as the present for the enterprise."

ATONEMENT.

Sometimes needless mystery enshrouds the doctrine of the atonement, owing to the fact that the meaning of the word is not comprehended. Webster thus defines the word atonement:

1. Agreement; concord; reconciliation after enmity or controversy.
2. Expiation; satisfaction or reparation made by giving an equivalent for an injury, or by doing or suffering that which is received in satisfaction for an offence or injury."

The Greek term translated atonement, is also rendered reconciliation. "We also joy in God through our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom we have now received the atonement" (Rom. 5: 11), the margin reading "reconciliation," in the Revision puts "reconciliation" in the text itself. In a word, Christ becomes our "propitiation", or Conciliator by paying the price of forfeiture—by the vicarious "sacrifice of himself," or giving his "life a ransom," and now appearing in "the presence of God for us," as our High Priest.

In the type, the blood of the atonement sacrifice was carried into the Holy of Holies by the High Priest and sprinkled upon the mercy-seat—afterward the Priest came out to bless the waiting people. Our High Priest entered the antitypical Holy of Holies, "with his own blood," but has not yet come out. He has entered "once for all"—will never repeat it—and when he comes out the work of atonement will be finished forever—no more atonement. How then can men be saved after this? To count out the atonement in a future age, is virtually saying that it was needless in this age: if men can then be saved without an atonement, why not now? The claim is anti-gospel, and fallacious. W. S.

JEWISH TIME.

Judge Bronaugh inquires if it is not true that the Jewish [illegible] begins in the spring, instead of autumn? And what time would this count bring the Passover epoch, and the day of atonement in 1889? As many others are propounding the same questions in substance, both orally and by letter, we give a brief public reply:

1. The Jewish sacred year (the only Jewish year recognized in Scripture after the Exodus) always began in the spring, with the first new moon prior to the first full moon after vernal equinox—this being the only year used in regulating the time of the Jewish feasts.

2. History shows that they also reckoned a civil year from the autumn, for secular purposes, but never in relation to their worship, festivals, or fasts.

3. The ancient and modern Jews differ one day in their count of sacred time—the ancients beginning the year with the actual sight of the Nisan new moon (if clear, and the next day if not clear), while the moderns begin with the astronomical time of new moon, which is always one day earlier. In 1889, Passover will come April 15th, and Atonement day (10th day of the 7th month) will come October 5th, by one count, varying but one day from the other count. W. S.

POLITICAL RELIGION?

Yes, if connected with the right kind of politics. Politics that leave out the "world to come," that ignore the coming "King of glory," and arouse only an interest in matters pertaining to human governments, fall short of the divine pattern. Jesus was preeminently a political preacher of the right kind—a kingdom preacher. Not preaching a kingdom of earthly origin, or of the carnal type, belonging to this age, but a kingdom to come after human kingdoms shall have had their full time—a kingdom to supplant and succeed the kingdoms of men; a kingdom due "when the Son of man shall come in his glory," due when the seventh trumpet shall sound—then the kingdoms of this world shall "become the kingdom of our Lord and of his Christ, and he shall reign forever and ever." Jesus called it "the kingdom of heaven," or "the kingdom of God"; and though he said that it was "at hand" 1800 years ago in some sense, he also said that after the signs of his future coming should be seen, it should be "nigh at hand"—still future after the signs, but not far off.

We should let sacred politics enter into our religion conspicuously—correctly understand the word of the kingdom—but not to the exclusion of heart purity; for it is possible to have a perfect understanding of the sacred kingdom-programme, and still possess a carnal heart. Let the spirit of the coming kingdom be blended with its political phase of interest—have as much grace in the heart as we have understanding in the head—then we can better politically enthuse others. W. S.

HOW LONG THE VISION?

"How long the vision" concerning what? Not concerning the history of the powers symbolized by the ram and the goat—not that—but simply concerning the duration of two important things seen in the vision, thus specified in the Revision: "How long shall be the vision concerning the continual burnt offering, and the transgression that maketh desolate [this desolation], to give both the sanctuary and the host to be trodden under foot?" The duration of these two things only is inquired after—"the continual burnt offering," and "the transgression of desolation."

But why inquire after the duration of the "continued burnt offering"? Simply because he had seen a certain horn arise which "magnified itself, even to the prince [High Priest] of the host; and it took away from him the continual burnt offering, and the place of his [the High Priest's] sanctuary was cast down" (Daniel 8: 11), that is, the place where the burnt offerings were made in Jerusalem. When the prophet saw that the "continued burnt offering" was again to be restored, and subsequently to be taken away by a desolating horn that should rise and produce great desolation, he inquires, "How long the vision concerning" this very matter—the duration of "the continual burnt offering" to be taken away, and the duration of the desolation to succeed it—how long these two combined? The answer is, "Unto 2300 days."

The events to be measured by the 2300 days cannot easily be overlooked. They are not the history of the ram and goat—not at all—but only the sacrificial worship, to be followed by the horn's desolation. We cannot measure this sacrificial worship before its legal restoration under Nehemiah—all previous attempts having proved abortive. W. S.

IRELAND.

The political condition of Ireland presents a sad, dark outlook. After a two year's effort of the British Parliament to regulate and reform the Irish government so as to give general satisfaction, the settlement seems as far away as when they began their work. One needs to come here to understand the true situation. I find nearly all the Christian people utterly opposed to the Home Rule Bill of Mr. Gladstone and his sympathizers who are largely Parnellites, or supporters of the Papacy. An intelligent gentleman, who is well acquainted with the true state of things in the south of Ireland, as well as the north, said to me to-day that the real issue is whether the Papists or Protestants shall rule Ireland. If possible the Papists are determined to drive away the Protestants from their lands and their homes. There is probably now no other nation in the world so loyal to the Pope as the Irish; and it is no wonder that they should seek to make him a home on the "Erin Isle;" but this cannot be so long as the Protestants hold the political power. It is said that all the riotous disturbances in Belfast and elsewhere were begun by the Catholics, and not by the Orange men.

No doubt, it will be found, when the facts are known, that the great meetings in American cities, to express sympathy for Ireland, are arranged by Roman Catholics, and their sympathizers; who are also making gigantic efforts to get the control of American politics, schools, army, navy, banks, and all our literary and religious institutions; so that, if they fail in Ireland, they may invite the Pope to make a home under the spread-eagle banner. The American people are asleep in the midst of startling dangers; while Papists are rocking the cradle, singing their hypocritical lullaby songs of peace and safety, when they are just ready to grasp the reins of government, and take the highest offices in the nation. It is a startling terrible fact, that Protestantism in America is now making a low bow to Papacy, for the sake of her votes and political influence in the town, county, city, State, and national elections. Beware!! M. G.

LONDON SOCIALISTS.

The Socialists and other laboring classes had a great meeting in Trafalgar Square, last Sunday, Nov. 13th. Because of former troubles at the same place, the city authorities had issued an order forbidding any public gatherings at that place; but last Sunday the crowd came, paying no attention to the city order prohibiting such a meeting. Fearing trouble, some 5,000 police, 200 of whom were on horses, were ordered to Trafalgar Square to take charge of the crowd that might assemble. They were on duty about ten hours, having some very serious difficulties to manage. They made several arrests, among whom was one member of Parliament, who attempted to harangue the crowd, and received some severe blows on his head. When brought into court the next day, he presented a sorry appearance, with his head bound up with cloths. Some two hundred were carried to hospitals to have their wounds dressed, as the result of conflicts with policemen and others, during the day. Mounted police were pulled from their saddles, and some of their horses were thrown down. Before the crowd could be dispersed the Grenadiers had to be called out with fixed bayonets. This was at dark, or about 5 P. M. Some forty arrests were made during the day. One of these was John Burns, the Socialist leader.

The scenes of the French revolution may soon be reenacted on a larger scale. There is no probability that the labor question agitation will cease till they have had a bloody struggle with the capitalists. The future, between this time and the coming of Jesus, presents no pleasing aspect. The passions of men are being aroused to do desperate deeds, in order to accomplish their object. The Socialists threaten to hold another great meeting in Trafalgar Square next Sunday, Nov. 20th. In view of this, it is stated "that the Government have decided to swear in 20,000 special constables [Police] in anticipation of further disturbances." This is the hour to hide in Jesus, and look to him for protection in the coming storm. He is our strong tower, where we may be perfectly safe. Those who wish to enjoy his protection should keep out of all labor organizations, and secret societies, and trust alone in the Lord. His arm of strength is all-sufficient as a shield and safeguard. But those who trust in confederations, or human schemes, for safety, will find them utter failures when we reach the trying hour. "Have faith in God." M. G.

SYMPATHY with others is not learned without personal suffering. The power to comfort grows out of our own afflictions. Depend upon it, those useful workers whom you so much envy have their private griefs, which minister to their usefulness or keep them humble under their success.—Ex.

FIVE THOUSAND ADVENTISTS WANTED TO READ THE FOLLOWING.

Five thousand Adventists wanted to send one dollar (or more) each to the Treasurer of the Society, E. M. ANDREWS, 49 Bloomingdale Street, Chelsea, Mass. Who will have a share in this work and be blest? E. M. A.

THE BOSTON CHURCH.

"Come over and help us." Shall we have an Advent Church in Boston, the headquarters of our publishing interest? For many years there was no meeting in Boston where those of like precious faith could gather to exhort one another according to the Scriptures. Some years since, being in Boston, I said to the brethren, "Why don't you have a meeting in Boston?" A brother present said, "We can, if you will take hold and help us." A notice was inserted in the Crisis for all that were interested to meet at the Crisis Office. There were twenty-two present at the meeting, and pledges were solicited, and $10 per week was pledged, just enough to pay for the rent of a hall. I then offered my services with a proviso that the Hall rent should be paid first, and if there should be a surplus it should be used for preaching. At that time it cost me five dollars per week for car fare to Boston and return. The work prospered, and we soon had to secure a larger place. Morgan Chapel on Shawmut Avenue was secured. The congregation increased, the meetings were interesting, and souls were converted. At the death of Mr. Morgan the Chapel passed into other hands, and the church procured a hall. In a short time they were obliged to move again. This was detrimental to the interests of the society, and some became discouraged. There were some Calebs and Joshuas among the people, who said, "We are well able to go up and possess the land."

A society was organized, and solicitors appointed to secure funds to build a house. One good sister gave one thousand dollars to start the enterprise. It was the question of a meeting or no meeting in Boston. The society is made up of laboring men of limited means, but strong in faith, which was manifest in works. Finally, after a hard struggle, the house was finished and dedicated, with a heavy debt resting upon the faithful few who had put their all into the cause.

"Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfil the law of Christ," is the admonition of the apostle. The brethren and the cause in Boston need help. Shall they have it? It is of as much importance that the truth be preached in Boston as elsewhere. It would be a reproach on the cause to have it said that there is no meeting at the headquarters of our publishing institution.

Now, dear brethren and sisters throughout the land, let your brotherly love shine out as far as Boston. Let each one send one dollar to H. H. TUCKER, H. C. Station, Chelsea, Mass., and you will hear of rejoicing among your brethren. Only one dollar for missionary work where it will do much good. The call is urgent; do not delay. "Give, and it shall be given."

CHURCH NEWS.

In 1842 a number of persons in Plymouth Mass., became believers in the soon personal coming of our Lord and Saviour the second time, without sin unto salvation. They have maintained a meeting from that time to the present. When they commenced their meetings I was living four miles from Plymouth, in Kingston, being pastor of the Baptist Church.

The Plymouth church from the first have been united, persevering, and lovers of the truth. For some time past they have had two of our most devoted sisters to conduct their meetings, Sundays and week days, Mrs. Mary Ransom, and Mrs. Ida Chandler. They are now in Duxbury, and are expecting to locate in Plymouth. These sisters are what they profess to be in faith and practice. The church has requested them to move into their midst. The meetings are largely attended, compared with some times in the past. The church is united, warm-hearted, and hopeful. May they remain so; and the Lord will bless them.

J. S. WHITE.

Bro. Stockman:—I wish to report our little band as still alive and looking for the dear Lord. They are only about three years old, and yet have had some of the hardest trials. First, they had the Congregational Church against them, but they stood this. Next Bro. Earl, their beloved pastor passed away, and it has seemed as if this was going to pull them down; but though weak, by faith they are holding on, and they have stood the storm. Next came financial storm. Their crops, both sugar and grain, were a failure. But some have lifted beyond what they were able, and we believe that we shall pull through.

Our preaching services are well attended, and the prayer meetings are grand. All are in good working order, many strong men are under deep conviction, and we look for a grand outpouring of God's Spirit. We feel that if we continue to cry to the Lord he will hear the cries of his children, and pour out a blessing upon us. We also do some mission work around here. The call comes in from different places, "Come over and help us," and we intend to answer every call. Dear brethren and sisters in the ministry, do not keep running to these old churches that have so much preaching, but get out where they have not heard the glad news that Jesus is coming. Yours in hope. G. G. HAYNES.

HOOSICK VALLEY CONFERENCE.

Brethren and Sisters:—This Conference, which is to convene with the A. C. Church at Hebron, N. Y., Jan. 19th, will be our first Quarterly Meeting of the present Conference year. We hope it will be a feast of fat things, and a great blessing to the church at Hebron, and to each church within the bounds of the Conference; and a long pull, a strong pull, and a pull altogether, with the Lord's blessing will make it such. Let us arise and put on the beautiful garments of salvation, and clad in the gospel armor, go forth to meet the foe.

These conference meetings may be and ought to be seasons of refreshing, foretastes of coming glory, occasions for the putting on of more strength. Come from the vale and mountain, the meadow and the plain, from city, village, and hamlet. Let us mingle our voices in prayer and praise, and by kindly greetings and earnest sermons and exhortations, let us help each other along in the way. Our heavenly Bridegroom is soon coming to claim his bride. Will he find us watching and waiting, our lamps trimmed and burning, our garments pure and spotless, washed in the blood of the Lamb? Our friends in Hebron will do everything in their power to entertain comfortably and pleasantly all that may attend. (See notice in another column.)

OUR WHEREABOUTS.

BY H. H. BROWN.

Bro. Stockman:—In following duty's call we find ourself led away from our own native State, New York, to new fields and new scenes, where strange faces and strange voices greet us, and where like one of old we hear the cry, "Come over and help us." We dare not pass the call by, but heed it, therefore we are here in Franconia, N. H., to labor for the Lord. If we had known the greatness of the task before us, we should have shrunk from its burdens; but we are satisfied that we came here under the divine leading, and therefore dare not now shrink from the labor. We have therefore accepted the call as pastor of the church here for a short time, and now enter upon our labor as an experiment, to see what can be done to honor the cause of the Master, by bringing into line the divided ranks, and uniting the scattered workers.

We ask the prayers of God's people everywhere, that our work may be successful in strengthening the things that remain to the glory of God, in the conversion of sinners and the building up of the church. May God help us, as his people, to be true workers together till he come. Yours in Christ.

SECULAR NEWS.

FOREIGN.

LONDON, Nov. 28. An explosion occurred in the Aberrant colliery, Aberdare, this morning. It is reported that there were 360 men in the mine at the time, but that 220 have been got out during the day through an old working. The others are still entombed, and there are hopes that all may yet be saved.

LONDON, Nov. 28. A school in the village of Werchobistritzkioi, Russia, was burned a few nights ago. A large number of girls were sleeping on the upper floors when the fire broke out. Twenty-four of them escaped by jumping from the windows, but sixteen others, who were afraid to jump, were burned to death. A number of boys who were sleeping on the ground floor escaped.

BERLIN, Dec. 6. Dr. Sonmerbrod of the Breslau University, an eminent laryngologist, lectured today on the case of the crown prince. He is inclined to the conclusion that it is a case of simple perichondritis, with an abscess formation, and not of a cancerous nature, though some difficulty is likely to be presented in the extrusion of several pieces of dead cartilage. He said the prospects of the prince's recovery were hopeful.

A San Remo dispatch says the crown prince's voice is regaining its strength, though it is still hoarse. This afternoon he walked through San Remo.

PARIS, Dec. 6. President Sadi-Carnot, in an interview with M. Clemenceau, to-day insisted upon the necessity of a union of all the Republicans in the chambers; first, to show foreigners that Republicans can agree, and, second, in order that they may vote an honest and sincere budget. M. Clemenceau fully endorsed the President's view. The accord between President Sadi-Carnot and M. Clemenceau is regarded as a good omen of the future of the republic. The President to-day received M. Ribot and other leading politicians.

DOMESTIC.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Dec. 8. Anderson K. Hayward of Denver, who arrived here this morning, said to a reporter: "I have just passed over both the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe and the Kansas Pacific, and witnessed some very peculiar scenes along the roads. Throughout eastern Colorado and western Kansas a coal famine prevails, and the towns and farmers are almost entirely out of fuel. The country is entirely treeless, and unless coal can be obtained, the people are obliged to go without fire. The principal, in fact almost the only, source of supply for the region referred to are the Colorado coal fields, especially those near Canon City. The local dealers failed to lay in a sufficient supply during the summer, and when the cold weather commenced the demand far exceeded the supply. The Canon City mines are working double time, but still are unable to fill the orders that pour in.

New and Complete BIBLE COMMENTARY,

Critical, Explanatory, and Practical.

We present this work to our Christian readers with the conviction that it will be welcomed as a most valuable addition to the Biblical literature of the day, and will be found to possess advantages over any other similar work, in the following important particulars:

6000 YEARS OF GENERAL HISTORY
made easy to remember by
ADAMS' HISTORICAL CHART.

ON ROLLERS, linen-mounted, entire, adapted for attachment to Wall or Blackboard. $15.00.

PORTFOLIO FORM, in half binding, the Chart linen-mounted, and folded to leaf as a book, capable of extension. $15.00.

BOOK FORM, in cloth, the Chart paper-mounted, folded and bound, not extended. $10.00.

The above to be sent by express.

The object of Adams' Chart is to Picture History; to so arrange and tabulate the subjects of history that Men, Events and Nations may be located in time, by being seen in their positions on the Chart, as the School Atlas locates places; to enable the reader to readily ascertain the contemporaneous events of the whole world, decade by decade, and century by century, throughout all historic time, by simply tracing the dated line across the face of the Chart. The march of fifty-nine centuries is delineated, and the great transactions of the world—national, civil, military, religious, maratime, architectural, inventive and literary—with the advent of great men, all are pictorially represented in their time relations, so that an accurate outline of history may be rapidly and easily acquired.

A Circular giving full information will be sent free on application.

THE ANNUAL P. Q., NOR. VT. AND NOR. N. H. CONFERENCE.

The next session of this Conference will convene on Tuesday, JAN. 3, 1888, at 10 o'clock A. M., and continue daily and over the Sabbath, JAN. 8.

The churches are earnestly requested to provide their delegates with certificates, and to see that their proper quota of delegates is elected. Each church is entitled to one delegate, and two for twenty and not above thirty, and three for thirty and not above forty, and four for all above forty members. And one delegate can be empowered to cast the ballots of all whom the church is entitled to send. These delegates must all be communed, lay delegates, not preachers.

Let there be also sent, with the delegates, written statements of the number of members in churches, number in Sabbath Schools, and amounts of money raised for different purposes during the year. It is expected that all candidates for license to preach will bring with them recommendations from churches of which they are members, as each can easily be connected with some church, and come regularly recommended. Let all preachers remember that they are to each pay into the Conference treasury one dollar at the Conference session, and let everybody else feel that all the money the Conference can get for local and foreign mission work is needed. Then, above all, let there be an especial effort on the part of all to attend this Conference, and let preachers especially arrange to spend the whole time of the session and over the Sabbath.

C. P. DOW, President.

ROMANISM UNMASKED.
Its Revelations are Terrible Indictments of Popery.

FIFTY YEARS IN THE CHURCH OF ROME.
BY FATHER CHINIQUY.

Truly vivid, fascinating, and tragic. No history like it since Luther.

There is no book upon the Romish controversy so comprehensive as this. It is a complete picture of the inner workings, aims and objects of Popery. It is from the experience of a living witness, and challenges contradiction. It is a large but very valuable work, and is fast becoming a standard authority. No lover of his country should remain ignorant of its contents. A handsome volume of 832 pages, printed on clear type, on fine tinted paper. It is bound in strong cloth, marbled edges, and gilt stamp on side and back. Contains two portraits (one representing him in priestly robes) of the venerable Author.

Regular price, $3.50. Reduced to 2.50. Postage 25 cts. extra when sent by mail.

THE PRIEST, THE WOMAN, AND THE CONFESSIONAL.
Terrible, but True Revelations.
BY FATHER CHINIQUY.

To understand the evil results which arise from the practice of Auricular Confession, it is necessary that the testimony of a reliable witness be given. Such is that of the author, who held prominent positions in the priesthood for many years. The book he had a mission for good, and has awakened a desire amongst all classes of the people to unearth the iniquities and abominations connected with this doctrine, and hold them up to the light of day, that the people may see that there is but One to whom we must confess, and he is not a Romish priest.

Over 30,000 copies have been sold in this country, and the book has been translated into many languages, and is having an enormous sale. 296 pages 8vo, with portrait of the Author.

Regular price $1.00. Reduced to 75 cts. Postage 10 cts. extra when sent by mail.

ROMANISM, THE DANGER AHEAD.
The Reason why a good Roman Catholic cannot be a good citizen of this Republic.
BY A. J. GROVER.

In this pamphlet of over a hundred pages the writer has given to the people of America statements of facts and figures which they ought to know [illegible] Reduced to 25 cts. postpaid. Sold at the Crisis Office.

WHEN?

BY M. E. SNOW.

O Saviour, must it be
That sin shall always last?
Shall this earth's future be
As wicked as its past?

Doth not the Bible say,
The just secure shall stand,
While wicked men shall be cut off
And rooted from the land?

That there'll be "no more curse,"
And "all the earth shall be Filled with the glory of the Lord,
As waters fill the sea"?

When shall the new age dawn
When peace on earth shall dwell,
When deserts shall like Eden bloom?
Doth not the good book tell?

O Lord, when wilt thou make
The earth thy dwelling place,
When "sun and moon shall be ashamed"
Before thy glorious face?

Is Daniel's book unsealed,
And is the time at hand
When thou shalt set thy kingdom up
Which evermore shall stand?

O, "what shall be the signs"
When all these things shall be?
And have those signs yet come to pass,
Like buds upon the tree?

How long, "O Lord, how long
Shall that blest hour delay?
Fly swiftly round, ye wheels of time,
And bring the crowning day?"

THE ARREST AND TRIAL OF JESUS.

The Albany Law Journal recently published an interesting and well-written article, evidently from the pen of a lawyer, on "The Arrest and Trial of Jesus," based upon the facts as set forth in the gospel narrative. A somewhat similar discussion is contained in "Greenleaf's Testimony of the Evangelists," p. 520.

The charge upon which Jesus was arrested, and immediately brought before the Jewish Sanhedrim for trial, was that of blasphemy as defined by the laws of Moses; and this offense, as thus defined, was committed when a merely human being, whether a prophet or not, arrogated to himself attributes and prerogatives which belong to God only. Such arrogation made him a blasphemer and subjected him to the penalty of death.

Nothing can be clearer than that Jesus of Nazareth, while appearing "in fashion as a man," and never disclaiming his humanity, did, nevertheless, not only during his public ministry, but also in the presence of the Jewish Sanhedrim, assume to be a divine person in the most absolute sense. He was so understood, and he knew that he was so understood. The apostles who preached the doctrine of his divinity did not invent this doctrine, but derived it in the first instance from him. The doctrine was a part of his own testimony concerning himself.

Was Jesus, then, legally a blasphemer? If we regard him simply as a man, a Jewish citizen, subject to the laws of Moses, this question must be answered in the affirmative. There is, upon this supposition, no escape from such an answer. If, however, he was really divine, as well as human, then the answer is in the negative. Being divine, the Mosaic statute against blasphemy had no application to him, since it applied [illegible] and not to one who was really divine, even though he might also be human. The charge of blasphemy against Jesus turns upon the question whether he was what he declared himself to be. The fault of the Jews did not consist in their zeal for the law against blasphemy, but in their utter and awful failure to appreciate the evidence by which Jesus proved himself to be a divine person, committing no offense when he assumed to be such, and spake as if he were such. He himself places their fault just at this point, and so did his apostles. They ignorantly, in the sense of persistent unbelief, though without excuse, murdered the Prince of Life.

The Jewish Sanhedrim had no legal power to inflict the death penalty; and hence, although they had pronounced Jesus guilty of death they could not, under the Roman authority, carry their own judgment into execution. This led them to take the case to Pilate, not on the charge of blasphemy, of which he had no jurisdiction, but on the charge of sedition against the Roman authority, of which he had jurisdiction. Pilate, after hearing their accusations and freely conversing with Jesus himself, acquitted him of this charge, repeatedly saying, "I find no fault in him," and making strenuous efforts to avoid the sentence of death against him. What Pilate lacked was not a correct view of the case as presented to him, but the courage to resist the clamor of the Jews for the death of Jesus. He finally sentenced him to death, when he knew that there was no foundation for the sentence; and this on his part was an act of judicial murder," making him forever infamous.

So the case of Jesus appears in the gospel narrative which is the only source of our knowledge as to the facts. He was not guilty of blasphemy under the law of Moses, since he was divine as well as human, and, as such, had a right to assume the attributes and prerogatives of the Godhead. He was not guilty of any offense against the Roman authority, and Pilate repeatedly so declared. His death, considered as the act of men, and as procured by men, is the most awful tragedy of crime upon which the sun ever shone. That death, considered in relation to the purpose and appointment of God, and to the object for which Christ came into this world and the results ensuing therefrom, is the most important event that ever occurred on earth, perhaps the most important that ever occurred in the universe. What the Jews intended is one thing, and what God intended is quite another and different thing. Malignant destruction was their purpose. A glorious salvation for a guilty race was God's purpose. Paul's statement to the Corinthians gives us God's purpose: "For I delivered unto you first of all that which I also received, how that Christ died for our sins according to the Scriptures."—Independent.

WORDS have sometimes a meaning and force not explained in the dictionaries; and as we speak so we are inclined to act. Sooner or later our words will influence us according to their true significance, and we cannot be too careful how we use them. Words are powerful things, powerful for both good and evil, and by them are we to be justified, and by them we are to be condemned.—Ex.

1 COR. 12: 28.

BY R. B. SEVEY.

"And God hath set some in the church."

Whatever arrangement or disposition God may see fit to make of us will be for our best good, however humbling it may be to our natures. We are apt to look on things only as pertaining to this life, while he is choosing for us the best way that will bring us through this world of sin and death, and introduce us into that world of life eternal. He is taking out a people that will be fitted for that world, and in doing so he has a church, a body of believers, composed of different gifts and capabilities, and sets them in the church in order, as it pleases him. And when thus set, all the members work in harmony, so there will be no division in the body.

Thus he uses the beautiful figures of the members of our bodies to enforce this union and harmony existing between the different members which compose the church, Jesus being the head. We shall do well to remember that the body should be governed by the head. As Jesus is head, he is leader, and all the members are in perfect harmony with him to be set as it may suit him. If a hand is needed to help carry the burdens of the body and supply its wants, it is ready to do its part; and if the feet are to go on errands of mercy to the suffering ones, they are ready; and if one member suffers, all the members suffer with it, or if one member be honored, all the members rejoice with it.

God hath set some in the church; but may we not fear that too often men set the members in the church as it pleases them, and hence arise the divisions. It seems to me that if set by God all will be in perfect harmony as our members are in our body. The hand does not say it has no need of the feet, neither does the eye say it has no need of the ear; nay, those members of the body which seem to be more feeble are necessary, and those members of the body which we think to be less honorable, upon these we bestow more abundant honor. God tempers the body together, giving more abundant honor to that part which lacked.

He set some in the church. First, apostles; second, prophets; thirdly, teachers; after that miracles, then gifts of healings, helps, governments, diversities of tongues, all these are good helps, but they have been spoiled by trying to make teachers of them. We had better let them be where God has set them, and not lay hands suddenly on any man. Good helpers set in their places by God are better than preachers set by man. Let us find and keep our place in the body as it may please the Lord. If ever so humble, set by him, it will be right.

WHAT WILL SAVE JUDAISM?

BY M. C. MARSHALL.

Every now and then we are told that the destiny of the human family depends on the return of the Jews to Palestine, under a strong religious adherence to the old faith, and an effort is frequently made to create statistics to prove the same. But the Rothchild argument has been abandoned by the most prudent of those holding such views. The following article will not go to encourage those looking for the Jews' return as [illegible] not go back, I hardly see how their position can be sustained, shorn of its strength. Dr. Silverman, a very able and eloquent Rabbi, states:

"The piety and virtue of our fathers and mothers have established the pure family life, the high intellectual standard of Israel, and the lofty sense of charity prevalent among the Israelites. Our fathers instituted lodges, established asylums for the orphans, the widows, the sick, the aged and infirm. Our fathers organized congregations, built synagogues, founded schools and academies. That was Judaism in thought, feeling and action. But can we rest on these laurels? Will our support to charitable institutions be enough to save our religion? The old people are passing away, and with them their piety and virtue. Materialism is engrossing our attention to-day and gradually weaning our hearts from the old cause. All the ideals of Judaism are falling to pieces, crumbling to the dust. Our charities will soon be the only boast left us; and when even they are attributed to other causes than the Jewish heart—when they are attributed to humanity's call or ethical culture, where will be then thy tents, O Jacob, and the glory of thy house, O God?

"What will save Judaism? Our prophets, our sages, our rabbis, or preachers, or lecturers? Never—if their complaints are founded in fact. The door of the synagogue is open. The choir sings its beautiful strain. The leader puts his whole soul into the prayers. The preacher emphasizes the Word of God, and admonishes and entreats. But who heeds? Who cares for it? Who listens? Who obeys? All is fruitless without willing ears and willing hearts to heed. What shall I say of a house divided against itself?"

MY PURPOSE AND HOPE.

BY N. A. HITCHCOCK.

I purpose, together with my wife, to attend the yearly meeting already appointed to be held at Arena, Wis., commencing the 14th of December, and remain a few days. I remember well the breaking up of this old field. Although aged, if our health remains as at present, with the blessing of our Father in heaven, we shall be there.

Our hope is that it will be one of the most general gatherings of ministers and lay brethren and sisters that we have ever seen in the State. I have traveled almost all over the State since 1846, when we landed at Mile Creek from the East. How glad we shall be to meet many of these former acquaintances of the Lord's family for consultation and earnest labor. The events of the present hour demand it. Let not drowsiness or indifference keep us away.

My own family is scattered in five different States, so we shall see none of them at this time; but we hope to see many of the dear saints here, most likely for the last time until the general gathering in the great day of gathering the scattered jewels of our Father. "They shall be mine in that day when I make up my jewels" (or prepare a peculiar or special treasure). Then saved, eternally saved, they will sing on the ransomed heights of Zion, living, singing, shining, as the brightness of the firmament, shouting the triumph of the cross and victory of six thousand years' war with sin and the devil.

I long to be there with the triumphant army wearing the crown and bearing the palm. The jewels will all be there, no more to be scattered. The last battle is fought, the victory won, the spoil divided. "Therefore will I divide him a portion with the great, and he shall divide the spoil with the strong." Isa. 53: 12. "I will make him my first born, higher than the kings of the earth, and I will beat down his foes before his face." Ps. 89. "He shall have dominion (or title) also from sea to sea, and from the rivers unto the ends of the earth. He shall come down like rain upon the mown grass; as showers that water the earth." Ps. 72: 6. See also 2 Sam. 23: 1-4.

What an army of crown-wearers, moving in princely splendor, walking with our victorious King in white, by him counted worthy. Rev. 3: 12. Yes, all praise to our adorable Father and God for his favor, mercy and truth. Yes, walking, moving and dwelling on terra firma, the first dominion. Micah 4: 8—"Thou, O tower of the flock, the stronghold of the daughter of Zion, unto thee shall it come, even the first dominion." Not under the blight of the curse; every vestige of sin's stain and taint removed, all things made new, firm as the rock of eternal ages. "For the Lord knoweth the days of the upright; and their inheritance shall be forever." Ps. 37: 18.

All is now gained or lost forever by you and me: which? A pilgrim, also a companion of all who fear God and keep his word.

CONFERENCE REPORT.

The Quarterly Meeting held at Mound Valley School-house, Crawford Co., Kan., Dis. No. 4, Nov. 11th, 1887, opened with singing and prayer. Ministers present: R. F. Peak, L. C. Rich, D. Webster. The President being absent, Bro. Webster was chosen Chairman. Bro. R. F. Peak was chosen Secretary pro tem. The business committee appointed by the Chair were: R. F. Peak, L. T. Clark, Isaac Shireman. Minutes of the last Quarterly Conference read and approved. Report of ministers: Bro. Rich reports having preached about forty times since last Quarterly Meeting in May; Bro. Peak labored what he could during the summer, has seen blessed results. Bro. Tener preached some in his own neighborhood, and is willing to do all he can, God helping him. Bro. Webster reports having labored considerable with some success.

Financial committee reported the following, which was accepted and adopted by the Conference: Resolved, that we as a people need a more efficient method of united evangelical work than has hitherto characterized us as a people. The truths which make and constitute us a distinct body of Christians are languishing for want of financial support. We ought to support an evangelist in this district for the purpose of presenting to the people the great truths we love and profess to believe. To accomplish this end, we recommend that a committee of one or more be appointed by the President of this Conference in each church throughout the bounds of this evangelical district, and further, that in isolated neighborhoods where these truths are held by one or more that they also be authorized and urged to assist in united effort by their means and influence to accomplish this one end, viz., The promulgation and dissemination of the gospel of the kingdom. We furthermore recommend that all donations to this work be made and sent in quarterly installments, that your evangelist may keep at work all the time, and that the evangelist be instructed to communicate with said committee as to where said means may be expended to the best advantage within said district.

Voted, that Bro. Tener be granted license to preach the gospel. Eld. D. Webster was elected President of Conference in place of Bro. H. H. Klock, who has moved to Colorado. Bro. R. F. Peak was elected district evangelist. Committee appointed on finance, as above suggested: Liberty Church, Brn. O. P. Weddle, L. Tener, F. Owens, J. Osborne. Conference adjourned.

This Conference meeting was carried on in the spirit of the Master, and a good interest was maintained throughout the meeting, which held over two Sundays. Four who had never before confessed Christ were constrained to follow him, and put on Christ by baptism. Eleven new members were added to the Mound Valley Church, which now has over seventy members, with prospect of more additions soon.

REPORT OF QUARTERLY MEETING.

The Quarterly Meeting of the No. Illinois A. C. Conference convened at Amboy, as appointed, Nov. 17th. Ministers present: C. W. Smith, D. S. Clark, E. S. Levi, L. H. Davis, Geo. De Beer, U. B. Welton and J. A. Smith. A. Armour, absent on account of sickness, reported by letter, also sending an essay relative to the signs of our times, and a readiness to meet a soon coming Lord. Philip Lindner of Sheffield was present as a delegate from the church at Mineral. There were no letters from churches presented.

Elds. J. Nelson Potter, Geo. W. Turner and A. S. Calkins, members of other Conferences, were present and rendered efficient aid, both in counsel and in preaching the Word. Uriah C. Roe, recently of the M. E. Church of Franklin Grove, after stating his faith in conditional immortality and the soon coming of the Lord Jesus, and showing proper credentials as to his character, was, with Geo. W. Turner, received into ministerial fellowship of this Conference.

The Treasurer was ordered to pay D. S. Clark $57.41, the balance due him for work ordered by this Conference. Geo. W. Turner was voted $10 to aid him in his mission work in Chicago.

J. A. Smith, Geo. De Beer and D. S. Clark were appointed to preach monthly at Alton, Dekalb, Hinkley, Mineral, Minooka, and Rutland, and at Amboy and Aurora if desired, the time to be appointed by them as most suitable to these places, and a report be made at the next session of Conference of their work, receipts and expenditures, and also the standing of these churches. By request of the pastor of the Baptist church—Eld. Jones—their pulpit was supplied on Sunday by A. S. Calkins and Geo. De Beer.

The attendance from abroad was not what was desired, and owing to the state of the weather our audiences were small.

IN GOD WE TRUST.

BY LUCY D. HARRINGTON.

In God we trust in darkest hour,
When light is hid from view;
Though threat'ning clouds still darkly lower,
And veil our Heaven's clear blue,
Each cloud is silver-lined and bright,
Its beauty yet shall greet our sight.

CHO.—We fear no more, but joyous sing,—
In God we trust, in God we trust;"
We soar on Faith's triumphant wing,—
"In God we trust, in God we trust."

The storm may break in fury wild,
And spend its fiercest strength;
Each trembling, trusting, loving child
Shall stronger grow at length.
Life's chilling storms oft wax and wane,
Yet blessings prove, for God doth reign.

Deep calleth unto deep, O Lord,
The waves almost o'erwhelm;
Sweet comfort doth thy word afford,
Our Saviour guides the helm.
His voice so sweet bids, "Peace, be still,"
And mountain waves obey his will.

Faith stronger grows in midnight hour,
And waits for dawn of day;
Dark unbelief shall lose its power,
And shadows flee away.
The angry waves shall cease to be,
For Jesus walks the raging sea.

THE CALM BEFORE THE STORM.

The European situation may be summed up in this expression, the calm that precedes the storm. In the face of a most dangerous and painful uncertainty, Paris on the surface is preternaturally calm. Yet no one knows what a day may bring forth, or who is to take the place of the placid old man whose trembling hand still holds the scepter representing the mere shadow of executive power, and whose decrepit personality is a fitting representative of a government republican only in name.

All that can with truth be said of the French situation is what we have all along represented it—a political organization in which every department and function thereof has been usurped by the parliament. The chamber not only makes laws but seeks to be their judicial and executive exponent. It makes and unmakes presidents. Without our process of impeachment it condemns to private life the head of the state, in whose election or deposition the people have no hand or part whatever.

Such a political organization as that now presented by the government of France may be exceedingly Frenchy, still it is not by any means what would, in the United States and Great Britain, be called good republican form. In other states of continental Europe the political situation, despite Lord Salisbury's late optimistic predictions, is too preternaturally calm to last. Russia is massing troops on the frontiers of Austria and Germany. The last-named power is increasing her armaments, calling for immense sums of money for the mobilization of her last line of defense—the landsturm—and warning her colossal neighbor of the north that an invasion of her ally's territory is an invasion of her own. At the same time every fiscal move she makes, whether it be an increased tax on imported agricultural products or an attempt to drive Russian securities out of the empire, is a blow aimed at Russian power and pride. If such acts as these are not ominous of coming trouble on the part of the two most powerful military nations on the globe then one never can forecast the future by the conditions of the present.

In England political parties are in a condition of chaos. The British premier in esse is represented as far from being in touch with his own party. The British premier in posse is said to be in no better plight as respects his. Mr. Parnell, under an alias, has hidden himself not only from public view but from the cognizance of even the other chiefs of the Irish parliamentary section. And so, not only great states but parties, factions, and the head-centers thereof are all waiting for an ominous call to arms, which, like a thief in the night, may at any moment burst on the historical continent of the old world.—Sel.

A STRONG CHURCH.—"Is it a strong congregation?" asked a man respecting a body of worshipers. "Yes," was the reply. "How many members are there?" "Seventy-six." "Seventy-six! Are they so very wealthy?" "No, they are poor." "How, then, do you say it is a strong church?" "Because," said the gentleman, "they are earnest, devoted, at peace, loving each other and striving together to do the Master's work. Such a congregation is strong, whether composed of five or five hundred members."—Ex.

WHEN a man has no desire but to speak plain truth, he may say a great deal in a very narrow space.

J. C. & S. E. SMITH.

Bro. Stockman:—We sorely regret to announce that our worthy brother, Eld. J. C. Smith, and his no less faithful Christian wife and fellow-laborer, have left Oregon and returned to the Atlantic coast, perhaps, and we hope, temporarily only, but it may be permanently. That will depend upon what they esteem to be the demand of duty. We owe it to them to say that a more faithful and devoted couple cannot be found to labor anywhere in the Master's vineyard. There are but few of his servants who have borne with such courageous cheerfulness so many privations and so much of the hardship of pioneer missionary labor for the past several years as have these two.

Through rain and storm, and over ice and snow, they have pushed their travels and prosecuted their work for the salvation of the perishing, and the enlightenment of God's people concerning the important truths so dear to them and to us, with a patient perseverance and unselfish devotion which we believe will assuredly bring to them both an "exceeding great reward," when they shall present the fruit of their labor before the Lord in the soon coming harvest time. We follow them wherever they may go with our love and our prayers, and hope ere long to meet with them at the feet of Him whom we mutually delight to adore.

COUCH. In Concord, N. H., Nov. 23, 1887, my only son, Benjamin Warren Couch, aged 50 years and three months.

Warren was converted to the faith and obedience of the gospel at the age of fifteen, and offered devout prayers at the family altar daily, and gave faithful testimony in the social meeting. He fully embraced the doctrines taught by us, and held them firmly, theoretically, until the day of his death. But when he reached a riper age, and entered upon the responsible duties of life, and the wave of worldly influence struck him, his cable broke from his anchor, and he drifted from Christ and salvation into extensive business, which filled his heart with worldliness and his mind with bright prospects of earthly glory amid the blighting of the curse and the shafts of death. But God in his infinite mercy, in answer to many prayers, rent the veil which hid from him the woeful condition of this world, and the blissful beatitudes of the world to come, so that with deep penitence of heart he was enabled to renew his covenant with God, and with expressions of deep regret for wasted golden opportunities for serving Him who gave his life to save him, he once more obtained a living faith and a joyful hope. This hope wonderfully cheered the dear one as he sank under the dark wave which took him from our arms and hid him from our sight for a "little while."

Rest, my son, from the battles of this mortal life, rest from the buffetings of a wily foe and the pains of wasting disease. We wait the trump of God to call us to a blissful reunion. Amen.

J. COUCH.

MOODY. In Lowell, Mass., Oct. 27, 1887, Bro. Job Moody, aged 75 years.

Bro. Moody had been a sincere devoted Christian for nearly sixty years. The first note of the heavenly message which announced speedy redemption from the woes of the curse and the glorious resurrection of the holy dead at the matchless event of Christ's appearing, filled his soul with joy which ceased not till death drew the curtain of night around him and he closed his eyes in the dreamless sleep. He rests where no evil can disturb him and no foe can harm him, and where the sting of death can no more reach him. He grasped the honor of sanctified manhood, and manifested the nobility of a true christian life. Like a faithful soldier he fell at his post. He left a loving christian wife sitting lonely under the weeds of widowhood, waiting for the dawning and the reunion of wedded hearts which will throb with the pulsation of life everlasting. His children have lost a kind father's love and prayers. May God bless the family.

The church in Lowell will greatly miss his faithful and earnest prayers and testimony. God hasten the morn of resurrection.

J. COUCH.

For many years we have been intimately acquainted with our dear brother and his family, and although a man of few words, he was one of sterling worth and character. For a number of years he served the city of Camden as letter-carrier, and was highly esteemed and respected by all who knew him, and was only discharged from that office by reason of age and failing health, which disabled him longer to fill the position. He loved God and the Bible, and died in the full assurance of eternal life when the Life-giver comes. His house was often opened for cottage prayer-meetings in which he was greatly interested. He leaves a beloved Christian wife, with whom he had lived fifty-one years, two sons, and a large number of other relatives and friends, by whom he will be greatly missed and lamented. Funeral services were conducted by Eld. G. W. Sederquist and the writer, and were largely attended by sympathizing friends.

Another aged pilgrim rests
From all his toil and care;
He'd lived his threescore years and ten,
Allotted to us here.
He sweetly sleeps in Jesus now,
But it will not be long;
For he'll awaken very soon,
And sing the victor's song.

H. T. TAYLOR.

BENNETT. In Dover, N. H., Oct. 24, 1887, of paralysis of the brain, Sr. Amanda M. Bennett, aged 71 years.

It was with sadness we learned of the death of our dear sister in Christ, whose heart and home were ever open to receive us. Her spirit and deeds of love will not be forgotten by us, and others to whom she administered. Her record is on high, while she sleeps and waits with the church of Christ for promised redemption. The coming kingdom and resurrection of the dead were themes of heart interest to her. A husband, son, two brothers, and a sister are left to deeply feel their loss. May the comforts of grace be theirs here, and a reunion in the kingdom to come, is the prayer of the writer. The funeral services were attended by Rev. Mr. Waldron of Dover, N. H.

W. M. HARMON.

EVANS. In Groton, Vt., Sept 29th, 1887, Harley E. Evans, son of Eld. J. H. Evans, aged nearly 23 years.

He called upon the Lord in his last sickness for forgiveness, and expressed a hope of being saved. Very patient and uncomplaining in his brief but severe illness, and sincere in seeking the only hope left him, we trust it is well with him. But our hearts are sad and home lonely, and we miss the faces of the dear ones gone. O, when will the last enemy, death, be destroyed. Funeral attended by Eld. George E. Brown.

H. M. EVANS.

OLMSTEAD. In Springfield, Mass., Nov. 1st, 1887, Ralph Lester, youngest son of L. N. and Eliza A. Olmstead, aged fifteen years and two months.

Lester was in all senses of the word a good boy by nature. But at the last campmeeting at Springfield he sought and found the Lord, and died in rejoicing hope of life when Jesus comes. Amiable in health, patient in sickness, and happy in saving grace in the hour of death, the dear boy lived, and suffered, and died, and sleeps in Jesus, waiting, oh, how long? Father, mother, brother, sister, and many friends mourn the early death of this young disciple of the Lord Jesus, and are waiting for the sun of the eternal day to clear up the death mists that have settled down upon our poor race. The funeral services were conducted by the writer, assisted by Eld. F. H. Burbank.

G. H. WALLACE.

BEECHER. In Groton, Vt., July 23d, 1887, at the residence of her father, Eld. John H. Evans, of consumption, Vesta E. Beecher, aged 19 years, 1 month, 14 days.

Thus early in life she was cut down by cruel death, leaving one little boy motherless. But she was fully resigned, and said while dying, "Thy will, O Father, be done." Thus sweetly trusting in Jesus she fell asleep to await the glad awakening to immortality in a deathless land, which she believed was soon to be realized. Funeral service by Eld. George E. Brown.

H. M. EVANS.

SINNING.

BY MRS. R. G. DINSMORE.

We are admonished not to sin, but "if any man sin, we have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous." God does not look upon sin with the least degree of allowance. Jesus has said, "My grace is sufficient for thee." Then where is the necessity for sinning? But if we do get overcome, how blessed that we have an advocate, tempted in all points as we are, yet without sin. "If we confess our sins he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness." Praise his dear name. Let us not make any provision for the flesh to fulfil the lusts thereof. "Let us cleanse ourselves from all filthiness of the flesh and spirit, perfecting holiness in the fear of God, for without holiness no man shall see the Lord."

Dear brethren and sisters, let us fear lest a promise being left us of entering into his rest, any of us should come short of it. He has given us the privilege of having an abundant entrance into the everlasting kingdom so soon to be given to his dear children. May we ask the Lord to help us to understand ourselves and our true position before him, that he may claim us as his own when he comes.

FROM J. L. MUNDAY.

Bro. Stockman:—After my return home this evening from Green Creek, in Roan Co., I took the Crisis and sat down to read the cheering news and the bright hopes and prospects of the brethren and sisters in foreign lands; and I felt to express the words of John, "Behold, what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us."

Sr. Dammon's and Sr. Milliken's kind and touching words of their lonely condition, and old age, made me shed tears of joy and grief. I was sorry for them in their bereavements, and I was made glad to hear of their bright hopes and prospects of a future life when Jesus comes, when the brethren and sisters from the east and from the west, from the north and from the south, will be gathered into the kingdom of the great King, where old age and bereavements and disappointments can never come.

Pray for me and the little flock at Pleasant Grove, here in Jackson Co., West Va. I am blest, while in delicate health, by being surrounded with brothers and sisters of like [illegible] ing and also praying for the Lord's return to set up his kingdom under the whole heavens. I am poor now, but we will all be rich when Jesus comes, if faithful.

THE PAWNBROKER'S WINDOW.

There is more philosophy of life to be learned at a pawnbroker's window than in all the libraries of the world. The maxims and dogmas which wise men have chronicled, disturb the mind for a moment as the breeze ruffles the surface of the deep, still stream and pass away; but there is something in the melancholy grouping of a pawnbroker's window, which, like a record of ruin, sinks into the heart. The household goods, the cherished relics, the sacred possessions affection bestowed, or eyes now closed in death had once looked upon as their own, are here, as it were, profaned; the associations of dear old times are here violated; the family hearth is here outraged; the ties of love, kindred, rank, all that the heart clings to, are broken. It is a sad picture, for, in spite of the glittering show, its associations are sombre.

There hangs the watch, the old chased repeater, that hung above the head of a dying parent when bestowing his trembling blessing on the poor outcast who parted with it for daily bread; the widow's wedding ring is there, the last and dearest of all her possessions; the trinket, the pledge of love of one now dead, the only relic of the heart's fondest memories; silver that graced the holiday feast; the gilt-framed miniature that used to hang over the quiet mantel; the flute, the favorite instrument of a dear son, surrendered by a starving mother to procure food for the remaining offspring; the locket that held a father's hair; or, gloomier still, the dress, the very covering of the poor, is there, waving like a flag of wretchedness and misery. It is a strange, sad sight. To those who feel aright, there are more touching memorials to be seen in a pawnbroker's window than in all the monuments in Westminster Abbey.—Mrs. C. B. Wilson, in Christian Standard.

HOW IT IS READ.

The deplorable readiness with which many Christians shirk personal work with souls reminds me of a passing remark I heard from a somewhat eccentric preacher. In giving a running commentary on a portion of 1 Cor.: 15, when he came to the last verse he read: "Therefore, my beloved brethren, be ye steadfast, unmovable, always avoiding the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labor is not in vain in the Lord;" and then added, "Oh, it is not 'always avoiding,' but 'always abounding in' the work of the Lord; but really it is read 'avoiding' by so many Christians, if we may judge by their lives, that I almost insensibly fell into the mistake of reading it so." And, indeed, when I call from my own experience how fertile many Christians are in expedients for "avoiding the work of the Lord, I am amazed. They will get over it, or under it, or around it, or they will otherwise avoid it, as if the chief end of Christianity was to serve Christ as little as possible.—Sel.

IT TAKES a long time to get at the full meaning of a simple passage of God's Word; and a sevenfold reading of any one passage is not too much for a wise man, nor yet for a simple-hearted child.

A DISCHARGED NURSE.

In a recent address Rev. Sam Jones said: "God save me and save you from the fatal mistake of thinking that I can do anything. The most severe tests and trials of an evangelist result from the fact that people will depend on him. Quit looking to me. Look to God. The good work of God is preceding any effort of yours. God is working ahead of us. Let us follow close after God and work in earnest. Just a few years ago, one morning in our family room, I was sitting reading just after breakfast. There was a little nurse girl there about sixteen years of age, and I heard my wife say to her, 'Sally, you may go this morning, and tell your mother I don't want you any more.' I read along a minute or two and then I looked. The girl was standing with the big tears running down her cheeks. She looked at my wife and said, 'Mrs. Jones,' and the lips began to quiver, 'Mrs. Jones, please, ma'am, don't turn me off. I know I'm the poorest servant you ever had, but let me stay with you and I'll try and do better.' I got in to beg for the poor girl just as hard as I could, and I thought to myself, if the Lord should come down here and say, 'You may go; I don't want you any longer,' I would do just like that poor girl—I would fall down at his feet and say, 'Please, Lord, don't turn me off; I know I'm the poorest servant you ever had; but please, Lord, I'll try to do better.' Let me live and die in God's service. But God won't turn you off. Go to work; let's do what we can for the good of our fellow men.—Sel.

TEMPERANCE.

THE CURSE OF THE LAND.

In every age of the world, the demon of the wine-cup has bewitched its victims, and led them from one stage of degradation to another, until at last it has landed them in the midst of pauperism, dishonor, and woe. By its diabolical devices it has succeeded in entrenching itself behind the mighty bulwark of the law, and there, screened from the mighty army of the great and the good, who would, if possible, wrest the scepter of power [illegible] has continued to scatter destruction, agony, and death broadcast through the land. Youth in its beauty, manhood in its strength, old age in its weakness, and even beautiful womanhood in its chastity, have each and all been forced to place their richest treasures, their fondest hopes, their most ardent longings, and brightest possibilities, upon the altar of the rum god of perdition, only to see them engulfed in the distended maw of this monster of hell.

Wreathing itself about the homes of our people, it has by its deadly breath blighted the fairest flowers of intellect ever created by God to adorn the world with their beauty, and poisoned the very fountain of life with the sediment of death. O, ye legislators, entrusted with the welfare of the people, hearken, we implore you, to the prayers of the fathers and mothers and Christians of the land. Banish forever from this glorious nation the soul-destroying and death-dealing evil, and generations after generations will arise and call you blessed; and you will have the satisfaction of knowing that you have fulfilled you duty, and assisted to free this land from its curse, making it indeed and in truth, "The land of the free and the home of the brave."

A DRUNKARD'S PURCHASE.

A middle-aged man of considerable energy, who had been the slave for a long time of the intoxicating cup, was sitting in a saloon, considerably the worse for drink. He lifted up his eyes, and seeing a picture hanging on the wall, his curiosity led him to examine into the subject of it, and finding it was, "Christ's Own Redeemed," he called the liquor seller. Pointing to the picture, he asked, "What is that?" "Oh, it is just a picture to fill up and cover the wall with," was the reply. And the fisherman again pointing to the subject of it, said, "When you know that you are ruining the bodies and souls of your fellow-men all the week round, what right have you to hang such a picture as that on your wall?" The sense of this reproof was felt by the saloon-keeper, although it did come from the lips of a drunkard. Calling in a member of his family, he said, "Take down that picture at once, and put it away." The customer seeing it being removed, asked the owner, "Wud ye no' sell't?" (Would you not sell it?) The man named a price, which the customer gladly paid, and went away with his purchase rejoicing. That man has since given up the drink and come to the Lord, and it has been my privilege to see the veritable picture hanging above the redeemed man's fire-place.—English Paper.

THE LORD'S PRAYER AND LICENSE.—Think of praying, "Hallowed be thy name," and then voting to license the liquor traffic, which causes God's name to be continually blasphemed; "Thy kingdom come," and then voting for that which hinders the coming of his kingdom; "Thy will be done," and then voting that it shall not be done; "Lead us not into temptation," and then voting to place temptation in every one's path; "Deliver us from evil," and then voting for the greatest of evils, if only a little money may come to the city or town treasury; "Give us this day our daily bread," and voting to license that which takes bread from thousands of almost starving children.—Ex.

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

gymen in the city. Earnest prayers were offered; and in their extremity, a fleet of thirty ships from England appeared with provisions, which the enemy fought severely, but they reached the city, and saved the lives of the people; when the enemy left, and the siege was ended.

During the siege, the Roman Catholic besiegers sent word that if the city did not surrender by six o'clock P. M., July 1st, 1689, they would rob all the Protestants in the surrounding towns; but the besieged treated all such threats with contempt. On another occasion the Irish general declared he would demolish the town, if they did not surrender, and would study the most scienti- [illegible] to lengthen the misery and [illegible] he found obstinate.

[illegible] had a Gov. Lundy, who turned traitor, and but for the energetic actions of some young men, would have opened the gates to the Roman Catholics. This occurred Dec. 18th, 1689. This brings me to what I saw for the first time Monday evening; and that was the burning of an effigy. In this case, the effigy represented Gov. Lundy. A crowd was present, wild with excitement, especially when the frame containing the effigy fell to the ground in the flames, which took place just as I was passing. The whole scene presented the appearance of a Pagan festival. This practice of an annual burning of Gov. Lundy in effigy has been observed Dec. 18th, in the north of Ireland, ever since 1689.

As in other churches, so in Lisburn, when I came to show that the Scriptures plainly teach that "the kingdom of heaven" is to be set up on this earth, after the second coming of Christ, the people next inquire, Where are those who have died, if they have not yet gone to their reward? As soon as they begin to think for themselves, and compare scripture with scripture, they are surprised to find their doctrinal views so contrary to the plain teaching of the Bible. At first, they are completely confused, and hardly dare make a step towards the light, which almost dazzles them with its brightness.

About the last question presented at [illegible] was in relation to future punishment. The inquirer wished to know if I be[lieved in] eternal punishment. I assured [him] that I [illegible] Jesus. [illegible] Ans. [illegible] put into [illegible] would it end? Ans. When [illegible] If torment were the pun[ishment, when] would it begin? Ans. When [illegible] began. When would it end? [When] the suffering ceased. Suppose [the] punishment of the sinner is to be death, when would it begin? A minister answered, "When he is dead." How long will it continue? Ans. "Till he comes to life again." Suppose he never comes to life again, how long would be his punishment? Ans. "Eternal." When the people use their common sense, they will find the doctrine of the Bible is plain and reasonable, adapted to the comprehension of the common people.

There is pleasure in preaching a gospel which is in harmony with all the Bible, reason, facts, science, philosophy, and common sense; one that furnishes its possessor with an armor with which he can successfully meet all false systems of religion.

LETTER FROM THE MACEDONIAN MISSIONARIES.

DEC. 23D, 11.30 A. M.

Bro. Stockman and all the dear ones in Jesus, Greeting.—The mighty God who calms the great waters and raging storms is with us by his Spirit. All is well. We have felt as safe as on land, ever since our departure from the loved ones at East Boston. It was hard to say farewell to father and mother, brothers and sisters, and our own dear children, but he that is not willing to forsake all "is not worthy of me." We know that our dear ones will have good care, for they are left in the hands of Jesus and his children. God bless the dear ones that [saw] us aboard the steamer, and all interested in this last work of [illegible] troubled and boisterous as we have had them. We have scattered tracts and papers among the passengers and crew to-day, and gave the Captain Bro. Couch's work, on "Capital and Labor," and other important works. We have been requested to sing some of our sweet songs of Zion, that proclaim our faith and hope, founded on positive promises from the thus saith the Lord. So we can sing with the s[pirit] and the understanding also. Praise [the Lo]rd, for such sweet heavenly melodies, and my heart pulsates with longing desire for the time to come when we shall hear the song of Moses and the Lamb, from that unnumbered host that shall be gathered in the city of God.

Dec. 26th. Everything has passed off very quietly last night and to-day, and in our hearts the peace of God abides. We have our morning and evening services, calling upon the name of the Lord, with none to molest or say, why do you so. Each one of us watches for opportunities to present something that will be saving and salutary to those with whom we have conversed. We want everybody to know and hear the blessed news of Jesus' coming, to reign King of kings and Lord of lords. And when he comes, he will wipe out sin, the curse, the stain, and make this blighted world of ours his own fair world again. There will be no place in all the realm of heaven or earth or under the earth, for lost sinners to exist, and be perpetuated in sin and misery, through the unending ages of eternity. No, no! God will not perpetuate sin nor the sinner, "but the soul that sinneth it shall die." Christ was manifest to "destroy [not to perpetuate] the works of the devil." This morning we left the banks of Newfoundland. They extend out over four hundred miles into the sea, all covered with water. In certain seasons of the year, these banks are noted for extensive fishing-ground for fishers. Our journey thus far, the Captain says, has been one of the best that he has ever had at this season of the year.

Dec. 27th. This morning we reached the Gulf Stream, and have been sailing in its waters all day. The sea is not so rough, neither is it as cold. It has been cloudy all the time since we left Boston till to-day. The sun appeared this morning, and the clouds broke away. It has [been] a good [illegible] season [illegible]

Dec. 28th. [illegible] sea to encounter all day. [illegible] has been very strong from the [illegible] but not cold as in the States. We have traveled the past twenty-four hours only two hundred and eighty miles. Our little company have not felt so well to-day, but in the Lord Jehovah is everlasting strength, and in him we trust. On the upper deck, at 9 o'clock P. M. to-night, we met a sailor who wished to read. So we withheld not our hand, hoping that some seed cast upon the waters may return after many days.

Dec. 29th. For twenty-four hours we have been facing a very strong northeast wind, but not so cold as the northeast winds we have in the States. On account of these strong winds, we have not come so far by fifty miles as on other days. The sea is not so boisterous as one would expect, with such a velocity as the wind blew. The Captain says it is the best voyage thus far that he has had for twelve years, at this season of the year. We praise the Lord for the prosperity he is giving us. We have had a number of talks with the Captain and others, about the blessed hope. The Lord grant that some may take hold of it by faith, and believe on the Son of God, and have everlasting life. The Lord is giving us favor with the Captain and others. All praise be unto the Lord, for his mercy that endureth forever.

Dec. 30th. The wind has still continued blowing from the northeast, but not so hard as yesterday. The ocean has been remarkably calm; have seen two small vessels to-day. We have often spoken of the dear ones' prayers for our safety and good voyage, and that God would undergird the ship. Thus far the Lord has done it. All praise be to him.

the harvest is all gathered, you will rejoice together. And may those who are able and have the ability to thrust in the gospel sickle, go forth without flinching, that many sheaves may be gathered into the garner of God. All can do a little, and may that little, whatever it may be, be well done, for Jesus and his glory. To the work, to the work, my brethren, and God will give you sheaves with full grain and ripe. Praise the Lord, the harvest is almost here. Send in of your abundance, as the Lord hath prospered to Bro. Andrews, and it will be rightfully used to the glory of God and the salvation of the perishing.

This morning we sailed by Queenstown, Ire., and this afternoon we have been sailing up the Irish Channel and St. George's Channel, near the Welsh coast. There are light-houses all along the way. The large boat Catalonia, that came ahead of us from B., arrived in Liverpool last Friday. It was fifteen days making the voyage, and encountered rough seas and severe storms. But the Lord has wonderfully protected us between the two storms, one at the east of us, and the other at the west, a "pillar of cloud by day, and a pillar of fire by night. And the broad channel that we have come up to-day, and are still in, which is usually very rough and boisterous, is smooth and placid. We expect (D. V.) to reach Liverpool at 11. 30 o'clock this evening, and the Captain has kindly said to us that we could remain on board till morning, while all the intermediate passengers are expected to leave. I speak of this to show how wonderfully the Lord has heard and answered the many prayers for our prosperous journey. All praise and glory be to our Father in heaven. From your brother and sister in Christ.

BAPTISM A TYPICAL ORDINANCE.

BY I. L. LESLIE.

Baptism is an ordinance peculiar to the gospel dispensation. It has no relation to anything in a past dispensation. In the law of Moses there is nothing answering to it, nothing that points to it. The sprinkling of blood, and likewise of water under the law had a significance, but it was not that which baptism has in this dispensation.

When John the Baptist began to preach Jesus, Jesus did not [illegible] it to be so now, for thus it becometh [us to] fulfill the law. If there had been anything in the law which John was to fulfill by baptizing, Jesus would have spoken of the law.

Jesus was to be set apart prophet—one to proclaim the word from God. But his setting apart was not [like] that which Moses or any other [prophet] had had. He was to go into the water to be baptized. He could not be set apart as his prophetic work in any other way. The rites and ceremonies of the law were passed by, and a new method of consecration to the ministry adopted. The Holy Spirit witnessed to the act as it descended on the consecrated One.

John was appointed to introduce a new emblem, a typical ordinance. It was not only for Jesus to observe, but for all his followers. Christ himself having obeyed this ordinance, commanded his apostles to go and preach the gospel in all the world, and to baptize all that believed. The command to baptize was as imperative as to preach. That the apostles obey this command there can be no doubt. It is recorded that they baptized. But how in what manner did they baptize? When Jesus commanded them to go and preach, did he not mean that they should preach as he had preached? And when he bid them baptize, did he not mean to have them baptize as he had been baptized? Whatever the manner of his baptism was, was not that the manner in which they should baptize? Can it be supposed that they would adopt any other mode than the one in which their Lord and Master, and they themselves, had been baptized? Such supposition can not be entertained. John baptized Jesus and all others in the water—"in the river Jorbaptized than to prefigure his death and resurrection. He had no sin to wash away. Nor could this baptism have been emblematical of this in his followers. They must follow his example to show the same thing that he showed. He did not foreshow one thing by his baptism, and require that his people foreshow another by their baptism. If thereby he foreshowed his descent into death and the grave, and his resurrection unto life, so were his followers to foreshow their death and resurrection in the same manner. As Christ's life and immortality depended upon his resurrection out of death, so does the life and immortality of his followers depend upon their resurrection from death and the grave; and this all important thing is taught and kept in mind by baptism.

This typical ordinance is the heritage of the Christian church; but how few see the meaning of it. While a part of the church practice the baptism of Christ, the number that perceive its meaning and significance is small indeed. This is so with regard to other grand and important truths; and will be thus until the end. No people should be more thankful than we for the revelation of God's will, so fully made known to us—more so than to any people upon the earth. Hence our greater responsibility.

WHAT SHALL OUR CHILDREN READ?

BY E. P. WOODWARD.

This is one of those questions which cannot always be answered in a manner to satisfy every one. There are certain points upon which all may agree, such as the question of excluding books and papers having a decidedly immoral or ungodly influence, &c.

On other matters there are wide differences, and here we need to use judgment. Some of our brethren consider it unsafe to put into children's hands books which teach the doctrines of Natural Immortality, &c. While it would doubtless be unwise to furnish the young with books directly teaching these doctrines, it will be found impracticable, and almost impossible, to keep out of their hands books in which these doctrines are assumed to be true. We can and ought to do this awhile, before the mind is instructed and the judgment formed; but there comes a time when this cannot be done, and choice as to native, then, seems to be [illegible] nished. The truth in the fundamental truths, And where the [illegible] spirit Christian, crooked theology will not harm those who are well instructed.

These thoughts are suggested by reading two books "From Fifteen to Twenty-five," for young men, and "The Potential Woman," for young women, written by Mrs. J. F. Willing, the wife of a Methodist minister, and published by Macdonald and Gill, Boston. Price in cloth, 50 cts. each. After thorough examination, they may be commended as well written, deeply interesting, highly instructive, full of suggestions that cannot fail to influence young lives—in fact gems in the department of sound, Christian instruction. They should find a place in many households, and in every Sunday School library. The few allusions to certain errors of belief, will do no harm where the truth has been faithfully presented.

IGNORANCE.

BY PHILO HITCHCOCK.

"If the blind lead the blind, both shall fall into the ditch." Ignorance is often a crime. Once it was said, "My people perish for lack of knowledge." We are not only responsible for light received, but also for light rejected. A man who has rejected light is as much in darkness as the one who never saw the light. It is the province of the Spirit and Word of God, through Jesus Christ, to "lighten every man that cometh into the world." But many refuse to walk in the light, and choose the darkness. A fearful doom awaits those who walk in darkness, and especially those who [illegible] others blindfolded along a [illegible]

It may be a lonely path, a thorny road, "with here and there a traveler," but bless God, the bright and morning star sheds its beams upon this lonely path, and I see it shining "brighter and brighter unto the perfect day."

Well, I begin to feel better. The terrible blizzards of late have hindered me from getting out into the highways to tell the story of the cross and crown and coming glory. May the Lord bless all the true friends of Jesus who love his appearing.

THE YEAR 1887.

BY C. H. SWEET.

What of the year just gone? Has the world improved morally and religiously? Has mankind come to love the word of God and his only begotten Son? In short, are the inhabitants of the earth growing better or worse, as the years bring us nearer the end of this dispensation? Do they believe in a judgment soon to come? Do they heed he warnings due the world at this time any more than the antediluvians did the warning God in mercy gave them? It is claimed that we are living in an enlightened age, and in fact the gospel is scattered through the world as never before; but the question is, Is it proving to the world a savor of life unto life, or of death unto death?

The nominal church in the main disregard the plain teachings of the Bible, and teach for doctrines the commandments of men. The great central truth of divine revelation is trodden under foot of men; and men say in their hearts, "My Lord delayeth his coming," and they "begin to smite their fellow-servants, and to eat and drink with the drunken." The whole world seems in strife one against another, and the mammon of unrighteousness and the love of riches seem to absorb the whole world.

The goal of its ambition is gain; the race is eager; and mammon-worship an inordinate estimate of wealth, the grading of all things at a cash value, society graded on a cash basis, ideality sacrificed to material good, even virtue, patriotism, heroism, and manhood counted for loss, votes, office, justice having their price,—all these, and even more, are the abundant result. This is mercantilism, the great danger to society— [illegible] And when there [illegible] demand for the spiritual teaching which fell from the lips of Christ, the antidote for inordinate worldly care and worldly striving, the church and ministers of God's word seem to have been drawn into the whirlpool of fashion and show. Gambling and worldly schemes have been adopted by the church in her efforts to raise money to keep up glitter and show.

The eloquent preacher is called, regardless of real zeal and godliness, only because he will draw the rich to sustain high prices in church living and aristocracy in God's house. The poor are shut out who should have the gospel preached unto them, without money and without price. People say we are living in a progressive age; and the world is in a different stage of intelligence now than in Christ's time, and we must adapt our religion to the times in which we live. So it seems; and the adaptation has come to be so complete that it is difficult to find the dividing line between the church and the world. And in fact some of the most corrupt and dishonest men are to be found in the church and Sunday Schools of to-day.

This age is called a literary age; but what is the literature scattered broadcast in our land? President Cleveland is reported to have said: "I do not think there ever was a time when newspaper lying was so general as at the present, and there never was a country under the sun where it flourished as it does in this. [The] falsehoods daily spread before the people in our newspapers, while they are proofs of mental ingenui[ty] [illegible] paper work,

Look out how you reckon. That is [how] Paul counted. When a man gets so as [to] love a soul and hate a dollar as a compensation for rescuing one, he will do. If money comes pouring in faster than so[uls] it is high time you stopped the machine and found out who was running it.

Are you sure, brother, that the pure motive above referred to is what actuates you in the good work? Now I am not giving ministers a curtain lecture, they will compare favorably with other mortals; but let this go all round among the pews, and into all the corners. Lord, let this gu[illegible] vitals. Do you love sinners as Christ loved them? Do you love the brethren, or do you love that fellow best of whom you speak with the pronoun I? God knows. And that tongue of yours will pitch to a key accordingly. O how many things there are that stand between us and God, and perishing men, and not the least is dear self. Love of popularity, love of praise, pride of talent—ah! how many gods there are to eclipse the God of heaven in our eyes, to say little of "filthy lucre."

"Thou shalt be recompensed at the resurrection of the just." That is the promise which, as Sam Jones says, we should "bank" on. Christ does not set a man to work for nothing and board himself—though some know what that is literally—but he has got a recompense equivalent to the privation and the severity of the task and more than that. "At the resurrection of the just." Ah, how some will shine as the stars, who have turned many to righteousness. Dan. 12: 3. Let those scenes eclipse this world's tinselry in your faith. Can you wait and work until pay-day, though it be long? Out on the Christian who is satisfied with anything short of souls for God in this world, and a crown of life in the next.

NEW YEAR'S GREETING.

BY MRS. M. A. TIBBETS.

Dearly Beloved Brn. and Srs.:—As I am permitted to commune with many of you every week in the columns of our beloved Crisis, yet, as the New Year of 1888 has dawned upon us, it gives me pleasure to send Christian greeting to the whole household of faith who are looking for our glorious King to come and set up his blessed reign upon the new purified earth. Some of us have [illegible] place to our weary feet as we have pressed forward in the discharge of the many obligations resting upon us. But the Comforter of the Bible has been with us, unfolding the precious promises just when we most needed them, affording the spiritual strength equal to every conflict, and to-day, we can say, all things have "worked together for our good," and we are stronger in the faith of Jesus and his glorious coming, than when we commenced the journey of the past year. Then let us continue to cheer and comfort each other in the weekly conference given us by our kind and good editor, helping to hold up his hands as he continues to come before us with the spiritual food so wisely and judiciously prepared as "the meat in due season."

It is not likely that we will all be here at the close of the year. But whether living or dying, let us all be found in the faithful discharge of every known duty. Then we will be ready for death or translation, should he come with the blessed mansions he has gone to prepare as the blissful inheritance of all his saints.

"THERE'S LIGHT BEYOND."—"When in Madeira," writes a traveler, "I set off one morning to reach the summit of a mountain, to gaze upon the distant scene, and enjoy the balmy air. I had a guide with me, and we had with difficulty ascended some two thousand feet, when a thick mist was seen descending upon us, quite obscuring the whole face of the heavens. I thought I had no hope left but at once to retrace our steps or be lost; but as the cloud came nearer, and darkness overshadowed me, my guide ran on before me, penetrating the mist, and calling to me, ever and anon, saying: "Press on, master—press on—

WAITING.

"And, behold, there was a man in Jerusalem whose name was Simeon; and the same was just and devout, waiting for the consolation of Israel; and the Holy Ghost was upon him."—Luke 2: 25.

Beautiful! solemn! grand! A devout, God-fearing, majestical old man, inspired by sublime faith, amid the gloom of prevailing unbelief keeping vigil at the altars of God—"waiting for the consolation of Israel"; waiting for the consummation of his hope.

The most wonderful event in the history of man—perhaps the most wonderful in the annals of the universe—was imminent. The hour of the world's hope was ready to strike. Divine prediction was rounding into exact fulfilment. The dispensation of four millenniums had run its course and was about to end amid mighty displays of heavenly grandeur. A new order of divine administration was waiting to come in.

The heathen world was bewildered by false philosophy. Israel, dazzled by na[illegible] ambition for political aggrandizement [illegible] real character and kin[illegible] but the [illegible] prevailed as to what the change would be.

But the prescience of that old man in the temple was clear as the light of God. It had been divinely shown him that the Messianic promise would be gloriously fulfilled before death should close his eyes, already dimmed with age. He was only waiting. Waiting not in mist and doubt, but patiently, serenely, confidently waiting to see the Lord's Christ ere he should wrap the mantle of his fourscore years about him and lie down in the repose of the tomb. Nor was his trusting heart deceived nor his anxious eyes long denied the object of their vigils. At the appointed time, when the travail of the ages was at its crisis, the crowning blessedness was given. Steadfast, tireless faith was honored. Weary footsteps broke the silence of the inner temple. With a quick glance the venerable watcher saw and knew the immaculate babe, and filled with rapture of contentment, he was ready to depart.

Time's strange history has worn its tangled way down through the ages, till once more a grand prophetic expectation thrills the hearts and brightens the eyes of weary watchers—watchers for the consummation of the later and grander promise—grander because inclusive of all the glory of the first: "And unto them that look for him shall he appear the second time without sin unto salvation."

Prophecy fulfilled determines the proper attitude of the saints. We are standing amidst the latest tokens of the coming kingdom. All things attest the end at hand. Ominous and more ominous still, day by day, the thickening portents attest the approaching doom. These are the hours of peril when the friends of God have supreme [illegible]

The work of extending the circulation of the Crisis is progressing quite encouragingly. Several brethren have taken hold of this matter in earnest; and Bro. A. P. Moore's enterprising proposition to increase our List by the addition of two thousand new names, seems likely to be realized. We have received 580 new subscribers in the last 90 days.

This is the time to push this grandest of methods for spreading the glad tidings. We publish this week the first letter from our Macedonian missionaries. These mission letters will be very interesting and inspiring.

Now, dear brethren and sisters, what better proof can you give that you do really desire to spread the truth among those who are in darkness than by helping to increase the circulation of your own paper, which preaches every week, to thirty or forty thousand readers, the news of the coming kingdom? Let us have "a long pull, a strong pull, and a pull all together."

Bro. Sederquist, writing on business from Haverhill, Jan. 16, says: "We had a wonderful meeting last (Sunday) night; quite a number started; we are expecting victory." We rejoice in Bro. Sederquist's success in the Haverhill church. We were very sorry to be prevented from attending the Quarterly Meeting held there last week. Nothing but sickness would have kept us at home.

ALL AS UNTO GOD.

It is due to say that the prominence of Eld. L. T. Cunningham's name in connection with the new mission in Macedonia, as published in the Crisis, was not by his seeking; on the contrary, he desired not to have his name mentioned at all as the donor of funds. All the members of the Mission Board are touchingly impressed with the feeling that Bro. Cunningham has been specially moved upon by the Holy Spirit, and that he has done all in sincere devotion to the cause, and for the glory of God, with no desire whatever for self-aggrandizement. We hope his noble work will be an inspiration to others.

WAR PROBABILITIES.

We have so repeatedly witnessed the uncertainty and failure of prophetical deductions based on the probabilities of war, and on war itself, that we feel inclined to be slow in accepting hasty and ill-considered conclusions. But we should by no means close our eyes to the movements of the nations. And just now the gigantic military preparations, and the threatening aspect of Central Europe are inviting special attention and concern. "Wars and rumors of wars," more or less general and bloody, will continue till Christ comes. The anger of the nations will not materially cease until the Son of God shall appear and conquer an eternal peace. The following from the Boston Journal of Jan. 18th will be read with interest:

"European Prepa[illegible] rapidly toward wa[illegible] conditions which for a time avert that catastrophe are not moral, nor political, nor material, but climatic. There is nothing to-day which prevents the rupture of relations already strained almost beyond endurance, except the difficulty of conducting military operations on a large scale in the dead of winter. Even as it is, in spite of intense cold and the difficulties of transportation, large bodies of troops are being massed on the Austro-Russian frontier. The Russian forces already in Poland are estimated to number 325,000 men with full 720 guns. Earthworks and forts are in process of erection, ambulance beds have been distributed and immense depots of supplies are being formed. To the question what these preparations mean Russia has made no answer since the inspired article in the Official Military Gazette a month ago, in which it was gravely affirmed that the Russian movements were solely of a defensive character, necessitated by the menacing preparations of Austria and Germany. Russia was represented in this article as desiring peace and making large sacrifices in order to secure it, but as forced into the military movements which were criticised by the threatening attitude of her neighbors. Various assurances are reported to have been exchanged between St. Petersburg and Vienna, but their pacific tenor can deceive no one so long as Russia continues massing troops in Poland, and Austria is concentrating her forces to resist an attack upon Galicia, and Germany is enacting a law which will increase her army to the extent of 500,000 men, while the arsenals of all three powers, and of France and Italy as well are crowded to their utmost capacity.

As to a casus belli, Russia will not look long for it when she is ready to strike. The renewal of negotiations looking to the deposition of P[illegible] of life, for in that sense did those Galileans perish, and those men in Jerusalem perish —lost their lives. The process of extermination of life cannot be meant, but simply the fact of that loss, for Jesus could not have meant that all sinners should have their blood shed with the sacrifices offered by the Jews, and also have Siloam's tower fall upon them hereafter. These men all then perished, literally perished by the loss of life—some by one process, and some by another —so all sinners shall as literally perish, or lose life, by the divinely specified process.

THE FINAL FIRE.

(Concluded.)

That the coming conflagration will constitute the hell of the ungodly at the judgment, there can be no reasonable doubt, since Peter couples the "perdition of ungodly men" therewith—earth being "reserved unto fire against the day of judgment and the perdition of ungodly men," as before shown, while it is also true that God is "to reserve the unjust unto the day of judgment to be punished." 2 Peter 2: 9. At the judgment day this predicted fire is due, coupled with "the perdition of ungodly men," and at the judgment also comes the punishment of the wicked; and as they are to be punished in "hell fire," and are also to meet their fate in this fire, it is clear that this is their hell, since they can not be consigned to two different fires at one and the same time—at the judgment.

But is it objected that the wicked are to "be cast into hell," instead of having hell come to them? So they will be, and even plunged into untold depths of this great gehenna of fire, as the earth's crust shall break up, like ice, by volcanic commotion, and plunge into the fiery deep below, with its freight of unsaved humanity—literally cast into hell fire; how deep, who can tell?

The prophet compares this fire to an oriental oven—a vivid picture—every part aglow with fire; and connects the doom of the wicked therewith: "Behold, the day cometh, that shall burn as an oven; and all the proud, yea, and all that do wickedly, shall be stubble. and the day that cometh shall burn them up, saith the Lord of hosts, that it shall leave them neither root nor branch." Mal. 4: 1.

Jesus calls it a "furnace of fire"—"cast them into a furnace of fire" (Matt. 13: 42), an event not due till "the end of the world," or age, instead of being a scene before the judgment day.

The Revelator calls it a "lake of fire," into which sinners are to be cast after the resurrection—not only those who come forth unto "the resurrection of damnation," but all other sinners: "And I saw the dead, small and great, stand before God . . . and the dead were judged. . . . And whosoever was not found written in the book of life was cast into the lake of fire." Rev. 20: 12, 15. This scene is due after the resurrection. Into this "lake of [illegible] this "oven" of fire, this "furnace of fi[illegible] the wicked [illegible] cast when earth's [illegible] up, [illegible] convulsions [illegible] and eternal up[illegible] plunging vast, vast tracts of country into the fiery depths beneath, under a single shock, till all of earth's crust, with its sinful inhabitants, shall be submerged. Here is the "second death," followed by the "blackness of darkness forever"—there being no resurrection from this fiery fate.

But where are the saints during this fiery ordeal? They are "caught up to meet the Lord," and before this fiery scene is inaugurated, they are taken to a place of safety, into their celestial chambers till the terrible indignation is over: "Thy dead men shall live, together with my dead body shall they arise. Awake and sing, ye that dwell in dust: for thy dew is as the dew of herbs, and the earth shall cast out the dead. [Then what?] Come, my people, enter thou into thy chambers, and shut thy doors about thee: hide thyself as it were for a little moment, until the indignation be overpast. [Why?] For, behold, the Lord cometh out of his place [out of heaven] to punish the inhabitants of the earth for their iniquity." Isa. 26: 19–21.

While the saints are above, there will be a terrific "indignation" below, culminating in the fiery scene already described; and the saints will remain above till this is "overpast"; and while above they stand on the "sea of glass," which is said to be "before the throne," and the throne is said to be in the new Jerusalem; and while thus standing on the sea of glass, every saint being present, it is said, "All the angels of God stood round about"—"all" the angels, as well as all the saints are present—so as they are then all together for the first time, a fit[illegible]nity, and the first opportunity [illegible] confess his saints before [illegible] holy angels—and he will [illegible] What rapture above the [illegible]

According to the Apostle Paul, even ancient Abraham looked for a city to come" —not for a city to come into existence by the device of man but a city "whose builder and maker is God" which Paul denominated Jerusalem which is above," being "reserved in heaven" for the time being—the house of "many mansions" the "house not made with hands," even "our house which is from heaven," or the "everlasting habitations" into which the saints are to be received. Abraham evidently saw it over in the promised land after the removal of the curse therefrom, or saw it coming to that land, just as the sacred seer of Patmos saw it "coming down" after sinners had been engulfed in the lake of fire.

No human scheme can take us over this lake of fire into the promised land—the new earth. No human craft can safely ride over the rolling billows of fire on that tempestuous ocean, nor face the fierce storm of fire that shall rage on its boisterous bosom. Ironclads would melt like wax, and the sulphurous vapor could not be endured by mortals. Besides, such crafts would founder before they got under sail, if not melted before foundering. The only way over this lake of fire into the promised land, is by translation from earth to the new Jerusalem, which shall descend after the fire shall have obliterated all traces of the curse from the earth, and the promised renovation shall constitute it a "new earth"—deathless and sinless forever.

Even earth's climate will be changed, as we have reason to believe, after this deluge of fire is over. Among the many indications that a warmer climate once existed toward the poles, we cite the following statement of facts from a secular journal: "It is known that enormous hairy elephants or mastodons once lived in Siberia and Alaska. Not only are their remains abundant, but the carcasses of the animals preserved in prehistoric icebergs have been recovered, and it is from these models that naturalists have reproduced the interesting fabrications such as that exhibited at the late Exposition in New Orleans. In the period when those animals lived there the climate was doubtless much warmer." That a warmer climate once existed where eternal winter now reigns, is a fact too strongly fortified by incontestible facts to need confirmatory argument. On some principle the change of climate must have been brought about.

More than one theory has been offered as a solution of the mystery, but the most plausible and reasonable one, is the claim that our earth once revolved in its orbit without an angle; that at some epoch it received a lurch to its present angle of twenty-three and one-half degrees, perhaps at the time of the deluge: that while it revolved without an angle, its climate was genial from pole to pole. This being the case, it is not improbable that human longevity before the flood was largely due to the climate then existing, for soon after the flood the length of human life wonderfully [illegible] earth should [illegible] to its former position in the ecli[illegible] of its angle, it would inaugurate genial climate in the new earth from pole to pole—which would be a marked feature of the coming "restitution," and would look like the work of a God, rendering the whole earth lovely in its restored state, wherever the redeemed throng may roam, in any and every direction. W. S.

"THE RETURN OF THE JEWS."

I have received and read a tract, written by Silas Henn, on the return of the Jews and the restoration of Israel. It is well written, but he fails to prove what he claims for the Jews as a nation, namely their return to Palestine or the Holy Land. He declares that "God has unconditionally to bring them to repentance, righteousness, purity, and peace." He says "There is no lack of these promises, both of the gathering and redemption of Israel that are unconditional." Now to me this declaration seems strong when looked at through Paul's eye-glasses. "And so all Israel shall be saved." Rom. 11: 26. This [illegible] may be regarded as the rallying point of the Jews' return argument, at least it is one of its strongest pillars.

The question comes, who are all Israel? The broken off branches cannot be the true seed, the true Israel, and those grafted in be the true Israel also. Now which? If those not broken off were Israel, then those broken off are not Israel in any sense. The unbelieving descendants of Jacob and Abraham are not Israel, they are broken off and have no right to the name. The broken off branches by faith may be grafted into the good olive tree, that will make them Christ's, and the Abrahamic seed, the true Israel in whom the promises centre. "If Christ's then Abraham's seed and heirs [illegible]

A PRECIOUS CARGO.

The gallant ships of earth that go forth upon the great ocean, seeking the wealth of other lands, and after long seasons of weary toil return again to their native shore, richly laden with their golden spoils, to benefit friends and awaken the interest of the commercial world, are hailed with acclamations of joy because of the supposed treasures they bring. But what are they, with all the glitter of earth upon them, compared to the precious cargo of loving hearts and willing feet who so recently left their home, their parents and their dear little children, at the Macedonian cry, "Come over and help us"; who so readily responded, being led by the Holy Spirit, proving the truth of Isaiah the prophet, where he says, "How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of him that bringeth good tidings, that publisheth peace; that bringeth good tidings of good, that publisheth salvation; that saith unto Zion, Thy God reigneth."

The editorial of our good Editor on the departure of our beloved missionaries is so rich and full of interest that humbler pens may well remain silent. But my heart was so filled with loving interest as I read over and over with tears of joy the sacrifice of our dear Bro. and Sr. Smith, that I cannot forbear some expression of my great love for them and the blessed work they have gone to do for Christ and perishing souls, in the offer of eternal life through Jesus the Redeemer. Well may our brother add: "It is needless for us to suggest that special prayers be offered in all our churches and in all our pulpits for the safe arrival and future success of the brave-hearted, cross-bearing group who have said farewell to home and friends, children and native land," etc. Surely many hearts in our Advent household will not only offer many prayers in their behalf, but will, with the writer, send some material aid to help in their times of need. And still let us pray that the time may soon come when our dear departed friends shall be released from their labors, and called with us to sit down in the new Jerusalem to "the marriage supper of the Lamb."

QUARTERLY CONFERENCE.

The Q[illegible] of the Eastern dist[illegible] A. C. Con[illegible] withstanding the weather [illegible] things were unfavorable [illegible] during its session for a large attendance from abroad. The congregations in the afternoons and evenings were quite good, and the meetings both social and preaching were excellent, the Spirit of the Lord resting down in power upon the church and people. One lady who formerly associated with the Roman Catholic Church came to our meetings and surrendered to God, and we trust was genuinely converted. The last night of the Conference several new ones came to the altar for prayers.

The following ministers and laborers were present during the meeting: J. Couch, G. W. Sederquist, D. M. Leavitt, A. Bean, A. W. Sibley, C. H. Willey and Sr. Abbie Wood, known among the Sunday School children as "Aunt Abbie." On the whole, Conference was a success, and good was done in the name of the Lord of hosts. The Conference is being followed with revival meetings each evening for the present, and these services we hope will result in great good. A. W. Sibley.

MISSION WORK.

We left our home Tuesday before Thanksgiving to meet our dear Bro. R. G. Davis, en route for Vermont, holding meetings at Meredith Village and at Warren, thence to Morrisville, Vt. There we found a few of our faith, and much need of labor. They have a good house formerly owned by the Christian Church. We preached for a few evenings and over the last Sabbath in Nov. God blessed in preaching his word, and the record is on high.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

Bro. Stockman:—Some of the readers of the Crisis have requested me to report through our much esteemed paper my labors as a missionary for the past four months. I left home Sept. 3d, and went to Charlesville and remained over Sunday. Had real good meetings. The church in this place has been very much revived through the summer, and three added by baptism. From there I went to Yarmouth. There is no Advent Church in this town, but some love the Lord and his truth. They procured a place, and by the help of the Lord I preached four sermons. At the last meeting there were quite a number of testimonies, and the house was crowded with attentive hearers.

From Yarmouth we went to Bear River. This place is the old ground of Adventism. Found the church in a very low state, and after holding a few meetings in places outside of the village, where much interest was manifested, we thought it to be the will of the Lord to hold meetings for one week with the Brn. and Srs. at the village, which resulted in quite a revival of the church and five were baptized. The church now is in a state of spiritual health, looking for the speedy personal coming of the blessed one.

From Bear River we w[illegible] attend our half-yearly C[illegible] met according to notice [illegible] October. There were but [illegible] present: Elds. J. J. Wood[illegible] Fitch, and myself. There was [illegible] number present, the meetings were spiritual. On Sunday the church was crowded to overflowing. In our love-feast on Sunday morning there were eighty testimonies for Jesus. There was good attention, and the Spirit of Christ prevailed through the entire meeting. Two made a start for the kingdom. Praise the Lord, glory to his name. We left Litchfield Wednesday morning Oct. 12th, and went to Victoria Beach. Found a few holding on to the blessed hope of the soon coming and kingdom of Jesus, but they were almost discouraged having no preaching by Advent ministers.

Instead of staying one Sunday as I thought to do, I remained over three Sundays during which time quite a number of backsliders were reclaimed, and hopefully converted. Eight were baptized and seven joined the Advent Christian Church. We did feel like thanking God, and did it and took courage. My heart is all aflame with the love of Jesus' name. I left Monday, Oct. 31, for Scott's Bay, Kings Co. Commenced meetings Thursday evening, Nov. 3. Found the church in a low state, yet keeping up their prayer meetings.

We held meetings with the church at the Bay and other places near by three weeks. The church was very much revived, a[illegible] saw the necessity of being more consecra[ted] to God, and being ready to have a home [in] the Kingdom when Jesus comes. One converted and one baptized. From Scott's Bay we went back to Victoria Beach, a distance of [illegible] miles. Found the [illegible] to hear [illegible] testimonies for [illegible] remained with them two Sunday[s] eight more were converted, and [illegible]tized. Glory to God. This little [illegible] Victoria Beach is all alive, waiting for the coming of the Lord. I am now at home trying to persuade sinners to come to Jesus, so that they can be saved in the kingdom of God. FROM MARY F. BOUTWELL.

Bro. Stockman:—Lying here in my quiet room where I have lain for years, an invalid, I feel this morning like expressing a few thoughts, through the medium of the Crisis, to the dear brethren and sisters, the "household of faith," and especially to those who have so kindly responded to the appeal in my behalf made by dear Bro. Lord in the Crisis of Nov. 23. Words fail to express my gratitude and heartfelt thanks for the kind favors bestowed upon me, every one of which has helped to lighten the burden resting so heavily upon me.

The dear Lord will reward you, for he is not unmindful of the favors bestowed upon his afflicted ones. "He that hath pity upon the poor lendeth unto the Lord; and that which he hath given will he pay him again." Prov. 19: 17. I do sincerely thank each dear one who has so kindly remembered me in my need and affliction. May the blessings of God in all their fulness rest upon you, his spirit be with you, the peace that passeth all understanding comfort you, and when the dear Master shall come to take his weary, waiting people home, may you hear the "Well done" from his lips, and have an abundant entrance into the everlasting kingdom, [illegible] sincere wish [illegible] desire of the [illegible] whom you have [illegible] need to patiently wait and prayerfully watch.

The waiting has been sad and long, and must be well nigh ended. The extreme darkness which betokens the "break of day" already enwraps the world. The cup of sin is full to the brim. The prophetic word touches the latest niches of fulfilment. Here and there a Simeon and Anna may be found waiting in silent awe to catch glimpses of the flashing glory of the King's chariot wheels. Above the Babel voices of worldly pride and pomp and pleasure is heard the cry of weary longing: "Come, Lord Jesus, and come quickly."

Let all who hope to enter in to the marriage awake and trim afresh their flickering lamps. Between the midnight call and the closing of the doors there will be no time to secure the lacking oil. Let those who keep the altars of the Lord's house see that the vestal fires burn not too low. Let those who hold the keys of knowledge unlock with careful hand the treasury of truth. This is no hour for fictions or fancies or vagaries. This is the watching time, the waiting hour. Next comes the blushing dawn of day. Already the Orient is aglow with the brightness of ripened promise. The thin curtains which veil our High Priest from our longing eyes tremble as with the breath of God.

"Awake thy slumbering virgins,
Send forth the solemn cry,
Let all thy saints repeat it—
The Bridegroom draweth nigh.

Let all our lamps be burning,
Our loins well girded be,
Each eager heart expecting
With joy thy face to see."

...rince Ferdinand of Bulgaria sug... one pretext that may be utilized. The ...ggestion that Austria may be called upon to evacuate Bosnia and Herzegovina, on the ground that the title under which they were occupied was temporary only, points to another pretext. There are evidences of increased uncertainty and uneasiness in Austria, and the feeling seems to be quite general that the Austrian preparations were not begun promptly enough. They are being pushed now, however, with great energy. Italy is relied upon, apparently to hold France in check, and to engage her, if she makes an attack upon Germany. Though she has fewer interests involved than any of the other Powers, there are indications that she will respond readily to the call upon her; and there are not lacking expressions of dislike for France which would make the enterprise a congenial one."

SINNERS TO PERISH.

The Scriptures are so full of declarations that the wicked shall ultimately "perish," that all admit they must perish in some sense; so the question may be properly raised, In what sense are they to perish? Is this perishing to be in the sense of preserving life, or destroying life? Let Jesus define his own use of this term: "There were present at that season some that told him of the Galileans, whose blood Pilate had mingled with their sacrifices. And Jesus answering said unto them, Suppose ye that these Galileans were sinners above all the Galileans, because they suffered such things? I tell you, Nay: but, except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish. Or those eighteen, upon whom the tower in Siloam fell, and slew them, think ye that they were sinners above all men that dwelt in Jerusalem? I tell you, Nay: but, except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish." Luke 13: 1–5.

This statement, "Shall all likewise perish," restricts the p[illegible] to the literal loss ting opportu... is offered Jesus ... his Father and the ... surely improve it, ... fiery scene below. Saved at last, saved forever!! The shout of the redeemed will then be like the voice of many waters mingled with the voice of mighty thunderings. And then comes "the song of Moses and the Lamb"—the song of deliverance blended with the song of redemption.

After the fire looms up a new world. The wicked having all perished in the great conflagration, and earth having been purified by the fiery ordeal, a transporting scene greets the eye of faith—the new Jerusalem, freighted with resurrected and immortalized saints, comes down from God out of heaven, clothed with the glory of God. A voice is heard announcing its advent to earth, its object, and its future history: "Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them, and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them, and be their God. And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things are passed away. And he that sat upon the throne said, Behold, I make all things new." Rev. 21: 3–5.

After the fire, comes this new earth, new city, new people, and new King—the "King of glory." In the conflagration, the old atmospheric heaven passed away "with a great noise"; now a new atmospheric hea[ven] encircles the renewed earth—perhaps [an] atmosphere of glory—and a once sinful realm is transformed into a sinless and deathless world, inhabited by the glorified saints, made "equal to the angels." THE POPE'S JUBILEE.

January 1st 1888, the Pope Leo XIII. had a jubilee celebration to commemorate the fiftieth year of his priesthood. Forty-eight cardinals were present, two hundred and thirty-eight archbishops and bishops, and nearly thirty thousand people but not a prince belonging to a reigning family. In his speech Jan. 3d, the Pope said: "The Church . . . ought to be independent of . . . terrestrial authority. . . . The Church is a divine institution, and universal. It "is always triumphant over her enemies, and by the help of Divine Providence will ever triumph." By the "Church" the Pope means Roman Catholic Church. The Mayor of Rome, the Duke of Tonlonia, took the liberty to ask the Cardinal Vicar to present to the Pope the congratulations of the city on the occasion of his Jubilee. This act of the Mayor so offended the Italian Government that the Mayor was turned out of his office by the unanimous vote of the Parliament ministry, endorsed by the King Humbert. This is very significant of the public feeling towards the Papacy in Italy. They hate it as their worst enemy. Thus the prophetic Scripture is fulfilled, as given in Rev. 17: 16. A telegram from Rome, Wednesday, Jan. 4th says: "It seems clear that Church and State are moving on diverging lines. ... is very great." The telegram further says that the speech of the Pope "di... puts an end to the idea of con... has been here pro... appeal to civil war." ...ing a grand crisis in ...acy and Mohammedanism.

...Bro. A. P. Drown labors, and with the blessing of God been able to erect a very neat and tidy church edifice. But recently some of the strong ones have fallen by death, and much need is felt for the revival of the Lord's work. Here we held for five days, the Lord blest, and deep conviction pervaded. But having appointments ahead we left on Monday with heavy hearts and earnest prayers for the unsaved of Hardwick. Next we landed at Newton Centre too late for our first appointment, but on Tuesday night some hundreds came to hear. The second night of our meeting about twenty came to the altar for prayers, some, for the first time, others for a complete consecration. We asked at the close how many wanted the meetings to continue, and all but the man who held the keys of the house arose (it was a Free Baptist house). Many were men who seldom if ever go to church.

The Lord held us there till the next Sabbath noon, when we found we could have the house no longer. Accordingly we retired to a school-house. There we remained for another week and many were brought to Christ. Bro. Davis baptized sixteen. Some forty or more started, and we hope to see a goodly number in the kingdom of God. Some who had been living at the halves made a full consecration to God of all they had, and the Lord wonderfully blessed. Backsliders came home and there was rejoicing. It was wonderful to hear the confessions, and to witness the heart-broken sobs, and tears of penitent hearts. To God be all the glory. C. S. SHATTUCK.

... 1887 is ebbing out, and so are the last days of the six thousand years. We have just arrived at and passed Fastnet Light-house, on the coast of Ireland. This is the first light-house we have seen since we left B. It is wonderful how accurately the mariner can steer over two thousand miles over a rough, tempestuous ocean, and reach this very light-house so very minutely, yet it is even so. And while the temporary light-house has been in view, at our evening service we have been reading the first chapter of the Gospel by John, that speaks of Jesus, the light of life, "that lighteth every man that cometh into the world." God's holy Word and blessed Spirit are the chart and compass, and Jesus, the light of life, that leads us into the eternal city of God, where we will need no sun nor moon, to give light by day and night, "but from the throne of living fire, where sits revealed the Eternal Sire," Jesus our Saviour will be the light thereof. The Lord hasten this eternal day. Amen.

Jan. 1st, 1888. A new year has dawned, and with it come new and important responsibilities. There are many ways in which we can do something for Jesus and his precious cause. Great results can be attained this year, one of the last, and it remains with us to do all we possibly can, in these lingering moments of the forty-five years of tarrying time.

Dear brethren and sisters, you that have much of this world's goods, it is a good time for you to come to the front, and aid all you can in sending this last "flying message of the everlasting gospel, and the hour of his judgment." A recent exhibition of "another gospel" in this village illustrates the thoughts I here pen. The speaker claimed to be an accredited minister of a popular sect. But what his excuse can be for preaching I know not. The Bible, he claims, is a mystery, and should be spiritually interpreted. He said he had no knowledge of what heaven was or what hell was. It was absurd, he said, to believe in a literal city with streets of gold and walls of jasper. He frequently rung the changes on the immortal soul.

I am glad that in the days of childhood, beside a father's chair and at my mother's knee, I learned a better way. If I knew no other gospel than the one dispensed by many popular pulpits, I should eat, drink and be merry, and die without a hope. With an immaterial God, an immaterial soul, an immaterial heaven, together with a mysterious Bible, it is up-hill business trying to believe anything. Then the beautiful theory of the world's conversion!

The fact is, these preachers are running a mixed train with the world, the flesh and the devil. And unless they heed the blood-... flag of danger, they will halt at the sta-... of the second death. THE INDUCEMENT.

BY C. B. COPP.

A man told me that in less than a week in connection with his daily work he had persuaded five persons to join the Benefit Order, to which he belonged, and another had got ten. Instinctively I thought, What am I doing to get men to Christ? If these men only had their energies consecrated to the work of drawing men to God, what an amount of work might be done. But come to find it out, they had three dollars per head from the Order for every man they brought in who was initiated, which was all right enough in their business I suppose. Quite an inducement that toward this sort of missionary effort. No wonder there is zeal put into it for between them and three dollars is a man to simply persuade to join a benefit order.

But Christ does not promise a solitary shilling to a man as an inducement for him to work for him, in getting men initiated into the blessed mysteries of his kingdom. He simply yokes himself with him, and proceeds to tread out the corn in his company, with the understanding that there shall be no muzzle put over his mouth to hinder his partaking of the fruit as he goes along; and what he gets he needs to be thankful for.

It is pure love to God and pure love to perishing mankind which is the Bible inducement to start a man out on missionary effort. Nothing else, nothing else, nothing ... All else is ... worse, "dung."

...there's light beyond?" ... I ... press on. In a few minutes the mist was passed, and I gazed upon a scene of transcendent beauty. All was light and cloudless above, and beneath was the almost level mist, concealing the world below me, and glistening to the rays of the sun like a field of untrodden snow. There was nothing at that moment between me and the heavens."

Oh ye over whom the clouds are gathering, or who have sat beneath the shadows, be not dismayed if they rise before you. Press on — there is light beyond. — The Worker.

THE BELL OF THE WAVE.—While steaming down the bay on our way to Martha's Vineyard, my attention was thoughtfully arrested by the continuous ringing of a bell. This bell was buoyed just above dangerous and unseen rocks, and rung by every passing wave. In sunshine or rain, both night and day, this faithful monitor of the deep sends out over the waves far and near its note of warning. Every pilot knows the sound, and steers clear of its dangers.

Is not the sad wail, "There is no God, no hereafter," which comes to our ears from the splitting rocks of dark skepticism a signal of warning? Steer clear of it. Beneath the surface there are sharp rocks, upon which many souls have been wrecked. Steer ... the Word of God. Hold onto the Bible, ... whole Bible. Let that man who accepts ... a part of the truth, hear the signal tones, Danger ahead! There is no safety, but to stick to the Book. Believe it, live it, preach it, and when you die, let your head and heart be pillowed upon its truths. It is safe. —ED.

FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.

LETTER FROM ELD. MILES GRANT.

I have reported up to Friday, Dec. 23d, at Lisburn. I remained there over Sunday, the 25th. The Spirit of the Lord applied the truth to the hearts of the people, relating to the coming of Jesus, the saints' inheritance upon the new earth, and the entire destruction of the wicked, including the devil and his angels. [illegible] to find such wonderful things in the Bible; and surprised that they had not seen them before, when they were so plainly revealed. The Bible was to them a new book. What was before mystical, and consequently uninteresting, had become plain, and full of truth of the grandest nature. The more fully I become acquainted with the strange, unscriptural theories, which are being taught in these last days, the more I am surprised. Were the Saviour here now, I think he would call them "blind leaders of the blind." This darkness arises from believing satan's lie, recorded in Gen. 3: 4, and a spiritual interpretation, made necessary, because of the belief of the words of the arch deceiver.

Monday, Dec. 26th, I went to Belfast, where I remained till Saturday, Dec. 31st, and had some interesting Bible classes, which filled the rooms where they were held. Those who attend are very hungry for Bible truth. They have found they had been believing fables instead of divine truth, as revealed in the sacred Scriptures. Through the faithful mission work of Bro. Jones, the light is being scattered in all directions. Among those on whom he called the day of the first Bible class was a prominent business man in Belfast, who was an infidel, without any Bible. After some conversation on the plan of salvation, Bro. Jones gave him some tracts to read, and asked him to come to the Bible class that evening. When he came to look at the tracts, he found they were intimately connected with the Bible, and he at once sent for a copy, and that evening came with his unconverted wife to the Bible class, and listened very attentively to what was said.

The next evening he came again and said he was unhappy, and tired of a sinful life. We had a season of special prayer in his behalf. He said he had been very wicked, but was anxious to secure pardon, and lead a different life. He had been living without any faith in Christ as a Saviour; utterly rejecting all sacred things. He had a powerful conflict with satan before he broke away from his power and accepted Jesus as his loving Friend and Saviour. This he did that night, and prayed with his wife at his own home.

The next evening, Friday, Dec. 30th, I called on him in company with Bro. Jones, and he and his wife went with us to another Bible class, where the plan of salvation was considered, including the subject of conditional immortality, or how to secure eternal life. Members of different churches were present, including a minister, a deacon, and the wife of another minister. About all present seemed to be satisfied that only the righteous will live eternally.

These Bible classes were just adapted to remove the false theories and fables from the mind of him, who, like John Bunyan, was fleeing from "the city of destruction." He is a man of energetic ability, and stands at the head of his business in Belfast, which is the manufacture and sale of optical instruments. He had been a faithful servant of satan. He attempted to hang himself, but was rescued. When under the influence of strong drink he attempted to shoot his own brother. The ball cut away a part of his brother's beard. But after all these crimes, the dear Saviour had mercy upon him, forgave him his sins, and has adopted him into his family. It is now arranged to have meetings at his home every Monday evening. The first meeting was held last Monday evening, Jan. 2nd. This is a marvelous change to be brought about in two or three days. He has two very pretty children. The family has an abundance of this world's good's; but without Jesus, it was all vanity, and unsatisfying. A friend of Jesus, who lives in a log hut, is far happier than the infidel millionaire in his palace.

When in Belfast I met Mr. G. H. Adams, from the States, who says he studied to be an Episcopal minister, and afterwards studied law and then medicine. He claims to be unmarried. He holds that children will not be raised from the dead; that none will be saved who believe in the immortality of the soul; and other views equally wild and unscriptural. He said he had been baptized three times; once by sprinkling, and twice by immersion, the last one being about ten days since. I inquired why the second immersion? He said the first was in the name of the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit; but the last was only in the name of the Lord Jesus, which he claimed was the only right name to be used at baptism. I have very rarely met one so full of strange doctrines. He is making special efforts to lead others to embrace his views, and has gained influence over some.

During the night after my visit with him I awoke, and was impressed with the thought that this Mr. Adams is the one who was in Springfield, Mass., some years since, when Bro. R. E. Ladd was alive. That one went to Palestine with his wife, whom I met in Sacramento, Cal. This one finally acknowledged he had a wife and family, and that he had been to Palestine; so that I found him to be the same Adams that was at Springfield. Those who know him best say he is a man of bad character, and unworthy the confidence of any Christian people. These words are for the benefit of the pure, that they may not be seduced. "A word to the wise is sufficient."

Saturday, Dec. 31st, I left Belfast for Coleraine, some sixty miles away, to hold meetings for two weeks in the Congregational Church, where I spent one week from Dec. 3d to the 10th. After the meetings in Coleraine, I expect to have a series of meetings in Belfast, and then go to London and Rome. The Lord has made it plain to me that he would have me again sound an alarm in the seven-hilled city. Pray for me.

OBEDIENCE.

BY O. R. WALLACE.

Human nature rebels at the thought of recognizing or obeying any power. Rebellion against God has been the [illegible] of the ages, and God has classed this sin with the darkest on record. While we are not to expect obedience on the part of the wicked world, we have every reason to suppose that the church of God are to be perfectly obedient to their divine Lord.

As a holy nation, they are to be a nation of obedient subjects. As a divine family, they are to be followers of God as dear children. And dear children are obedient children always. As a body the church is represented as the bride of Christ, recognizing him as her head. The history of the Hebrews is terribly marred by the record of their disobedience to God. And when reading the history of their sufferings, and our feelings of sympathy are stirred, we may forget, perhaps, that all the afflictive judgments which that people suffered, came upon them as a direct result of disobeying God.

God, as the Father of his people, is "too wise to err, and too good to do wrong." And all the disciplinary experience through which we, his children, pass is for the purpose of preparing us for life eternal. "We have had fathers of our flesh who corrected us, and we gave them reverence: shall we not much rather be in subjection unto the Father of spirits and live? For they verily for a few days chastened us after their own pleasure; but he for our profit, that we might be partakers of his holiness." Heb. 12: 9, 10.

Now in the light of this passage who cannot see that to obey God is to escape the rod of chastening; for God is more merciful than our natural fathers, and they would not chasten their children unnecessarily. Not that a person because a Christian is going to escape the ordinary experience of suffering incident to this state of things, but we are speaking of afflictive judgments. There can be but little doubt that in many cases, when God has undertaken to get the individual through to the kingdom, he has been compelled to strip them of property because of this idolatrous attachment to it.

Doubtless there will be many in the kingdom, who will praise God that he spoiled their idols in this world,—although the wreck of them was a cause of bitter grief at the time. How important that the things of this world, however precious to us, be held subject to the will of our Father? God is willing that his people should have the good things of this life, if they can have them without being spoiled by them. I have been made thankful many times that some can; but we have seen more cases of backsliding and disobedience on account of prosperity than any other cause.

There are but comparatively few that God can trust with too much earthly prosperity; they will not mind the Lord. It is doubtless true that if both sides of the experience of God's people were written up, we should see the result of a curious blending of virtues and faults, and perhaps those who shine brightest as Christians have passed through the most crucial tests. Christian character is found in the fire and on the anvil of practical experience, of self-denial, cross-bearing, self-crucifixion, and the mortification of the members which are upon the earth. Col. 3: 5.

We know of no better test of one's Christianity, than the degree of the spirit of obedience possessed. In vain we tune the sweetest songs, and talk the prettiest things, and repeat eloquent prayers, if the spirit is in us, which worketh in the children of disobedience. Eph. 2: 2. We are pained in our retrospection to see that we have been obedient in spirit only. Those whose names shine brightest, and whose memory is sweetest to the church are those who have been most obedient to God. Perfect godliness would be perfect obedience. It was told Saul that to obey is better than to sacrifice, and to hearken than the fat of rams. It is well for us to remember that God is not going to fill his kingdom up with people that will not mind him here, but those who have the spirit of obedience.

THE PRESENT AGE.

BY T. L. WAUGH.

"This know also, that in the last days perilous times shall come."—2 Tim. 3: 1.

Any one who reads the prophetic word, and contrasts it with the existing state of things in the church and world, cannot fail to see a very exact fulfillment of the inspired Word. We have only to look around us and acquaint ourselves with facts as they come within our personal observation, or as they are delineated by the public press, to see that sin and iniquity, crime, and every evil exist to an alarming degree. The picture is not overdrawn. The apostle has graphically portrayed the then future condition of church and state, and we see its striking fulfillment.

And yet there are those who tell us that the world is growing better. They say the light of science, and philosophy, and free religion, as they call it, is elevating the people to a higher plane. The idea of the world's conversion is blinding men's eyes to facts, and satan is beguiling them into the belief that the golden age is about to dawn. Blind leaders of the blind there are, but who shall boldly and fearlessly proclaim the truth? We are exhorted to "preach the Word"; if we fail to warn men of coming doom and point out the dangers of our times, showing the nearness of the coming of Jesus, the blood of souls will be required at our hands.

We are living in an age of salvation. Mercy is now extended to the sinner. Flee for thy life, if unprepared to meet thy God. Every conceivable influence is abroad to draw men down to ruin. Infidel principles prevail to an alarming extent. Professed teachers of the gospel of our Lord are lulling their hearers to sleep, telling them there is hope for sinners after Jesus comes. Nothing pleases satan better than this doctrine.

Brethren, beware of it. I have tested it by God's word and spirit. The age succeeding this is an age of judgment. We must be ready here, or be severed from the just then. So says Jesus. Will we believe his words? I do. God help us to sound the judgment message. "The Judge standeth at the door."

THINGS IN GENERAL AND SOME THINGS IN PARTICULAR.

BY J. F. ADAIR.

For the first time during the New Year I pen a few lines for the Crisis, which I regard as the best paper published. Long may it live to comfort the saints and carry light to those who sit in darkness and the shadow of death. How rapidly 1887 passed away. Ere we paused to think the days had flown, and herewith unknown dangers and ever increasing responsibilities, we are brought face to face with the New Year, 1888. Oh, Lord, grant us wisdom and grace for the responsibilities and duties awaiting us. This is a most opportune time for our people. God is setting before us open doors as never before, doors that no man can shut. It is now left with us to say whether these fields shall be occupied or not. To do this we must have both preachers and money. Thus all can have a part in this great work of preparing a people to meet Jesus at his coming. Who would not want a part in so grand and so noble a work.

If one has been blessed with the gift to preach, he ought to throw his entire strength of body and mind into that work. If another has been favored with means, it is no less his duty to use that means to help on the good work. We should always remember that we are laborers together with God. Our people were never so thoroughly aroused on the missionary question as now, and we predict a continued increase of interest on that line as time moves on. I see some are fearful that interest in foreign missions is liable to detract from home mission work, but I hardly think that will be the case. I am inclined to think the more our people give to the foreign mission cause the more they will have to give to assist the cause at home, "For there is that which giveth and yet increaseth." In my own experience I have found that the more I have done for the Lord, the more he has done for me. I notice in connection with the mission interest, that there is also manifest among us a growing and commendable desire to provide chapels in which the saints may more comfortably meet to worship God, and more successfully reach the unsaved.

Just as soon as a congregation is able to build they ought to build by all means. And it is not best to wait until the brethren all get through buying land and improving farms. If we do we will in all probability wait until we reach the world to come. I have known congregations to worship in schoolhouses or dingy old halls, with the plea that they were not able to build a house for the Lord, while at the same time, to my certain knowledge, there were members in those congregations who were buying land and improving farms every year more or less, without complaining of hard times. I have noticed in my experience with men, that some men who are courageous and pushing in their own business, become fearful and easily discouraged when brought face to face with the obligations of church work, and in a very serious manner dispose of the whole question by saying, "We can't do anything of the kind now." That idea is passed from one to another until it becomes general, and afterwards chronic, and then in all probability that people will be left to themselves; for the Lord helps most those who help themselves. In building churches however, we should guard against building too large and thereby having a lot of waste room on our hands, and also guard against making a church debt when such a thing is possible.

A congregation with a chapel of its own has a much better chance to build up and do permanent work, other things being equal, than a congregation with no certain place of worship. I can remember when building chapels was discouraged by certain good brethren. They said we had not time to do that kind of work. But time has proved that idea to be a mistaken one and also an unfortunate one. Like other people we learn as we grow older, and it is to be hoped that we will never get too old to learn. I was much pleased with Elder Munger's article in the Crisis of Jan. 4th on "Advancement, or walking in the Light." It was good. But that is only one of the many good articles from the pen of Bro. Munger. We hope that he, with all the old veterans, may live and work until the Life-giver shall come with crowns of glory for all who love his appearing and kingdom. Jesus is surely coming soon. I do not hesitate to preach the soon coming of our King. I preach it because I can prove it from plain scriptural facts, prove it beyond the reach of successful contradiction. But I have no definite time theories connected with this important question. For the good of the cause of truth I am inclined to think there has been quite enough time speculation in the past to answer all purposes. Stern, undeniable facts is what this age needs above everything else. We have them, and they should be kept before the people in all their power and beauty. Truth will cut its way through. Let us have facts.

COVETOUSNESS.

BY J. R. CLARK.

"Take heed, and beware of covetousness."—Luke 12: 15.

The spirit of covetousness is creeping all through the world, even into the church of God, and is one of the perils of the last days in which we live. "Covetousness is idolatry." It is a great sin, being classed with great crimes, such as murder, theft, adultery, and other immoralities. Yet who ever heard of a man being turned out of the church for covetousness? The man who swears, gets drunk, lies, steals, gets turned out of the church, but it is an uncommon thing to hear of a covetous man being turned out of the church in these days.

Paul bids the church not to keep company with a covetous man, not even to eat with him. The great apostle considered this sin of no small account. "He further says: "For this know, that no unclean person, nor covetous man . . . hath any inheritance in the kingdom of God." It is a terrible sin that cuts a man off, both in this life and the life to come. The apostle warns men against the error of Balaam, who was covetous and loved the wages of unrighteousness. He had a call from a certain king, being hired to curse Israel for so much money, if God would let him do it. But the Lord would not let him do it, making the dumb beast rebuke him. And when he got ready to curse Israel God twisted his mouth round and made him bless instead of curse. And at last he died as the fool dieth, without getting his salary.

Covetousness leads men to steal. Once there was a defeat of the armies of Israel. They fled before their foes. What was the cause? They learned, by inquiring of the Lord, that there was an accursed thing in the camp, and Achan was the man who had coveted a goodly Babylonish garment, two hundred shekels of silver, and a wedge of gold, and hid them in the earth in the midst of his tent. This sin of Achan was the cause of routing the whole host of Israel. The result was that this man was taken to the valley of Achor and there stoned to death, and his wealth given to the flames, and his name is left for a warning and a hissing to this day.

Through covetousness men will part with their dearest interests. Judas through covetousness sold his Lord for thirty pieces of silver. Covetousness is one of the most dangerous sins of the age. From Mt. Sinai the voice of God thundered against this mighty sin, saying, "Thou shalt not covet that which is thy neighbor's," etc. The more a covetous man gets, the more he wants and the meaner he becomes, and the less hope he has of being saved. The great apostle, in selecting officers for the church, would have only those who were blameless, "not greedy of filthy lucre, not covetous." Paul was a good man. He knew what it was to be hungry, and to be deprived of the comforts of this life, and what hardships were, from experience. Yet amid his sufferings and deprivations he says, "I have coveted no man's silver, or gold, or apparel; yea, yourselves know that these hands have ministered unto my necessities, and to them that were with me."

But the greatest example on record against covetousness is found in the life of Jesus, he who "was rich, yet for our sakes became poor, that we through his poverty might be rich." It was he who said, "Take heed, and beware of covetousness." We find covetous men everywhere, both in church and state, who are pledged for a certain sum of money to do the work agreed upon. A covetous man will accept of bribery, and will sell himself to the devil, or do anything for money. This curse runs all through the trade of the country at the present time. One can hardly buy a dime's worth of goods without being cheated. You get sand in sugar, and rotten apples at the bottom of the barrel with good ones on top. You get cheated in every way that men can make money.

One of the signs of the times is: "In the last days . . . men shall be . . . covetous." 2 Tim. 3: 2. "Woe unto him that gains an evil gain." Ill gotten wealth is a heavy load to carry. Zaccheus found it so, and when he became converted to God, and made restitution, then salvation came to his house. If we would be ready for the glorious appearing of our Lord, we must be free from the spirit of covetousness. Our thoughts and motives must be pure, and our lives worthy of imitation, being moulded by the Word and Spirit of God. A covetous man has an avaricious desire for wealth, and to obtain it at any cost and deprivation to himself and others. He seeks to obtain that which does not belong to him, and his greedy disposition is never satisfied.

For a more extensive definition of covetousness, watch the lives of men in all branches of trade and business capacity. At the same time keep a sharp eye to yourself, and pray the Lord to keep you from the spirit of covetousness. The only cure for this sin is to wash in the fountain and be made clean, repent and believe on Him who shall judge and reward every man as his work shall be. This is called a free country, and people can do about as they please. Yet the day is coming when every man will have to answer for doing as he pleases. We need divine help to keep us from the fascinations of money-making, to heap it up against the day of judgment. It is right to make money honorably, and to do good with it. The great mass of evil speculators are captivated with the almighty dollar. Truly we are living in perilous times, and it is becoming more so as we near the end. Let us all heed the admonition of the Saviour, "Take heed, and beware of covetousness."

LIFT UP THE STANDARD.

BY R. P. WOODWARD.

Some years ago a friend who was once a prominent advocate of conditional immortality, gravely advised me, as I was about to commence labor in a new field, to make less prominent the Bible doctrine of sin and death, and turn my attention more to the Christian evidences, the inspiration of the Bible, etc. He said, in effect, "The burning question to-day is not what is the condition of man in death, or the nature and duration of future punishment, but whether there be any revelation from God, or whether there be any God. The other questions are now being discussed in the churches, and have been largely taken out of our hands. They will be taken care of, and we can turn our attention to the issues between Christianity and infidelity. By taking this course you will gain a hearing in other churches, where infidelity already has a foothold; but if you make prominent the doctrines first mentioned, your sphere of labor will be circumscribed, and your usefulness hindered."

This advice was carefully considered, and with this result.

1. I see no evidence that the discussion of the biblical doctrines of the nature of man and the ground of our hope in a future life, has got into the churches to any great extent. There are many in the churches who hold the truth on these subjects, but they are for the most part silent, and not easily discovered among the multitude who follow the traditions of men. And the discussion of future probation, which now threatens to create a schism in one great denomination, without a hint on either side of a possible view which will, on one hand, relieve God of the imputation of inflicting eternal pain upon those who have not heard the gospel, and which will not, on the other hand, made meaningless the terrible words of Scripture respecting those who have "sinned without law"—and with an absolute refusal in certain quarters to allow this third alternative of the "trilemma" to be mentioned—this gives small encouragement to believe that our "special work" is about done.

2. I find it just as true now as it was twenty-seven years ago, when the teachings of the Bible on these points were thundered in my own ears, by the very person who gave me this advice,—then wandering on the quicksands of doubt,—with the effect of breaking the "spell" as nothing else could have done, that no more effective way can be found to shake the foundations of infidelity, than by proclaiming the Bible doctrines regarding sin, its consequence, death, and God's method of saving men from both. "All that a man hath will he give for his life"; and so long as the devil's first lie ranks higher than the words of the Son of God, so long as men consider the matter of life secure for the future, the Gospel of Life can never be presented to men as it ought to be.

3. I find that the Spirit of God cannot be bound. To one who has felt the effects of a false theory in producing doubt and darkness, and who knows the power of truth to make men free, the course advised means simply suppression of the truth, and spiritual death. Despite this advice I have been compelled to keep on in the good old way, unpopular though it may be. "Woe unto me, if I preach not the gospel," said Paul, and what is the gospel if it be not the good news of salvation from sin and death.

And with this experience before me, Bro. L. C. Welcome's article, "A Very Great Error," comes with special significance. It must mean that others are failing to declare "the whole counsel of God." And it moves me to protest earnestly against any such lowering of the standard. When an accredited and able minister can speak in D. L. Moody's school without arousing opposition in the evangelical ranks, simply because of his belief in conditional immortality,—though he spoke entirely on other subjects,—then perhaps it will look a little more as though our work was done.

Brethren of the ministry, this is a matter not to be lightly dismissed from our minds. Infidelity is growing like a venomous plant, and though atheism and denial of a future life may be found everywhere, the mass of those who reject the Bible, in this country at least, accept the dogma of man's natural immortality. And so long as they feel secure in that belief, and also suppose the Bible teaches the doctrine of eternal torment, they cannot be reached.

"Show me myself," is the prayer which once answered will be followed by the petition, "Show me thyself"; and if we can show men their utter helplessness by nature, we place them where they will quickly seek for that which they do not possess. I would be glad of the opportunity to preach Christ in the popular churches of the day. But rather than suppress one word of the message I bear to dying men from the great Life-giver, I would speak to small congregations in chapels and school-houses, where the multitude come not. And I believe with all my soul, that one sermon in such a place, giving the whole message, will do more for Christ and his cause, than a dozen sermons in our large churches, cut and trimmed to avoid "the offence of the cross."

And when I see the man of God, though fully aware of the terrible tide of infidelity that is rolling through the land, occupying his time dealing with the details and incidents of the subject, and neglecting this portion of revealed truth, I feel like shouting in his ears, "Throw away your penny pop-guns, your devices to conquer without hurting anybody, and draw out of God's ancient armory the omnipotent sword of the Spirit, which is the Word of God; and where now you slay your thousands you may slay your tens of thousands. Give the people the truth, and the whole truth, and the truth shall make them free."

May God help us all to see to it that we do as Paul did, "Shun not to declare the whole counsel of God."

IN THE TIME CALLED QUICKLY.

BY A. P. HYDE.

We are in the Saturday night of this world's history. Its six work days are almost ended, and everything is done in a hurry. Men are getting ready for the great Sabbath of rest, and do not know it; and it is with them as it was with the antediluvian world and Sodom, for they were very busy then in buying and selling, and "knew it not." All are very busy hurrying "to and fro," and can hardly find time to eat or sleep, they are in such a rush. And if you can get one to lend an ear for a moment, it is, "Oh, I am so weary," all tired out with their hurry in this quick time of the world. Men are in "haste to be rich," and have "pierced themselves through with many sorrows." They have "pushed things," and at last have gone to the insane asylum, or to an untimely grave. And the nations are rushing also; like the "rushing of mighty waters," like the waves of the sea surging to and fro preparing for war," for "all nations are to be shaken." For, "he is to strike through kings in the day of his wrath, and wound the heads over many countries."

And many are the inventions to help along in this quick time. One of the quick things is the telegraph. The Lord asked Job a question, and said, "Canst thou send lightnings, that they may go, and say unto thee, Here we are?" Job 38: 35. And Job said, "He directeth it under the whole heaven, and his lightning unto the ends of the earth." Job 37: 3. And so he has given man control of the lightnings to do his bidding in this quick time, and so the world is belted with a wire to answer that question. So while Rome is burning people can stand afar off and say, "Alas, alas, that great city." Another one of the inventions is the telephone. How handy it is. A merchant can step to the back part of his store and speak to another merchant in a distant city as face to face, and say, "Please send me a parcel of goods by the next express," and it is all done in a few moments of time in this quick age.

It says in Dan. 12: 4, that in the time of the end "many shall run to and fro," and in order to do so they must have some mode of conveyance to go quick in this quick time. So Nahum in the 2nd chapter and 4th verse tells us what will take place in the day of his preparation. "The chariots shall rage in the streets, they shall jostle one against another in the broad ways; they shall seem like torches, they shall run like the lightnings." So they make quick work of it. Therefore we have the cars to carry men "to and fro," in this quick time, and the word express does not seem emphatic enough, so the word lightning is prefixed to it, and it is called the "lightning express," using the prophet's words, "run like the lightnings." And then the steamships also help carry the "many" to and fro, and everything seems to be on the "double quick." Even the elements are all in commotion. Fire, wind, earth and water, yea, the whole creation is "groaning" in this quick time. And then there was a message to be given to the world in this quick time, and it is represented by an angel flying through the midst of heaven proclaiming it, saying, with a loud voice, "Fear God, and give glory to him; for the hour of his judgment is come." Rev. 14: 6, 7. I have heard this called the Advent or flying message.

And then again in Luke 14: 21, after all the excuses had been made, an order was given to "Go out quickly into the streets and lanes of the city, and bring in hither the poor, and maimed, and the halt, and the blind." And it was for the servants to make quick work of it, too, for the supper was all ready, and there was to be no tarrying time now, for the "King's business requires haste." And then he admonishes us to take heed to ourselves in this quick time, "lest coming suddenly he find us sleeping." For behind all this noise and confusion, this hurrying to and fro, is his coming; for he says, "Behold, I come quickly," and it will be as the "lightning cometh out of the east, and shineth even unto the west. So also shall the coming of the Son of man be," for it will come upon all the world as a snare, "when it falleth suddenly upon them." And then they are taken, for it is when men are very busy, and are taken up with the "cares of this life," that the snare comes, and it will be well with us if we are not found sleeping in this time of quickness.

WHAT IS IT TO BE BORN AGAIN?

BY C. W. LOW.

The subject of the new birth is one, to my mind, that is the least understood and comprehended of any subject within the whole range of Bible thought. And one reason why the subject is so little understood and so imperfectly comprehended, is because people do not reason upon it. It is the duty of all religiously inclined people to reason with God, and with each other. And they cannot reason upon this subject without careful study and examination, good common sense, and the plain word of God. I said that the new birth, or to be born again, is a subject of the greatest importance, a question of the highest moment. Jesus says, "Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God." Again he says, "Except a man be born of the water, and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God." Again he says, "That which is born of the flesh, is flesh; and that which is born of the spirit, is spirit." "Marvel not that I said unto thee, Ye must be born again."

Now there are a few logical results from the above statements of the Son of God. 1. When a man is born again, according to the above teachings, he is fully prepared to "see the kingdom of God." 2. When a man is born again, as the Saviour says he must be, he will be fully prepared to "enter into the kingdom of God." 3. When a man is born again, after the above pattern, he will be spiritual and immortal. 4. When a man is born again, as the above requires, he will be destitute of blood, because, "Flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God." Therefore, when they are born again their new-born life will not be a blood life, but a spirit life. For when they are born again, according to Christ's teachings, they are to not only see, but to enter into the kingdom of God. Therefore, they must be relieved of their blood and of their mortality. 5. This new birth is from two sources, first, the water, second, the Spirit. Water stands first, and whether this is to be understood literally or figuratively is a question of some importance. If it is to be understood literally, then it refers to our birth of the flesh. But if it is to be understood figuratively or representatively, then it refers to our symbolic birth of the water, our baptism.

The Spirit is second. The important feature of this is to find out whether it is literal or comparative. If it is comparative and mental and spiritual, then it may refer to our conversion; but if it be understood literally, then it refers to our birth of the Spirit at the coming of Christ, the literal change of our vile body from the mortal to the immortal, and from the corruptible to the incorruptible, a change from the blood life to the spirit life. It is the birth of a man, and not an element or principle in man, but man himself. As far as we have gone, this new birth lifts a man above anything that is natural or earthly or mortal. This new-born man does not need earthly food and drink to perpetuate his new life. He would require angel's food. This goes to show that Christians here on earth are not now in the new birth state, but simply on probation, on trial for it. For there is no one on probation for life but the true believer in Christ.

This shows also that the new birth is an independent act of God, done for us in changing our physical constitution, thereby introducing us into a new and spiritual existence. For a birth is the introduction of a being into existence, and not a simple change of relation to the same existence. Therefore, the time for a man to be born of the water is at his conversion, at the time when he repents and believes, when he is immersed in the name of the Father, and the Son, and the Holy Spirit. And the time to be born of the Spirit, is at the sound of the trumpet and the coming of Christ, and the resurrection of the dead. At that time "this mortal will put on immortality, and this corruptible will put on incorruption. This vile body will be changed and fashioned like unto Christ's glorious body." When man is thus "born of God," he cannot sin any more, neither can he die any more. Such are lifted far above the power of sin and death. Therefore, to be born again and to be properly fitted, mentally and physically, to enter into and to enjoy the kingdom of God, shows that such a birth cannot take place this side of the resurrection at the last day.

The Old Testament intimates that God's people will all be born "in one day," all "be born at once." See Isa. 66: 7, 8, 9. "For as soon as Zion travailed she brought forth her children." "When I have opened your graves, O, my people, and brought you up out of your graves, and shall put my Spirit in you, and ye shall live." Ezek. 37: 13, 14. If this new birth takes place at conversion, or anywhere this side of the coming of Christ and the resurrection, how is it possible for a righteous man to turn from his righteousness, and commit sin, and fall and be lost? Ezek. 18: 26. Or how could Paul say, "Take heed, brethren, lest there be in any of you an evil heart of unbelief, in departing from the living God." Heb. 3: 12. If the common faith in Christ is the new birth, or second birth, spoken of by the Lord, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob have not yet been born of the Spirit, and hence they are not fitted to enter into the kingdom.

All who were of faith under the law, and all who are the seed of Abraham by faith under the gospel will experience the birth of the Spirit at the same time. For the birth of the water is symbolic, and represents the birth of the Spirit which is a literal fact. For all true Christians, whether dead or alive, are a "natural body," and all true Christians, whether dead or alive, at the coming of Christ will be a "spiritual body." And when Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob are seen "in the kingdom of God," many professed Christians will be "thrust out." But none that have been born again will be, nor can be thrust out.

Be assured, dear reader, that if a man who was "born of the water and of the Spirit," in the sense that the Saviour speaks of, the evidence of the fact would be so palpable that it would be impossible for us to be mistaken. For such a person could not possibly look or act like a person who had not received such a birth.

The Bible in the Heart.—The Bible may be in the hand or house, and not in the heart. Physiologists say that food is never really in the body until it is in the blood, and to put it in there requires the process of digestion. The living bread of Christ must pass through the head and heart into the life-blood of character, before the tissues of the soul can receive spiritual life and growth. When the celebrated Grimshaw first found Christ, he told a friend that if God had drawn up his Bible to heaven and sent him down another, it could not have been newer to him. Yet the only difference was that between the Word in the hand and the Word in the heart; but how vast the difference!—Ex.

If we are content to walk on quietly or to wait in the path of duty, God will reveal his will to us when he thinks it good for us to know it. Till that time "patience is to have her perfect work."—Ex.

IS RIGHTEOUSNESS ADVANCING?

It would seem impossible that an intelligent survey of the present conditions of the human race should lead to the conclusion that truth and righteousness are really making headway against sin and evil. Yet many good people claim to see evidences that such is the case. And the first proof offered is: "The growing predominance of the Anglo-Saxon race."

But we must be allowed to ask, Is the Anglo-Saxon blood proof against sin and crime? Has not the Anglo-Saxon sword been plunged to the hilt in the bloodiest wars of modern times? Is not the Anglo-Saxon world practically under arms to-day? And the gigantic embezzlements, defalcations, bank robberies, and government plunderings in Anglo-Saxon communities cannot by paralleled in the history of man. In Anglo-Saxon countries not one in four of the inhabitants respect the house of God; the Sabbath is rapidly becoming a mere holiday; licentiousness is frightfully increasing; Anglo-Saxon divorces exceed in number and shamelessness those of semi-barbarous States; and homicide, infanticide and fratricide are looked for as daily news items. Those who teach that our world is growing better must furnish stronger proof of its christianization than is found in the virtue of Anglo-Saxon blood, or we shall be obliged to say in the words of Dr. Lyman Beecher, "Gladly would I believe in the world's evangelization, but sadly I read in the Holy Word, 'Evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving and being deceived."

But it is urged, further, that the morals of the race are steadily improving by means of "educational advancement." Do not all intelligent people know that the worst types of infidelity that have ever corrupted the world and threatened and alarmed the church have been and are now being developed under the very highest forms of educational culture? Our Anglo-Saxon colleges are the hot-beds of modern skepticism. Our Humes, Paines and Ingersolls sharpened their venemous tongues of fire against the Christian religion with the grace of Anglo-Saxon scholarship. Is it not openly and deploringly confessed, by the pulpit and the religious press, that Christianity has never before been assailed by so much learned criticism, force and eloquence as at the present moment? And of the great school of infidel thinkers and writers, the most noted and dangerous can boast an Anglo-Saxon Alma Mater. The fiercest assaults upon revelation are made in lands studded with Anglo-Saxon pulpits as thickly as the skies are with stars.

And the spread of Anglo-Saxon literature in heathen lands furnishes no relief to this sad picture. Of the 85,000 English, and the 110,000 American books sent into Japan last year a lamentably large fraction consists of skeptical and agnostic writings, against whose poisonous influences the missionaries have to contend. And in India even the lithographic presses of Germany and England are made to contribute to the spread of paganism by printing pictures of Hindu gods which are sold in Calcutta. One man has had printed 2,000,000 Hindu tracts at his own expense to distribute at the large fairs.

But it is still insisted that further evidence of our world's progress towards universal righteousness is apparent in the "discoveries and appliances of science—the power of the press, steam-locomotion, the telegraph, the telephone, etc." But those who hold this view are singularly oblivious to the fact that evil men can and do use all these "appliances" for wicked purposes much more freely and efficiently than they are used to disseminate Christian truth. The same art of printing that enables Bible Societies to scatter the Word of God over the lands, furnishes to infidelity in its thousand various shadings, and Spiritualism in its all-corrupting influences, the ready means for flooding the world with unchristian and licentious literature, until every home in the land is poisoned.

If all the "appliances of science" were dedicated to God and his gospel, there would be force in this reasoning; but the fact is they are devoted mostly to evil purposes and controlled by wicked men. So that increase of railroads, telegraphs, printing presses and telephones means more profanity, stock-gambling, bank-robberies, gigantic thefts, polygamy, corruption in trade, and general debauchery.

Many see, or think they see sure angury of the world's improvement and ultimate conversion in the "prevalence of civil and religious liberty." But, unfortunately for this hope, while the best forms of civil liberty inhibit plotting and treason against the State, it allows and protects all kinds of plottings against God and his Word, and public blasphemies of all that is held sacred by holy men. Under the rights of "civil liberty" blatant atheists traverse our Anglo-Saxon countries, corrupting the thoughtless masses with vile railings against the Bible and the God of the Bible. Religious liberty means not only freedom to pray and worship God, but also license to desecrate the Sabbath, denounce godliness, incite hatred of divine things, and poison all the streams of Christian and social virtue. Under protection of "religious liberty," "Tom Paine" assemblies and "Spiritualist seances" are held in many places every Lord's day, where their devotees are taught that "Christianity is a theology of blood"; "The Bible is a false witness"; "The great Physician is only a quack"; "The church is a disturber of the public peace," etc.

How striking and sad is the fact that all the popular methods of reasoning, to the effect that virtue and righteousness are relatively increasing, are based upon deductions from natural and scientific causes altogether, and not at all upon any teachings of God's Word; not upon any syllable of sacred prediction; not upon any intimation of Christ or inspired apostle; but wholly upon science, art, and the progress of civil liberty. If the leaders of popular thought would deign to look into the Bible, and inquire what the Lord God has said concerning the final history of our world, their fancy-wrought dreams of good times coming would be broken by the stern realities of increasing wickedness, to wind up with the awful scenes of the approaching judgment.

The appalling picture of legalized drunkenness, and the debauchery and blasphemy growing out of it, in all Anglo-Saxon cities of the world, putting to shame the better morals of many heathen communities, constitute a most humiliating disproval of the theory that the race is to be christianized by present appliances. It seems much more as though the voluptuousness and corruptions of the ancient seats of art and science are being reproduced in every modern Athens. It is the old story of pride, passion, lewdness, and all manner of wickedness keeping pace with, outrunning even, the growth of civilization and the progress of learning. Human wisdom has always failed to work righteousness. And all hopes of the world's moral regenesis brought about by the march of science and invention will prove illusive. As Luther said, "There is no amendment of our poor world to be expected." Our redemption must come alone from the bringing in of everlasting righteousness by the coming and kingship of the Son of God.

CANNOT SURRENDER.

"Toward the sunset of that long, bloody day, when the scarred veterans of fifty fights were summoned to lay down their arms, they cried out, "The Old Guards can die, but they cannot surrender."

That was sublime heroism for Napoleon and France. But from the stake and the gibbet, from the crackling faggot and the gleaming guillotine, from the dungeon and the rack, for twelve hundred and sixty years of bloody martyrdom comes to us the cry, "The soldiers of the cross can die, but they cannot surrender." That is heroism for truth and God.

Again the times that "try men's souls" are upon us. But it is not now the sword, dripping with the blood of the church. Not now the deathly grip of the Inquisition. No more tortures and beheading, but a smiling, beguiling, flattering foe; but none the less relentless and destructive. The blandishments and fascinations of the world have slain more Christians than the cruel tortures of Rome. The seductive arts of gay and frivolous society are more fatal than the Papal thumbscrew.

Real heroism is demanded now in those who mean to stand for the truth and Christ. Ordinary Christian courage is everywhere giving way before the terrible presence of compromise. Only Spartan fortitude will stand the test of these troublous times. Every disciple of Christ, who would endure to the end, must make the words of the Old Guard his motto: "We can die, but we cannot surrender."

Union—often another name for amalgamation—is a cunning snare of Satan just now. Error is ready to strike hands with truth on some middle ground; as though there were a middle ground between the true and the false. Satan is willing to take passage on the Ship of Zion, if she will carry her colors at half-mast. False union is concealed surrender.

The apostolic church went down in the Constantinian compromise. Protestant Christendom is sinking into the arms of modern intellectualism, secularism, Spiritualism and Romanism. He who will defend primitive doctrine and godliness in these times needs the courage of a martyr. No compromise, no surrender, must be the battle-cry now.

THE NEXT WORLD.

This world is shared alike by saint and sinner, but the next world will contain only holy ones—not a single sinner will enter, nor any man possessing the dying nature, for a double change will be experienced by every adult who shall be there preparatory to entering: a change from carnality, and from mortality. Jesus was not dealing in blind enigmas when he said: "The children of this world marry, and are given in marriage: but they which shall be accounted worthy to obtain that world [after the anastasis just mentioned by him], and the resurrection from the dead, neither marry, nor are given in marriage: neither can they die any more: for they are equal unto the angels, and are the children of God, being the children of the resurrection." Luke 20: 34–36. The word (aion, or age) here mentioned by the Saviour, is not only made to succeed this age, but is also chronologically located subsequent to the resurrection epoch, instead of being a world existing in some other realm—an age beyond the resurrection, and subsequent to the present age.

1. The next world begins with the next age, for it is the next age; and the next age can not begin till this age closes; so the next world is not a world of spirits, for this world reaches to the resurrection, when, as all admit, spirits and bodies will be united; so subsequent to this event there can be no disembodied spirits to occupy any world, and only resurrected people remain, of whom only those shall enter who "shall be accounted worthy."

To escape the force of this argument, and to make it appear that the next world already exists (being blind to the fact that the next world is the next age), it is sometimes claimed that the resurrection—the anastasis—simply signifies the future state, the state of the soul after death, the soul being resurrected from the body, instead of having the body resurrected from the grave. If Jesus really taught that kind of a resurrection—a resurrection of the soul at the hour of death—he certainly made bungling work in setting forth his theory to the Sadducees; besides, the Sadducees must have misapprehended his views of the resurrection, and Jesus failed to inform them of their misconception of his views, while charging upon them two other errors. They had accosted him with the case of the woman who had been seven times reduced to widowhood, thinking thereby to invalidate his theory of the resurrection. After describing the seven successive funerals of this lady's seven husbands, these Pharisees say to him, "Last of all the woman died also"; and then add: "In the resurrection therefore, when they shall rise [not when they did rise], whose wife shall she be [not whose wife is she] of them?" If they had understood Jesus to teach a disembodied resurrection, they certainly did not attempt to antagonize that theory, but struck against a future resurrection, instead of one due at death. "Jesus answering, said unto them, Do ye not therefore err, because ye know not the Scriptures, neither the power of God? For when they shall rise [not when they did rise] from the dead, they neither marry nor are given in marriage." Mark 12: 23–25. The resurrection Jesus taught was not due at death, and the world to succeed it, was the age subsequent to the present age.

2. This age or world is now associated with the kosmos, where the wheat and the tares are growing: "the field is the world [kosmos], and the harvest is the end of the aion," age; not the end of the kosmos, for after the tares are disposed of, the "kingdoms of this world [kosmos]" will have "become the kingdom of our Lord, and of his Christ: and he shall reign forever and ever." Revision of Rev. 11: 15. The kosmos is to have no end, but after its renovation, is to have another age, coupled with a kingdom that shall have "no end." In that world—the coming dispensation—no tares will grow; the final harvest will exterminate the crop, and end the career of the sower. As the flood of water was the transition point between the antediluvian age, and postdiluvian age, so will the coming flood of fire be the transition point between this age and the next age.

After affirming that "the harvest is the end of the world [aion, age]," Jesus goes on to say: "As therefore the tares are gathered and burned in the fire; so shall it be in the end of this world [aion, age]. The Son of man shall send forth his angels, and they shall gather out of his kingdom all things that offend, and them which do iniquity: and shall cast them into a furnace of fire: there shall be wailing and gnashing of teeth. Then shall the righteous shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of their Father." Matt. 13: 38–43. Here Jesus represents this age as closing up with fire—"a furnace of fire"—in which the wicked shall meet their sin-bought fate. Mark! the fire is not due in the commencement of another age, but rather in "the end of this world," or age; so not a single sinner can get through the fire into the next world. There is no future world for sinners—they perish in the close of this age—and the next world, or age, will be coupled with the "new heavens and new earth," on the other side of the coming ocean of fire. The day of wrath comes in the last days of time, and not in eternity. Judgment is due in "the last day"—even before the fourth beast is "given to the burning flame." Dan. 7: 10, 11. The "furnace of fire" is positively located in the "end of this aion"—not over in another age. The beast and the false prophet will continue alive till the "lake of fire" appears, when they shall be engulfed. Rev. 19: 20.

The sinner will have a "resurrection of damnation," but that will be in the end of this age, when the judgment is due: "The word that I have spoken, the same shall judge him in the last day." John 12: 48. The "last day" is not the first day of a new age. Hell is not the next world, nor in the next world; it is to be in the last end of this age. Jesus sets forth this fact by giving the practice of the fisherman who encloses a school of fish in his net, draws it to shore, saves the good, and casts the bad away, and then adds: "So shall it be in the end of the world," or age, (Matt. 13: 47–49), and having before spoken of "a furnace of fire," he now says, "Shall cast them into the furnace of fire"—the same "furnace of fire" mentioned before, it being twice restricted to "the end of the age," and thus made distinct from the next world. "The day of the Lord" comes in this age, and finishes up rebellion, and engulfs earth in its fiery flood, beyond which looms up "the new heavens and new earth wherein dwelleth righteousness." This is the next world—the world to come, the promised paradise restored, the everlasting kingdom, for which we pray: "Thy kingdom come."

The hell of the Bible comes after the day of judgment arrives, and the Bible location of the judgment is at the last day. Mythology and tradition conflict with the Bible in placing it at the hour of death. Says Elliott, the author of "Life in the Holy Land": "On the walls of one of the temples near Thebes exists a sculpture of a judgment scene. 'Osiris seated on his throne awaits the arrival of those souls which are ushered into Amenti. . . . Thoth, the god of letters, arrives in the presence of the king of hades, bearing in his hand a tablet on which the actions of the deceased are noted down, while Horus and Aroeris are employed in weighing the good deeds of the judged. . . . At length arrives the deceased.'"

Here we have authority from the ancient heathen in Egypt for placing the judgment at death. Plato, a heathen philosopher, also says: "When the dead arrive at the place to which their demon leads them severally, first of all they are judged, as well those who have lived well and piously, as those who have not. And those who appear to have passed a middle kind of life, proceeding to Acheron, and embarking in the vessels they have, on these they arrive at the lake, and there dwell, and when they are purified, and have suffered punishment for the iniquities they may have committed, they are set free."—Haynes' Antiquity, p. 777.

Here we not only have the true origin of the theory of a judgment at death, but likewise the foundation of the Catholic notion of purgatory. Both theories were, by them, taken from the heathen, and both were remodeled by them; finally the Protestants come along and adopt the revised theory of the heathen concerning judgment at death, but reject the revised theory of purgatory. But the one has just as good authority as the other; but both are in conflict with Scripture. (To be continued.) W. S.

WESTERN ITEMS.

The Western Board of the Mission Society has received a fair influx of funds for a few weeks past—Bro. N. W. Wait of New York, and the Eastern Board furnishing over half of the amount, however—but not enough to meet the demand. Bro. Wait is the only $50 man in the list, and he an Eastern man. We have several Western men better able to give $100. Where are they? They may have forgotten our Treasurer's address. Send to H. Pollard, Alexis, Ill., please don't forget this time; and if you cannot send the money now, send your pledge payable during the year, that we may know how to shape the mission work, in making plans.

Our Wisconsin Welsh brother—John Powell—has long been desirous that a missionary be sent to Wales with the Advent message, offering $50 toward the expenses. We are happy to learn through Bro. J. Jones of Belfast, Ireland, that Eld. Grant has decided to visit Wales with the gospel of the kingdom soon—probably in February. Are there not other Welsh friends in the West, or elsewhere, who will aid in this work? Ho! to the rescue! Don't hold back your funds a day longer, ye Welsh brethren; for now is your time to help Wales. Aid from others will not be rejected; but let every Welshman in the West now wake up, and send funds for this mission of Bro. Grant to Wales, at once. Direct to E. M. Andrews, Chelsea, Mass., stating that it is for Eld. Grant. W. S.

IS SIN ABATING?

The Chicago Daily Tribune, at the beginning of 1888, takes a retrospective view of one kind of crime—murder—and presents the following figures: "The total number of murders committed in the country, as reported by telegraph to The Tribune, is 2,335, as compared with 1,499 in 1886, 1,808 in 1885, 1,465 in 1884, 1,697 in 1883, 1,467 in 1882, and 1,265 in 1881."

Another significant note reads thus: "The number of legal executions during the year was smaller than it has been for many years, being but 79, as compared with 83 in 1886, 108 in 1885, 123 in 1884, 107 in 1883, 121 in 1882, and 90 in 1881, though the number of murders has greatly increased."

From the foregoing testimony, it appears that seven years ago there were only about half as many murders committed as during the past year, but out of this smaller number of murderers there were eleven more executed than last year. The guilty get exempted more easily of late; but crime increases rapidly. Is this a sign that the world is being converted? Only think of it: nearly 50 per cent more murder committed last year than seven years before, and over 50 per cent less execution for the crime. And yet men insist that the world is improving. This ratio of improvement would soon make Sodom blush. W. S.

THE HOLY CONVOCATION.

The meeting was most excellent from the beginning to the end. The oneness taught in John 17: 21–23, and the unity spoken of in the 133d Psalm were in spirit manifest in all the services. The preaching was earnest, solemn, and full of joyful expectation. Nearly all expressed themselves as believing that Christ's coming was an event very near at hand, some thinking that he will come inside of three years. The meeting was more than up to our expectation. Our own heart was made glad to meet and greet the pioneers, also the younger volunteers in Christ's service. I think it is safe for me to say to the scattered flock, who will be interested to know about the meeting, that it was a profitable meeting, and that the many attendants went away feeling that it had been good for them to be present.

The forty letters received from the brethren and sisters who were pioneers in the cause were very interesting, and expressive of hope that Jesus was soon to come, urging faithfulness unto the end. May the Lord bless all the elderly brethren and sisters, especially those who are not able to go to the house of God, also those who are isolated. May each and all be ready to greet the Saviour when he shall come "with ten thousand of his saints, to execute judgment upon all," when "he shall come to be glorified in his saints, and to be admired in all them that believe." "Blessed hope and glorious appearing"! We expect it, we love it, we long for it, we look for it, we are preparing for it. Come, and come quickly. Your Bro. in expectation, H. H. Tucker.

WHY I TAKE "THE WORLD'S CRISIS."

1. Because it is a Christian newspaper, giving the important secular news of the world, condensed, as well as the religious news from all quarters, thus showing the signs of the times.

2. Because it is one of the best preachers of the gospel of Christ, furnishing us weekly with the best thoughts of the most able and pious to edify and comfort.

3. Because it takes the Bible for its creed, and therefore is not afraid to present and compare different views held by Christians, thus making it very instructive, and enabling us to prove different views by the Bible. Thess. 5: 21.

4. Because it has the weekly testimony of live Christians, bearing witness to the grace of him who has said, "Lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world;" also the best of Christian writings by different authors advertised.

5. Because, when we have read it we have this good to give to others to read, and thus help others to a knowledge of the truth. And in this way even the weakest branch of the "true vine" may be a successful preacher of the gospel, and thus help in carrying the good tidings of the kingdom of God into "all the world."

Now, dear reader, will you sacrifice $1.50 per year for this weekly visitor, and do with it as above stated." A. J. Starge.
Hutchins, Wis.

OUR EDUCATIONAL INTERESTS.

We are pleased to know that the subject of our educational interests as a people is keeping to the front. Bro. Pollard, who is a member of our Advent Christian Association Board of Education, has given us in a recent Crisis the vote taken by the Illinois Conference, with his appended approval. Let other Conferences follow in the line of this one, and let our brethren who are interested and have the means send in their pledges, and let the work move forward. There are places already where, if a school can be located there, a liberal donation will be given. We need schools East and West, and we have as able men and women to take charge of such schools and be on the Board of Instructors as there are in the country, and they are thorough Adventists too. Let arrangements be made at once. Do not let us delay longer. We should open one or more schools the coming spring. Let all who will send to such schools or donate money for buildings, rents, etc., write to the subscriber. L. C. Mc Kinstry,
Chairman of Board of Education, Box 3, Haverhill, Mass.

THE GENERAL BIBLICAL INSTITUTE.

As a new, fresh interest is being awakened in this school of home theological study and literary course reading, we would say that a new term of the course will commence soon. Let all who have questions for examination on hand answer and send them in, and all who wish to join write us at once for information. We wish to commence the new term about March 15th, for a three months term.

L. C. Mc Kinstry, Principal, Box 3, Haverhill, Mass.

NEW LECTURES.

On account of much new material which cannot well be omitted, and in accordance with the advice of many friends, I have divided my lecture on "The Origin and Destiny of the Earth," and shall hereafter present this subject in two lectures instead of one. And by the use of new apparatus, and the introduction of many new and interesting tests, illustrating the facts presented, the subject will be more instructive than ever. Brethren who wish to arrange for these lectures will bear this change in mind when they write. Address E. P. Woodward, Bridgeton, Me.

DEATH'S DOINGS.

BY L. BOUTELLE.

It is with sadness that I read in our weekly issue of the World's Crisis the continual decease or falling asleep in Jesus of those of like precious faith, who have been long looking and loving the appearing of our Lord Jesus Christ. The past year I have attended the funerals of four disciples whose hope took hold of the sweet expectation of living to see the coming of the one in whom they trusted for redemption to immortality and life eternal. Every issue brings sadness to many hearts, as they read the obituary notices, especially to the preacher who has the flying angel's message to deliver, and thus has become acquainted with many in sweet fellowship. And to see them falling by the hand of death brings the tear and a sigh for the Lord to come and swallow up death in victory. How gladly would we welcome such a day when tears would be wiped from all faces.

The last Crisis chronicled the death and burial of our beloved Sr. Stoddard, one of our most efficient Advent preachers, she commenced when young and has been a faithful worker in harmony with her convictions of duty. I remember well when she was Lucy Hersey, in the early days of Adventism, with her parents and uncle Lewis Hersey who was prominent as a writer in Advent papers of '43 and '44. When the Hardwick Baptist meeting-house was engaged for a meeting of the lovers of Jesus' coming, when we all assembled and the key was lost so we could not get in, and we preached on the steps of the meeting-house in the evening, Lucy Hersey was there, and at the remaining meetings that were held in a private house in the neighborhood. Her companion in this blessed work was there, Sr. Payne, afterwards Sr. Higgins. From this time till her last sickness she has been unwearied in her labors of love for the perishing, by sounding the sweet message of her coming Lord in many of the New England States. She was a true and faithful messenger of our Lord Jesus Christ, and gave full proof of her ministry while doing the work of an evangelist. But she sleeps; blessed sleep, while many hearts bleed on hearing of her death. But like the apostle, she has fought the good fight and finished her course and kept the faith, and is now waiting her crown of life.

Correction.—The age of D. J. Ames, whose obituary was recently published in the Crisis was 65 years, 5 months and 16 days.

THE CALLS FROM MACEDONIA.

From the highways and hedges of this world of sin, come the wailing cries for help. Wherever there is sin there is trouble and sorrow and want. No human being can be satisfied and happy while bound in the shackles of sin, and possessed with conscious guilt. He seeks happiness but he finds it not.

"Like the rough sea that cannot rest,
He lives devoid of peace;
A thousand stings within his breast

He wanders here and there, chasing shadows and following vanities year after year, and often wears out a precious life all to no purpose; until near the close of a stormy life he does what he ought to have done in childhood's hour, lays his tired soul and body at the Redeemer's feet, and sweetly finds the "rest that remains for the people of God." All through this world are these lost, sad, and homeless ones. These are the ones Christ "came to seek and save." The world offers its charms. The flesh enchains and debases. The devil makes it his special mission to ruin and destroy.

O, what can be done to rescue these prisoners who feel their chains and long to throw them off? Can we not go ourselves or send some one to set these captive souls at liberty? Even now, I hear their tender pleadings, from humble prairie homes, from river valleys, from anxious parents, from new-made towns and cities, cursed by rum and every species of sin. Shall I deny myself to help them find the way to Jesus? Or will I wait until all my own wants, real or imaginary, are fully supplied? Have we ever learned that most beautiful lesson, that it is "more blessed to give than to receive?"

Lord, we hear the calls. We expect to go through blinding snows and driving winds. We gladly leave all and find some scattered blood-bought souls who "have nowhere else to go," but unto Jesus. May the great Shepherd go with us. May the prayers of the faithful follow us. May the ever blessed Spirit direct the work and bring us all home by and by to the rest and reward of life eternal at Jesus' coming. Philo Hitchcock.

CHURCH NEWS.

Bro. Stockman:—Remembering that I am always interested in news from the churches, it has occurred to me that a word from this city might be of interest to some. Receiving in December, a call from the church in Rochester, N. Y., to settle as its pastor, I consented to come and spend a season in gospel work, filling only the place of acting pastor until we come to know more of each other. I am not in favor of hasty marriages, nor of hurried and incautious engagements between churches and pastors; so at the present we are all trying to do the Lord's work, and at the same time getting acquainted with each other.

Leaving my family in the East, with the Lord and kind friends, I arrived here early Sabbath morning, Jan. 8th. I found a good congregation of attentive, appreciative listeners, whose cordial friendly greeting made me feel that I was among the Lord's children, and in the house of my friends.

The church here seems to have passed through many vicissitudes. Prosperity and adversity have, in succession, lightened and shadowed their pathway, like the changing play of sunshine and storm on a summer day. From the experiences of the past, joyful and sad, the present church has emerged, in some respects weakened, in others strengthened. The membership is not large, but apparently united and of one accord. The congregations are fair, but not as large as we hope to see them. The Sabbath School is especially interesting, and is prospering, though we hope to see it enlarged. The attendance last Sabbath, however, was above eighty.

The church, after a long experience of change and inconvenience from worshiping in halls, last year purchased a lot near the centre of the city and erected a nice, tasty, and convenient chapel, which now affords a home which all can appreciate. God's blessing on a united and earnest effort is the only explanation of this success; for the church was not strong financially for a five thousand dollar undertaking. On the whole, I believe the church, with its central location, and with a home of its own, is prepared for a steady, permanent growth. With God's blessing, it only remains for all to unite in earnest, consecrated effort for the upbuilding of the church, and for the salvation of souls. Rochester is a fine city, with, as a leading paper claims, 130,000, inhabitants. Though clothed in its gloomy winter garb, yet its broad tree-lined avenues and stately mansions are a prophecy of its beauty in summer.

The city boasts of one of the finest art galleries in the country, and its business blocks are among the best. One rises above the street to a height of eleven stories, and with its basements has thirteen floors. It is a city of churches, but, preeminently, one of beer and rum-shops. The first of the natural attractions about the city is the falls of the Genesee river near its center. Here the river plunges in a perpendicular fall ninety-five feet, and is a miniature Niagara. But though the beauties of nature and art abounds, sin seems to abound still more. Pray for us that grace may "much more abound." F. L. Piper.
Rochester, N. Y., Jan. 24th, 1888.

Heroic School Teachers.—There isn't much to say about the heroic school teachers who are stifled by the breath of Dakota blizzard, as they seek to pilot their little ones to a haven of safety, but the memory of such faithful women will be green even after man has discovered means to avert the blizzard itself. Mary Connell, a school teacher near Cavour, started home with two of her pupils, a boy and girl. The boy left them and perished. Miss Connell put her dress folds about the little girl and made her walk all night sheltering her charge with her body. They were found next morning alive, but terribly frozen. Another teacher, Miss Jacobson, near Stolof, started home with a little girl and both perished. When found Miss Jacobson was crouched in a little hollow in the ground with her arms about the little girl and her dress skirt was wrapped about her. Her own bonnet was off her head and her hand clutched her dress at her throat, but there was a smile on her face. Two children, a boy and a girl of Joseph Hutchinson, near Gary, were lost going home from school. Twenty-five men at once started on a search for them and the mother couldn't be kept from going along. The poor woman was with the party who found them. They were lying close together and the boy had his sister's hands between his own.—Sel.

☞ Read and Remember. KEEP A COPY.

Keep a copy of all important letters, and especially of all articles designed for publication. If you have not time to correct your manuscripts, keep them at home till you find time. They are safer in your hands than in an editor's. When you send anything for publication do not expect to see it again. You might as well expect an editor to hunt up a last year's snowflake, as a letter or article that came months ago, and which is forgotten, destroyed or buried beneath the flood of matters that come pouring in upon him day after day.

"But cannot an editor return an article which he does not publish?" Certainly, provided you wish it returned the same day, and without being read. But if you want him to read it he must have time, say from six weeks to ten years: and by that time he will probably have so many impatient letters to answer about that "missing manuscript," that he will not be likely to find time to look for it or examine it. Keep a copy, and save trouble.

Editors like to receive appropriate articles, but to ask them to read, preserve, and return articles which they do not want, never asked for, and cannot use, is to ask them to consume their time and strength in fruitless labors, to the neglect of their own proper duties. So, good friends, write all you please, but be sure and keep a copy.—Sel.

SECULAR NEWS.

Foreign.

Dublin, Jan. 26. A banquet was given to William O'Brien at Mallow this evening. Canon Wigmore presided. The archbishop of Cashel and Messrs. Davitt, O'Connor and others sent letters regretting their inability to be present. Mr. O'Brien was presented with a gold-mounted medallion in the shape of a heart, composed of bullets extracted from the bodies of the Mitchellstown martyrs. In a speech, Mr. O'Brien said that no man living, except Mr. Parnell, could induce him to expose himself to the glare of publicity that had resulted from his recent action. His brightest earthly reward was the affection and sympathy of his countrymen, and the knowledge that they had undergone, and were willing to undergo, much more than he for the sake of their country. He paid a tribute to the heroism of Messrs. Hooper and Lane. He himself, he said, had nothing but liberty to lose, but they had been separated from their homes and their children, and had had to encounter hundreds of anxieties and sacrifices that would have daunted other men a thousand times more than the mere discomforts of a prison. He attended the banquet against his doctor's orders, he said, and he must reserve himself for the great battle in Parliament.

Dublin, Jan. 26. Mr. Wilfred Blunt has been suffering from rheumatism for the past three days, owing to his cell being unheated. It is alleged that the prison officials refused to permit him to go to the infirmary.

Mr. Cox, the Nationalist member of Parliament who was arrested in London, is in a cell in Ennis jail. The stone floor and walls of the cell are reeking with moisture, and the window frame has rotted from the effects of the damp. Mr. Cox was compelled to stuff a muffler in a hole in the frame to exclude the bitter wind.

The Donegal peasants are arming, and threaten to destroy all the bridges in the country. Troops are marching to Donfanaghy to preserve the peace.

The trial of Fr. McFadden will begin Saturday.

Victoria, B. C., Jan. 26. Up to 10.30 P. M. yesterday, the bodies of 22 whites and 22 Chinese had been taken out. There then remained 9 whites and 19 Chinese in the mine, making 71 persons who perished—31 whites and 41 Chinese. Every individual in the east slope, where the explosion occurred, was killed. In the west slope the explosion did not penetrate further than to make a severe concussion which affected some severely, but the after damp rushed in. However, by the presence of mind exhibited in immediately repairing the fan, the air current was restored and many lives saved. The resistless force of the explosion is proved by the manner in which the eight-inch pipes were snapped in two. Heavy timbers were reduced to splinters, while one of the iron cages was blown completely out of the shaft. A Belgian miner was stripped of every vestige of clothing, while the mutilation of the bodies proves that the terrific force played with them as with feathers.

Domestic.

Springfield, O., Jan. 26. An extensive and systematic coal steal has been discovered at Bainbridge, O., a small town on the Ohio Southern railroad. A carload of coal would at times disappear in a single night, and the peculations became so extensive that the railroad company employed detectives to unearth the thieves. The result has been the arrest of fifteen prominent citizens of Bainbridge, including the marshal, hotel proprietor, and a Presbyterian preacher. Detectives say that half of the citizens of the town are implicated in the steal. The peculations amount to many hundreds of dollars, and the extent of them may be imagined when it is known that, although coal is universally used in Bainbridge, not a single carload has been billed to a resident of that place this winter.

Omaha, Neb., Jan. 17. Mr. J. H. Ayer of Ord, Neb., one of the secretaries of the State Board of Transportation, told an interesting story to-day of the pluck and good judgment exhibited by a young lady school teacher of Valley county during the recent storm. When last Thursday's blizzard came up the teacher, Miss Minnie Freeman, who is still in her teens, was at the little schoolhouse of Myra Valley District with thirteen pupils, ranging in age from six to fifteen years. About an hour before the time of dismissal, the blizzard, which swept across the level prairies of Nebraska with a fury which can hardly be conceived by those who have never experienced it, struck the schoolhouse with such force as to tear the door from its hinges. Another terrific gust struck the building, and in the twinkling of an eye carried away the roof, leaving the frightened little ones exposed to the elements. The time for prompt action had arrived, but the plucky teacher was equal to the emergency. She gathered her pupils together, and, securing a coil of strong, heavy twine, began with the largest one and tied them all together by the arms, three abreast. Taking the youngest in her arms she tied the end of the twine around her own body and, with all the words of encouragement she could muster, started out into the furious storm. Selecting her way carefully the brave girl led her little charges through snow-drifts and the blinding blizzard, and after a wearisome journey of three-quarters of a mile the little band reached the threshold of a farm-house and were taken in.

It is estimated that there are in the United States 40,000 Indian children.

A BOOK FOR EVERY CHRISTIAN!
Buried Cities Recovered; Or, Explorations in Bible Lands.
BY REV. FRANK S. DeHASS, D. D.
Late United States Consul at Jerusalem.

The latest, the most authentic, the most readable book published on Egypt, Palestine and the Orient; the fulfillment of ancient prophecies as shown by the light of modern discoveries; a corroborative history of the Bible found written on stone; the atheist and skeptic defeated on their own ground. Nearly two hundred Illustrations from original Photographs and Sketches. Fine paper, neat binding, clear type.

Ten Reasons why this Book should be in every Christian Household in the Land.

1st. It is a book which lends an interest to the reading of the Holy Bible that no other book written can equal.

2d. It is written by a man who tells of what he has himself seen and who lived among the scenes he so graphically describes; whose life has been devoted to the study of "Bible Lands," and whose great knowledge enables him to give testimony absolutely correct.

3d. The book contains, in a pleasing yet concise form, information which the student would have to consult a dozen books to find elsewhere.

4th. It contains information which can be found in no other book published.

5th. The illustrations have the merit of being not only beautiful, but accurate, many of them having been taken from photographs brought by the author from Palestine.

6th. It is universally recommended by the clergymen of all denominations.

7th. In printing particular care has been taken to make the type large and clear, so that to the sick, to elderly people and to children it is especially valuable.

8th. It enables everybody at small cost to visit the oldest, grandest and most wonderful ruins on earth.

9th. It contains the only description ever written in modern times by one who has visited and lived among the wild Arabs of Eastern Palestine.

10th. It is an absolute necessity to the Sunday School teacher, to the Bible scholar, and to everybody who wants properly to understand the Holy Scriptures.

6000 YEARS OF GENERAL HISTORY
made easy to remember by
ADAMS' HISTORICAL CHART.

ON ROLLERS, linen-mounted, entire, adapted for attachment to Wall or Blackboard. $15.00.

PORTFOLIO FORM, in half binding, the Chart linen-mounted, and folded to leaf as a book, capable of extension. $15.00.

BOOK FORM, in cloth, the Chart paper-mounted, folded and bound, not extended. $10.00.

The above to be sent by express.

The object of Adams' Chart is to Picture History; to so arrange and tabulate the subjects of history that Men, Events and Nations may be located in time, by being seen in their positions on the Chart, as the School Atlas locates places; to enable the reader to readily ascertain the contemporaneous events of the whole world, decade by decade, and century by century, throughout all historic time, by simply tracing the dated line across the face of the Chart. The march of fifty-nine centuries is delineated, and the great transactions of the world—national, civil, military, religious, maratime, architectural, inventive and literary—with the advent of great men, all are pictorially represented in their time relations, so that an accurate outline of history may be rapidly and easily acquired.

"VIEWS AND REVIEWS."
ANOTHER VALUABLE BOOK BY REV. J. H. PETTINGELL, A. M.

Mr. Pettingell's book, "The Unspeakable Gift," has been called the best ever published on Conditional Immortality, and was supposed to be his last. It has called forth many questions, and some perversions, and some reviews. Mr. P. has been from time to time giving replies, corrections of perverted statements, and more detailed statements of the minor doctrines and points involved in the great central truth of immortality and eternal life through Christ only, in the press in Europe and America. These he has gathered up, to which several sermons, addresses, and letters to distinguished bodies and persons have been added, and put in a book for the benefit of all who may desire to see all sides of the truth in contrast with the ideas of those who have failed to understand this subject. Those who think the objections which have been urged against these truths unanswerable, may have an opportunity to see how futile they are when examined by the scriptural light as shown in this new book. 501 pages, beautifully bound in cloth. Published by I. C. Wellcome. Price, $1.00.

ROMANISM UNMASKED.
Its Revelations are Terrible Indictments of Popery.

FIFTY YEARS IN THE CHURCH OF ROME.
BY FATHER CHINIQUY.

Truly vivid, fascinating, and tragic. No history like it since Luther.

There is no book upon the Romish controversy so comprehensive as this. It is a complete picture of the inner workings, aims and objects of Popery. It is from the experience of a living witness, and challenges contradiction. It is a large but very valuable work, and is fast becoming a standard authority. No lover of his country should remain ignorant of its contents. A handsome volume of 832 pages, printed on clear type, on fine tinted paper. It is bound in strong cloth, marbled edges, and gilt stamp on side and back. Contains two portraits (one representing him in priestly robes) of the venerable Author.

New edition just out. Reduced to $2.25. Postage 20 cts. extra when sent by mail.

THE PRIEST, THE WOMAN, AND THE CONFESSIONAL.
Terrible, but True Revelations.
BY FATHER CHINIQUY.

To understand the evil results which arise from the practice of Auricular Confession, it is necessary that the testimony of a reliable witness be given. Such is that of the author, who held prominent positions in the priesthood for many years. The book has had a mission for good, and has awakened a desire amongst all classes of the people to unearth the iniquities and abominations connected with this doctrine, and hold them up to the light of day, that the people may see that there is but One to whom we must confess, and he is not a Romish priest.

Over 30,000 copies have been sold in this country, and the book has been translated into many languages, and is having an enormous sale. 296 pages 8vo, with portrait of the Author.

Regular price $1.00. Reduced to 75 cts. Postage 10 cts. extra when sent by mail.

ROMANISM, THE DANGER AHEAD.
The Reason why a good Roman Catholic cannot be a good citizen of this Republic.
BY A. J. GROVER.

In this pamphlet of over a hundred pages the writer has given to the people of America statements of facts and figures which they will do well to reflect upon. The prospect for the future of the United States is not encouraging. Too much cannot be said or written against the evils of Romanism. Let this book have a wide circulation. Price: Paper 40 cts. Reduced to 25 cts. postpaid. Sold at the Crisis Office.

Selected by Sr. Dymon for the Jubilee Meeting in Boston.

A SONG OF FIFTY YEARS AGO.

While I was down in Egypt's land,
I heard my Saviour was at hand;
The judgment cry was sounding,
And I wanted to be free,
So I left my scoffing brethren,
To sound the jubilee.

They said that I had better stay
And go with them in their old way;
But they scoff at my Lord's coming;
With them I could not agree,
And I left their painted synagogue
To sound the jubilee.

Then soon I joined the Christian band,
Who'd just come out from Egypt's land;
They were on the road to Canaan,
A blest, praying company,
And with them I am proclaiming
We are near the jubilee.

Though opposition waxes strong,
Yet still the battle won't be long,
For our blessed Lord is coming
As we all shall quickly see;
So keep up good courage, brethren,
We are near the jubilee.

The battle is not to the strong,
The weak may sing the conqueror's song—
I've been through the fiery furnace,
And no harm was done to me;
I came out with stronger evidence
We are near the jubilee.

We'll soon remove to that blest shore,
And shout and sing forevermore,
Where sin can never enter
To disturb our harmony;
But we'll wear the crown of glory,
With our God eternally.

THIS GLORIOUS GOSPEL OF CHRIST.

BY RUTH M. ROWELL.

The gospel of Christ is the salvation of the world. Man is a religious being. He cannot be perfectly developed without adherence to some religion. Hence the more civilized or enlightened a nation may be, the more attention will be paid to religion, as is shown by the gods of Egypt, Syria, Hindostan, China, Greece and Rome. That man's religion has at times degenerated into superstition is no argument against religion itself, any more than a monarchical government with a tyrant at its head proves that mankind should have no government, when every observant mind knows that a good government is the next best blessing to a good religion that mankind can possess. All the more enlightened nations of the earth have shown by their sacred literature, their myths and fables, as well as by their numerous gods and temples, their priests, altars and sacrifices, a reaching out after God, a supreme ruler of the universe, to whom all mankind are accountable, and under whom all the rulers of earth hold control and power. Hence God is often called in Old Testament scripture God of gods and Lord of lords, to distinguish him as the one God over all, blessed forever.

As also we find him often spoken of as the living God, to distinguish him from gods of wood and stone which "having eyes see not, and having ears hear not, neither do they understand." Hence Paul, standing on Mars' Hill amid the gods of Greece, in the presence of her lawgivers and orators, where the most solemn and venerable court of justice was wont to assemble, who upheld one of the most magnificent and elaborate polytheisms in the world, draws their attention from these many gods to the one living and true God. Standing where Socrates had stood 400 years before defending himself against the charge of atheism, where Demosthenes had pleaded in glowing strains of eloquence in behalf of Hellenic freedom as opposed to despotism, this wonderful Saul of Tarsus, alluding to their objects of worship, draws their attention to an altar with the inscription, "To the unknown God." "Whom therefore," said Paul, "ye worship in ignorance, him declare I unto you." And observing around him the splendid Parthenon and temples dedicated to Minerva and Neptune, Thesus, Jupiter and Olympus, with innumerable others, he makes the grand declaration (Acts 17 : 24), "The God that made the world and all things therein, seeing that he is Lord of heaven and earth, dwelleth not in temples made with hands, neither is he served by men's hands, as though he needed anything, seeing he himself giveth to all life and breath and all things."

The religion of Christ is the one universal religion. Other religions are circumscribed, have sprung up for a time, and are suited only to certain localities and peoples. But Christianity is adapted to all races of men, in all latitudes of the earth; "good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people" that dwell upon the face of the earth in all epochs of time. Other religions become effete. The religion of Christ goes on conquering and to conquer. Rich and poor, weak and mighty, learned and ignorant, are alike blessed, elevated, comforted and saved by it. Hence Paul, who was fully conversant with the Jewish religion, and had come in contact with the sacred literature and worship of the most enlightened nations of the age in which he lived, declared in Rom. 1 : 16, "I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ; for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth, to the Jew first, and also to the Greek." In Christ was life. He is the Prince of life, "and the life was the light of men" (John 1 : 4), enlightening their dark and benighted minds, leading them out from superstition and idolatry into the glorious light of the gospel. Christ is the way, and the only way that leadeth unto life. All other ways enter the broad road that leads to death. He "came that they might have life, and have it more abundantly." John 10 : 10. "His word is life." "The words that I speak unto you, they are spirit, and they are life." John 6 : 63. Thus in the gospel there is a fulness of life; it vivifies, it generates, it develops, it widens, it broadens, it reaches out from east to west, from pole to pole, wherever men dwell, and adapts itself to their circumstances. Men's hearts bow to its requirements; they yearn for its rest and enjoyments. Well did Christ say to the toiling millions, "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest"—sweet rest in Jesus here and an eternal rest in the ever-everlasting kingdom.

Other religions held some important truth. There was an evident reaching out after God in all the heathen worshipers, whether exhibited in the savage prostrating himself before his oiled stone, or worshiping his Letich, or more civilized men in their elegant temples and before their gorgeous shrines, or others burning cakes to the queen of heaven and worshiping the sun, moon and stars, or the followers of Zoroaster and the Zend Avesta paying their devotions to fire, as a symbol of something higher and better. Men thus wandering in ignorance, vice and superstition were through all these ceremonies ever "reaching after God, if haply they might find him." The religion of Christ is a reaching after God and finding him. It satisfies the hungry soul with the assurance that "in him we live and move and have our being." The gospel of Christ is the fulness of truth, not merely holding a great truth, or detached portions of truth, but truth itself. Christ is emphatically the truth, and this truth is what every son and daughter of Adam needs. But "how can they hear without a preacher? and how can they preach except they be sent?" Christ's great command to the church is as binding to-day as when uttered: "Go ye therefore into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature." The church is rich and living at her ease, while millions are starving for the "bread of life"—this gospel of Christ that has done so much for us and ours.

Miss Rowe, a Eurasian by birth and a native of India, was engaged in mission work with Miss Nickerson of Ohio, and greatly beloved by her. When that lady, weary and worn, left India, Miss Rowe accompanied her to care for her, and had the great trial of seeing her buried in the Arabian Sea. While in Minnesota, speaking of India's need, she gave us heartrending accounts of the degradation of the women. It was touching to hear her describe the life of the women in the Zenanas. She spoke of their loneliness, shut in by the four walls of their room and subject to the caprice and abuse of those whose duty it was to love and cherish them. They have not that resort to while away the lonely hours that American women have—a book. They are not taught except as our missionaries teach them. The whole sentiment of the country is against it. The father of Pundita Ramabai (this high caste woman in Philadelphia, who hopes soon to return to her native land and do much for women there, and who is the Vice President of the W. C. T. U. for India), contrary to the custom, conceived the idea of teaching his wife to read, but his wife did not wish to learn. His mother and all his people so opposed it that he gave it up. This first wife died, and he afterwards married a little girl of nine years. She was teachable. He took her from his home in the lowlands to a secluded place in the mountains, and there unmolested he taught his little bride. The mother taught her daughter, who has developed into this noble high caste woman.

A young man of India, who was being finely educated, seeing the missionaries were interested in teaching his mother, said to them: "Why do you bother so about my mother? there is nothing in all of our literature fit for a woman to read." Women are not allowed the blessed enjoyment of literary culture. They are forbidden to read their sacred scriptures, and have no right to pronounce a single syllable of them. Even the father of Ramabai, liberal as he was in his views concerning the education of women, withheld the sacred texts from his wife and daughter. The Sanscrit literature accessible to them consisted of poems not associated with sacred rites and ceremonies. Ramabai never saw a copy of the code of Menu until after her scholastic attainments had been publicly recognized in Calcutta. Miss Rowe spoke of the deplorable social life in India, "where," said she, "sin flaunts itself from every corner of the street. This glorious gospel of Christ! I am saying it to myself all of the time. When I visited England and saw the force and character of the people, with their comforts and surroundings, I felt the influence and working of this gospel. But especially when I came to America, when I entered your homes, when I saw the husband and wife living so happily together in constant communion, working and enjoying the things of this life; when I saw the children passing in and out, blest with the society of their friends and loved ones, enjoying so many pleasant hours in the home, I said, This is blessed, and I contrasted it with my India home and the isolation of husband and wife, of parents and children, and then I felt how much India needed the gospel of Christ. When I entered your places of worship and saw your families coming in together, and so much comfort and happiness, I said, This glorious gospel! I loved the gospel before I left my native land, but I never saw and felt the glory and blessedness of it as now."

We would not close these words on mission work—which we hope under God may induce some to become more interested in our Foreign Advent Mission work, and give liberally of their means to help our Board to work efficiently in foreign fields—without alluding to Miss Florence Nickerson, who gave herself to the mission work in 1880, thus dedicating her young life to Christ, and, dearly as she loved home and friends, leaving all behind to work among the benighted and suffering ones of India; who with failing health still lingered there, her loving heart reaching out after the women of the Zenanas, and with strong faith in God hoping and working on, if by any means some might be saved, might learn the grand truth that in Jesus Christ there is neither male nor female, but that they, even they, poor, down-trodden women though they be, can share in the great redemption.

Well did B. H. Bradley say in his memoriam of her: "She went a messenger of light to all. Zenana women are in tears for her, she loved them so. Too long she lingered in that sunny land, so intensely was she interested in her mission work; so long that her wearied, worn-out frame could not recuperate. Vainly at last she tried the ocean waves, they could not bear her to America's shores to greet her loved ones and rest and be refreshed in the home of her youth. Earnestly she had desired once more their presence, trusting their loved ministrations to bring back the bloom on her cheek and vigor to her frame. All in vain. Her lamp of life went out, and sorrowing hearts buried her worn-out frame beneath the ocean's waves, while loving hands are preparing to commemorate her consecrated, sacrificing life in building a house for Bible women in Lucknow. How precious ever will well up in many hearts the words of trust in the hymn she loved so much—

"Feareth sometime that thy Father
Hath forgot,
When the clouds above thee gather,
Doubt him not.
Without murmur, uncomplaining,
Follow on,
Saying, Whatsoe'er God doeth,
Is well done."

SAVING FAITH NOT MIRACULOUS FAITH.

BY HIRAM MUNGER.

Bro. Stockman:—There have been such confused sermons preached on faith, that many that had the faith that pleases God have thrown it away and sought for something they never got nor could get. Faith is confidence in a report, whether it comes from man or God. If a corporation or a man promises to give so much for work, and we hear of it and have confidence in the man enough to go to work, that makes our faith perfect. For belief does not make faith unless it produces correspondinng works. See Heb. 11 : 1, 6, about faith that pleases God.

Having faith and hope in God's promises is expecting something you never had. We have confidence in what he has promised in the Scriptures, and all that believe it and go to work show their faith in God's promises. Many do this and yet think they have no faith, because others lift faith up out of their reach. Some have an idea that they must have a supernatural gift to heal, but that is not saving faith. Knowledge kills faith and hope at the same time, for they are synonymous. See Rom. 8 : 24, 25, and many other similar texts. When we know, faith stops. If we knew the time of Christ's second coming, we would have no faith in his second coming. This is scriptural. Over-action produces reaction in all cases. "All men have not faith," says Christ. That is miraculous faith, for he says all can be saved by faith.

The subject of faith has been terribly snarled up by preachers. Saving faith is to believe what God says, and go to work in your own way for God and his cause, and he will save you if ever so weak.

ST. JOHN 14: 1-3.

BY G. L. RICE.

Do not let your heart be troubled,
Neither let it be afraid;
For a sure and precious promise
To believing ones is made.
"Ye believe in God, the Father,
Also, then, believe in me;
In his house are many mansions,
There's a mansion there for thee.

For I go unto the Father,
Then a place I will prepare,
And my loving, faithful children
Shall my glory with me share.
Though I go away and leave you,
Yet I'll surely come again,
On the throne of father David
As its promised heir to reign.

Though I go away and leave you,
Yet alone I leave you not;
For the Comforter I'll send you,
It shall be your happy lot.
And my peace shall be your portion,
As the world can never give,
And that peace shall never leave you,
If you trustingly will live."

Blessed Spirit, he will guide you
Into truth and righteousness;
He will lighten up the future,
And your longing soul will bless.
If the Spirit dwells within you
That raised Christ our living Head,
It shall quicken your vile bodies
At the rising of the dead.

REPORT OF LABOR.

Dear Brn. and Srs. in Christ:—Thinking perhaps a brief report of my labor in the gospel field might be of interest to some, and perchance of encouragement to others who are battling with the powers of darkness, I will now give a report of the same. Soon after the campmeeting at White River Junction, we pitched the Vermont mission tent at Tyson, a place long noted as a Spiritualist stronghold. The best of order prevailed. Meetings were continued about two weeks, and to repeat the language of the resident physician, "there has not been such an interest awakened there for forty-three years." A few we hope were converted, one baptized, and the evils of Spiritualism were made plain by Eld. Ferriss from a Bible standpoint.

Many of the wicked were made thoughtful, and broke off the evil habit of profanity. Meetings have been held since quite regularly with good interest. On arriving home from the tent meeting we were stricken down with a severe illness of several weeks, but as soon as we were able were again in the harness with face to the foe. At our Dec. Conference a church of eight members were set in gospel order. Since then others have joined, nearly doubling its membership.

Having received repeated calls to labor in Sharon, Vt., a new field, Thursday, Dec. 29th, found us headed that way, facing a cold north wind a distance of some thirty five miles. After traveling about one-half the distance we found the road badly drifted, and having only a three year old colt and darkness coming on, it was one of the darkest hours of my life. We tried to make a path for the horse but of no avail. The wind was blowing a gale and the cold intense, and we began to think we should perish. God who hears the raven's cry heard mine. So unhitching our horse and leaving everything in the sleigh, we succeeded in getting to Bro. Temple's in an exhausted condition, where we were well taken care of. The next day was so cold and we were so weak that we did not resume our travel.

Saturday morning we again started, and arrived at Sharon in time for our first meeting, only five or six coming out. But believing God was in the work, we continued the meetings. New Year's day was very stormy but few more came out, and in the evening quite a fair audience listened to us with apparent interest, which gave us some encouragement to give an appointment for Monday evening. Others kept coming, so we continued to hold on. During the day time we visited from house to house, singing, praying, etc. Bro. Haynes came over two evenings from Strafford and helped. We continued over three Sundays, holding meetings nearly every evening, and soon the house was well filled.

God poured out his Spirit, sinners trembled, and saints rejoiced. Some we trust are converted. As many as twenty arose for prayers. To God be all the praise. We would say to Brn. Wallace and A. P. Moore that we will try and do our part in getting two thousand new subscribers for Crisis. Have obtained three yearly ones here. Thus amidst bitter opposition God blesses. We purpose to return and continue there as long as duty may demand. Now a word to our Vt., brethren. Our conference treasury is empty. Shall it be replenished, or must the cause languish for want of funds? P. G. LORD.

CORRESPONDENCE.

FROM H. P. ADAMS.

I wish to say to the waiting ones that I wish you all a happy new year; also that it greatly cheers my heart to hear of your faith in the immediate coming of Christ, especially in the forty-five years of waiting. I love to hear about the time of my Lord's return, for I expect something when he comes. You know he has said there is a crown of glory laid up for all them that love his appearing. How can one truly love him and not want to see him, the one that laid down his life for us that we might live, that he might redeem us from all iniquity. It cheered me so much to read, even one piece from Sr. Mathewson about the forty-five years of waiting, and also how the Lord could help in answer to prayer to find the wheels that by wicked hands had been carried off. It filled my heart with praise to God.

How the blessed hope of his coming seems to sweeten everything, and makes me joyful in the Lord. We have got a great and mighty Lord, one who can break the bands of death, open the eyes of the blind, unstop the deaf ears, open the prison doors, shut the lion's mouth, and preserve and keep in the midst of the burning fiery furnace. Cannot he keep us amid the perils of these last days? He can and he will if we trust in him and lay passive in his hands. He will rend the heavens and come down, and earth shall smile in gladness and Eden bloom from shore to shore. O, hail happy day. The Lord has led us out here to wait for his Son from heaven, and he will never leave us, no never. He has said, "Lo, I am with you alway, even to the end of the world." If that is not good, what is? It is more than good, it is blessed. Think of it again. Lo, I am with you always."

In John we read, "If a man love me he will keep my words, and my Father will love him, and we will come unto him and make our abode with him." This is the highest honor that can be bestowed upon us poor erring mortals, and yet we can through faith and obedience walk with God and talk with him and have him for our very present help in trouble. If this is not aristocracy of the highest order, then tell me where you can find it. I have proved him and found him true to his word many times in the past, and when he comes he will give us all things richly to enjoy, and we shall not have any bills to pay, not one, for Jesus paid it all. We are Christ's and Christ is God's and all things are yours. So you see we are not so poor after all, but rich in faith giving glory to God. And we know at the time appointed the end shall be. There is only one way, one law, one faith, one baptism, one God and Father of all, who is above all. When we are baptized into Christ we take upon us his name, legally, according to the Bible rule, and shall if faithful have a right to enter into the holy city. Come, brethren, we want the Crisis all filled up with something that will feed the sheep, and our heavenly Father has so abundantly fed us in the past with the finest of wheat that we cannot come down to feed on chaff. O, may the Lord lead us and give us the real meat in due season is my prayer. Amen.

Royalton, Vt.

FROM A. M. SEYMOUR.

My Dear Brother:—I consider myself a member of the human family, and do humbly trust that I stand connected with the body of Christ, and am an heir of God, and a joint-heir with our Lord Jesus Christ, to that far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory, soon to be revealed by the return of our great High Priest. And while I thus stand related to the human race, especially to the household of faith, I consider myself positively laid under the strongest possible obligation to set the best example in my power, and in the second place to shed the very best possible influence in my power, and disseminate the very best and wisest counsel I possibly can.

This is my duty, and I am certain that I am under the strongest possible obligation to do so; and I consider that the very same obligation rests upon all mankind. Especially this responsibility rests upon the members of the body of Christ; for if this responsibility rests upon me, it no less rests upon all mankind. Is it not a fact clearly demonstrated? Well, now, if these things are solemn realities, then it is for my interest and the interest of the whole race to comply with these self-evident facts, and as I have no original example, influence, and counsel worthy of imitation of my own, I have adopted the example, influence, and counsel of our Lord Jesus Christ, for in him is perfection, for in him dwelleth all the fulness of the Godhead bodily. If these principles were strictly adhered to and carried out what a tremendous change would be manifested all over this world; and what an overwhelming blessing would flow over this world. Instead of national and religious divisions and controversies, which gender an infinite amount of wrongs and debasing influences, instead of war, slavery, and outrageous deeds of every grade of immoralities, there would be charity, union, peace, and constant attention to the above laudable principles. Now if these principles are not studied, and carried out in this world, the time is speedily coming when they will be by all who shall or will be redeemed by the precious blood of Christ, and of every nation, kindred, tongue, and people, in the world to come. The fulfilment of prophecy, the signs of the times, and the prophetic periods all demonstrate to a moral certainty, that the world to come or kingdom of God is about to dawn upon this world, so full of trouble, misrule, and moral darkness. And in view of these scenes of deep and overwhelming interest to the church of God, let us make up our minds fully to live entirely dead to all that is wrong, and fully alive to all that is right. Then we are safe, and ready for translation. Oh, be ready, watch and pray.

Hesperia, Mich.

FROM LEWIS E. REXFORD.

God has been especially blessing our church in the McConnell neighborhood for the past few weeks. Bro. H. C. Holt of Bridgewater, Vt., was with us most of the time for four weeks. God did give him favor with the people. Bro. A. H. Tilson, pastor of the church, was with him part of the time. We were all benefited, some especially blessed, some outside of the church were reclaimed and made happy, some new ones decided to go with us to the kingdom. Others are inquiring what they must do to be saved. The truth triumphs amid some opposition. Praise God for his wonderful works to the children of men. Yours, looking for eternal life soon.

OBITUARIES.

VERY SPECIAL NOTICE.

☞ Those who want extra numbers of the Crisis containing Obituaries, or other matter, must take notice when the obituaries appear, and then—not before—send their orders direct to the Business Agent, and they will be promptly filled. Never send orders to the Editor. That is not his business.

GRAY. In Somerville, Mass., Jan. 4, 1888, of consumption, Bro. Frank O. Gray, aged 26 years and 5 months.

Bro. Gray was the husband of Sr. Persis L. Parkhurst, daughter of Bro. E. W. Parkhurst, who is so well known to many of the Eastern readers of this paper. Bro. Gray and his wife were converted in the spring of 1886, were both baptized at one time, and joined the Somerville Second Advent Church. Bro. Gray's health began to fail him about a year ago, and although strenuous efforts were made to stay the progress of disease, he gradually failed until the hour of his decease. He fell asleep in death without the least struggle, and was taken to Burlington, Vt., for burial, where he awaits for a brief time the coming of Christ to call him to eternal life. He strongly desired to live, but at last said to me, "I leave myself entirely with the Lord, for him to do with me as seems good to him, whether I live or die." He leaves a widow, two little boys, and many friends to mourn his loss. The funeral services were conducted at the home of his parents in Somerville, by the writer, assisted by Dr. J. W. Hamilton, pastor of the M. E. Church, of which Bro. Gray's parents are members.

FRANK BURR.

WIGGIN. Mrs. Sophia Wiggin, wife of Josiah Wiggin, died in Wakefield, N. H., Dec. 8, 1887, aged seventy-nine years, three months, and two days.

The subject of this notice embraced religion in early life, and united with the F. W. Baptist Church in South Wakefield, and continued her membership there until she heard the proclamation of the soon coming of her Lord, when she, with many others in that place, became identified with those who are looking for the personal coming of Christ, eternal life and immortality at the resurrection of the just. She was a faithful wife, a devoted mother, and after years of toil fell asleep in Jesus, expecting her reward when the Saviour comes to gather the faithful of all ages to himself. She leaves a husband, one child, grandchildren and a large circle of friends to mourn her absence. She now lies in the graveyard where six of her children had been previously laid, waiting the glad hour of the resurrection, when she will see her Lord and be made like him. May this sad dispensation be sanctified to the good of the surviving members of the family, relatives and friends of the deceased, and they be prepared to meet in a world where death never shall come.

A. W. SIBLEY.

CARPENTER. In Addison, Vt., Jan. 12, 1888, fell asleep in Jesus Isaiah Carpenter, aged sixty-nine years.

He was one of the early believers in the soon coming kingdom. He was a good husband, father, and citizen, yea, he was good everywhere. In short he was a Christian. He has been a consistent Advent believer for many years, and when I was there last fall he was seen among the old veterans of the Advent cause that worship in their chapel, and he did enjoy the meetings exceedingly, and gave testimony of his faith, and seemed like a shock of corn fully ripe. At home, in the family and in the church he will be greatly missed, while his example will remain to instruct the way of life. He leaves a wife and children to mourn their great loss, also the church will have a vacant seat that none can fill. They will deeply feel the loss of his voice of co-operation and encouragement, while nothing but the hope of Christ's soon coming to raise the sleeping dead and give them life everlasting can give comfort and consolation. May great grace rest on all the weeping ones, and grant them the same "blessed hope."

LOUGEE. In Dover, Maine, Dec. 28, 1887, Caleb S. Lougee, aged 68 years and 10 months.

Bro. Lougee was converted when about twenty-one years of age, and united with the Free Baptist church in Woodstock, N. B. He embraced the Advent message and kindred truths under the faithful labors of Bro. Ross, for which he was expelled from the church of his early choice, and for some years was an earnest and faithful follower of Christ, a fearless and conscientious defender of these unpopular doctrines in those earlier days of pioneer work. He was a sweet singer, having a voice of remarkable compass and power, and Bro. Ross, as he reads this notice, will recall with emotion the many times they have sang together the sweet songs of Zion. After a while he ceased from active work in the Master's service, laid down his cross, and for about twenty years, though living an irreproachable life morally, and always identifying himself with and contending for the truth, lived in a backslidden state. Two years ago last fall, during Bro. and Sr. McKinstry's labors here, his only son was converted, which so wrought upon him that he was constrained to renew his covenant, set up the long neglected family altar, and walk the narrow way with his dear son. He with his companion and son were among the number organized into the A. C. church of Dover and Foxcroft less than two years ago, of which he was chosen first deacon. Some eight months ago he was stricken with paralysis, and though partially recovering from the first severity of the shock, he gradually went down to the sleep of death, as above. A kind husband, father, and friend, an earnest and true supporter of the church has been taken from us, and we all feel the bereavement sorely. May the blessing of God rest upon the dear family, and the aged brothers and sister left in sadness, though weeping not as others who have no hope.

O. S. FRENCH.

WIGGIN. In Colebrook, N. H., Dec. 13, 1887, of heart disease, Marcia Wiggin, only child of Charles and Adelia Wiggin, aged thirteen years and two days.

Marcia was a beautiful child of very rare qualities, always cheerfully obeying the wishes of father and mother, and never indulging in light and frivolous things, like others of her age, but was of a sober and solemn turn of mind, being of ill health from her birth. None knew her but to love her. The funeral was a very solemn and impressive one. All her mates wept bitterly on taking their leave of her. Thus fade the fairest flowers of earth. Words of comfort were spoken by the writer.

C. S. SHATTUCK.

STEVENS. In Alton, N. H., Sept. 22nd, 1887, Nathaniel Stevens, aged fifty-eight years, one month.

He leaves a wife, one son, one sister, and a large circle of relatives and friends to mourn. He was a kind husband and father, a good townsman and neighbor. He was honored and respected by all who knew him. He accumulated a large fortune, but had to leave it all, for as we brought nothing into this world, so we cannot carry anything out. His funeral was at his residence, where a large delegation of friends and neighbors gathered, thus showing their respect for him. Words of comfort were spoken by the writer from Prov. 27 : 1.

M. STEVENS.

MCDUFFEE. In Berwick, Me., Dec. 9, 1887, Sr. Sarah McDuffee, aged fifty-two years.

Sr. McDuffee was a devoted Christian, a kind neighbor, a loving wife, and affectionate mother. Although a great sufferer she never murmured or complained, but with a hope big with immortality she could say, "Thy will be done." May God sanctify this dispensation to the good of the family, and may each member be ready to meet her when the jewels are gathered.

E. N. HINCKLEY.

STRAIT. Nov. 30, 1887, Sr. Lylian S. Strait, aged twenty-three years.

Sr. Strait was the daughter of Bro. John and Sister S. D. Bixler. About seven years ago she united with the M. E. Church, continuing a faithful member until the Advent Christian Church of Highland was organized, with which she united two years since. The death of Sr. Lylian is a sad blow to her aged parents and affectionate husband. She is sadly lamented by a wide circle of relatives and friends. She left a little babe only a few hours old. The funeral was conducted by the writer. "Hope thou in God" was the basis of our endeavor to make known the Christian's hope, and to urge all eyes to look unto Him who is its author and finisher. In hope we wait.

B. FORESTER.

ARCHER. In Magnolia, Wis., in the 86th year of her age, Sr. Archer fell asleep in Jesus Dec. 10th, 1887.

Sr. Archer was born at Fitz Williams, N. H., May 9th, 1803. She afterwards removed to Vermont, and from there to the state of Wisconsin, where she lived the last forty years of her life. She experienced religion in 1823, and has since lived an exemplary Christian life. The funeral took place at the Advent Church in Magnolia. Sermon by the writer from the words found in 2 Tim. 4 : 7, 8.

W. H. JACKSON.

AN INTERESTING LETTER.

The oldest subscriber for the Crisis is Mrs. Clarissa Cox. She was one hundred years old Oct. 6, 1887, and is hale and hearty; and when asked by the writer, who with his family had the pleasure of talking with her Jan. 22d if she would not like the Crisis to read and become a subscriber, as she had just read one, she said yes, and thanked us. If there is a subscriber older let us hear from them. When one that is over one hundred wants to read the Crisis, it ought to encourage others to take this last day's paper. For I do believe it will go to the press soon for the last time, and our work will be done. The last warning from its Editor and others will soon be written, and they will soon lay their pens one side. Oh, push the Crisis, my brethren and sisters in Christ.

This Mrs. Cox that we have referred you to is cousin to our beloved Bro. Boutelle. She is aunt to Mrs. John Adams of Wakefield. She was born before Washington was made President, and the population of the United States was 3,929,326 in the year 1790. She has lived to see the population of this country increase in her day 47,000,000. In 1790 there were 695,656 slaves in the United States, and she has lived to see Abraham Lincoln, the Emancipator, whose pen struck the shackles from the limbs of four millions of slaves, and see subdued a rebellion of eight millions of people. The revenue of the United States in 1791 was $4,771,200, while now it is about 400,000,000. She said, "The only regret I have is that I am not more thankful to my kind heavenly Father." Oh, may we all be more thankful to our dear Lord Jesus. E. D. GIBBS.

DOTS FROM DAKOTA.

BY PHILO HITCHCOCK.

The weather in this section has not been as cold as last winter, but more snow and more wind, and that means "blizzards." It has been a succession of howling blizzards for about a month. This of course makes it unfavorable for holding meetings. But we are preaching all the time somewhere, and last Sunday it was our privilege after preaching to organize a Sunday School with twenty-five "Blessed Hope Quarterlies" to start on. We think those "Quarterlies" are just elegant, and well adapted to new fields. If we were not so poor we would have a few numbers of the "Young Pilgrim."

We cannot hope yet to have a library. We are determined to sow beside all waters. If we fail to effect a church organization at once, let some one start a Sabbath School. How in the name of Christ and truth people believing in present truth can spend their time on Lord's day loafing at home, while their children are gadding around the country, I cannot tell. If one of the family want to keep the rest at home they will trump up a slight cold, and of course it requires a whole family to look after one sore finger.

Still, on account of the roads, the weather, and the storm here in winter, it is impossible to do as much as in the summer, though our best meeting last year was held in the winter, and some seventy sought and found the Lord, we trust. But on the whole we do not blame the wild geese and some of the preachers for seeking a more genial climate during the long winter months. But the devil takes no vacation, and I want to repeat what I have said at other times, that with the exception of a cold and stormy winter once in awhile, it is a delightful country and as fruitful of results as any place in the world.

Our Dakota tent is being well cared for, and we can hardly wait for good weather to come to set up the "tabernacle in the wilderness," and unfurl the flag of God and truth. "Thy kingdom come." How it cheers us and inspires us to get the Crisis away up here, all sparkling with gems of truth. I wish to acknowledge the gift of Adam's "Historical Chart" from a brother whom I love in the Lord but never saw. Also one who signs her name "Weary Sister," from W. Salem, Wis., sends one dollar. This is the second time she has done this. I know not who it is, but may the Lord graciously smile upon and reward her is my prayer.

None but those in similar circumstances can tell our joy and gratitude to God and these kind friends of Jesus. And in the blessed morning of the resurrection what an infinite pleasure it will be to know that we were in some measure the humble instruments of bringing home to God these lost ones who need a Saviour's love.

CONFERENCE REPORT.

The last session of the Knox and Lincoln Quarterly Conference met with the church in Rockland, Maine, according to previous appointment. The weather was very favorable, and a good congregation was present during most of the Conference. The good Spirit of the Lord was present in our social meetings to comfort and bless the hearts of his children who are looking for his coming. The preaching was interesting and we hope profitable.

Preaching brethren: G. W. Weeks, J. R. Hall, J. N. Brown, Otis Trundy, H. B. Sevey, M. M. Stevenson. We hope great good may be the result of this meeting. The next Conference will be appointed by the President and Secretary.

SEA OF GLASS.

BY T. S. SCOVILLE.

"And I saw as it were a sea of glass mingled with fire, and them that had gotten the victory over the beast, and over his image, and over his mark, and over the number of his name, stand on the sea of glass, having the harps of God."

This sea of glass seems to be interpreted in many ways, and all are in the dark. When the world is burned, it is a supposable case that God burns it to get rid of the rubbish that it contains, just as gold is melted to get rid of the dross. The earth is full of evil, and man's evil works are on the increase, and are also buried in the soil as they are at the ruins of Pompeii and Herculaneum, and they are too bad to be exhibited in the new kingdom of God that is to be, when the millennium is over.

Man's works must never appear again to bring up the past and its representations of evil and sin. Though they be carved in granite or marble, or wrought in gold, silver, bronze or other metals, or in clay or plaster, they must be destroyed and never exposed to the coming ages of the world in the glories of the future. Therefore the earth must be melted from centre to circumference during the great conflagration of the burning world, whenever that comes. We all know that sand melted makes glass. Rock will do the same; therefore it is a fair conclusion that the whole world will be melted up by the intense heat, and that this sand and rock will become liquid glass, everywhere intermingled with the precious metals, all over the world.

But the intense heat is represented as having no power over the 144,000 elect, and chosen of Christ. He says they shall "stand upon a sea of glass, molten with fire, having the harps of God." This shows that the redeemed will have no hurt from heat and cold, and that they will be no more troubled than were Shadrach, Meshach and Abed-nego in Nebuchadnezzar's fiery furnace. And these had only the bands burned off, and "had not so much as the smell of fire upon them" when they came out.

The world being heated to the extent of making glass, when it cools down again there will be every conceivable beautiful thing in the way of beautiful colors, and precious things that were before so rare as to be exceedingly valuable will now be used to ornament the great and wonderful, nay, glorious future of the world; and never again will a marble, a granite, a bronze or a plaster image, representing man's former sinful state, be found above or below the soil, and nevermore will evil exist, but God shall reign over all, and in all, to eternal ages.

"BE YE ALSO READY."

BY MRS. D. W. NASH.

Was there ever a time in the world's history when these words of our Saviour were as applicable as now? Was there ever a time when it required greater effort to get ready for our Lord's return than at the present time? Are there not some of God's dear saints who have in the past felt themselves prepared to meet their Saviour with great joy, and longed above all else to see him, yet to-day are not in readiness for that grand and solemn event, so near at hand?

Am I ready? is a question of vast importance, and should be considered paramount to all others. To answer this in the affirmative, requires a complete surrender to God, a pure heart, a holy life, and ever ready to say, "Not my will but thine." If we are ready for the Master, "watching and waiting," we know that "when he who is our life shall appear, then shall we also appear with him in glory." There we can pray in sincerity, "Thy kingdom come," and exclaim, with earnest longing, "Come, Lord Jesus, and come quickly."

If we are ready, dear brother and sister, let us make the needed exertion and sacrifice to keep so. Let us "hold fast the profession of our faith without wavering, for he is faithful that promised." Dear unconverted friend, come to Jesus, yield to the whisperings of the Holy Spirit, and prepare for the coming King. You have no time to lose. Now is the time to secure a share in the inheritance promised to the people of God. Now is the time to "make your calling and election sure," so that when Jesus comes "an entrance shall be ministered unto you abundantly, into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ."

Carver, Mass.

FAITH is the faculty by which we commune with God and the invisible world. It is the holiest and most purely spiritual act of which we are capable—the highest exercise of the soul actuated by the best motives, and inspired by the highest spiritual moods. It is the criterion of moral strength, the test of Christian character. The man who believes fully in God is a strong man. Faith is the soul of action. We believe—and therefore have we spoken. Faith is the conqueror of trouble, the antidote of fear in danger. Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on thee."—Ex.

JACOB's heart was never so full of joy as when his head lay hardest. God is often most present with us in our greatest dejections, and loves to give comfort to those who are forsaken of their hopes.

It is a great mercy to enjoy the gospel of peace, but a greater to enjoy the peace of the gospel.

FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.

LETTER FROM ELD. MILES GRANT.

I have now reported up to Dec. 31st, when I left Belfast to make a second visit to Coleraine, in the north of Ireland, where I held meetings from Dec. 4th to 11th, in the Congregational Church, whose pastor is Bro. W. G. Davis, a man highly esteemed by the church, and others who have made his acquaintance. He is a lover, receiver, and defender of the truth, well educated, and free from sectarian bigotry. We worked together in complete harmony, and the Lord has most signally blest our labors. It is a great help in evangelistic work, to have such a pastor's support. He speaks often of the great good he has received from the Lord since the meetings began. He says they are the happiest days of his life.

Saturday evening, Dec. 31st, we had a watch-meeting, which was a season of profit. The time passed pleasantly from the old to the new year. We prayed out the one, and prayed in the other. Bro. Davis had to be away, to preach in Dublin the first Sabbath of the new year.

The watch-meeting Saturday evening reminded me of the first meeting of the kind I ever attended, which was in Norfolk, Ct., conducted by Bro. Daniel Coe, of Winsted. I had then been converted about two weeks. Before my conversion I had spent some time in Norfolk, and taken a very active part in pleasure parties. Bro. Coe thought it would be a good thing for me and my gay companions to take me with him to the watch-meeting and over Sunday. A few days before that meeting, I had promised the Lord, that by his help, I would bear every cross required of me as his disciple, but some came that were heavier than I expected. When Bro. Coe had finished his sermon Sunday morning, he looked down to me and said, "Bro. Grant, will you make some remarks?" It would not be far from the truth to say that his request almost took the breath out of my body. As soon as he looked to me and thus spoke, of course, every eye in that large audience was turned at once to me. I had never before been such a gazing stock. A large number of my former gay companions were present, who [illegible] peered down upon me from the gallery, [illegible] all parts of the house, and began to listen with breathless silence to catch my first words. Like myself, they were all taken by surprise.

It was one of the most agonizing moments of my life. A half a minute seemed as an hour. I believe I thought about as fast as a drowning man. What shall I do? I can't speak here. What shall I say? Had he only told me I was to be called on, I might have had something prepared. Oh! oh! I can't. I was about to say, Please excuse me, when the Spirit of the Lord reminded me that I had promised to bear every cross presented. Yes, Lord, but I did not think I should have one so awful heavy. Every second I delayed, the cross grew heavier, till finally in a state of desperation I arose and opened my mouth, not knowing what to say; but the Lord kept his promise and filled it, and my heart with extra joy and peace. I do not know what I said; but the Spirit of the Lord applied it to the hearts of my former associates in worldly pleasures, and they were convicted on the spot; a revival began that day, and resulted in the conversion of many of my friends. I have always felt like thanking Bro. Coe for putting me under that cross. It gave me new strength and courage; and I thank the Lord for the special help I then received. That was an event in my life of great value; a turning point. Had I refused to have borne that cross, most likely I should have gone into darkness, doubt, and condemnation.

Returning to our Coleraine watch-meeting, and the meetings for the following week, held from twice to four times a day, I am happy to say that the Lord has smiled upon us graciously. The outlook is very encouraging. The afternoon meetings for holiness have been seasons of heavenly refreshing. When I was here in early December, we had similar meetings, and those who attended were so well pleased, and so much profited that they established a weekly holiness meeting, to be held every Thursday afternoon. I learned on my return that the meetings had been a success.

The general religious interest in Ireland is low, cold, and formal. Sectarianism is high and well sustained. The doctrines of Calvin are held with a tenacious grip, especially by the Presbyterians. They hold and teach that if a man is truly converted, he is sure to be saved. He cannot fall away so but that he will finally be brought back to Christ.

They appear to think more of their creed than the word of the Lord; for when scriptures like the following are presented, they seem to make no impression against their creed walls:—Ezek. 18: 24:—"But when the righteous turneth away from his righteousness, and committeth iniquity, and doeth according to all the abominations that the wicked man doeth, shall he live? All his righteousness that he hath done shall not be mentioned: in his trespass that he hath trespassed, and in his sin that he hath sinned, in them shall he die." Said Jesus: "Every branch in me that beareth not fruit he taketh away." John 15: 2. The unconverted are not said to be in Christ, or to be branches of "the true Vine." He further says: If a man abide not in me, he is cast forth as a branch, and is withered; and men gather them, and cast them into the fire, and they are burned." John 15: 6. It is impossible to cut a branch off from a tree, if it never was joined. In Rev. 3: 5 we read: "He that overcometh, the same shall be clothed in white raiment; and I will not blot out his name out of the book of life." A name cannot be blotted out which was never written in the book.

I am persuaded that many church members in Ireland, as elsewhere, have no spiritual life in them. They may have been pardoned some time, and taken into the church; but they have done scarcely anything for Jesus. They have a name to live, but are dead. They excuse themselves by saying they are constant sinners, and so is every other person, because they have inherited sin from Adam. They are shocked, when told they may live "free from sin." Their standard is no higher than that of the moralist, and their lives show scarcely any of the fruits of the Spirit. They have harsh words and unkind feelings towards those with whom they differ.

In addition to all this, they hold to that shocking, unscriptural doctrine that the Lord decreed before he made man who should be saved, and who should be tormented eternally, including even many infant children. Is it any wonder that men hate such a God, and become infidels? The following are samples of what was adopted by the "Westminster Assembly of Divines," appointed by the Long British Parliament, which set in 1640. In June 1643, the Parliament appointed 121 clergymen, 10 lords, and 20 commoners to draw up a confession of faith. They met in the autumn of 1643, and closed in 1649, have had 1163 sittings. In the chapter on "God's Eternal Decrees," sec. 1, we read:

"God from all eternity did, by the most wise and holy counsel of his own will, freely and unchangeably ordain whatsoever comes to pass."

Sec. 3. "By the decree of God, for the manifestation of his glory, some men and angels are predestinated unto everlasting life, and others are foreordained to everlasting death."

Sec. 4. "These angels and men, thus predestinated and foreordained, are particularly and unchangeably designed, and their number is so certain and definite, that it cannot be either increased or diminished."

Sec. 5. "Those of mankind that are predestinated unto life, God, before the foundation of the world was laid, according to his eternal and unmistakable purpose, and the secret counsel and good pleasure of his will, hath chosen in Christ unto everlasting glory, out of his mere free grace and love, without any foresight of faith or good works, or perseverance in either of them, or any other thing in the creature, as conditions, or causes moving thereunto; and all to the praise of his glorious grace."

Sec. 6. "As God hath appointed the elect unto glory, so hath he, by the eternal and most free purpose of his will, foreordained all the means thereunto. Wherefore they who are elected being fallen in Adam, are redeemed in Christ; are effectually called unto faith in Christ by his Spirit working in due season; are justified, adopted, sanctified, and kept by his power through faith unto salvation. Neither are any other redeemed by Christ, effectually called justified, adopted, sanctified, and saved, but the elect only."

Sec. 7. "The rest of mankind, God was pleased according to the unsearchable counsel of his own will, whereby he extendeth or withholdeth mercy as he pleaseth, for the glory of his sovereign power over his creatures, to pass by, and to ordain them to dishonor and wrath for their sins, to the praise of his glorious justice."

Belief in these horrid decrees has served to make some very rigid sectarians, who have no fellowship with those who teach a full and free salvation for whosoever is willing to come to Jesus. But the time has come when many in Scotland and Ireland, who have been educated to believe in these decrees, are discarding them with utter contempt, as unworthy of the sanction of any disciple of Christ.

LETTER FROM THE MACEDONIAN MISSIONARIES.

Jan. 2d. On our arrival at Liverpool the Agent of Bywater, Zanquerary & Co. was on the lookout for us, as Bro. Andrews had apprised them when we were to sail, so we had no trouble in crossing the city to the Midland Depot, where we secured third class fare for London, and Mr. Bywater's Agent sent a telegram to their firm in this city (London), where we now are. We were some five hours coming a distance of two hundred miles; we passed through one of the finest countries I have ever seen, and the very centre of England. The farms were highly cultivated and hedged about nearly all the way. Sheep and cattle were grazing in green fields and pastures. In Liverpool, while passing through, we saw destitution, children in rags and barefooted going about the streets in the cold rain. We scattered tracts along the line to London, and at L. another Agent of Mr. Bywater met us, and took us to a temperance house, where we now are. We find the Seventh Day people have been here, and have established printing, etc. Brethren, while error is on the move, truth should not flag behind. Every man, woman, and child should put forth their best energies for the spread of truth, and missionaries are needed everywhere, to scatter our leaflets and papers like the autumn leaves. Send them forth, my brethren and sisters. Send them forth for Jesus and his glory.

Jan. 9th. We have now been in London since the 2nd, waiting for steamer to go from Marseilles to Salonica direct; by waiting for this boat we save over one hundred dollars, than to go the roundabout way across the Continent. Everything is very high here in London, and there are a certain class that take advantage in every way possible, charging us for what they call here a plain meal of only bread and oleomargarine of the poorest type, a cup of warm tea and a little preserve one shilling, or twenty-five cents each. But as we brought some preserve from Washington Territory, and butter from Newton Upper Falls, we got two loaves of bread for twelve cents, which was enough for us for three plain meals.

We have seen much misery since we came. The Unemployed Registration Committee say they "have taken over twenty-five thousand names of adult males out of employ, and when those dependent on them are reckoned, we have the particulars of over one hundred thousand men, women and children plunged into the direst destitution resulting from want of work. To our personal knowledge over twenty-five thousand working men, representing with their families one hundred thousand human beings are on the point of starvation." Signed S. George, Secretary of Committee.

Then amid all this destitution, sin and crime is rampant everywhere. Under our window the other night, three stories below on the street, we were startled from our quiet slumbers twice by terrific screams and brutal fighting; what the results were I know not. We praise the Lord for his protecting care in these times of peril. Jesus' coming is the only source of help out of this dire confusion of destitution, sin, death, and crime. My heart pants for Jesus' coming, his peaceful reign, and prosperity in righteousness, and everlasting joy.

Yesterday, Lord's day, we went to hear Mr. Spurgeon at the Metropolitan Tabernacle, he had been away and returned. A vast concourse of people were present. He spoke from John 15: 8: "If ye abide in me," etc. We found him to be a straightforward, interesting speaker on the subject under consideration. In the afternoon we attended the Young Men's Christian meeting at Exeter Hall. "Character" was the topic. After which we were invited to the lunch room, where a great many young men and ladies were gathered around three long tables, where there were plates of small, thin pieces of bread with a little butter spread, with tea and a small piece of fruit cake for supper. A hymn of thanks was sung, and grace invoked at the close of the meal. Then we attended prayer service, after which we went upstairs into a large hall, and heard Mr. H. G. Guinness speak from words found in 2 Tim. 2: 8: "Remember that Jesus Christ of the seed of David was raised from the dead, according to my gospel." We found Bro. Guinness to be a very apt and touching speaker, and a much younger man than I expected to see. His heart seemed to be fully in the work, and I could but weep on listening to his pathetic words of comfort and admonition, to "remember Jesus Christ raised from the dead. At the close we shook hands, and I presented him Quarterly Journal of Prophecy and tracts. We have also scattered many among Mr. Spurgeon's people, and on the streets, from place to place.

To-night I gave tracts and pamphlets to an English clergyman by the name of Thompson, from Yorkshire. He is Agent of the Bible Society. He paid me for Whitmore on "Immortality," and seemed to be much interested about Jesus' coming, stating that there were many eminent men of learning and piety, who had taken a firm stand on the side of truth and righteousness in this country. But it looks to us as though a great work might be accomplished among the lower class there in Jesus' name. But the great need is more live, whole-souled Adventists to come here and scatter the seed like the autumn leaves. There are very many who are anxious to read, and who would receive the truth, could it be brought before them. O, that a host may be sent forth in Jesus' name, to proclaim the glad tidings in every land. We have sent tracts to Australia and one of the British Isles, by persons that were going to those places and now to-night a native of Bulgaria, who has been in New York at school, was married a short time since, and with his companion are now on their way across the Continent to his native land as teacher and preacher. We hope to give him some truth that will do him good.

Jan. 10th. To-day we set out for Paris. It has been the darkest day that I have ever witnessed. Lights all along the streets and in all the stores have been burning all day. It has been so very foggy and smoky that we could not discern teams and objects but a short distance ahead. But very soon a darker and more dismal day will set in for the wicked of the earth. "The great day of the Lord" hasteth, and the wicked will cry then bitterly. May all be ready with lamps trimmed and burning, ready for Jesus' coming. From your brother and sister in Christ,

J. C. & S. E. Smith.

AN INTERESTING LETTER FROM BASIL STEPHANOFF.

Beloved Brn. in Jesus:—The years pass us like a dream; time flies; another year is ending, the new is coming. Zion is nearer one year to that eternal home. Eternity approaches; the year of years is coming, the unending year. O, think of it! The long night of sin and death is coming to an end. Behold, "the day is at hand"; our "redemption draweth nigh"; "now is our salvation nearer than when we believed." The "common salvation" is at hand, when all the seed of the faithful Abraham who have shed their blood for Jesus and the blessed truth are coming up from the grave that held them during the night of sin and the curse. "O grave, where is thy victory?" The great salvation is at hand, and He who is above all, in all and for all, will "swallow up death in victory," and then "the Lord God will wipe away tears from off all faces," and "this corruptible shall put on incorruption, and this mortal shall put on immortality." And the seventh angel will sound, "The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord (God) and of his Christ, and he shall reign forever and ever." Rev. 11: 15. O, blessed thought! O, glorious hope! Our Head, our King is at hand. He says, "Behold, I come quickly." Then, O ye servants of God, let us sound it forth, He cometh! and let us not fear from mortals, for God is for us, and Christ is in us the hope of glory.

Then the banner of truth and holiness unto the Lord must be unfurled by us, to show its beauty. Ps. 90: 17. By this we will please our Captain. Jesus' power will be given, his grace will be multiplied, our faith strengthened, our hope will become brighter and brighter, our experience deeper and deeper, and the victory through Jesus will be [illegible] kingdom on the [illegible] restored. The harvest is great. Let us pray for more laborers, and that the fields may be open for the message of Christ's soon coming to give life eternal, and to establish his glorious kingdom on earth. Let us by the power of God bring more souls into the ark of salvation, and let us pray for more of the missionary spirit to come into our hearts, and be ready to go anywhere to labor, to suffer, and to die for Jesus if needful. O, for more like Paul! O, for more consecrated talents! Macedonia stands in need of such. God has granted her long and great cry, "Come over into Macedonia and help us, and the joyful news has come to us.

Cheer up, for the light of heaven,
Macedonia, comes to thee.
"We are coming," shout thy servants
"Coming o'er the dark blue sea
With true gospel,
And with a power to set thee free.

Yes, we found the sweet old gospel
And the power of Calvary's cross.
Now the world, and all that's in it
Is to us the vainest dross,
And for truth's sake
We count all things but as loss.

Yes, we shall unfurl the banner
"Holiness unto the Lord."
And we'll fight the good fight bravely
Standing, resting on God's word
Vain tradition
Shall fall by the Spirit's sword.

And from Macedonia's captives
Shall arise a waiting [illegible]
Waiting for the Lord from heaven
Waiting for the [illegible]
When with [illegible]
They in garments [illegible] shall stand

And Macedonia [illegible], Welcome, welcome, welcome, servants of God! We have been long in darkness, [illegible] lost the way to Zion in which Paul [illegible] taught us to walk, by the "enemy of [illegible] righteousness," and now our homes are [illegible] you, and our hearts are cheered [illegible] and more of God [illegible] cry [illegible] to God! Thanks [illegible] of God and of the one faith [illegible] in sending to us laborers. May [illegible] God of heaven bless the A. A. F. M. [illegible] Society, and God's people, that they may [illegible] in their hands in sending the light of [illegible] into such dark places like Macedonia, [illegible] Bulgaria, and Roumelia. Those of Macedonia salute thee and thank thee all, far and near, of the one faith with the one hope. With fervent love and regards, I am yours in Jesus forever.

THE CIRCULATION OF ERROR.

BY I. I. LESLIE.

It may be safe to say, that every argument which can be used in favor of the belief in the return of the Jews has been brought forth, and therefore what further may be said in its favor will be but a repetition of many repeated efforts to show that after more than twenty-five generations, the unrepenting, infidel Jews will be obliged to accept Him whom their fathers killed (Acts 2: 15), and from every part of the earth go to Jerusalem and build up that old thrown-down city, and there be the nation they were of old.

This theory, in a tract of twenty pages, is being circulated among us, sent by the author to many who had scarcely heard of the doctrine, and indeed to some to whom the theory was as new as the flood to the old world. Now what can be the object in thrusting upon us, as a people, the idea that the Jews of the present age are all to go to Jerusalem, and there be as formerly a separate nation, building up cities, and having a theocracy apart from the rest of the world? What does this theory effect as to preparing them for a predicted change in them either morally or physically? Are they made better people by bei[illegible] they are to be the great[illegible] earth—the most exalted and God-favored people? And what does this theory do for us who have hope only in Christ—salvation from sin here and eternal life when He comes? Has the preaching of this Jewish doctrine ever brought one Jew or Gentile sinner to Christ? Is there any salvation in it?

In the tract above mentioned there is brought forward but one text from the New Testament in direct proof of the final restoration of the Jews. This is Matt. 23: 39—"For I say unto you, Ye shall not see me henceforth, till ye shall say, Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord." The comment of the writer of the tract is as follows: "He [Christ] clearly taught that the time was coming when, as a people, they [the Jews], should see Him again, and then they should welcome Him and bless Him." This is affirming what Jesus did not teach—that in an after age the nation of the Jews should "see him come and welcome him and bless him." The prophecy of Zech. 9: 9 was fulfilled when Jesus rode into Jerusalem, just before his crucifixion, when the whole city was moved and the multitude cried, "Hosanna, Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord." The descendants of that nation will never repeat this. This manifestation of favor for Christ on the part of the people enraged the ruling Jews, and it was then determined by them that Jesus should die.

The writer [illegible] of the above-quoted [illegible] is in conflict with the teaching of Jesus elsewhere. He says, Matt. 24: 30, "And then shall appear the sign of the Son of man in heaven: and then shall all the tribes of the earth mourn, and they shall see the Son of man coming in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory. And he shall send his angels with a great sound of a trumpet, and they shall gather together his elect from the four winds, from one end of heaven to the other." We inquire: Do not the "elect" include all the saved? What other people will Christ then have? or who will be saved after the elect have been gathered "from one end of heaven to the other"? But where will the elect be gathered to? In 1 Thess. 4: 17 we are told they are caught up together in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air; and so are to be ever with the Lord. Of course the Jews will not be caught up to meet Christ if they are then to go to Jerusalem to build the city, and to establish themselves as a separate nation on the earth. Christ says all the tribes of the earth will mourn when they see the sign of the Son of man in heaven. But this author says that the Jews, as a people, will "see him and welcome him and bless him." This then is not in harmony with Jesus' words, that all the tribes of the earth shall mourn—all who are not in a condition of salvation. Christ does not make the Jews an exception among the tribes of the earth who will mourn when he appears. Christ will not go with the Jews to Jerusalem to build up that fallen city. If they were to go thither, he could not be there with them, for he is to be with his elect, his resurrected and immortalized saints, and who are thenceforth to be with him ever. At that time another city will have been built for them—"a city whose builder and maker is God." That is the only city that will ever occupy the site of the city of David, and this will be long after both carnal Jews and Gentiles have disappeared from the earth. We say again, This theory of the return of the Jews, their natural restoration to the land of Palestine is not found in the gospel of Christ, taught by himself and his apostles. On the contrary the destruction of all wicked tribes and nations is declared to take place after the Lord Jesus Christ comes again. There will be no probation for the world of sinners after Christ has ceased to be the mediator between God the Father and man. The door of mercy closes when Christ leaves the throne of his Father and comes to judge the world and forever save his people. It is wrong in men to teach the contrary of this.

The Jews have had an equal chance with [illegible] Saviour came to the earth. Indeed they were the more favored; for to them Christ himself offered his salvation in all its fullness; and during all the period of this dispensation of faith and grace they have had the offer of Christ and his religion. If during this long day of salvation, they, as a nation, have refused to be saved in the only way that any can be saved, is God under obligation to have his Son redeem them after the true church, Jew and Gentile, is finally saved and with Christ? It is a most inconsistent theory that would make the Lord Jesus Christ offer salvation to a certain class after he has come to judge the world and to give to every man a reward according as his works shall have been. But the most inconsistent part of the theory is, that when Christ comes the Jews are to have a temporal salvation, a national restoration to their former condition in the land from which they were driven in consequence of their great sins. And think! this is taught to be when the Son of man shall sit on the throne of his glory, and before him are gathered all nations—when a division of all mankind is made; the good placed on the right hand, the bad upon the left—when he shall say to them on his right hand, "Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world"—and when he shall say to them on the left hand, "Depart from me, ye cursed, into everlasting fire!" At this time, it is said, the Jews will return to Palestine and build up Jerusalem, and so have a long period of temporal prosperity!

Acts 3: 21 is referred to as positively teaching the "return of the chi[illegible] [illegible] which God hath [illegible] all his holy prophets since the world began." To say that [illegible] meant to teach the return of the Jews, is to utter a most glaring misconception. "The restitution of all things" means the restoration of the Jews! What a coming down from the great to the little! from the restitution of the earth and all pertaining to it, to the return of an incorrigible people upon it; and who care more for money than they do for God or all heaven.

Matt. 24: 31 is also interpreted to mean the gathering of the Jews. The text reads: "And he shall send his angels with a great sound of a trumpet, and they shall gather his elect from the four winds, from one end of heaven to the other." He says: "Most theologians take this to refer to the general resurrection and the scene of the last judgment; but this, we think, is a mistake." Thus this text is disposed of. But what does he mean by "the scene of the last judgment?" Who knows of more than one judgment? Where in the Book do we read of two judgments to come? If, as he intimates, the thousand years will be a period of judgment, then will not that period be the one day or time of judgment, beginning when the Lord the judge comes, and ending when the last act of his judgment is witnessed? No one can talk of two future judgments intelligibly. Christ will judge the world but once—all mankind when he appears. He says: "Behold I come quickly, and my reward is with me, to give every man according as his work shall be." This he makes plain in all other parts of his gospel. His apostles have all spoken in harmony with him, putting the judgment at the appearing again of their Lord. This part of the gospel should now be preached, for in it there is the power of God unto salvation. This is what is needed to-day, and not the return of the Jews before the Lord comes or after. We say again, we have seen no salvation manifested in the preaching or by the reading of this doctrine. It is not a saving message, and therefore is not the gospel of Christ.

IT IS JUST SO.

BY F. G. STANTON.

In the Crisis of Jan. 18th, our editor gives us some very timely thoughts on "Equally Precious Faith." I could not but think as I read it carefully how aptly the subject was treated. Now, while it is necessary in the beginning of any new settlement to level the forest, and having cleared the ground and made it fit for seed, carefully to sow and cultivate it, yet progress is not assured simply by the rugged labor of the pioneer. There must also be encouragement extended to others to settle, laws made and obeyed, educational privileges increased and fostered, and religious needs recognized and supplied; else that which was a wilderness at the first, shall, in spite of the pioneer, return quickly to its former uselessness as a place for the home of man.

It seems to me in a similar way has it become necessary that the work of our pioneers in the faith of the Lord's second coming shall be built upon, cared for, and extended, else the work of the "voice crying," shall be seen no more, and that which has been, shall be utterly forgotten. The work of the pioneer is highly honored of God, and as necessary as the "messenger before his face." I have yet to learn that the labor which is required to recover old clearings, that have all grown up to timber again, may not be nearly as hard as it was for the first pioneer to change from a wilderness; and also that such a laborer, though he may come after, shall not have as a result of his work an experience and God's help and blessing. As the work of the Lord progresses toward its completion, it demands changed and adapted labor, according to its stage of growth and its increased and varied necessities.

The work of God is one; and he serves efficiently and successfully who is faithful and loyal to that work, in the hour in which [illegible] not be made perfect. Why does not the same element of faith control now as well as then? And as the work of God, even to the end, shall require faithful, loyal service, why now any less than then? Is it not timely to affirm, "Now the just shall live by faith"? Ah, Bro. Stockman has struck the tonic tone from which all melody springs into life, and to which again, all must return for rest. "Similarity of faith" and its loyalty, rather than exact "similarity of experience." May our Joshua lead us still, till Canaan be reached and possessed.

READ IT AGAIN.

BY J. F. ADAIR.

I mean the Crisis of Jan. 18th. It was extra good. There appeared in it at that time three articles which I wish to notice by way of commendation. First, Bro. Stockman's editorial, "Equally Precious Faith." It was grand and timely, showing that sameness of experience is not necessary to soundness of doctrine. The younger class of our ministers can never have the same experience that the old hands had in days gone by, nevertheless they should be and are one in faith, hope, and work. Let our young preachers honor, encourage, and pray for those who have borne the burden and heat of the day. Let the older watchmen love, admonish, and help the young preachers, and in so doing [illegible] provoke unto [illegible] [illegible] stand against definite time. Eld. Boutelle being one of the old veterans, he can speak from experience on this question. We are united on the belief in the speedy coming and kingdom of our Lord. I ask, is not that sufficient? I wish to say that I most heartily endorse Bro. Boutelle's position. But as good and intelligent brethren do not always agree on points of doctrine it becomes necessary for us to exercise charity one towards another.

Third, last but not least in importance comes Bro. I. C. Wellcome's article, "A Very Great Error," a brief portion of which I wish to copy here. He says, "It is pretty generally known that I am fully interested in the hope of the Lord's soon coming, and that I wish every one else to see and enjoy this blessed hope as I do. I am fully convinced [and so am I] that some of our Advent believers are nursing a very great error in dropping into the background, or keeping silent the great truths of man's entire mortality, and the actual condition to which death reduces him. Some are saying we should teach the immediate coming of Christ more earnestly, and the nature of man and death less, that this is a minor point. . . . Now to my mind such an idea is not only an erroneous one, but also a dangerous one for our people and cause."

The question of conditional immortality is no minor question, but is upon the other hand both fundamental and revolutionary in its nature. It is in my opinion the most important question of the age. It makes known to the world the beauty and the necessity of the second advent of the Life-giver as nothing else can. It is the key that unlocks the whole plan of redemption, a plan which cannot be understood intelligently without the light of conditional immortality. Then again there is no question or truth that the believers in Satan's first great lie, "Ye shall not surely die," dread so much as conditional immortality. They can stand the doctrine of the second coming of Christ and his reign on the earth. "Oh, yes, Dr. Brooks and Mr. Moody believe that, and many other great and good men, and so do we, but away with your doctrine of elective eternal life." That is about the way I find people in my travels. So far as our views on the second Advent question are concerned, we could hold and preach them in almost any of the so-called orthodox churches of to-day. They have toned down wonderfully on that question within a few years.

There are too many great men on our side of that question now to make much of a fight against it. Our opponents are virtually driven in at that point, and about all we can do is to hold the fort and clear away the rubbish. Rev. Joseph Cook and Rev. Dr. Graves both say the next theological conflict in this country will be on the question of conditional immortality. They are advance thinkers, and see the test coming. We cannot afford to rally the great body of our force to meet a few skirmishers, and allow the main army of our foes to steal a march on our rear. We should turn our guns where they will do the most harm to the enemy of God and truth. I am not in favor of making less of the doctrine of the Second Advent, but I do think the grand and thrilling truth of eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord, as heaven's gift to perishing man, ought to be made more prominent by both press and pulpit than it has been for some time past. We cannot at this time very well give it too much prominence. It was Prof. Pettingell's specialty, and see what a wonderful work he did. While we need the harmlessness of the dove, we likewise need the wisdom of the serpent. We have a crafty foe to deal with. Let us be wise.

CHARACTER.

BY MRS. LOUISA HARDING.

Character and reputation are often used as meaning the same, but they are as different as light and darkness. Reputation is what one is reported to be, while character is what one really is. One may have a good reputation, and a bad character; or a bad reputation and a good character. A slanderous tongue may smirch the reputation, but it cannot destroy or stain the character, neither is a good man or woman [illegible] clouds, but at noon they are lifted, disclosing a blue as bright as when it first came from the hand of God. So for a season slander may darken the name of the just, but in the end God will bring forth their righteousness as the light of the noonday sun.

Neither will it cast the saint of God down. Cast him into jail, and lo, the Pilgrim's Progress issues from those lonesome, dreary walls to give a ray of sunshine to the world. Thrust him into an inner prison, and make his feet fast in stocks, and at midnight, at the darkest hour, the song of praise breaks the silence, and the jailor hearing cries out, "What must I do to be saved?" Banish him to Patmos, his eyes behold the finger of the divine and he writes, "And I, John, saw the holy city, new Jerusalem, coming down from God out of heaven, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband. Thus reputation may be blurred and tarnished, and darkness may surround as black as midnight, yet the heart, "the seat of character," may be full of light, joy, and peace.

As an agent for good or evil, the power of character or influence can hardly be over-estimated. It is more potent than song or sermon. The influence of these are not lasting, while that of character is constant. We are ever molding others for good or bad. This is true whether we will it so or not. "Every act of our lives touches some chord that will vibrate in eternity." How much we all ought to realize this, and yet how almost entirely we ignore and forget it, or do not pause to realize it. Many appear unconscious of the fact that, however lowly we may be, our lives influence in a more or less degree the lives of those about us; and while we are sighing for broad fields and grand opportunities, we should remember that the little pebble cast upon the smooth surface of the water, though so small, cannot sink without disturbing more or less its calm quiet. So our lives quiet, monotonous, though they may be, cannot be lived without their influence being felt.

But the influence of character is not confined to the narrow limits of a lifetime. It is more lasting than the marble slab that marks our resting-place. Paul said of Abel, "He being dead yet speaketh." Surely Paul uttered a truth, but is it not as true of Cain, by whose hand the earth received its first baptism of human blood. Have not the two influences run parallel with each other, and do we not feel them to-day? Finally character makes destiny. No truth of revelation is more clearly taught than this. "All shall come forth, they that have done good unto the resurrection of life, and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of damnation."

In the great day of God, destiny will not hinge upon surface questions as, Who are you, what is your reputation, but upon the deeper questions, What are you, what has been your character. Let the saint or sinner who is more careful of his reputation than his character, take heed and pray, "Father, give me a pure heart." For a pure heart develops a pure life, and there is a blessing pronounced on all that live this life. May the grace of God abound in the hearts of his children.

THE IMPOTENCY OF UNBELIEF.

"Shall their unbelief make the faith of God without effect?"—ROM. 3: 3.

The stability of the universe rests in the infinitude and faithfulness of its Creator. The least conceivable infraction of the Divine omnipotence or the remotest shading of the Divine truthfulness would wreck all worlds. If the machinations of demons and evil men could impair the sovereignty or thwart the purposes of God in any particular, for even one moment, the throne in heaven would fall. The only satisfactory sense of ultimate security must come of confidence in the beneficence and faithfulness of Jehovah, and the impotence of unbelief to make the word of God of no effect.

The first transgression in our world was an overt act of disbelief of the Almighty. The Divine integrity was assaulted amid the Edenic displays of purity and glory. With demoniacal audacity those first fair and holy creatures were allured into open distrust of their Heavenly Father's veracity. The issue was direct and positive—had the Lord God spoken truthfully or deceptively? And there the mysterious power of evil in our world began. The finite disputed and challenged the Infinite. Unbelief confronted the throne of truth. The creature defied [illegible] belief stood face to face. The awful and eventful issue was made up. The integrity of Jehovah on one hand, the death of a race on the other. Behold the result! Every grave on earth and in the seas attests the impotency of that unbelief. The requiem of pain and dying groans, from that hour to this, gives solemn proof of the utter and abject helplessness of discredit before the majesty of the divine edict. And grim death, still sweeping on, cries tauntingly, "Did their unbelief make the faithfulness—the truth—of God of no effect?

One such experiment for any world would seem enough. Yet, in full sight of that first irreparable disaster, the still arrogant race repeats the trial. When the measure of iniquity was full, offended Heaven pronounced the antediluvian doom, but interposed an ample opportunity for repentance. The guilty throngs derisively laughed in the face of God. They set the veracity of the Throne at nought. They said, It is but a futile menace, whose execution nature and science forbid. They sported over the warning, and sought to brave the danger with the front of unbelief, and challenged Jehovah to make good the mad predictions of his pretended prophet. On rolled the numbered years. On swept the surging sea of their sins. Even more defiant grew their vaunting scorn. But the faithfulness of God kept vigil over his servant's proclamation. Without an hour's delay the appointed judgment struck. And the sad lament—fruitless as sad—of the engulfed and sinking multitude, was but the despairing refrain of the impotence of their disbelief. There stands their frightful fate, lifting its gloomy warning to the eyes of after generations, crying to the ages to follow, Behold, how unavailing is discredit of what the Lord God has said!

But as judgments multiply the race grows blinder still. Take one example more. The royal people, on whom Heaven had lavished preferment and affection, whose were the prophets, and of whom was the Messiah, their promised King, even they have capped the climax of colossal unbelief. Through four millenniums the Lord had spoken to them by a thousand voices; by rites and symbols; by bleeding bird and bleeding beast; by burning bush and burning mount; by prophets, priests and kings; by providence grand and promise sure; by miracles of power and miracles of love; by Urim and Thummim; by signs in their temples and signs in their heavens; by a newly-created star, and by an angel's song; by the shouts of the delivered and the voices of the risen dead; yet they, with all the ghastly warnings of the past in full view, and their sacred books open before their eyes, stood up and denied the words of their God—the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob; the Almighty Jehovah who had led their fathers out of Egypt and through the Red Sea. To all the wonderful words and works of Jesus, their divine King, they interposed their stubborn, cruel, malignant unbelief. They declared against his right to rule over them, and invoked the sword of a hostile people to rid them of his presence. In their blind, defiant discredit of his claims they assumed the entire responsibility of his death. Going still further, they challenged all the guilt of shedding his blood upon themselves and their children after them. Their unbelief was the most formidable and highhanded that has ever stained the history of man. It was official, national. It wrote its fateful decree in innocent blood. It hid its shame in the grave. It sought to smother all witness against itself in the silence of death. Behold its pitiable impotency! Of all the lines of prophecy converging into the life, death, resurrection and ascension of their rejected King not one jot or tittle failed. The faithfulness of God stood fast. Their "house" was left unto them desolate. Hunted and peeled and hated they wander among the nations, a living monument of the folly of disputing what Jehovah has declared.

And now our world is at another crisis of unbelief. Between inspired prediction on one hand, and infidelity—which is but another word for disbelief of God—on the other hand, the issue is fast making up. Appealing from revelation to science and philosophy, the popular religious thought openly assaults the divine integrity, seeking to break the charter of our hopes. The awful wrecks, personal and national, which mark all the past, form no effective warning. Untaught by the sad experience of the unbelieving ages, the generation of to-day madly plunges into the yawning chasm of judgment and ruin, above whose darkness and gloom will be inscribed, "Thy word, O Lord, is forever settled in heaven."

THE NEXT WORLD.

(Concluded.)

Having already called attention to the fact that the next world is not a world for sinners, but for saints only—not a world due during the present age, nor prior to the resurrection, but subsequent to the coming deluge of fire, we now inquire more definitely conceening its location.

I. Is it heaven? There are various reasons why it can not be heaven.

1st God has never promised heaven to his saints—it is the home of the angels, but the saints have no claim upon it as a future dwelling place.

2nd. In no sense can heaven be counted "the world to come"—in point of time, heaven preceded this world, hence can not be the next world chronologically; in the sense of coming into existence it can not be "the world to come," as it is already in existence; in the sense of importation it can not be the world to come, for we are nowhere taught that heaven is ever to be removed, but just the reverse—only our atmospheric heavens will ever pass away—but the next world is yet future.

II. What world is it? The only correct answer is, The world to succeed this world, just as this world succeeded the world that preceded the flood: "The world that then was being overflowed with water, perished"—that was the world before the flood—"but the heavens and the earth, which are now" the present world—"are kept in store, reserved unto fire against the day of judgment and perdition of ungodly men . . . Nevertheless we, according to his promise, look for new heavens and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness." 2 Peter 3: 7, 13. This is the next world—one world after the flood of water, and the next world to come after the flood of fire; each one of these worlds being a new age coupled with the earth in a different state—the next world being the next age coupled with the earth made new, and freed from the curse, which is to be the future home of the resurrected saints. Isaiah prophesied about the new earth, Peter tells us that it will come after the fiery deluge, and the Revelator places it after the judgment, and after the wicked are submerged in the lake of fire. These witnesses agree.

The next world is not a present world to which people are to emigrate, but a world to be inaugurated by the predicted "restitution," to which Peter referred in the following words: "And he shall send Jesus Christ, which before was preached unto you: whom the heaven must receive until the times of restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets" (Acts 3: 20, 21), or "times of restoration," as given in the Revision. And this restoration is thus alluded to by the prophet Isaiah (25: 8), "He will swallow up death in victory; and the Lord God will wipe away tears from off all faces; and the rebuke of his people shall he take away from off all the earth." To have death obliterated, tears removed, and rebuke or reproach wiped out from the history of God's people through all the earth, will be a resti[illegible] state. [illegible] freed from [illegible] and [illegible] resu[illegible] would be to have jus[illegible] come" as the divine programme warra[illegible] to expect. It would be the lost paradise restored, not to its probationary stage, or preparatory condition, but to its perfected state—the state divinely contemplated to succeed the probationary state—the state of immortality. It will be the "new earth" long promised, free from death and sorrow, where the dead saints shall live, where the old saints shall be young, and where eternal health shall reign. It will be the world to which shall come the city of God—the new Jerusalem now above.

The next world will simply be the heavenly kingdom due after the close of this dispensation, or after the judgment day shall arrive, to be enjoyed only by the saints of God, to which Jesus refers in these words: "When the Son of man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory: and before him shall be gathered all nations: and he shall separate them one from another, as a shepherd divideth his sheep from the goats: and he shall set the sheep on his right hand, and the goats on the left. Then shall the King say unto them on his right hand, Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world." Matt. 25: 31-34. This is the next world—a world to be preceded by the coming of Christ in his glory, the coming of all the holy angels, the coming of the day of final separation between the just and the unjust—then, and not till then, will the saints be invited by the Sacred King to enter "the kingdom," not in some remote aerial realm, but the very kingdom "prepared from the foundation of the world"—once a realm of purity, now a realm of rebellion, then to be freed from sin and sinners, and to be made "an heavenly country"—the very one which Abraham and other ancient saints looked for as a home: not the region called heaven, but a "country" of an heavenly nature, the promised "land"; not land on some remote planet, even: "For the promise, that he should be the heir of the world [kosmos], was not to Abraham, or to his seed through the law, but through the righteousness of faith." Rom. 4: 13.

To say, as some do, that the promise made to Abraham related to an inheritance under the law which ended at the first advent, is to contradict Paul's affirmation in the text just quoted; for in the next verse Paul adds: "For if they which are of the law be heirs, faith is made void, and the promise made of none effect. . . . Therefore it is of faith, that it might be by grace; to the end the promise might be sure to all the seed; not to that only which is of the law, but to that also which is of the faith of Abraham." Or, as Paul elsewhere says: "Know ye therefore that they which are of faith, the same are the children of Abraham. . . . And if ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise" (Gal. 3: 7, 29), for God has arranged "that the blessing of Abraham might come on the Gentiles through Jesus Christ" (Gal. 3: 14), and "that the Gentiles should be fellow heirs, and of the same body, and partakers [illegible] promise in Christ by the gospel." Eph. 3: 6. So the promised land is yet future, and Gentiles, as well as Jews can share in the fulfillment of the promise, provided they are children of faith, for blood relationship is of no avail in this arrangement. It may entitle us to estates in this world, but not in the next world. A higher relationship is necessary to entitle us to a claim on the promised land—a relationship to Abraham through Christ on the principle of faith.

The next world will be the very world which the primitive purpose of God contemplated as a home for the race in a condition of purity—now a fallen world—then a restored world. It will be the old homestead of the race freed from the curse, renovated by divine power—the usurpers being firstly removed—earth filled with the glory of God, to be occupied by the immortal family in a new age; an endless age. The old carnal family will be disinherited in the end of this age, and the defiled estate will be subjected to a purifying ordeal, the new family of immortals entering the celestial chambers till the indignation be overpast: then they return to the renovated homestead—there begins the next world, with a new age, and a new kosmos, or renewed realm, for the saints to spend eternity in. The society will all be good—not a black sheep in the immortal flock. The language will be pure, for more than Pentecostal power will instantly educate every one to understand and talk the language given man before the fall—no more confusion of tongues. Nothing will be lacking to make it a world of perfection far surpassing our powers of contemplation. This world has about reached its close—the next world is now almost due. W. S.

KINGDOM ELEMENTS.

Jesus, in his parables, sometimes singles out and sometimes another, to illustrate its different characteristics, as in the following instance: "So is the kingdom of God, as if a man should cast seed into the ground; and should sleep, and rise night and day, and the seed should spring and grow up, he knoweth not how. For the earth bringeth forth fruit of herself; first, the blade, then the ear, after that the full corn in the ear. But when the fruit is brought forth, immediately he putteth forth the sickle, because the harvest is come." Mark 4: 26-29. There are progressive stages in the development of these kingdom elements, from planting time till harvest time. All of the component elements of the kingdom are in existence, but are not yet organized into a kingdom proper. Because some of these component elements are sometimes spoken of under the name of the kingdom, efforts are made to repudiate their future consolidation into a real kingdom. But in spite of all this, the development of these preparatory elements will progress—righteousness, peace and joy—finally the King will return in person, change the subjects, cleanse the territory, and introduce a kingdom just as literal as any kingdom ever known on earth, and more lasting, for "of his kingdom there shall be no end." With death extinguished, the curse removed, and all the saints gathered in an immortal state, with Christ at the head, who wants a better kingdom? W. S.

We are happy [illegible] Hitchcock is meeti[illegible] cess in his Dakota work, thoug[illegible] interfered with by blizzards—making it hard to get out to meetings. May the Lord continue to aid him in his missionary efforts.

Western weather is sometimes intensely severe, but the zeal of new converts will defy it on some occasions. Having been confined twelve days to my house by a sick spell, I started on the 21st of January to attend the Magnolia Quarterly meeting, the thermometer that morning being 32 degrees below zero at Brodhead, 34 degrees at the second station, and 36 degrees at Magnolia. At Bass Lake, about fifteen miles from Magnolia, it was 40 degrees below zero; but in spite of that, a large sleigh load of young converts came from that place to the meeting. Get the heart well warmed up, and Mr. Zero will find his match. Well, in spite of the weather and the deep snow, some found the meeting, and found a blessing. W. S.

A PRESENT ACKNOWLEDGED.

Through the medium of the Crisis I wish to acknowledge a New Year's gift from the Advent Church of Tustin City, Cal. The gift consisted in a magnificent, beautiful and very elaborate family Bible. The present was purchased in the city of Philadelphia, Pa., and is very finely finished, with my name finely wrought in it. Ten dollars in cash accompanied the Bible. Many thanks to the true and tried Adventists of Tustin City.

THE PERSONALITY OF ANGELS AND DEVILS.

BY HIRAM MUNGER.

Bro. Stockman:—I think a tract on the personality of angels and devils should be published, showing from Scripture that there is as much evidence of a literal devil as of literal angels. There have appeared some ten or twelve long articles in the Herald of Life to prove that there is no literal devil, and never was. Now if that is a fact, all the Christian fathers and inspired men have been mistaken, and have led the church into an error because they were not blessed with the inspiration of the Herald of Life. That paper is well edited, and has [illegible] in it, but some of the longest art[illegible] saw to prove that there is no devil, and no punishment for his dupes, contrary to all Scripture, and what the best Christians have always believed.

I will tell how it looks to me. Others may have different glasses that don't magnify God's word on the judgment and the works of a personal devil as mine do. I believe there is a personal devil, one or more, and they are all well pleased with such articles as appear in the Herald of Life doing away with the plain Scriptures that teach that there is a personal devil, and a literal hell-fire prepared for him and his angels and their followers.

We know that an editor is not responsible for all that appears in their paper any more than the good man that sowed good wheat was responsible for the tares the devil sowed.

A WORD TO THE BRETHREN AND SISTERS ABROAD.

As I have been serving in pastoral work for about five years, I feel to go free for awhile among my scattered brethren who may need my service. During my time as pastor I have been striving to reach the outside world, and teach them the gospel and the way of eternal life, finding that object teaching was not only the easiest way to reach them, but also of divine origin. Jesus, the great Teacher, as he walked drew the sweetest and [illegible]ongest remembered lessons from those [illegible]ngs we view daily—the lily, vine, sower, [illegible]

Finding that [illegible] method never fails, I have for the past [illegible] years been painting out the Bible un[illegible] at last I have painted over five thousan[illegible] are feet of cloth, consisting of [illegible] sermons, temperance lectures, [illegible] etc. Having all [illegible] mons and lect-[illegible] to be barred up in any o[illegible] any have had their benefit. I [illegible] vertising for a chance to preach, for [illegible] are plenty of them; but my object is to [illegible] into villages and cities where there may [illegible] but a few of my brethren, who need [illegible] and cannot afford to call those who must have a stated sum pledged before they can come.

I close my labors with the dear brethren and sisters of Westfield April 1st, having served them two years. I leave them only that I may reach more, and do more good. I write this hasty letter in time to the scattered brethren, that I may be planning and laying out my work in time. Therefore let me hear from any of you, whoever and wherever you may be; if you can provide a hall, church or chapel, I will try and visit you. Remember my address is, until further notice, JOSEPH E. CROSS, Westfield, Mass., P. O. Box 290.

ADVENTUAL EDUCATION.

Not long since I noticed in the columns of the Crisis a resolution by one of our conferences in regard to Adventual education. This idea is just what we, as a people, are vastly in need of. If we can once get the people of our congregations and churches apprised of the value and need of such an education, then the idea will come out, and we will have a system of education adapted to the youths of the Advent churches. To inaugurate such a system should be the purpose of every true Adventist. My belief in the near coming of the Lord, is what prompts me to make a first move in this way.

Take, for illustration, the glorious truth of conditional immortality. We send our children to a school using Webster's Ele[illegible] Book, and on page 54, [illegible] is, "The soul is [illegible] never die." Such an education [illegible] not consistent with our views, a[illegible]equently, if we are settled in our c[illegible]tions that immortality is the gift of God, we absolutely do ourselves and our children the greatest wrong and injustice.

I came to this place in November. There is a faithful band of pilgrims here, "awaiting their Lord." We are preparing to erect a neat two story school building, for the purpose of education for the Lord and the truth. As far as we are concerned, our school will be called Coleman Institute. We will notify the brethren near us through the Crisis, when we will be ready to receive pupils from a distance. Arrangements for boarding have not been made yet.

Brethren, let us hear from you. We would gladly correspond with any who desire to try our plans, and give all the information possible. Our school will accommodate from the lowest primary student to a good start in Latin and Greek; a thorough knowledge of Arithmetic, Algebra, Geometry, and such studies; Grammar, Geography, History, all the familiar sciences, and every study useful and beneficial. Our method will be mostly normal. Would be glad to hear from any. Your brother for Christ and truth. A. B. CARGILE.

BISHOP MALLALIEU ON BOSTON.

At a meeting in the Winthrop St. Church Bishop Mallalieu, as reported, spoke as follows: "Rum is the greatest enemy of the Christian Church, and, as such, should be routed. It is more to be feared than Anarchism, Socialism, Nihilism, Atheism, heathenism, and every other evil on the calender. There is no other evil so wise, so wily, so crafty, so strong, so well established, as the rum traffic. It can be suppressed if men will only do their duty.

"There has been a good deal said about cultured Boston. I have heard other cities compared unfavorably with Boston. But I have never before heard of any city that has for two hundred years been apologizing for the actions of their ancestors in whipping witches through the streets. Did you ever hear of any other large city on this continent that would give a license to Buffalo Bill's show to exhibit on Sunday? Boston did. Did you ever hear of a city whose Mayor and representative members of the City Government were present at the largest assemblage hall in the city, at a meeting held to glorify one of the biggest brutes in the country, and for the purpose of presenting that champion brute with a diamond-studded belt? Boston's Mayor did that, and I don't believe there are ten men here who raised a voice against such indecency. The newspapers were strangely silent about that. They did not dare utter a protest. I wish there were half a dozen reporters here to jot down what I say. I wish one reporter would print my words without twisting and distorting them until I wouldn't recognize them. Did you ever before hear of a city where a Christian man is arrested and imprisoned for reading three chapters in the Bible on the Common? Did you ever before hear of a city that would hire a cheap brass band to play dirty music from a stand on the Common on Sunday while thirty or forty couple were dancing on the green? All these things are done in your high-toned Boston. And this city is ruled by the rum power. Its officers are under the control of rumsellers. The city is completely in the power of its most dangerous enemies. Its safety rests solely with you voters. You must decide whether those indignities that I mentioned shall continue to be heaped upon you, or whether your city shall be redeemed by your votes. The evil is not confined to Boston or to Massachusetts. The whole country suffers; the whole world is under bondage. The disgrace and the suffering does not fall upon the slaves of rum as much as upon their families and the rest of the community. The only cure is annihilation. Root out the curse from your midst. Vote 'no" whenever and wherever the opportunity is given. If you are beaten this time, renew the fight the very next day, and keep it up as long as there is a rum shop in existence. Vote 'no.'"—The Christian.

CHURCH NEWS.

I want to say to the glory of God through our beloved Crisis that the Lord is wonderfully blessing the people on Swan's Island. Sinners are seeking their Saviour. The Lord said to me, "Go," and I have been ten days all to his glory. H. B. SEVEY.

Dear Crisis:—I thought perhaps the people would like to know how the work is getting along in Brockton. Well, we had out more to-day than any Sunday before, and they seemed to be all engaged to have the work go on. There have been requests for prayers in every prayer meeting so far, and we firmly believe the Lord is in the work, and we believe also that the Lord has sent the right man, Bro. Hale, to do the work in Brockton. He is not afraid to declare the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. Yours in hope.

GEO. L. FALES.

Bro. Stockman:—The meetings at Northwood Narrows are very good. The house is well filled with good Christian workers, and a large number of young people come in to hear the good things they have to say and listen to their earnest prayers. The church decided to have preaching three Sundays a month this year, and all brethren who will come and preach to us are requested to correspond with James R. Towle, Northwood Narrows, N. H., so that their appointments may not conflict with each other. JOHN PARSONS.

Bro. Stockman:—Knowing you and your large family of Crisis readers are alert and interested to hear good news, I enclose the following clipping from the Middleboro News, as showing some indication of the kind of work being done in southern Mass., under the auspices of the Bristol and Plymouth Counties A. C. Conference. The notice refers to the church in Middleboro, Mass., where we held a protracted meeting in Nov. last.

"The Advent Christian Church at Pierce Hall on Jackson Street, had a red letter day Sunday, Jan. 22d. Elder F. S. Stanton, of New Bedford, supplied the pulpit, and also spoke at the Y. M. C. A. hall at 5 P. M. The church has re-organized lately, adopting new by-laws and choosing a full board of directors to serve the coming year. A Sunday School with proper officers was also organized last Sunday, and four new members were received into membership of the church. Added to this is a revived interest in spiritual things and an encouraging prospect for the future. Mr. Stanton acted as pastor in charge in the recent changes and additions." NO NAME.

Bro. Stockman:—We commenced a series of meetings in the First Baptist Church at Menomonil, Wis., Jan. 23d, and are still preaching every night. Up to the present writing, Jan. 30th, a goodly number have manifested a desire to serve the Lord, and some have requested baptism. We will baptize, the Lord willing, Thursday. Pray for us that the Lord will work mightily in this place.

Bro. Sheldon is filling my pulpit at Magnolia while I am laboring here for the Master. May God help us all to do what we can for poor sinners who need salvation. If it is not in one way it may be in another. If we cannot go out into the field ourselves, we can help send some one else out, and our Home Mission Society needs help. They have got out a little mission box, and I would advise every Advent believer to send for one, and put your stray pennies and dimes in it every week. Send to Bro. H. Pollard, Alexis, Warren Co. Ill., who will gladly supply you with said boxes. May God help us all to be faithful is my prayer, and may we be fitted to wear a crown of glory by and by. Your Brother, W. H. JACKSON.

"WE SEE THROUGH A GLASS DARKLY."—1 Cor. 13: 12.

BY H. B. SEVEY.

It is not strange that all do not see alike while in the valley of the shadow of death. Ps. 23: 4. We see through a glass dimly in this imperfect age, sometimes running faster than the light shines, but oftener walking too far behind its illumination. But one thing is certain: if we walk in the light as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, while the blood cleanses us from all sin. And here we all do not see alike. Few only believe they are free from sin and condemnation. A mist is upon their hearts; they see clearly upon the first principles of the gospel (glad tidings) that Jesus came to set us free from sin, and that we can be kept by the power of God through faith from sinning. Such see darkly by reason of their unbelief. Only those are kept by the power of God who believe through faith.

If upon the first principles of the gospel we do not see clearly, is it to be thought strange that upon other things revealed in the Bible we should not all see alike, while looking through a glass darkly, sometimes feeling our way along as though we should step aside? But amid all this dimness Paul has given us an antidote, which if taken will help us very much. That is love. When filled with that, it covers a multitude of sins, suffereth long and is kind, beareth all things, and never fails, while faith and hope may. That will carry us through the pearly gates of the city of God; that alone is the bond of perfectness. In that there is no dimness; in its fulness all may rejoice and see clearly, even while in other things we may see dimly.

CORRECTION.

Bro. Stockman:—Will you give me space in the Crisis to correct a mistake. In an article in the Advocate from Henry E. Baker of The Dalles, Wasco Co., Oregon, calling for a minister, he says: "There are about one hundred and eighty members now." As I have been laboring with that people for the past three years, I know of what I speak, and I feel it is important to any minister contemplating the change. There are, all told, in Eight Mile and Union churches, not more than eighty members, and a number of those are unworthy. I am under a partial agreement with the church to return, and I have received no less than fifteen letters within the last month requesting my return. However, I must say the Lord's will be done. We are doing a good work here. I love the dear brethren of Eight Mile and Union churches, and if I should not return to them in the spring, I do trust my vacancy will be filled by a man of God.

Now, should any minister in California or on the coast wish to obtain information in regard to the matter, please correspond with O. F. Angell of The Dalles, or John Barrett of Boyd, as they are officers of the church, and will know the wants of the church. May the dear Lord guide us all aright. Your Bro., waiting for redemption when Jesus comes. JAMES A. ORCHARD.

John Day, Oregon.

FROM E. M'CULLOCH.

Bro. Stockman:—At the urgent request of a few brethren and sisters I came here one week ago to preach the Word of life. This is comparatively a new field, and people are deeply interested in the gospel themes presented. We are holding meetings every evening. Some have started for the kingdom, and still the interest increases from evening to evening. Ohio presents a large field for missionary work. Other places in Ohio, also in Mich., and Penn., are waiting for us to come and hold meetings.

Richwood, Ohio.

FROM SR. L. J. FAVOR.

Dear Brn. and Srs.:—How often during the past year have I thought I would send a few lines to our worthy paper, but the cares of our family have pressed heavily upon me, and I have let opportunities pass by unimproved. The Crisis has been a weekly visitor in our family for almost twenty years, and we have learned to look for it as for a dear friend. And I want to join in the weekly conference meeting that Sr. Tibbets spoke of some time ago, and ask God to bless our kind editor, and every one of all the dear readers of the Crisis. How often my heart has been cheered by your letters and words of encouragement, and I would like so much to see you all, and through the grace of God I expect to see all the dear faithful ones in our new Eden home, and clasp their hands, and "we shall know each other there." My own dear mother will be there, and I will know it is my mother. Blessed hope.

How many of our homes death has visited in the past year. As I think of the record, of the many faithful ones that are sleeping in Jesus, my heart aches, but again we are cheered by the promise that if we believe Jesus died and rose again, even so them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with him. So these precious promises comfort us all along our pilgrim journey. As we are separated from dear friends here we look forward by faith to that home where joys are eternal, and the weary and afflicted ones will find rest.

When we read of so many lives being lost in the recent storms in the West, our hearts go out toward those faithful ones that are sacrificing so much to preach those truths we as a people hold so dear, that are willing to suffer in Dakota blizzards for Jesus' sake. No indeed, Lord, they would not do this for anybody but thee. Our little church at Springville still lives, although reduced in numbers. There are still a few to claim the promise, and we are not discouraged. We have been without regular preaching since Bro. Turner went away, but the prayer meetings have been kept up. We have had a very interesting Sunday School, under the care of Bro Saxton, but it was thought best to close during the winter months. Bro. Barber, of Baraboo, has been with us, and just closed a week's meeting with good success, and arrangements have been made for him to meet with us once a month. He is an earnest worker in the Master's cause, and we think his coming among us will do us good. We miss Bro. Kirk's family and Sr. Smith very much, and trust they will let their light shine brightly in their new homes. Pray for us that the Lord will strengthen us for every duty. Your sister in hope.

Springville, Wis.

FROM G. W. KETCHUM.

Bro. Stockman:—This gospel of the kingdom has reached the northwest corner of the United States, and is received joyfully by a few. I held meetings in the northwest part of Whatcom Co. W. T., in November. During the meetings there were two professed conversion, four received baptism, one other lady will be baptized when I go up again. There are many others deeply interested. I set in order a little church of ten to be called the A. C. Church of School District No. 13. Bro. Lyman Babcock is elder. His address is Lindon, Whatcom Co.

In the judgment day we shall find the Lord has given credit to Bro. Stearns, elder of the church at Geesa, also to Elds. Porter and McFaden for sowing the good seed in this vicinity. I am now preaching and giving tracts and papers in several other places to good congregations. I have more calls and requests than I can possibly fill. The papers and tracts the friends of Jesus have sent are received and used to the enlightening of hundreds. Please send more. They are doing much good.

Seattle, Washington Territory.

HAVE you learned the notes of that new song which none but the redeemed can know? Is Christ the joy and hope of your being? Is freedom from sin a larger, freer, purer, more Christ-like life, the one pining desire of heart? Be patient, then, and still brace yourself to hope and to endure. Fight the good fight of faith; endure the hardness of present discipline; lift the cross and bare it bravely to the end; for God's eye oversees the day which from yours is vailed, the day of universal deliverance, the day of restitution of all things, the day of the unvailing of the new creation, where grace, having cast out sin, shall have enthroned righteousness forever.—Ex.

SECULAR NEWS.

FOREIGN.

DUBLIN, Feb. 2. At a meeting of the corporation in the Central Hall municipal building to-day the freedom of the city was conferred upon the Marquis of Ripon and Mr. John Morley. Ex-Lord Mayor Sullivan occupied the chair, and many members of Parliament, mayors and members of various city corporations, were present.

The Marquis of Ripon, in an address thanking the corporation for the honor conferred upon him, assured them that the object of British Liberals was to see that Ireland was accorded, at the earliest opportunity, full recognition of its real and legitimate political aspirations. There was a growing conviction among the masses of England in favor of home rule for Ireland.

Mr. Morley also expressed his thanks to the corporation, and said the freedom of the city was bestowed upon the Marquis of Ripon and himself because they represented a great political cause and the advancement of a great constitutional reform movement in Ireland. There would be no peace in Ireland until the question was settled, and the sooner it was settled the better.

LONDON, Feb. 2. Lord Spencer, in a speech at Manchester this evening, said that he acquired the conviction in the last three momentous years of his government of Ireland that a radical change was necessary. Mr. Gladstone's present position, he said, [illegible] result of rational development, but his (the speaker's) was a distinct conversion.

VIENNA, Feb. 2. There has been no further concentration of Russian troops along the Austrian frontier for several days. The movements reported early in the week were merely changes of posts. This suspension of arrivals from the interior is probably due to difficulties of supply, as the resources of the Russian border districts are already overtaxed, both in forage and provisions, and the railways have been badly hampered by heavy snows.

DUBLIN, Feb. 2. Eight persons have been convicted at Kanturk, county Cork, of attending meetings of a suppressed branch of the National League, and sentenced to two months' imprisonment at hard labor. Five arrests have been made in Donegal for offences under the crimes act, and more are expected.

LONDON, Feb. 2. The earthquake was felt with severity at places on a line stretching from Fort William in the west to Nairn in the east. The shock was also felt in other parts of the Highlands.

LONDON, Feb. 2. The News states that the question of local government for Scotland will be dealt with by Parliament in a separate bill.

BERLIN, Feb. 2. Dr. Mackenzie has informed a reporter at San Remo that the crown prince may still have to submit to tracheotomy to prevent his being choked by pieces of dead cartilage.

LONDON, Feb. 3. The trial of Thomas Callan and Michael Harkins, who were charged with being connected with a dynamite conspiracy, was brought to a close to day. They were found guilty, and were sentenced to fifteen years' penal servitude.

At the close of the trial Callan protested his innocence. Harkins made a spirited appeal to the court, in which he said that he was not a man who would injure property and sacrifice life, as he had a family that was dear to him in America, making him understand the value of other lives. Minister Phelps and Mr. Van Wagner were on the bench during the closing hours of the trial.

VIENNA, Feb. 3. The Abend Post, in its issue of to-day, publishes the text of the treaty concluded between Austria and Russia in 1879. The action of the government in causing the publication of the convention simultaneously with its publication in the German paper is considered a warning to Russia and other powers endeavoring to divide Austria and Germany. It is stated that Italy in 1887 accepted all the stipulations of the treaty as the basis of the triple alliance.

LONDON, Feb. 4. It is believed at Vienna that the publication of the Austro-German treaty is the result of the Floquet-Mohrenheim rapprochement. The publication creates excitement throughout Europe.

The Times' Berlin correspondent says: "The publication of the treaty between Austria and Germany was hailed here as good tidings of great joy. The incident is regarded as a turning point in European history."

DOMESTIC.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2. The fire which caused so much excitement in the Hospital for Ruptured and Crippled Children last Sunday evening, and resulted in one death, was set by bright, pretty, mild-mannered and much liked May Wilson, 11 years old. She has been in the hospital nearly three years, suffering from wry neck. She was about to be sent home to her father, Richard Wilson, No. 158 East One Hundred and Twenty-ninth street, as cured, when her crime was discovered.

DEATH pays respect to neither youth nor youthfulness, but mows down together the tender herb, the fragrant flower and the noxious weed.

The march of fifty-nine centuries is delineated, and the great transactions of the world—national, civil, military, religious, maratime, architectural, inventive and literary—with the advent of great men, all are pictorially represented in their time relations, so that an accurate outline of history may be rapidly and easily acquired.

THE PRIEST, THE WOMAN, AND THE CONFESSIONAL.
Terrible, but True Revelations.
BY FATHER CHINIQUY.

To understand the evil results which arise from the practice of Auricular Confession, it is necessary that the testimony of a reliable witness be given. Such is that of the author, who held prominent positions in the priesthood for many years. The book has had a mission for good, and has awakened a desire amongst all classes of the people to unearth the iniquities and abominations connected with this doctrine, and hold them up to the light of day, that the people may see that there is but One to whom we must confess, and he is not a Romish priest.

Over 30,000 copies have been sold in this country, and the book has been translated into many languages, and is having an enormous sale. 296 pages 8vo, with portrait of the Author.

Regular price $1.00. Reduced to 75 cts. Postage 10 cts. extra when sent by mail.

Reduced to 25 cts. postpaid. Sold at the Crisis Office.

A BOOK FOR EVERY CHRISTIAN
Buried Cities Recovered;
Or, Explorations in Bible Lands.

BY REV. FRANK S. DeHASS, D. D.

Late United States Consul at Jerusalem.

The latest, the most authentic, the most readable book published on Egypt, Palestine and the Orient; the fulfillment of ancient prophecies as shown by the light of modern discoveries; a corroborative history of the Bible found written on stone; the atheist and skeptic defeated on their own ground. Nearly two hundred Illustrations from original Photographs and Sketches. Fine paper, neat binding, clear type.

Ten Reasons why this Book should be in every Christian Household in the Land.

1st. It is a book which lends an interest to the reading of the Holy Bible that no other book written can equal.

2d. It is written by a man who tells of what he has himself seen and who lived among the scenes he so graphically describes; whose life has been devoted to the study of "Bible Lands," and whose great knowledge enables him to give testimony absolutely correct.

3d. The book contains, in a pleasing yet concise form, information which the student would have to consult a dozen books to find elsewhere.

4th. It contains information which can be found in no other book published.

5th. The illustrations have the merit of being not only beautiful, but accurate, many of them having been taken from photographs brought by the author from Palestine.

6th. It is universally recommended by the clergymen of all denominations.

7th. In printing particular care has been taken to make the type large and clear, so that to the sick, to elderly people and to children it is especially valuable.

8th. It enables everybody at small cost to visit the oldest, grandest and most wonderful ruins on earth.

9th. It contains the only description ever written in modern times by one who has visited and lived among the wild Arabs of Eastern Palestine.

10th. It is an absolute necessity to the Sunday School teacher, to the Bible scholar, and to everybody who wants properly to understand the Holy Scriptures.

SO NEAR!

BY J. ALBERT LIBBY.

I sang too long "Nearer, my God, to thee,"
And did not fall into his blessed arms;
I knew they both were out to encircle me,
I knew his love had more than earthly charms.

Since Jesus told me come and find this rest,
But many sins had made my soul afraid,
I dared not wholly lean upon his breast,
I did not quite believe what he had said.

And there was discontent in my poor heart,
My feet seemed heavy in the narrow way,
My prayers brake not the doubt-clouds clear apart,
Although I fell and did towards heaven pray.

And then I said, I will not longer sing
"Nearer, my God," and not come close to him;
I will not try to fly with crippled wing,
I will not scour a hope rusty and dim.

I will go near enough that on my cheek
Christ's breath shall fall, while his dear arms enfold,
And so his whisper be as though he speak,
And I shall love to do as I am told.

O, it is blessed to be near, like this,
And feel of mighty grace we have no lack;
Nor must we wait to reach the shores of bliss
To have our sins all cast behind his back.

Saved now and kept—a song of victory
O'er every foe but death upon the tongue.
"Nearer" it was—now it is close to thee,
A little, and full triumph will be sung.

9th of April (fast day) '86, Castleton, Vt.

CORRESPONDENCE.

FROM ELD. MARSHALL M'CULLOCH.

Bro. Stockman:—As several are urging us to report our labors through the Crisis, we cheerfully comply, hoping many will be encouraged and profited thereby.

Our last report closed with our meeting at Larkin, where seventeen young converts were baptized, and a church of twenty-four was set in gospel order. On Dec. 6th we went to Atchinson county and commenced meetings in a country school-house. Here we found four families, who by reading some of our Adventual works, sold them by Bro. J. Green some two years ago, had embraced the glorious truths they advocated, but had never heard or met an Advent preacher. These families were among the most influential of the district. Our meetings were well attended, although the nights for the first week were about as dark as night could be. There was no moon, and the dense fog that had settled down made it impossible to travel in any way without the aid of lanterns. But the people had a mind to come and hear the strange preacher. The convicting power of the Holy Spirit accompanied the word spoken, sinners gave their hearts to God, backsliders confessed their wanderings and turned again to God, eight were buried in baptism, and a noble little church of twelve members was set in gospel order, with six or eight more to unite at the first opportunity.

On the 2nd of January, after efforts had been made to secure one of the two churches in Muscotah—the Congregational and Methodist Episcopal—and failed, the brethren engaged the rink at $2.00 a night, and on the evening of our first meeting the M. E.'s opened their church for a traveling company consisting of two ministers, with a picture menagerie as they called it, with an admission fee of 25 cents, and yet we had the largest audience. And although the weather was intensely cold, our meetings were well at[illegible], the audience some nights numbering [illegible] hundred, and being very attentive, considering that about one half of the adult population of six hundred souls were infidel or bordering upon it. The people were amazed as the long-neglected Bibles were hunted up and read in the families, carried to the stores, and was the great topic of conversation by all classes. Some rejoiced greatly on account of the things they had heard, while others were greatly offended.

We announced that on a certain evening we would preach on the nature of man, or the soul. The ministers heard of it, and said to many that if that Advent preacher could tell what the soul of man was, he was the smartest man of the age. They came to the meeting. The dear Master gave us great liberty in presenting the truth and showing the fallacy of trying to save and to get others to save something that none could tell what it was. A minister in Ill. told us that it was a problem that had been rolling down the ages as to what the soul of man was. We replied, "Dear brother, have you not been trying for twenty years to get souls saved, and have you not yet learned what it was that you were trying to save?" Smilingly he replied that he had never learned what the soul to be saved was. Then we illustrated the thought by a supposed incident on a vessel. A man stands looking over the rail into the surging water, and cries out, "Save it, save it!" Men come rushing up with, "Save what, a man overboard?" "No," is the r[illegible] "What then, a woman?" "No, no, [illegible] all." "Then it must be a child." "N[illegible] any means; it is not a child." "Wh[illegible] then, can it be?" "I cannot tell." "Well, what does it look like?" "I do not know, it has never been seen." "What form is it?" "Can't tell, for it has no form." "How large is it?" "Why, it has no size." "Well, about how much will it weigh?" "O, it has no weight." "Will it perish in the water?" "No no, but save it, save it."

We remarked, no wonder that one-half of the intelligent men of the town were skeptical, when not a minister or Christian individual in Muscotah could tell what it was they were urged to save, when the Master has said, "For what is a man advantaged if he gain the whole world and lose himself, or be cast away?" Luke 9: 25. And if we could not tell them, and so plainly that a child of ten years could answer the question, we would bow our head in shame and leave the town by the next train.

It was reported that two of the three ministers were to challenge us for a public discussion, but the challenge has not come, and in all probability never will. Well, God blessed his word. Quite a number embraced the precious hope of soon seeing Jesus and then being made like him. Several gave their hearts to God, and many are anxious to build a church at once. Your brother in the highways.

FROM GEO. J. FRENCH.

Dear Editor:—We commenced a revival meeting here the Wednesday following Christmas. After continuing one week alone, Bro. J. August Smith of Forreston, Ill., came to our assistance, by request, and we continued the meeting over Sunday, Jan. 22. The attendance from the start was good, through all that severe, cold, stormy weather, the average in attendance being about 200. When the weather was favorable the average was all of 275 to to 300. The evening we closed about 400 were present. Sinners were deeply convicted, many so agitated as to tremble, eyes fill with tears, and we had hope of a general breaking down and coming to Christ. But the Spirit was most powerfully resisted. Only one gave his heart to the Lord. The standard of truth is higher, however, because of these meetings. And as precious seed had been sown, if the soil is good we may expect in due time to reap a harvest. We wish to say that Eld. Smith was beloved by all, while his preaching was positive, pointed, and no corners were cut to please man. It was done in such a way as to offend none. The Lord be with him in other fields.

FROM SR. S. E. TEEPLE.

Dear Old Crisis:—I am glad that you continue to pay your weekly visits as usual, as you and the Herald are nearly all the preaching that I have, as for the prayer meetings they are rather scarce. And as I have your cheering epistles, I felt it might not be out of place to write a few lines myself, as it has been some time since there has been a piece with my signature. I have a talent to improve, and if I cannot improve it by the word of my testimony as often as it is needed, I must occasionally get into the columns of the papers, that its readers may know of my whereabouts. I still remain on terra firma, clothed and in my right mind, still looking for Jesus to come, for his coming is much nearer than when we first believed. Having entered a new year I trust it is of much interest to all of us who are looking for deliverance, knowing of a surety deliverance will come, for we have looked and waited many years, and are looking still. Praise the Lord.

I am glad that I am among those to-day that are looking for Christ to come in the clouds of glory, for when he went away a cloud received him out of sight, and a cloud will bring him to our view again. No more aches and pains, no more sorrow nor trouble, no more parting with loved ones, no more groans, nor sighs, nor tears, a change from this mortal to immortality. "And it doth not yet appear what we shall be, but we know that when he shall appear we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is." And with John the revelator doth my soul cry, "Come, Lord Jesus, and come quickly." For indeed the earth has no charms for me. The people of God are my people, their God is my God, and when they are gathered from land and from ocean I expect to be gathered with them, and crown our King with songs of never-ending praise. I feel he has done so much for me, that it will take eternity to praise him for all that he hath done, although I feel like praising him here.

But I forbear by asking God's blessing to rest upon both reader and writer, yes, upon all both saint and sinner, that the saint may be encouraged and the sinner feel the importance of turning in with the overtures of mercy before mercy's door is closed. The invitations they have slighted, the warnings they have rejected will only add to their doom. God have mercy on the unsaved, and move hearts to seek the pardon and forgiveness of their sins. O, the means of grace that are being used, and still wickedness is on the increase and men love darkness rather than light. But we will let our light shine, be faithful to our mission, and hope to meet the loved of earth in the sweet by and by. Your sister strong in the faith of Christ's soon coming, as well as strong in the faith of divine healing.

FROM M. M. STEVENSON.

Bro. Stockman:—It may be interesting to some of the readers of the Crisis to hear a brief report of the interest and work of the Lord in this part of the State. Some have asked me if I would not report my labors, as they were interested in the work of the Lord in our own part of the State. Well I am glad I can report some interest in this part of God's moral vineyard. I can truly say there are some in these parts who are trying to do all they can to build up the cause of Christ, and to warn the world of a coming judgment. Since I came from the State Conference I have been doing all I could to renew the interest in this part of the field of labor.

At our Quarterly Conference in September a committee was chosen to organize a Mission Band to work in harmony with the Conference for the purpose of awakening [illegible] as a people and [illegible] gospel order. [illegible] church at [illegible] which we trust [illegible] rying on the work of the Lord. [illegible] of Nov. we organized a church here [illegible] South Hope, which we hope may be for the glory of him who has called us into his service. The first Sunday in November I spent with the church in Friendship, where I found a number of good faithful brethren and sisters which love the truth and are trying to hold up the light of the gospel.

On my way home I stopped and held a week's meeting with the church in Rockland, which truly was a time of blessing. Four were reclaimed and two hopefully converted. I then went to do some mission work. Began a protracted meeting at Cushing, and after a few days a deep interest was manifested. Ten rose for prayers, but on account of my health I was obliged to give up the effort. Since then I have spent two weeks with the church at Vinal Haven, and had the privilege of raising a sufficient sum to pay the debt on their chapel which was $186, and also seeing three start for the kingdom. Have just closed a week's meetings at N. Camden with some success, and as I expect if the Lord wills to do some mission work, I hope I may have the prayers of all those that have access to a throne of grace. Your brother looking for the Master.

MEN are likely to acknowledge God when some revelation of divine power startles them. But how soon they forget and become careless and worldly. Yet God was in the sunshine on Mt. Carmel as truly as he was in the fire that fell upon the altar. He is in the breeze as in the cyclone. We should accustom ourselves to think of and honor him at all times, and not merely in great emergencies.—Ex.

NOT GREAT DISPLAY, BUT MUCH GOOD.

BY I. C. WELLCOME.

All know that an empty wagon drawn rapidly makes more noise than one heavily loaded. You may know when pouring water from a jug or cask, by the noise, that there is little in it. It is not thunder but lightning that rends the rock or tree. It is not the tornado but the sunshine and rain that cause the grasses, grains, plants, and forests to grow. If we consider these principles well we shall better understand how to estimate the worth and work of all persons.

Usually it is the quiet, unassuming, earnest, faithful, persevering, untiring class, who make no display, take no account of themselves, care not how little they are known, nor how much opposition they encounter, who do the real work which the Lord owns and honors, and which time developes to be genuine, lasting, reforming, and, by the power of the Holy Spirit, saving. This is the kind of work all truly good people wish to do.

These thoughts have been in my heart for many years, but have been lately pressed out by reading the many questions, statements, and suggestions in the numerous letters I am receiving in my large correspondence with thousands of brethren and sisters on my tract mission work on this continent and in foreign countries. They say, "Why don't you give an extended account of your beginnings of these missions?" "Who commenced this work?" "You are doing a great work?" "How do you raise the money to carry on such a work on so grand a scale?" Why not tell us more in our paper what you are doing?" "You are sacrificing all your time and means in this work." "I do not see how you can do so much work alone. You will use yourself up in a short time." How did you find out how to do it?" "I wish I could do something in this work to aid you." Such remarks are constantly coming to me.

I now purpose to answer some of them if permitted. But I wish here to thank the donors for the thousands of dollars they have sent me to carry on the work, and the thousands of "God bless you's" which often come from them and those who have no money to send. Of course I have to reply to these thousands of correspondents by personal letters, but I cannot reply to all these and many other curious questions. I will do it in short here.

1. I do not tell all I know of the work I am engaged in, because the Lord is at the helm and knows it perfectly, while I know very imperfectly. I want to tell only what will stir up the Lord's people to see that there are open doors for them to do for the advancement of the truth if they will, and to cause the hearts of the faithful to be glad that the Lord is at work among the nations.

2. Our Lord Jesus Christ began the mission work with one nation, and afterwards commissioned his apostles and their successors to do it in all nations. I think it was the Holy Spirit, through the Word, who began this recent special message of life and the soon coming of Jesus, in India, Italy, Sweden, and Macedonia.

3. When I h[illegible] in India and at [illegible]ately formed an acquaintance and began work with them by sending large quantities of tracts and books, and then money to publish them. This was in 1881. When, a year later, I found some Swedes in America who were believers, and had already translated some of my tracts for Sweden and asked for more, I immediately began work with them in Sweden.

When, in 1883, I learned by an English paper that there was a minister in Italy who had embraced the faith, Bro. Cocorda, I wrote him, sent him books and tracts and money, and began publishing with him. When I learned through England in 1886 that there was a minister in Macedonia, preaching the faith which I preach, I wrote him, sent him books, tracts, and money to publish there, and began work with Bro. Stephanoff. So I have done in all the outskirts of the North American States, Territories and Provinces. It was not done by display. I would have said nothing had our people known where and how to help me do the work.

4. It is not I who is doing a great work, it is the Lord, and I am glad to have a hand in it as a servant, and to have my brethren and sisters blessed in helping the work along.

5. I am not raising the money to do all this work, it is the Spirit of the Lord, moving the hearts of those who have some of his money, and who are ready to send it where and when he moves them to do it.

6. What I am doing is not worth telling any further than to inform those who send money how I use it, and to awaken [illegible] over ten [illegible] I [illegible]

7. I [illegible] was sacrificed [illegible] me with a great price, [illegible] was worth. He knew be could make great improvements on me and on you. I am his property. I have no money or time or strength to sacrifice. All I am and have belongs to him. I handle his money and make tons and tons of books and tracts, and send them over India, Burmah, Ceylon, Norway, Sweden, Italy, Japan, China, Egypt, Persia, Jerusalem, and Ireland, besides America and many islands of the seas, in fifteen tongues.

I do tell some things about how this "meat in due season" is received by many, that others may see that the doors are open to send the light to those in darkness. You can all help do it if you have any of the Lord's money. And you who have not can do quite as much in praying the Lord to open the hearts of those who have, and to bless the efforts that are made. The Lord knows all that is done, who does it, and why it is done. There are those who are entirely unknown to the public who are doing much of this mission work, with money and prayers. When the reckoning day comes the Lord will know them. He will know those too who had received much of his money and hid it in stocks, lands, and goods, or wasted it in high living, gorgeous apparel, excursions, plays, and the gratification of utter intemperate habits. How can we "wear out" or be "used up" in any way as well as in the Lord's work? Let us so do that when our Lord comes he may say to us, "Well done, good and faithful servants."

RESOLUTION ON THE DEATH OF SR. L. M. STODDARD.

The following resolution came before and was adopted by the Northwestern Penn. A. C. Conference at its semi-annual session held at Edinboro, Jan. 21st, upon the death of its Vice President, Mrs. L. M. Stoddard:

We, the members of the Northwestern Penn. A. C. Conference deeply mourn the death of our beloved Sr. Stoddard, one of our members, and Vice President of our Conference. We acknowledge her as being one of the first movers of the Conference, and a zealous and faithful worker in the same, having a care for all the churches. She was a good evangelist, an efficient preacher, a noble, godly woman. We miss her at our session, but we hope to meet her soon in the kingdom of God, where death cannot divide.

M. R. MILES.
NEWELL WOOD.
JOHN Q. MARSH.

On Sabbath morning a memorial service was held by the Edinboro church in connection with the Conference; the W. C. T. U., of Edinboro, of which she was two years the President, uniting.

The sermon was by Eld. M. R. Miles, from 2 Tim. 4: 7, 8, and was very affecting and impressive, as he gave a brief history of her life in the gospel, and endeavored to speak as she would have spoken from the same text. The sermon was followed by remarks [illegible] his tribute to the great worth and high esteem in which she was held by her personal friends. The Temperance Union was represented by Mrs. S. B. Hotchkiss, who read the following paper in behalf of the ladies.

THE ADDRESS.

Friends:—I would come before you today stepping softly and speaking low, as in the presence of the dead. It is indeed a sad pleasure that has been entrusted to my keeping to-day. It is a pleasure to serve the band of good women that has chosen me to represent them. It is a pleasure to dwell upon the life and character of the noble woman in whose memory we have assembled; but how unspeakably sad, how attended with mourning and heartache to speak of her as dead.

Mrs. Luc M. Stoddard fell asleep Jan. 4th; and as we gather around her new-made grave, where they laid her to rest among beautiful flowers which had been brought by loving hands to hide the clods of earth and the frost of winter, we feel how inadequate are words to express our sense of sorrow and of loss, or our appreciation of her worth and works. When she came among us we were attracted by her presence and by her face, so sweet and kind, best described by saying (what our hearts can all understand), it was a mother's face, beaming with a love that took not only her own, but [illegible] into a mother's heart. Acquaintance strengthened our first impressions, and as she connected herself with our Union, and associated with us in our work, we found that she possessed in a rare degree qualification for usefulness in any sphere to which she might be called.

On Oct. [illegible], 1884, she was unanimously elected [illegible] of our Union, and with the [illegible] estimable disposition of [illegible] temper which co[illegible] just and modest sense of [illegible] herself, she served us two [illegible] her matured womanly grace, pre[siding] over our meetings both public and private; using her tact and delicately re[fined] and cultivated tastes and talents in preparing and presenting addresses to the public; giving us her judgment, which was so safe and so sound that it could be relied upon in situations of severe perplexity, she worked among us bravely, persistently, blamelessly, always ready with kind words and filled with tender thoughtfulness for the welfare of all those with whom she came in contact; and, friends, we were justly proud of her.

How we rejoiced in her as she came before our County Convention in this place, and besought the workers to "present their bodies a living sacrifice to the Lord." Who that was present can ever forget that time or scene, as she stood before us with her silver hair like a halo about her head, her gentle face lighted with holy earnestness, while the words flowed from a tongue set on fire of the Holy Spirit. Standing there with the hush of the balmy morning around her, she seemed herself the embodiment of the truths she taught; and as we afterward realized more than at that time, she had in the greatest of self-abandonment indeed laid her body, living, upon the altar of sacrifice.

It is difficult to estimate the loss sustained in our work at large by the death of this beloved sister, whose bright, quick, active mind was always eager to promote its prosperity, and for which, with her many and varied gifts, all consecrated to God, she was eminently fitted. Together with our admiration for her as a worker, was an appreciation of her fine social qualities. In all her r[illegible] she was a desirable and agreeable [illegible] She felt deeply the sorrows of [illegible] benevolent and humane, her hand [re]sponding to the calls of charity as well as [her] heart. No one in the community perhaps, in like circumstances, contributed more liberally of both time and money; but so modestly was this done that few, except those benefitted, knew of her generosity. Like her Lord she "went about doing good," and we can almost catch the tones of her voice now in the quotation so familiar to her lips, "He that giveth to the poor lendeth to the Lord." She loved the young, and was intent upon their improvement as they looked to her for precept and example. May many follow in the path of her precepts, which were pure, and her example, which was consistent.

Who would not revere such a memory? Who would not desire to imitate the example of such a life? Though serious as well as gentle in her deportment, she possessed a vein of chaste, delicate and playful wit; and when she permitted herself to indulge this talent, did so with a grace peculiarly enjoyable. She was industrious, active, and her order and system in work were remarkable.

She did not drift through life, she sailed, but always aimed at goodness rather than greatness; and when it seemed that she must sink beneath waves of despair, we have seen her bravely battling against tide and tempest, against wind and wave, against hurricane and iceberg, calmly and steadily voyaging onward, and we who beheld hoped for a calmer sea and more auspicious breezes for her life-barge. We did not think the voyage would end so soon; that so soon she would

"Sail into the sunset,
Sail into the evening."

But she has passed through her Gethsemane, where her "soul was exceeding sorrowful, even unto death," and so weary. She has fallen asleep, and our minds now dwell upon the silent tomb to cherish the remembrance of the beloved object it contains.

We feel that we are bereft, but all our memories of her breathe her spirit and whisper, "She being dead yet speaketh," aye, and shall speak on and on, in the harvest that must follow such faithful sowing of the seed. We feel ourselves bereft, but the saddest of all bereavements is that he who was "her boy," and bound to her by the tenderest ties, should be called upon to yield her to the grave, to bear her voice of love no more, to receive no more the benediction of those tender hands resting so gently on his head. We would remember him to-day. What words can tell his anguish of soul to whom she was the guiding star through all his young life? What tongue can utter the consolation that can strengthen his heart and give him courage to bear this bitter trial? We can only point him to her beautiful life, and though her tongue be silent in the grave, it will speak anew to him, as he passes down life's years, ten thousand beautiful lessons of righteousness and truth. We can only commit him to the care of the everlasting Father, who has said, "I will never leave thee nor forsake thee."

And now, why need we say more? Only with eyes burdened with tears we bow beside her grave and say, "Farewell, farewell, sweet friend and sister. Thou hast 'fought a good fight, thou hast finished thy course, thou hast kept the faith; henceforth there is laid up for thee a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, shall give thee at that day; and not to thee only, but to all them that love his appearing.'"

BY A. ROSS.

Farewell, old year, a long farewell!
Another one like thee shall never cross my path.
Twelve months ago, the day that thou wast born,
Love, hope and fear sat converse at my home.
Love, with sacred arms entwined around
A group of five, pointing to Hope, who sweetly sang,
"Cheer up, desponding hearts, 'tis better further on."
While Fear, with low and pensive sigh,
Looked on the group and made reply,
"'Tis only better on the other shore,
Where death's dark wing shall Never spread athwart thy sky,
Nor tears bedew the turf where lies
Thy dearest treasures, nevermore."
Old year, thou didst enter on thy march
By measured step, at music of
The rolling spheres, twelve months ago.
Thou hast drawn before thy sullen eyes
The tempest's misty veil, and poured
Thy desolating tears upon the world below.
Why didst thou thrust at mine
With pointed blade, nor miss thine aim,
When fragrant June came smiling past?
Why not let one who, loving life so dear,
Remain the matron of a household
God had given his name to fear?
Thou, with thine autumnal frosts,
Hast blighted flowers set by loving hands
Upon a new-made grave,
And mantled it with snow,
Where no bird upon the wing
Is heard to break the gloom,
Or welcome back the voice of spring.
Old year, thy record's made
Of broken hearts, the debt of nature paid,
Of blighted youth, and weakness of old age,
Of assassin's swift retreat with reeking blade;
Of floods and earthquakes not a few,
Scattering destruction like a ruthless foe;
Of storms that swept the ocean wide,
And scattered wrecks borne on its tide.

From thee we turn our eyes to '88.
Oh! coming year, wilt thou not bring some sweet relief
To anxious, forlorn hearts breaking with grief?
Will not the Sun of Righteousness arise,
With healing wings and glad surprise,
To all God's waiting ones, who ready stand
To take the robe, the palm and crown
From God's own hand?
Will not new graves and old resign their trust
Of saints now slumbering in the dust,
And sing, O death, where is thy sting,
For God doth now the promised victory bring?

ELLIS. In West Woodstock, Ct., Dec. 27, 1887, of cancer in the stomach, Mr. Lewis Ellis, aged 71 years, 10 months, and 27 days.

Mr. Ellis was born in Grafton, Mass., but nearly all the time for the last fifty-two years he has resided in Woodstock. He was converted in 1843, and afterwards with his companion united with the Congregational church here, of which he was a member at the time of his death. Some twelve years ago both he and his wife became interested in Adventual doctrines, especially conditional immortality and eternal life only through Christ, by a resurrection from the dead at Christ's coming, which he held firmly till his death. He was a quiet, unassuming, yet a very industrious Christian man. He was very kind and obliging as a neighbor, an affectionate husband, and a loving and indulgent father of four children, two sons and two daughters, only one of which (the youngest son) together with his aged companion, with whom he lived fifty-nine years, survive him. He was confined to the house several months, during which time he was ever buoyant with hope, looking only for deliverance when the Life-giver comes. May the grace of God sustain the aged widow in her sorrow, also the son in his affliction, and may they be an unbroken family in the kingdom of God. His funeral was attended at his late residence by the writer, assisted by Rev. J. D. Graham.

P. S. BUTLER.

YOUNGBLOOD. In Emmanuel County, Ga., Sept. 9th, 1887, Mrs. Laura Youngblood, wife of Frank Youngblood.

She was born Oct. 21st, 1855, and embraced the Second Advent faith May 9th, 1886. She was a bright light in the church, a devoted Christian. She leaves five loving children, an affectionate husband and father, many relatives, and a host of friends to mourn her loss, while the church is draped in mourning, but they do not weep for her as those that have no hope. She made a happy home for twelve years, one month and nine days. She seemed to be absorbed in the faith of the return of the Lord to raise the dead and reward his people. She now sleeps beneath the sod that will be opened when her Life-giver appears, by whom she will be raised to immortality when sorrow and crying will flee away, and be enabled to sing the song of triumph, "O death, where is thy sting, O grave, where is thy victory?"

JERE. HOWARD.

STUBBS. In South Orrington, Me., Sept. 18, 1887, Timothy M. Stubbs, aged 76 years.

A man of sterling integrity, of unblemished Christian character, unflinching for right, true to principle and a lover of the truth, he continued till the end of life to cherish the faith once delivered to the saints. He leaves a wife and daughters to mourn his loss, but he died in hope, and laid down to rest a little while until He comes whose right it is to reign. How thrilling will be the scene in that glorious morning when all that are in the graves shall hear the voice of the Son of God, and come forth never to die any more. Funeral services by the writer.

JOHN F. CLOTHEY.

STUBBS. In South Orrington, Me., Dec. 30, 1887, Sister Sylvia Stubbs, aged 75 years.

This dear sister laid away her beloved husband a little over three months ago, and she is now beside him in the narrow house, there to wait until the Son of God shall bid them arise. Her sickness was very short, only a few hours, but she was in possession of her faculties, and bade the dear ones an affectionate farewell. They will miss her wise counsel, and can no more behold her face upon the earth; but when the Master shall return the dear children who now mourn will be made glad if they accept the precious sacrifice of Christ, and follow in the footsteps of Him who was meek and lowly in heart. The little band of believers will behold the vacant seat in the house of prayer with sadness, but it is written, "The ransomed of the Lord shall come to Zion with songs and everlasting joy upon their heads; they shall obtain joy and gladness, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away. Services by the writer.

JOHN F. CLOTHEY.

HINKLEY. In Bangor, Me., Nov. 24, 1887, Eliza A. Hinkley, aged 53 years, 10 months.

The subject of this notice has been connected with the church in Bangor thirteen years, and has lived an exemplary life. Her last days of weakness and suffering were characterized by Christian fortitude and submission to the will of God. No murmuring escaped her lips, knowing as she did that the end must soon come, she looked beyond the grave to the home in the new earth, and the thought of seeing Jesus and being made like him. She met the king of terrors with unflinching courage, and calmly fell asleep in Jesus to awaken with his saints to the glorious realization of eternal life in his everlasting kingdom. She was ever ready to fill her place in the house of God, and took an active part in his service as long as health and strength would permit. Funeral services were conducted by Bro. O. S. French in the absence of the writer.

JOHN F. CLOTHEY.

SPRAGUE. In Voluntown, Ct., Nov. 20, 1887, Mrs. Comfort Sprague, widow of Geo. R. Sprague, aged 67 years.

She joined the Escobeag A. C. Church on a letter from the Six Principle Baptist Church, Richmond, R. I., June 11th, 1872. Eight children are left to mourn the loss of one of the best of mothers. Her prayers are ended, but her influence, like the fragrance of crushed flowers, still lives. Her life was marked by deep piety. She was calm in her last moments, trusting in her Saviour, who, she said, was holding her hand in his. We miss her, but we expect to meet her in the morning. Words of consolation were spoken by Bro. P. S. Butler.

She suffered much during her sickness, but bore it patiently. We visited her, and each time she expressed confidence and trust in Jesus' power to help. We miss her in our little church, but expect to meet her in the sweet by and by. She was converted under the labors of Elders Adams and Turner, was baptized by Wm. Sheldon twenty-two years ago, and has been enabled by grace to maintain a Christian reputation. There are left to mourn father, one brother, and three children. Regard for her was manifested by the large gathering of friends and neighbors to pay their last respects as we laid her to rest. Services were conducted by the writer, assisted by Rev. W. H. Jackson.

AMASA M. BARBER.

GIBBS. In Barnard, Windsor Co., Vt., Sylva Gibbs, aged 98 years and six months.

The subject of this notice was converted in early life with the Calvinist Baptists. After some years she joined the Methodist church, but for over forty years has been identified with the Advent Christian Church in Barnard, holding to the doctrine of the Bible firmly to the end, as we as a people defend and preach it. She raised six children. Her mind failed gradually a short time [illegible] thirty years, but has borne with much patience trials and bereavements. Funeral service by the Methodist minister.

S. P. ADAMS.

OLIVER. In Industry, Me., Dec. 27th, after an illness of six days of pneumonia, Sister Anna, wife of Bro. James Oliver, aged 88 years and 10 months.

Sister O. was a Christian for many years, and a faithful wife and mother. Some thirty years ago she, with her husband, heard the good news of Christ's soon coming preached, and both believed it. She has lived in this faith and died in it, soon to rise and live forever. An aged and sick husband, several children, and many friends are left to mourn their loss.

She embraced the faith of the Lord's soon coming, and has lived a consistent Christian, by which she gained the respect of her neighbors. She had strong consolation in hope of salvation through Jesus, and expressed a willingness to rest until Jesus comes. The services were conducted by the writer, assisted by Rev. W. H. Jackson of Magnolia.

MARGARIDGE. In Waterville, Kansas, Dec. 29, 1887, Simeon Margaridge, aged 58 years.

He was a member of the Advent Christian Church at this place. He leaves a wife and children to mourn his loss. He suffered much here, but died looking forward to a glorious resurrection and reunion with friends in God's beautiful kingdom.

BE CAREFUL.

A old man is like an old wagon; with light loading and careful usage it will last for years; but one heavy load or sudden strain will break it, and ruin it forever. Many people reach the age of fifty, sixty, or even seventy, measurably free from most of the pains and infirmities of age, cheery in heart and sound in health, ripe in wisdom and experience, with sympathies mellowed by age, and with reasonable prospects and opportunities for continued usefulness in the world for a considerable time. Let such persons be thankful, but let them also be careful. An old constitution is like an old bone—broken with ease, mended with difficulty. A young tree bends to the gale, an old one snaps and falls before the blast. A single hard lift; an hour of heating work; an evening of exposure to rain and damp; a severe chill; an excess of food; the unusual indulgence of any appetite or passion; a sudden fit of anger; an improper dose of medicine—any of these, or other similar things, may cut off a valuable life in an hour, and leave the fair hope of usefulness and enjoyment by a shapeless wreck.—Hastings' Birthday Book.

ALMOST everybody believes in God during a storm at sea, or when a train goes through a drawbridge, or in the hour of battle, or when a pestilence rages. But it is one thing to ready to cry out, "The Lord, he is the God," and quite another thing to serve and trust the Lord as our God.—Ex.

IF the church would have her face shine, she must go up into the mount and be alone with God. If she would have her courts of worship resound with eucharistic praises, she must open her eyes and see humanity lying lame at the temple gates, and heal it in the miraculous name of Jesus.—Ex.

THE living Christian—pure of heart and unspotted by the world—is the best preacher of the gospel in these days.

MISSION REPORT.

The missionary movement in Western New York is comparatively in its infancy. At our session of the Conference one year ago, a missionary spirit was manifested, and a Board of Managers appointed to advance the interests of the same. God has blest the movement. Our last session was held at Darien, N. Y., Nov. 24–27, 1887, Eld. C. H. Sweet acting as Chairman pro tem., and J. G. Morris as Secretary pro tem.

It was thought best to revise articles of the work, and subsequently a committee was appointed, and reported as follows, advising that a missionary society be organized independent of, yet within the bounds of the Conference, for the furtherance of the missionary work within the limits of the Conference. The report was adopted.

The report of J. G. Morris, Treasurer, was submitted and accepted. Total money received was $196.81. Amount expended, $170.52. Balance in treasury, $26.29.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Eld. G. F. Haines, President; J. J. Morris, Vice President; F. W. Simonds, Secretary; J. G. Morris, Treasurer. Executive Committee: C. W. Frink, J. Phelan, L. Grannell, Wm. Morrell, A. H. Dunbar.

F. W. SIMONDS, Secretary.

The following is a copy of the Constitution as accepted and adopted:

HOW TO SPOIL A CHILD.—Begin young by giving him whatever he cries for. Talk freely before him about his great cleverness. Tell him he is too much for you,—that you can do nothing with him. Let him learn to regard his father as a creature of unlimited power, capricious and tyrannical; or as a mere whipping-machine. Let him learn (from his father's example) to despise his mother. Do not care who or what his companions may be. Let him read stories about pirates, Indian fighters, and so on. Let him roam the streets in the evening, and go to bed late. Devote yourself to making money, remembering always that wealth is a better legacy for your child than principles in the heart and habits in the life; and let him have plenty of money to spend.—Sel.

CLOUDY days are many; bright days are few; we must catch each ray of sunlight as it comes. In the east clouds gather, and as they roll they hide the distant shores from our sight. The cloud that hides our future never lifts—blessed shadow! Who would wish to see one step along the way? An unseen hand will guide us safely to the other side if we take firm hold, and cast our care on him.—Ex.

WE are admonished in the day of adversity to consider. There is a voice in God's providences to which we should give heed. His dealings with us and with others should not be disregard.—Ex.

FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.

LETTER FROM ELD. MILES GRANT.

My last report ended Friday, Feb. 24th. The 25th I went to Eastbourne, some sixty-five miles south of London on the seaside The town contains some twenty-five thousand inhabitants. It is a very pleasant place, and is a noted summer resort. I am informed that some thirty or forty thousand people come here in the warm weather. The Grand Parade on the seaside bank is said to be one of the finest in the world. It is lined with fine hotels and mansions, in which visitors secure their rooms in the summer. It is about fifty miles across the channel to France. The people and the town seem quite like those in the States on the seaside. It is a pleasant place for a home. Dr. Asa Mahan, formerly President of Oberlin College, Ohio, resides here. He is now eighty-eight years of age, and is still active in Christian work. He is tall and erect. He has done a great amount of literary work of a very high order. He is now editing, in company with Dr. A. Lowrey of New York, and C. G. Moore of London, an international monthly, entitled, "Divine Life." It abounds in rich articles on the subject of Scriptural Holiness. I find a goodly number here who are interested in the subject.

Dr. Mahan and wife have a very pleasant home, looking out upon the sea on the "Grand Parade." I very much enjoyed my visit with him. His "Critical History of Philosophy" is a work of rare literary merit. It is in two volumes; price $5.25. His works on "The Science of Natural Theology," "Out of Darkness into Light," and his "Autobiography," are works that will be read with special interest. He has been residing in England some twelve years. He is an able advocate of the doctrine of holiness, as was Prof. C. Finney, his successor as President of Oberlin College.

After my arrival in Eastbourne Saturday Bro. H. Hudson went with me in the afternoon to Ockfield, about twenty miles from Eastbourne. Sunday we took a walk to Piltdown, Maresfield, two and a half miles from Ockfield, where we had meetings at 10.30, A. M., and 2 P. M., in the "Advent Chapel." In 1843–4, a Bro. Winter came there from the States, having embraced the views then taught about the immediate coming of Christ, and presented them to the people, causing a great stir, which resulted in establishing a church, which has kept the light burning to this day.

This is the only church of the kind I have found in Europe. We had an interesting day. They walked from one to nine miles each way to be present. I learned that one woman walked five miles and back. They brought their dinners with them, and had a very agreeable repast at noon. It was a privilege to talk to such hungry people for the truth of the Lord. They are determined to keep the light burning till Jesus comes. Bro. A. Sawyer works with his hands every day in the week, and preaches to them each Sunday without pay. He is a true man. He lives at Ockfield. We returned to his home at the close of the afternoon meeting. In the evening I gave a chart talk to a large and very attentive audience in "Public Hall." The people clamored for more, but I was advertised to commence a series of meetings in Eastbourne the next night.

I have now (Saturday, March 3d) been here about one week, and have given lectures on the historic and prophetic chart in the Young Men's Christian Association Hall, the Congregational Church, and the New Hall. To-morrow I am to preach in Longstone Hall at three and seven P. M. Dr. Mahan is to speak at 10.30 in the same hall. Eastbourne has been well supplied with the labors of distinguished Christian men; consequently there are more here who are interested in Bible subjects than are usually found in towns of this size. On this account it is a good field for the grand truth relating to the near coming of Christ, and holiness as a preparation for the event. The holiness meetings, held at three o'clock each afternoon, have been well attended, and have been seasons of refreshing from the Lord. The number who attend increase every day. Among these are some very bright specimens of real Christians. Their faces shine with "the beauty of holiness." Some of the evening meetings have been densely crowded, including the standing room, and then many could not get inside, and had to go away. What they are hearing is entirely new to them, and quite unlike what they have been hearing and believing.

Some hold the Lord will not come till the end of a spiritual millennium, or the conversion of the world; others hold he is coming before the millennium, but that the Jews must return to Palestine, rebuild Jerusalem, and the antichrist must arise, and do a terrible work of persecution for three and a half years, and then Christ will come personally. I find them very tenacious of their belief in the return of the Jews and the future antichrist. At the close of the meeting last evening I had quite a flood of questions bearing on these subjects. The answers given called forth hearty cheering from the audience. To-night I am to speak on the signs of the times, showing we are now living in the last generation, when we may expect to live till Jesus comes.

A prominent Christian worker has just left me, who has been questioning me for more than an hour on a great variety of points. He begins to see the light on the grand truth which I am presenting. As he was about to leave he said, "I want the truth." I found him willing to receive it as fast as it came to his comprehension. Many are in a similar situation. They begin to see that something is wrong in modern theology. It is opposed to common sense as well as the Bible. Men's minds are in a state of utter confusion in theological matters. Thank the Lord there is a straightforward, consistent, harmonious and reasonable doctrine taught in the Bible, which the common people can understand, and it is spreading in all directions.

Those who hold to the Papal doctrines of natural immortality, consciousness when dead, and the eternal torment of the unsaved, are doing what they can to hedge up the way of truth, but the Lord keeps pulling down their bars. The people are demanding an investigation of these subjects; and if their ministers will not allow it preached in their pulpits, then they will go where they can hear for themselves. This is the case here. They have got a taste of the truth, and they are eager for more. I have concluded to remain another week, and press the battle.

I have now decided to leave London for Rome March 19th or 20th. Dr. Hammond, an able lecturer against Papacy, is going with me. He will be very helpful to me by the way, as he speaks French, German and Latin. He was educated for a Jesuit priest. I am expecting a hot fight in Rome this time. I shall probably reach there the morning of the 21st of March. I should not go if I was not most fully satisfied the Lord thus directs. Pray for me that I may have grace and courage to do my whole duty.

SHALL WE MAKE MINISTERS?

BY H. POLLARD.

Can it be possible that differing opinions are held among Adventists upon this point? In the opinion of the present writer there should be but one answer, and that a most positive, emphatic, unanimous and tremendous NO.

To make ministers of the New Covenant is God's work and not man's. We could not make one if we should try, and we ought never to try to usurp in the least degree a divine prerogative. We hope all Adventists are fully agreed upon the fundamental proposition that the essential and indispensable qualification for a gospel minister is "power from on high."

Until this was bestowed even apostles must wait. Without this the mightiest intellect is incapable, and the most profound scholarship is an utterly inadequate preparation. With this divine endowment, impelling to the work of an evangelist or pastor, the servant of Christ is undoubtedly made a minister of the gospel by divine choice and appointing, and no lack of mere school knowledge can or should disqualify him for the work to which God has called him. Let him find his place and fill it as well as he can, and let no one presume to question his right to preach the gospel to those who find his services helpful.

It is beyond question God's prerogative to call whom he will to speak for him. It is certain that now as in former times he may, and often does, call the unlearned as well as the learned, the illiterate as well as the scholar. In this matter we have neither right nor power to interfere, and to attempt it is sure to bring only hurt upon ourselves. Quite possible many have mistaken their calling, and would do better service for God and humanity elsewhere than in the ministry. Due precaution may and should be taken to guard the church against such mistakes, and with this proviso it will certainly be well for any Christian people to gladly accept and fully recognize those ministers whom God has qualified to preach the gospel, "with the Holy Ghost sent down from heaven," whether they bring a college diploma or not.

However, this question has no bearing whatever upon the undeniable duty of a Christian people to provide, up to the full measure of their ability, for the advanced schooling of their own youths of both sexes, at a time when many of the secular schools are pervaded by a most subtile religious infidelity of teachers or pupils, extremely dangerous to ardent, receptive minds exposed to its influence, unwarned and unprotected by parent or church. Also when in all the so-called Christian schools errors of doctrine are taught which really foster and promote infidelity. Upon this duty we are generally asleep, yet it is one of great and immediate practical importance.

If there are good reasons for our refusing to patronize Roman Catholic schools, the same reasons hold good against our patronizing the various denominational schools. The danger is less in degree, but it is the same in kind, and must be averted if we would be true to God and educate children "in the nurture of the Lord." That God who commended Abraham because of his known faithfulness to impress divine and present truth upon his children, will not excuse us if we neglect the same duty. Already there are hundreds of Adventist parents, who have seen their children drift back to the embrace and support of the very sects and errors which compel and justify our separate work as a Christian people. Are we blind that we do not see the power of denominational schools to thus undo our work? And are we not aware that the patronage we now give to those schools would, if turned into a common channel, largely contribute to sustain a school of our own, conducted upon a modest and economical basis?

But, returning to our subject, when God has called and qualified a servant to preach the unsearchable riches of Christ, has that servant, and the church of Christ in whose behalf he is to labor, nothing further to do to promote that calling, and make it more effectual in edifying the church and in rescuing the perishing? This is the vitally important question which now confronts us as a people, rather than whether or not we shall make ministers.

If God shall make a man of meagre education to become a minister, does that fact excuse him from after-study and training, in order to present his message more effectively? If he is "full of faith and the Holy Ghost," is it therefore a sin for him to learn to speak his mother tongue correctly, or to rectify ludicrous and mortifying mistakes of statement or delivery?

Certainly no Adventist will take so extreme a position. It is the explicit testimony of Scripture that in the great work of human redemption God and man are coworkers. God first does his part of this work, which man cannot do, and he does it with infinite love and condescension and unerring wisdom; but he also requires man to do his part of the work, and gives him power to perform it sufficiently well for the purpose in view, and if man then refuses he seals his own condemnation. To such a "wicked and slothful servant" God says: "Take from him the talent" he will not use, and "give it to him that hath ten talents," and does not neglect them. And this principle applies to a people as well as to an individual.

Hence a divine call to the gospel ministry is equally a divine call to secure a well trained and well stored mind, as soon and as far as may be done without forsaking or neglecting that ministry; and as the ministry is in the church, of the church, and for the church, the church is no less interested and no less obligated to urge, encourage and assist the ministry wisely and amply to this end. This is essentially the whole question of ministerial education. If it is incumbent upon the faithful minister to "study" and "give attendance to reading," it is no less incumbent upon the church of Christ to help him do this. Without such help very few indeed can ever accomplish much progress, and in so important a cause as ours, worthy of our very best work, the church cannot afford to mistakenly withhold this help, and thus weaken and impoverish herself and her ministry.

"For our sakes this is written:" "Thou shalt not muzzle the mouth of the ox that treadeth out the corn." The well fed ox will do better work, other things being equal, than the ox that is weak from hunger; and they who neglect the spirit of this precept, in any sense, will suffer for it—possibly losing some likely oxen that stray off in search of better feed, and possibly failing to tread out much corn which otherwise might be theirs. It is vain to expect God to call educated men to our aid as long as we make no effort to educate those he has called. When in the early struggle of the Advent movement educational measures were a sheer impossibility, they were not required. Now that movement has developed into a strong and growing people; and it is simply a matter of our own option whether we will seek our level as a people with the few obscure sects that decry and distrust an educated ministry, or will rise to a summit of usefulness and good worthy of the glorious truths we hold, up to which height the speedy coming of Christ will give us none too much time to climb.

It is by no means necessary to lay aside or neglect the ministerial calling to obtain even a thorough education and mental training. Thousands of ministers have proved this, and have supplied churches or labored as evangelists throughout a protracted term of study. Many are studying thus to-day. With God's blessing such work can be as effective as the occasion requires. For this purpose a school and a corps of instructors are imperative necessities. And the same school could also be made to subserve the interests of the church as a higher school for the youth of Adventual parentage, to great advantage. A very modest beginning would meet present need and fulfill our present duty. Will it be said that founding schools, building church edifices and such work is not consistent with strong faith in Christ's soon coming? Our answer is from the gracious lips of our Lord himself. He bids us, "Occupy till I come." Consistency is a poor plea for disobedience, and certainly to cease any part of our work, or to refuse to enlarge it as needed, while as yet He has not come, is a very plain case of disobedience to a plain command. A good Baptist sister once charged Adventists with insincerity in working, eating and sleeping like other people. She thought they ought, if sincere, to do nothing but pray, sing hymns and read the Bible. Is it not equally absurd to charge inconsistent conduct upon those who only demand that every measure affecting the welfare of the church or the extension of the gospel shall be vigorously pushed:

"And never stand still Till the Master appear"?

Our Lord has said, "Ye know not when the time is," and however strong we may deem the probabilities, we must all confess this fact,—we do not know that time. Though His coming is "at the door," yet, undeniably, "that day and hour knoweth no man."

Brethren, let us be true to this stubborn and undeniable fact, and go to work and keep at work as though determined to crowd ten years of endeavor into every year of time yet given us, doing every needed Christian work as fast as we come to it and neglecting none; thus and thus only can we be consistent with our duty which is to "occupy" till Jesus comes. And if we have dear brethren who dare not labor thus with us lest they be inconsistent with their faith, let all such see to it that they make no better preparation against future need for self or for family, than they also make for Christ's cause and church: for thus only can they escape the charge of inconsistency.

MEN seek honor through pride. God gives them shame to teach them humility. When they learn to choose his way, and receive what he appoints, their short humiliation is succeeded by enduring exaltation.

"THIS GENERATION."

BY J. S. WHITE.

Generation, as used in the Bible, is in no place limited to a given number of days or years. It usually denotes a period of time from father to son, as given in Matt. 1. It is very plainly used in another form. "God is in the generation of the righteous." Psa. 14:5. "A seed shall serve him; it shall be accounted to the Lord for a generation." Psa. 22:30. "This is the generation of them that seek him." See the connection. Psa. 24:6. "The generation of the upright shall be blessed." Psa. 112:2. See Prov. 30. "The children of this world are in their generation wiser than the children of light." Luke 16:8. "But ye are a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, a peculiar people." 1 Pet. 2:9.

In these texts generation is applied to a race; a class of persons, whether good or bad. It may be that in every place where Jesus spoke of the generation as applied to the Jews, he included them as a class or race which lived before he was here, and which would live after he should go away. All things the prophets have spoken of the Jews, and all that Christ said of them must be fulfilled before the generation of Abraham's seed shall pass away. Some have claimed that Christ meant by "this generation" the period of seventy years from 1780 to 1850, before which time Christ would come. After this time passed, some thought that the generation was for one hundred years, commencing the time as before at 1780. This would end in 1880.

After this time passed, another view was taken of the generation, namely, that some persons who were alive in 1780 would be living at the time when Christ shall come, and perhaps be able to remember the dark day of 1780. To have seen that day, and to remember it, a person must now be living at the age of one hundred and twelve or fifteen years. The dark day of 1780 was nearly confined to New England, extending a little over the line of New York and New Jersey. We have no evidence that there is any person now living in New England at the age of one hundred and eight years. But, suppose that there are five or six persons of that age now living. Is this the way that Christ's word is fulfilled? When prophecy is fulfilled, it can be said openly and understandingly, "This is that which is written."

As the three generations referred to have gone by, some now say that the time for the beginning of the generation was in 1833, at which time there was a great display of one of the great periodical showers of meteors. But, if we add one hundred years, which has been called a generation, to 1833, it will extend to 1933 before this generation will end. The records given us in Matt. 24, Mark 13, and Luke 21, were given at the same time and under the same circumstances. Some have said that the record in Luke 21 was not given at the time of that recorded in Matt. 24 and Mark 13. It has been said that the conversation with Christ and his disciples, as in Luke 21, took place in the temple. This is assumed. It does not show that Christ's answer to the question put to him was given in the temple. Every particular of this narration shows that the conversation was after they went out of the temple, and that it was at the same time as that recorded in Matthew and Mark. See Matt. 24:2. In Mark it reads the same. In Luke it is substantially the same.

In the three places the stones of the temple were referred to, and the same reply was given by the Saviour. Suppose in Luke it does not read that they went out of the temple. Does it follow that they did not go out at all, and that the whole of Luke 21 was all spoken by our Saviour while they were all in the temple? The account in Mark 13 was preceded by that of the poor widow who cast two mites into the treasury. It is precisely the same in Luke. It follows that if the account in Luke took place at another time from that in Mark, there must have been two poor widows, one at one time, and another at another time, about whom the Saviour said the same words. But if only one widow is brought to view in these two places, it is evident that the record in Luke 21 was given by Christ at the same time it was spoken, as recorded in Mark 13.

In answering the question put to Christ about what would be in the future, he spoke of a great number of things that would come to pass, spreading over the whole gospel age. Then he begins again and goes over the time down to his coming, speaking of some signs and events not before named. "When ye therefore shall see the abomination of desolation, spoken of by Daniel the prophet, stand in the holy place." Matt. 24:15 and onward. See Mark 13:15 and onward, the same as in Matt. In Luke it reads, "And when ye shall see Jerusalem compassed with armies, then know that the desolation thereof is nigh." Luke 21:21–24. This is all applied to the Jews, to their city and to their land, and it was to continue "till the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled." Then follows what is said of signs in the sun, and in the moon, and in the stars. These, and nearly all the signs on the earth given by our Lord are put in the plural. "So likewise ye, when ye see these things (that is, all the things of which he spake) come to pass, know ye that the kingdom of God is nigh at hand." v. 31. Then follows, "Verily I say unto you, This generation shall not pass away till all be fulfilled."

All the things of which Jesus spoke in answer to the question, "What shall be the signs of thy coming?" were signs of his coming, including signs on the earth and in the heavens. One of the two or three signs which Jesus gave in the singular number was that "Jerusalem shall be trodden down by the Gentiles till the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled." This is a standing sign without any break in it. From the time that Jerusalem was taken, it has been trodden down by Gentile powers—Romans, Saracens and Greeks. The abomination spoken of by Daniel came on Jerusalem by the Romans. Since that other powers have had the control, as it is said, "For the overspreading of abominations [in the plural] it shall be made desolate." In Matt. 24:21, "For then shall be great tribulation, such as was not since the beginning of the world to this time, no, nor ever shall be."

In Mark 13:19 it reads the same in substance, and in Luke 21:23, "For these be the days of vengeance, that all things which are written may be fulfilled; for there shall be great distress in the land, and wrath upon this people." It is said that the tribulation in Matthew and the affliction in Luke cannot apply to Jerusalem, because it reads that it shall be such as never was, nor ever shall be. Jesus did not say that the tribulation would be greater than any other, but that it would be such as never was, and never would be. There might have been more people destroyed in the flood than there were at Jerusalem, but the two cases are very unlike. And so it is, if we compare Jerusalem with the coming of Christ to judge the world. In Dan. 12:1 it reads, "There shall be a time of trouble such as never was since there was a nation, even to that same time."

Jesus applied the word generation to the Jews in several places. In Matt. 23:34–36, Jesus speaking to the Jews of what they had been, and what they were then doing, and what they would do in the future, said: "Verily I say unto you, All these things shall come upon this generation"; that is, the generation of the Jews. In Matt. 24:34, Jesus said, "Verily I say unto you, This generation shall not pass till all these things be fulfilled." In reply to the questions put to Jesus, he said to his people that the Jews were the people of whom he said, "All these things shall come upon this generation." Matt. 23:36, and Matt. 24:34. The large number of things of which Jesus spoke were all signs of his coming. The generation that then was is not to pass away until the last sign named, the sign of the Son of man.

It has been said that if we take this view of the generation, it makes no point as to the time of Christ's coming. But how much point has been made by the three generations which have been named, of different length, which have been started at 1780? Now some have taken the generation to begin at 1833. If we add one hundred years for this generation, it may extend to sixty-seven years in the future; and if so, where is the point of time in that time for the end to come?

One of the plainest and most important signs which Christ gave of his second coming was that the Jews—Abraham's seed—called a generation, should not pass away till all the things named be fulfilled. Many nations of ancient time have lost their identity as a people. The Jews, on account of their wickedness, lost their kingdom. Their city was taken from them, and their whole landed territory was taken by the Gentiles, who have held it to the present time. They were scattered into all nations, and they remain so to this day. They have at different times been greatly persecuted by the nations among which they have lived. Still they are a people, distinct and separate from all others. They can trace their genealogy back to Abraham. They know that they are Abraham's seed as clearly as they did when Christ was here. They, as a seed, do not run out. A Jew is a Jew everywhere. Signs are not given to show the date of an event, but to show the certainty of the event. This generation, which has been seemingly miraculously continued, will not pass away till these things be fulfilled.

SPIRITUAL FREEDOM.

BY DR. ALFRED GRAHAM.

We are living in a period of the world's history when there appears to be brooding over the entire religious world a spirit of Christian liberality. Considerable progress has been made in this direction of late, but not as much as the truly pious of all denominations have earnestly hoped for. Evidently the spread of skepticism and the scattering of infidel literature broadcast over the land has had a tendency to draw Christians of all denominations together to battle against a common foe. Spiritism and other isms, not necessary to mention here, have doubtless had a similar effect. The unity of the Christians of various orders, so much to be desired, has been accomplished in part, and can be brought about more fully only by adopting as the universal motto, "The Bible our only creed; Christian character our only test of fellowship," and by each freely according the other the God-given right to read, understand, interpret, and preach the truths of revelation according to his own honest convictions.

Spiritual freedom! What a boon! Thank God for it. Take property and friends from me, shackle and chain me, deprive me of physical liberty, let me ever so keenly feel the galling yoke of tyranny if you will, but never, never seek to invade the sacred precincts of my mind; give me above all things else that spiritual freedom and liberty taught by Him who said, "The truth shall make you free. If the Son therefore shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed." Thank God for the religious freedom we may enjoy today under the blessings of heaven, and the privileges vouchsafed to us by the organic law of the land. The days of the Inquisition are forever past, never again to inflict injuries upon the children of men, and deprive them of worshiping God after the dictates of their own conscience. In reflecting upon the great fact that the Inquisition is forever past, we must not fail to observe that bigotry and intolerance under the garb of religious zeal, in the hands of those who are notoriously sectarian, is, in proportion to the extent of its power, as dangerous and hostile to spiritual freedom as was the Inquisition.

Theological opinions should always be held in a kind, liberal spirit. The religion of our Lord and Saviour should be professed in a sweet, loving spirit. Jesus Christ, the great Head of the Church, conferred upon no man or set of men the right to dictate to his fellow-man in matters pertaining to his spiritual interest here, which must affect his welfare in the great hereafter. Every human mind should regard the other as having equal rights, and remember that "our Father," without favoritism, freely invites all mankind to the same communion with him. There are no divinely appointed, infallible expounders of the Word. God invites all to search the Scriptures, to read for themselves, and to follow Jesus in doctrine and practice to the best of their ability. No man has a moral right to refuse to extend the hand of fellowship and the best wishes of the heart to another, who, perchance, is not in theological agreement with him, so long as he conducts himself as becometh one of the household of faith.

Christians should remember that uniformity in religion or in anything else cannot reasonably be hoped for. The fact has been abundantly demonstrated, that those who differ theologically in word, can agree practically in heart, and labor and work unitedly for the glory of God and the salvation of the perishing, thereby showing to the world that it is possible, even where differences of opinion exist, to preserve the unity of the spirit in the bonds of peace. Oh, for a letting go of unscriptural tests, for concert of action on the part of all lovers of the Lord, on a broad, scriptural basis that will include in the grand work of bringing men to Christ all the pure and good of all denominations, regardless of personal opinions in matters universally conceded to be not essential to salvation.

Oh, for a broad Christian platform on which all the ransomed of the Lord may stand, each imbibing the sweet spirit of the Master freely, and to such an extent as to preclude the possibility of the exhibition of intolerance amongst those who from early education and training honestly differ on matters of minor importance, while agreeing on the grand fundamentals of the Christian system. May God help us to be true to ourselves in the various relations of life, true to our fellow-man, true to our convictions of right, and, above all, true to him who saves us and has called us to glory and virtue.

REGENERATION.

BY JOHN BOWER.

To generate is to beget and bring forth. Regeneration is to re-beget and be born again. The first gives us a natural body, and we bear the image of the earthy. The second gives us a spiritual body, and we bear the image of the heavenly. There are but two births; the first is of the flesh, and is flesh—a water birth. The second is of the spirit, and is spirit. Jesus said, "Verily I say unto you, ye must be born again." If, as some teach, baptism is the water birth, and the resurrection the spirit birth, they get three births, one in the past and two in the future to the unconverted.

"Ye must be born again," does not require two future births. Nicodemus said, "How can a man be born when he is old? Can he enter the second time into his mother's womb and be born?" Jesus answered, "Verily, verily I say unto thee, except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot inherit the kingdom of God." John 3:6 explains the two births. That which is born of the flesh, is flesh—a water birth. This produces a natural body, but does not entitle us to an inheritance in the kingdom of God, therefore we must be born again; a spirit birth produces a spirit body. "There is a natural body and there is a spiritual body." See 1 Cor. 15:42—50. It is the same body quickened by the Spirit (Rom. 8:11) at the resurrection or translation of the believer.

There is harmony between the natural and the spiritual. In natural generation the child exists in its unmatured, begotten state, and is dependent upon another for its present and future life. It lives because its parent lives. When born it has life in itself. In regeneration we are begotten again. 1 Peter 1:3. "Of his own will begat he us with the word of truth." James 1:18. See 1 Peter 1:23, revised translation, "Being begotten again not of corruptible seed, but of incorruptible, by the word of God which liveth and abideth for ever."

And in our re-begotten state we are the unmatured sons of God. "Therefore the world knoweth us not because it knew him not. And it doth not yet appear what we shall be, but we know that when he shall appear we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is." 1 John 3:2. In this re-begotten state we are dependent upon another, that is Christ, for our present spiritual life and future eternal life. As the branch draws its nourishment from the vine, and lives because the vine lives, so said our Saviour, "Because I live, ye shall live also." Being born again we shall have life in ourselves, immortal and eternal life. With this view of regeneration we are not at a loss to know when it begins and where it ends. It begins at conversion, and is complete in the resurrection or its equivalent, a translation.

The Scriptures reveal two Adams, two covenants, two begetings, two births, two Jerusalems, a Paradise lost and a Paradise restored. The Paradise lost is peopled by the generated family of the first Adam. Paradise restored, or the new earth, will be peopled by the regenerated family out of the first Adam's lost posterity. And Christ at the head, the regenerator, will be the everlasting Father of the everlasting age or age to come. Then regeneration will be complete. The kingdom shall be under the whole heavens, and the holy ones born of the Spirit will inherit the kingdom prepared for them from the foundation of the world. Glorious day! May it soon come.

"IF NEED BE."

BY MRS. M. A. TIBBETS.

How often do we, as the followers of Christ, while pressing forward in our pilgrim journey, bowed down under our many afflictions view the dealings of our heavenly Father as dark and mysterious. And sometimes while receiving the sharp discipline of his unerring wisdom, we feel that it savors more of rigorous chastisement than of the gentle government of a kind and tender parent. But the Apostle has told us there "is a need be," and "that the trial of our faith, being much more precious than of gold that perisheth, though it be tried with fire, might be found unto praise and honor and glory at the appearing of Jesus Christ.

Hence, in the many afflictions of body and mind, through which we are called to pass, however severe and hard to bear, let us fully realize that we are the Lord's, and that he has a right to do with his own as will most glorify himself; and that there is a "need be" for all the trials, all the reproaches that may come upon us for our faith in the coming of Jesus, both as a people and as individuals. And then when he does come, according to our glorious expectation, we shall "receive the end of our faith, even the salvation of our souls." "Wherefore let us gird up the loins of our mind, be sober, and hope to the end for the grace that is to be brought unto us at the revelation of Jesus Christ." And in this way "our light afflictions which are but for a moment, will work out for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory." Amen, may it come quickly.

WHILE THE BRIDEGROOM TARRIED.

BY A. RICHARDS.

Did the virgins go forth to meet the bridegroom in 1843 or 1844, or, in other words, were there not many that believed the Lord would return to this earth at that time? Did they not take a position before the world, that appeared to exactly fulfill the figure of the virgins going forth, as stated in Matt. 25:1. Was there not great expectation in regard to the event, and very great disappointment to many, because the Lord did not come at that time? Do not Adventists, at least 1843 Adventists, all agree that since then has been the tarrying time? Can we get from God's Word any clue to the length of the tarrying time? Does any lover of the Word, that has had his attention called to this subject, doubt for a moment that the thirteen hundred and thirty-five days (probably years) named in Dan. 12:12 do reach to the coming of our Lord in glory?

How remarkable that in connection with this date another is given, twelve hundred and ninety, and no event stated for a terminus; for had it been stated, as one has well remarked, it would have defeated the object of the prediction. Matt. 25:5: "While the bridegroom tarried they all slumbered and slept." Dan. 12:12, "Blessed is he that waiteth, and cometh to the thousand three hundred and five and thirty days." Matt. reads, "While the bridegroom tarried." Dan. reads, "Blessed is he that waiteth." Matthew does not tell us how long the tarrying time, but Daniel does tell us just how long the waiting time would be. Can any one doubt that the waiting time and tarrying time are one and the same? Now, Bro. Stockman, the conclusion that this would bring us to, is so overwhelming and tremendous that a poor, finite creature should not be very positive about it. But to me there is probability enough connected with it, to cause a warm glow in my heart, and a bright prospect that we shall soon be

"Where the faded flowers shall freshen,
Freshen never more to fade;
Where the shaded sky shall brighten,
Brighten never more to shade
Where the hidden wound is healed,
Where the blighted life reblooms;
Where the smitten heart the freshness
Of its buoyant youth resumes
Where a king in kingly glory,
Such as earth has never known,
Shall assume the righteous scepter,
Claim and wear the holy crown."

PROPHETIC PROHIBITION.

BY S. B. SCOTT.

A few days ago I received a package of "Prophetic Probabilities" by mail. I removed the wrapper in the post office, and the postmaster, seeing the heading said, "Prophetic Prohibition! What kind of prohibition is that?" It occurred to me that he blundered on to a very good idea of prohibition. According to prophecy and the signs of the times, Jesus will soon come the second time. When he comes the much discussed question of prohibition will be adjusted. Not only the traffic in strong drink will be prohibited, but the traffic in human souls.

The earth itself will then be purified and made the abode of the pure and good. The curse will be removed, and all sin forever done away. Then shall be realized what the Revelator saw when he says in Rev. 21, "And I saw a new heaven and a new earth." And of the inhabitants he says, "God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes, and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain; for the former things are passed away. And he that sat upon the throne said, "Behold, I make all things new. And he said unto me, Write, for these words are true and faithful."

Such, I apprehend, is "prophetic prohibition." Oh, how many anxious hearts earnestly desire the prohibition of all unrighteousness. But the coming of the world's Redeemer, is our only hope of such a prohibition. Look up! redemption draweth near.

DIVINE ASSURANCES.

PROMISES OF PERSONAL APPLICATION.

Here is a field broad and luxuriant, suffused with the light of God, from which every real saint has gathered many a flower of peace and joy. Faith, hope and gratitude meet oftener and linger longer in the realm of divine promise than in the whole domain of revealed truth beside. In sorrow's deepest, darkest hours the riven heart seeks solace in the "many great and precious promises." When chased by temptations, burdened with doubts, and threatened with despair the trembling, desponding saint takes covert amid the pledges of the Heavenly Father's love and faithfulness. As come the doves, on anxious hastening wing, to their windows, before the black roaring storms, so fly the children of faith before the rushing tempests of satanic assault, into the serene shelter of the promises of God. Within the impregnable fortress of divine assurance the best aimed lance of malice cannot reach the covered sons of light. The oath and promise of God are the death line to all approaching evil. Like the pillar in the wilderness, the heavenly promises are light and life to the friends of Christ, but darkness and death to his enemies. On the faith side of them is peace, safety, plenty, glory. On the unbelief side of them is night, tempest, despair.

With wonder, love and praise let us contemplate the following promise of the Saviour made to the little group of his trusted disciples, and through them to each and every one who has believed on his name and borne his cross.

"And whatsoever ye shall ask in my name, that I will do." "If ye shall ask anything in my name, I will do it."

What measureless devotion of the Son of God to the protection, happiness and unceasing joy of his own is outshadowed in these sweeping words!" What confidence in his followers that they will so partake of his will and spirit as to render it safe for him to pledge to them anything good they may desire! What earthly monarch would dare to thus place himself at the will of his subjects? We do remember a potentate who, in the delirium of dissipation, promised to grant a personal request to the half of his little kingdom. But in these marvelously copious words the King of kings puts the infinitude of his power and grace under tribute to the supplication of his friends. How can God's people be barren, destitute, unprotected or unblessed with such a draft as this in their hands upon all that is good and gracious and mighty in the name and love and gospel of Christ? Ponder well the majestic inclusiveness of this promise: "WHATSOEVER," "ANYTHING," "I WILL do it."

And who dares limit this promise to spiritual things? Did he not put into the lips of want the petition, "Give us this day our daily BREAD"? Do not the terms "Whatsoever," and Anything," cover all temporal as well as all spiritual good? Let not blind unbelief infringe the scope of the bond. Let saints not stagger where the Master puts no limits. The sole condition is, "Ask in my name." But that expression, "In my name," means submission, confidence, obedience, commensurate with the breadth of that other expression, "Whatsoever ye will."

But look again! "For he hath said, I will never leave thee, nor forsake thee." As the foregoing promise sweeps the whole extent of blessing in kind and character, so this covers the full extent of time—and eternity as well. I will "NEVER" forsake thee. In no age, at no period, in no emergency, under no circumstances, in no world, on this side the judgment, nor at the judgment, nor after the judgment; before I come, nor when I come, nor after I come. The eternal ages bow to this beheat. The gracious destiny of the redeemed spans the infinite.

And lo, here is yet another, and a peculiar promise: "Even to old age I am He; and even to hoar hairs will I carry you; I have made and I will bear; even I will carry and will deliver you."

The cradle and gray hairs are the twin symbols of helplessness and dependence. But the cradle is garlanded with new-born love, and festooned with dazzling hopes. But old age, sere and bleak and desolate, is the pity of the angels; often the pity of none beside. No other period of human existence so appeals to compassion and sympathy as sad, tottering, decrepit old age. With failing faculties and departing strength comes a feeling of uselessness and incumbrance. And if want, destitution, casts its gloomy shadow over the setting sun of life, the lot of the aged is a picture for that commiseration which is too often denied. But in through the gathering shadows, which enmantle the tomb, shines the heavenly light of the face of God, through this sweet assurance: "Even down to OLD AGE . . . I will carry you. . . . I will never leave thee." One friend there is, though all other friends be wanting—He who never forsaketh. This promise, "Even down to old age," has been the dying pillow of many a weary pilgrim, neglected and forgotten of all but God. Many a hand, withered by years and pinched by want, has clasped the precious words, "I have made and I will bear thee," as the only solace in the final struggle.

From the radiant galaxy of heavenly promises we select but one more, now: "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

This is the voice of love and grace to all who feel their need of help greater than men and all this world can give. It is the pledge of the "Mighty to save," to receive and heal and keep and deliver and crown all sinners, without regard to blood or tongue, who will respond to the call and come. And this promise is good while he is the Saviour, but it will terminate when he shall become Judge and King. Until that august hour, now near at hand, the golden gate of promised remission and enthronement stands wide open, and whosoever will may enter.

Finally, at the appointed hour, the "promised redemption" for which the ages have been waiting will crown all Divine assurance, and Heaven's love, faithfulness, power and glory will fill all worlds, and the kingdom and the throne shall evermore abide. And may the consummation so much to be desired make haste.

THE TEMPORAL POWER OF THE POPE.

Upon the utter abjectness of the Papacy at Rome no light of hope can ever arise. The fate of that arrogant, bloody, blasphemous power is settled by the prophetic word beyond possibility of reversal. It was long since doomed to be wasted and then destroyed. The Pope is already shorn of all temporal power. There is not on earth, to-day, a government so mean as to do him reverence. There are limited localities which would gladly follow the nod of the cardinal's hat, and kiss the toe of the holy (?) pontiff. But God has fixed the limit of his murderous supremacy, and at the coming of the King eternal he shall be utterly and irrevocably consumed—destroyed.

Just now the following, which we clip from Zion's Herald, will be read with interest:

"'ITALY AND THE TEMPORAL POWER.'

"The above is the title of a very interesting and encouraging article to Protestants in the Christian Register of Feb. 16. The author is a 'trained writer and observer,' so says the editor, 'who has had opportunity to observe the political condition of Italy.' The attitude of the Roman people to the Papacy is clearly put in this closing paragraph:

"'From the prevailing tone of many of the telegrams to American journals during the jubilee celebrations, one might suppose that at least three-fourths of the Roman population would welcome the Pope back to his temporal throne with open arms and hearts. Never was there a more absurd supposition. Outside of the papal court, and the necessarily rather large circle of relatives, friends and beneficiaries of the members of that court, I think the number of Romans who favor a restoration of the temporal power is so small as to be contemptible. The vast majority of the Roman people not only do not want papal rule, but will not have it at any price or in any shape. They have had enough of it, and will have no more. They would—if I can judge the popular temper—blow St. Peter's and the Vatican into the air, and float Rome in blood, rather than bow their necks again beneath that hated and hateful yoke. Rose-colored reports to the contrary are manufactured for the English and American market. They are simply laughed at in Italy; and the laugh, I may say in conclusion, is extended to all those English and Americans who are ignorant or obstinate enough to believe that Italians, Romans, will ever voluntarily return, or by force can be driven back, to the house of bondage. Rome and Italy are free—not for a day, but for all time.'"

"THE ADVENTIST'S GOSPEL."

Have they a gospel—a distinctive gospel? By adoption only, just as Paul had when he referred to the sacred message as "My gospel." But, as gospel signifies "good tidings," we are tauntingly informed that Adventism announces some things that cannot be regarded good tidings, such as man's utter mortality, man's unconsciousness in death, the coming of a day of wrath, and the final extermination of the ungodly. We reply:

1. Although the announcement of man's utter mortality is not cheering, the gospel that proffers immortality to such a man is good tidings—"this mortal shall put on immortality"—far better tidings than the claim that we are inherently immortal regardless of character, and independent of Christ, who said to all, "I am come that ye might have life," and to sinners, "Ye will not come unto me that ye might have life:" and this life is not offered to imperishable beings, such as immortal souls would be, but to a perishable class, such as mortal men: "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." John 3:16. Deathless souls could neither "perish," nor be destitute of "everlasting life"—so Christ was not sent to that class, but to a perishable race, now void of "everlasting life," such as men in this world.

2. The announcement that death really kills man is not cheering; but the accompanying assurance that the resurrection shall bring him from death's dark domain, as surely as it brought Jesus therefrom, is good tidings; for God "brought again from the dead our Lord Jesus Christ, that great shepherd of the sheep;" and "if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also that sleep in Jesus will God bring with him"—bring them from the realm of death, just as he brought Jesus therefrom: so, to discard a future resurrection of the saints, is virtually to discard the past resurrection of Christ; and when that is discarded, we have no foundation left to stand upon.

3. The announcement of a coming day of wrath is not cheering information; but the fact that an arrangement is made whereby we can "flee from the wrath to come" is good tidings. But here we retort. The system of endless torment, incorporated into the modern substitute for the gospel, falls as far short of good tidings as the assurance of a final day of wrath. Let the glass-house folks refrain from casting the first stone, if they are not ready to move out of their vulnerable structure.

4. The announcement that the finally incorrigible are destined to be destroyed is not a cheering message; but the assurance that though this fate awaits them, there is a divinely arranged plan for escaping this doom, is good tidings.

In short, we glory not in our mortal condition, but in the prospect of immortality through Christ. We glory not in the fact that death can reduce us to a state of unconsciousness, but in the grand truth that the resurrection will relieve us therefrom. We glory not in the certainty of a coming day of wrath, but in the prospect of escaping its power. And we glory not in the thought that the wicked are to be destroyed, but in consideration of the fact that the righteous, instead of sharing that fate, shall live forever. The good tidings of God to man, after picturing his true condition and danger, points to the attainable glory of the future, calling us away from sin and danger to secure the glory of futurity. W. CAIN'S MONGOLIAN WIFE.

Elder Wm. Sheldon, Dear Sir:—I would like to have you give your ideas in reference to where Cain got his wife. I would like to have you answer through the Crisis and oblige me, T. B. COWDREY.

Reply.

For the want of some more potent objection to the Bible record of Adam's creation as the "first man," that old threadbare question is ever and anon pressed to the front, "Who was Cain's wife?" Recently the following query was published in the Chicago Daily News, accompanied by replies from Chicago clergymen, a sample of which we append: "Where did Cain get his wife?" You will remember that, according to the fourth chapter of the book of Genesis, when Cain had killed his brother Abel the earth contained but three living human beings—Adam, Eve, and Cain. No addition to this number is named until the birth of Seth, when Adam had lived one hundred and thirty years. Meantime the Lord had cursed Cain, so that thenceforth when he tilled the ground it should not yield to him its strength, and making him a fugitive and a vagabond. Now there is a reference to other human inhabitants of the earth when Cain complains that 'every one that findeth me shall slay me,' and in the sixteenth and seventeenth verses the enigma is completed in the following words: 'And Cain went out from the presence of the Lord and dwelt in the land of Nod, on the east of Eden. And Cain knew his wife, and she conceived and bore Enoch; and he builded a city, and called the name of the city after the name of his son, Enoch.'"

The Rev. Dr. H. W. Thomas, pastor of the People's church, writes: . . . "But to come to the question, it seems plain enough, even from the Bible narration itself, that Adam was not the first man, but that there were other races or peoples living at that time. If not, of whom could Cain have been afraid? He had killed his only brother, and was about to flee from the presence of his father. If Adam and Eve were the first human beings, then Cain must have married his own sister. The probabilities are that he went farther east, and married a Mongol; and 'builded a city'; became a chief or ruler among that people. But as to who this beautiful Mongolian girl was, or what were the particulars of their courtship and wedding, it might not be safe to express an opinion. It seems, however, that their family turned out well, and that some of their descendants became quite useful as inventors and in the fine world of music, and hence, for so bad a beginning, Cain did well, but the credit should, perhaps, be largely given to Mrs. Cain."

Prof. Swing gives a reply in the same spirit, and winds up by saying: "Other clergy hold the Bible as sacred only in its religious doctrines." We omit other replies, and append a few remarks.

It is a little surprising that Cain's wife bothers these skeptics more than Seth's wife; for they never ask, Where did Seth get his wife? As Seth did not go to the land of Nod, and as he got a wife somewhere, where did he get her? When they solve this question, they will have dissolved their own difficulty. Their method of reasoning restricts Seth to the Adamic family for a wife; and if there was no impropriety in his thus marrying a relative, why in the case of Cain? We here cite several historic facts:

1. The time of this murder of Abel by Cain will have an important bearing upon the question of Cain's marriage, and will aid us in discovering the fact that there were plenty of marriageable girls of Adam's family from whom Cain could have selected a wife. A senator once said: "If I were to write the history of the United States on my thumb nail, I should have to be brief." So the sacred history is condensed; but enough is written to show that Cain murdered Abel less than one hundred and thirty years after Adam's creation—it being before Seth was born, when Adam was one hundred and thirty years old—and probably within one hundred years, for the record, after giving the birth of Cain and Abel, and after speaking of the occupation of Cain as a farmer, and the occupation of Abel as a shepherd, proceeds to say: "And in process of time it came to pass"—just how many years we are not infosmed. But after these two boys spent years in growing up to manhood—say twenty or twenty-five years—then they set up business for themselves in their respective trades; and even after that, it was in "process of time" that they presented their offering, and the murder was subsequent to the offering.

Now with the command to "multiply," who shall say that Cain and Abel were unmarried when they set up in their business? Allowing Abel to have been of age when he began business for himself, there was a space of time after his birth for a dozen daughters to have been born to Eve before the birth of Seth, which was after the murder—an intervening space of over twenty years, if not over fifty. That Eve suddenly ceased raising a family for twenty to fifty years, and then began again, is not intimated in the record, which particularizes only the birth of the boys. Then what becomes of the statement that after Abel was murdered, only three human beings were left on earth? Possibly, too, other sons were born in this interim, Seth subsequently being mentioned in consideration of the fact that he resembled his father so exactly. That these children after maturity remained at home is not probable; and in view of their being scattered abroad, Cain feared their vengeance for the murder of Abel, instead of fearing a people of whom he had no knowledge, and who, if they existed, would not have cared about avenging Abel's death, seeing he was of another race. If Adam's children were not even then living in different parts of the earth, Cain doubtless knew that they would thus be divided, and feared they would revenge the murder of their relative, Abel.

2. The record does not even hint that Cain found his wife in the land of Nod, but simply that he raised his family there. In recording the fact of a man's removal to another country, it is not necessary to say that his wife went with him, that generally being involved if he is a married man. Josephus gave the following record: "He also cast him, together with his wife, out of that land. . . . And when Cain had travelled over many countries he with his wife built a city." Even if it had been stated that Cain was married in the land of Nod, some of Eve's daughters might have been there, for Josephus in giving events before the murder, expressly says: "Adam and Eve had two sons; the elder of them was named Cain; . . . they had also daughters. Now the two brethren were pleased with different courses of life; for Abel, the younger . . . his employment was that of a shepherd." Here it is said that between Abel's birth and death, daughters were born of Eve. Here Cain could have found a wife before his removal, and even before he had committed the murder.

3. But if it could be shown that Cain was not married before the murder, it could not be shown how soon after it occurred, and he might have had a thousand neices to have chosen from then (without hunting up what did not then exist, a "Mongolian girl",) Seth's posterity, and that of other sons of Adam. This effort of skeptics to make out that Adam was not "the first man," and consequently that the Bible record is wrong, is a bubble that bursts in the grasp. W. S.

HO, FOR WORCESTER!

The call for our Annual Second Advent Conference, to be held with the church at Worcester, Mass., has appeared in the Crisis to commence the evening of April 3d, and continue over the following Sunday. Now, beloved brethren, these yearly meetings are very important to Adventism, in the State and elsewhere. These meetings in the past at Boston, Chelsea and Lynn have been the Mount Pisgah to us as a people, taking in the yearly Fast day, which has never failed to be a love-feast to us as the outgrowth of this sweet message of glad tidings of great joy to those of like precious faith. Our hearts have been made to burn within us as the preachers have summed up the evidences that the old Advent car had almost reached her stopping place.

The responses, the amens, with tears running, hearts rejoicing, souls expanding, love increasing, till melted and moulded into the image of our loving Christ, one Lord, one faith, one people, make these seasons our Pentecost, and they give us a new outfit so as to speak with new tongues. And this is what we need in these very last days, to spread and enforce this message.

Now, brethren, not only ministers and delegates, but one and all, leave all and come to this meeting, and help make it the best Conference we have ever had. You may rely upon it that our Worcester brethren will see that we are well cared for, and their hearts, hands and homes will be open to receive us. Then make an effort and come to Worcester, so that it may be shown that our zeal is not abating for the soon coming of our Lord and Master. L. BOUTELLE.

RELIGION IN POLITICS.

"We need more religion in our politics" says a writer in a widely circulated religious paper. If he had said, We should have less politics in our religion, the statement would have been truthful and in harmony with the Gospel of Christ.

While it may be well said that the religion of Jesus is not antagonistic to just laws and the making of them by earthly government, we do say that the politics of the present day are corrupting and destructive of spiritual life in every Christian that engages in them. The political world was never so agitated as now by the many who want to be in office and in positions of honor and power. There are hardly any means that can be used by which those positions can be obtained, but are resorted to. Thousands morally degrade themselves to obtain office. No one can now enter the arena of political life and keep the Spirit of Christ in his heart. No one can struggle for the honors and emoluments of political distinction, and not be selfish and worldly; therefore no active politician of to-day can be in possession of the spirit and religion of Christ. We do not say that no Christian can hold an office under the governments of the present time, for it is possible that somewhere a true servant of Christ may have the offer of a position of honor and trust that he would not politically seek. But such instances, it must be said, are not easily found. The great number seeking for office everywhere makes it necessary for each seeker to use means which the Holy Spirit and the gospel of Christ forbid.

What is most needed is so much of the humble and unselfish spirit of Christ that there will be no desire on our part for any office in church or state, except that to which Christ may appoint. If all would wait until thus appointed, there would be less strife everywhere, more peace, love and salvation among all men. * * *

CAUTION.

Bro. Stockman:—I wish to notify the sister churches of one P. A. Danderan, who gives his name as P. A. Durand, who has been converted from the Roman Catholic faith. He is not a member of the Westfield church as he claims, neither do I recommend him to other churches. A word to the wise is sufficient. J. E. CROSS.

"TRUE THEOLOGY."

Bro. Stockman:—I have just read "TRUE THEOLOGY," by Bro. John A. Cargile, and wish to say that I am well pleased with it. It is just the book to put into the hands of young converts, or those who have an investigating mind. A great amount of good may be done by buying and loaning such books as "True Theology," "One Fold and only Door," "The Unspeakable Gift," "Hades," "The World's Great Empires," etc. Brethren in the Northwest, let me urge you to do more of this kind of preaching, and pray the Lord of the harvest to send more laborers into the field. THE RIGHT SPIRIT.

The following, from our dear Brother Bronaugh, was intended to be a private communication; but we take the liberty of publishing it as an example of the kind, Christian and conciliatory spirit so much needed just now. Our Bro. has a perfect right—as have all others also—to his views as to the ending of the prophetic numbers; and he is entitled to be heard, so long as he does not "dogmatize," but holds the peace and unity of the body and the good of the cause at large as of more importance than the publication of his special views. This, we think, is the right spirit and the proper attitude.—EDITOR.

DEAR BRO. STOCKMAN:—Your very kind note of 6th inst. is received. I recognize the fact that your experience as Editor of the Crisis renders you far more capable of judging what should be inserted in it than any occasional contributor can be; and it is not only your right, but your duty to reject any proffered communication which in your opinion is undesirable for publication. As I said in a former note accompanying one of my contributions, my only desire is to assist as far as I may in promoting the good of the cause so nobly advocated by the Crisis, and to do and say such things only as may be to the glory of God and to the help of the little flock who are watching and waiting for the appearing of our soon coming and adorable Christ and King. Therefore do with my proffered contributions just as you think best in aid of this purpose.

I am very strongly persuaded that, according to apparent probabilities, Daniel's 1335 years will end next year, while I freely confess that we cannot know whether or not they will, and that therefore all dogmatizing on this subject is improper and hurtful, and could only prove very deleterious to the cause of truth if, after all, this hope should prove to be ill-founded, which however I cannot now think will be the case; and yet it may possibly prove to be a mistake, for we only can and do know that the kingdom of God is "nigh, even at the doors."

May God bless and sustain you, dear brother, in your labor of love, and may we soon be permitted to meet and clasp hands in the presence of our Saviour, in the kingdom, is the prayer of your brother in the blessed hope, E. C. BRONAUGH.

RUM MISSIONARIES TO THE "DARK CONTINENT."

BY PHILO HITCHCOCK.

Every Christian rejoices when the gospel finds its way to the hearts and homes of the lost, whether in home or foreign lands. But there is a great deal of religious boasting about "Christianizing the nations" that is not warranted by facts. Much is said about "penetrating the dark continent of Africa," and carrying the gospel there. But let me say that the most successful missionaries now touching the shores of those darkened sons are rum and gin and whiskey. One ship load of whiskey will send more souls to perdition than a missionary will convert in ten years.

In the "Northwestern Christian Advocate" for March 7, 1888, I find a long article entitled, "Whiskey outrunning the gospel." It says: "Drunkenness everywhere abounds. Great ship loads of rum go to Africa. Gin and whiskey constitute the principal medium of currency. Official records inform us that in a single year over ten millions of gallons of the cheapest, vilest, most poisonous and most deadly liquor ever manufactured were sent by five Christian nations to the savages of Africa." It says further, "If time permitted, I could lay before you a statement of facts and figures of the population of certain groups of islands in the Pacific which would show you with what fearful and almost incredible rapidity the curse of strong drink, as introduced by the white man, is now sweeping whole tribes of savages off the face of the earth."

This does not speak very favorably for the "dawning of millennial glory." If five "Christian nations" can send in one year these cargoes of liquid damnation" to those suffering blacks, how long will it take to evangelize the world at that rate? I pity the nations for whom Christ died. My heart yearns for their salvation, but I am sick of this religious twaddle, emanating from the throats of Laodicean priests, who "smite their fellow servant and eat and drink with the drunken."

It was my privilege one evening to lay these facts before a large congregation in answering the question, "What shall be the sign of thy coming?" Two—a young man and his wife—have started to serve the Lord. Pray for us.

CHURCH NEWS.

Bro. Stockman:—Our meetings which have run eight weeks, but are now closed, resulted in sixty souls starting for the kingdom, and we were all brought nearer to the dear Lord. The three churches united after two weeks and the Congregationalist pastor got waked up and said to us, "I see things differently. I asked God for light and he gave it to me." He came to our hall for four weeks every night but Sunday. The town in general was stirred up as it never was before. To God be all the glory. Let us work with all our might for the perishing judgment-bound men and women about us. G. G. HAYNES.

Strafford, Vt.

Bro. Stockman:—I would say that we set in order an Advent Christian Church in the town of John Day, Grant Co., Oregon, on Sunday, March 24, with the following officers: Charles Belshaw, Elder; Wm. Luce and E. W. Aldrich, Deacons; David N. Luce, Clerk; John C. Luce, Steward. They are all noble, staunch, and enterprising men. Our church at present numbers eighteen members, all of them of sterling integrity, which bespeaks prosperity in the near future. We expect many more to go with us soon.

This work has been done amid opposition, but praise God, the truth will prevail when presented in the spirit of the Master. The church has with one consent invited me to remain with them, which we have consented to do, as the field is a good one and work plenty, and the interest increasing. We desire the prayers of God's people that we gather many sheaves from this region into the garner of God. Yours in the work. JAMES A. ORCHARD.

Bro. Stockman:—As there are some of the readers of the Crisis who are interested in our whereabouts and work, I will try to pen a little to give an account of myself. Since my Master called me into the field of ministry I have always tried to do his bidding, and always follow where he leads without ever asking what I shall see or receive for it. Now as I look back I can see some pretty dark places I have come through, but being led by a safe guide I can praise God for the experience he has led me through, for it has only drawn me closer and closer to him. At St. Clair, Blue Earth Co., he raised up a little band of believers partly under our labors, and as they are organized for Church work we hope they are still making good their covenant of love and fellowship in the work for our Master "till he comes," even though they have no pastor at present.

Last November we came here to take the pastoral care of this little flock, who have been battling along without a pastor for some three or four years, and found them badly scattered with but five or six families left to hold the fort. With fear and trembling we took up the work which had been so ably done by the former pastors, Brn. W. J. Bursell and F. A. Baker in years gone by; but God has been with us and his grace has sustained us, and we are now reaping the blessings.

Last Dec. Bro. Stewart came and labored with us about two weeks with good effect. Since then we have been working out in the school districts around us, and the Lord has blessed us. Many have been led to seek the Lord and some found peace. The interest is still good and we are looking for a good increased force to help hold up the banner, "watching, working and waiting," till the King comes. Sunday, March 11, buried six in baptism, and there are several more now about ready to follow in the likeness of our Lord's death and resurrection.

Brethren and sisters in Christ, pray for us that we may ever keep humble and faithful and grow in grace and wisdom in the truth. Yours in hope. G. T. WELCOME.

A GOOD BOOK.

While some of our brethren are bringing to the notice of the readers of the Crisis good books now in the market (which is commendable), we also wish to commend the book called "Natural Law in the Spiritual World," by Henry Drummond. It is a rare book, well calculated to interest the young and lead their minds into a large field of thought that cannot fail to be of profit. We think it should be in every family. P. W. HOUGH.

Fairbank, Iowa.

FROM H. B. WRIGHT.

Bro. Stockman:—I feel I must say something for Christ, he has done so much for me. I am one of the Lord's poor in this world's goods, but "rich in faith." Praise the Lord for poverty! It is not much longer that we shall have to battle with the trials of life here, for Jesus is near, "even at the door." What encouragement there is to live "godly in Christ Jesus," and to be "found watching" for the "Lord from heaven." Jesus says, "Blessed is the man who is found watching, and has his robes washed in the blood of the Lamb." "He that overcometh shall inherit all things."

Through the kindness of one of the mothers in Israel, I have the Crisis to read, and I saw an article in the number for March 7th from the pen of I. I. Leslie, entitled "Should we not be Consistent?" It was so much to the point that I felt I must say Amen to it. There never was a time when we should live as consistently as now, in these last days, when so many are "departing from the faith." Let us, if we preach Christ, live Christ. Let us who are longing for the Master to come, live so we shall be ready to meet him wherever we are.

There are only a half-dozen or so of us here, that are looking for the Master, "glory and eternal life." We are doing all we can to forward the truth here, and with God's blessing we are able to stand "boldly for the truth," and "salvation as it is in Christ Jesus." I want to meet you all in the kingdom. I want to see Jesus, I want to see my mother and other friends that are laid away to sleep till the resurrection. I want to see the "new city, not made with hands," and walk therein.

I want to sing praises to Jehovah with "all the hosts of heaven." Oh, what a chorus that will be, singing, "Alleluia, salvation, and glory, and honor, and power, unto the Lord our God!" There we can all sing; no cracked voices, nor voices out of tune there; all will harmonize. Praise the Lord for the Christian hope!

RESIGNATION.

Bro. Stockman:—Feeling that our work is done in this church, and being told by the Lord to go forward, we have resigned our care of the church. They have become very dear to us, and we shall ever remember them in much love. The Lord has wonderfully blest us as a church, and while the people are spread out over a large amount of country, yet the Lord's day brought the most of them in to worship God and to talk over the blessed hope of the soon coming Lord. May the dear Lord send them a man filled with the Spirit. We close our labors the first Sunday in April. The church is in perfect harmony. G. G. HAYNES.

MARRIED.

HARRISON—WILHITE. At the residence of the bride's parents, March 15th, 1888, by Eld. George J. French, Mr. Wm. F. Harrison and Miss Maggie M. Wilhite, all of Denver, Hancock Co., Ill.

SECULAR NEWS.

FOREIGN.

OPORTO, Portugal, March 21. While a performance was in progress at the Banquet Theatre last night an explosion of gas occurred and the theatre took fire and was destroyed. The house was full of spectators, and a number of lives were lost.

Eighty bodies have been taken from the ruins. Most of those burned were in the third-tier boxes and galleries, where whole families were suffocated. There was a terrific struggle at the doors when the spectators tried to escape. Large numbers were suffocated and trampled upon. Many, on reaching the street, were so seriously injured that they vomited blood. Nearly all the victims were spectators. The actors escaped in their theatrical costumes. Many in the theatre, finding themselves unable to reach the doors, jumped from the windows. Some corpses were found in the stage boxes. The gas was extinguished shortly after the fire broke out, thus adding to the confusion.

BERLIN, March 23. The Emperor's laryngeal disease is more decidedly less alarming than it has been in many months before, and this gives rise to hopes that possibly he may be cured. He passed a good night last night. Today he walked in the orangery.

The Prussian ministers went to Charlottenberg at noon today, when the first cabinet council under the new Emperor was held. The Emperor presided. The ministers took the oath of allegiance to the King of Prussia.

BERLIN, March 23. The North German Gazette publishes the Pope's autograph letter to Emperor Frederick. The Pope expresses deep sorrow at the death of Emperor William, from whom, he says, he received not a few by no means unimportant proofs of friendly sentiments, and from whom he was hoping to receive no less important proofs in the future. He congratulates Emperor Frederick on his accession to the throne of so great and powerful an empire, and trusts that he will receive from him the same marks of friendship as he did from the late Emperor. In conclusion, the Pope says: "May your majesty's health be restored, and may you enjoy a long life for the welfare of your subjects. We pray God to grant this, and we hope that he in his goodness will join us and your majesty n indissoluble bonds of love."

ST. PETERSBURG, March 23. The Novoe Vremya says that Russia has been tranquilized by the certainty that Germany will no longer support Austria's warlike aspirations, and will remain indifferent to Austria's provocations, and await a favorable moment for settling the Bulgarian question, without giving Austria a pretext for war.

DOMESTIC.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 21. The Capitol was struck by lightning this afternoon. It shocked the Supreme Court, the Senate and the House. It put out the electric lights, paralyzed the telegraph and telephone wires, and destroyed portions of the sending and receiving apparatus. The sky had been clear until after 1 o'clock, when a great thunder storm rolled slowly down the Potomac and across the city. It was 2 o'clock when it reached the capital. The foremost clouds fell in, the lightning playing meanwhile in the heavy clouds behind. There was little or no thunder at first. Justices, senators and representatives only knew of the approach of the storm by the darkness, which gradually filled the Capitol, so that the gas and electric lights had to be turned on. Suddenly a thunder bolt fell directly on the Goddess of Liberty with a tremendous crash, which sounded to those who happened to be in the rotunda like the rending asunder of the dome. The lightning ran down the sides of the iron dome, and, catching on the wires, ran through both wings of the building, while the thunder reverberated through all the corridors, and seemed to shake the very foundation.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., March 21. A special reports a terrible wind storm at Calhoun, Ga., last night. The storm demolished the Baptist and Methodist churches, destroyed several houses and unroofed every house in town. No loss of life has as yet been reported, but four or five persons were wounded. The storm was much more serious and widespread in its destruction than at first reported. It seems to have formed in the vicinity of Calhoun, and pursued a northeasterly direction through north Georgia and into and beyond east Tennessee, bounding across to the Chilhowee mountains, and was next heard from near Loudon, Tenn., traveling from Calhoun, Ga., to Loudon, a distance of 100 miles, in about 30 minutes.

ATLANTA, Ga., March 21. A terrible electric storm enveloped the State last night, beginning about 10 o'clock and lasting until after midnight. In Fairburn both the colored people's churches were demolished, the court house chimney was torn off, shade trees were uprooted, and other damage was done. Near Austell, a house was blown upon a negro, killing him. Newton Moss's barn was blown down, and three horses and a cow were killed. Reports of the storm in and around Gainesville show that, while it was not so severe, much damage was done. M. A. Loden had his house lifted from the foundation and moved away. The colored people's Baptist Church was completely demolished. Mr. Cyprus, living near Gainesville, had his house and all outbuildings blown away; one of his children was seriously hurt.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., March 22. Specials to the Evening Wisconsin from the interior of the State indicate that last night's blizzard was very severe. The reports show that the thermometer ranged between 10° and 15° below zero. Not a wheel is moving on the upper Michigan peninsula roads, except those propelling snowploughs, which are nearly helpless. It is the most complete blockade of the winter in that section. The storm came on so suddenly and fiercely that trains were unable to reach the next station. A foot of snow fell. The wind blew a hurricane. It is now clearing. In one instance a pay car, with general officers on board, was stuck within 100 rods of a depot, and no communication between the officers and the station could be had.

CHICAGO, March 21. Prof. Elisha Gray announces that on Saturday next he will give an exhibition of his new telautograph, by means of which exact copies of messages in any handwriting can be produced at the distant end of a wire. He claims that this system is destined to supplant the telephone for many purposes, and that it can be successfully used for a distance of 500 miles.

THE CHISTIAN'S SECRET OF HOLINESS.

BY MARK GUY PEARSE.

Twenty-seventh thousand English edition. First thousand American edition.

This is decidedly the best book on holiness we have yet seen. In grasp and scope of conception; in freshness and vigor of expression; in freedom from the extravagance and rashness which mar many works on this important scriptural subject; in richness of experimental power; in strength and conclusiveness of biblical argument; in close scrutiny of false experiences; in direct and effective appeals to the understanding, the conscience and the heart, it surpasses all other productions of recent times. It is neatly bound up: contains nearly three hundred pages, and is on sale at the Crisis Office at the low price of 75 cts. postpaid

"CAPITAL AND LABOR."

Bro. Couch's book just published, entitled "CAPITAL and LABOR," is an exhaustive survey of the entire arena of this startling last-day struggle between the two mightiest forces of the world. A vast amount of statistics is interwoven with inspired prediction in a most impressive and convincing way. The work is of very great value as a thorough and comprehensive study of the subject, and for easy and reliable reference. The special gravity of the theme, the well known ability of the author as a writer on prophetic subjects, and the extremely low price, will ensure for this neatly gotten up pamphlet the wide sale its merits deserve. A BOOK FOR EVERY CHRISTIAN.
Buried Cities Recovered; Or, Explorations in Bible Lands.

BY REV. FRANK S. DeHASS, D. D.

Late United States Consul at Jerusalem.

The latest, the most authentic, the most readable book published on Egypt, Palestine and the Orient; the fulfillment of ancient prophecies as shown by the light of modern discoveries; a corroborative history of the Bible found written on stone; the atheist and skeptic defeated on their own ground. Nearly two hundred Illustrations from original Photographs and Sketches. Fine paper, neat binding, clear type.

Ten Reasons why this Book should be in every Christian Household in the Land.

1st. It is a book which lends an interest to the reading of the Holy Bible that no other book written can equal.

2d. It is written by a man who tells of what he has himself seen and who lived among the scenes he so graphically describes; whose life has been devoted to the study of "Bible Lands," and whose great knowledge enables him to give testimony absolutely correct.

3d. The book contains, in a pleasing yet concise form, information which the student would have to consult a dozen books to find elsewhere.

4th. It contains information which can be found in no other book published.

5th. The illustrations have the merit of being not only beautiful, but accurate, many of them having been taken from photographs brought by the author from Palestine.

6th. It is universally recommended by the clergymen of all denominations.

7th. In printing particular care has been taken to make the type large and clear, so that to the sick, to elderly people and to children it is especially valuable.

8th. It enables everybody at small cost to visit the oldest, grandest and most wonderful ruins on earth.

9th. It contains the only description ever written in modern times by one who has visited and lived among the wild Arabs of Eastern Palestine.

10th. It is an absolute necessity to the Sunday School teacher, to the Bible scholar, and to everybody who wants properly to understand the Holy Scriptures.

FIFTY YEARS IN THE CHURCH OF ROME.

BY FATHER CHINIQUY.

Truly vivid, fascinating, and tragic. No history like it since Luther.

There is no book upon the Romish controversy so comprehensive as this. It is a complete picture of the inner workings, aims and objects of Popery. It is from the experience of a living witness, and challenges contradiction. It is a large but very valuable work, and is fast becoming a standard authority. No lover of his country should remain ignorant of its contents. A handsome volume of 832 pages, printed on clear type, on fine tinted paper. It is bound in strong cloth, marbled edges, and gilt stamp on side and back. Contains two portraits (one representing him in priestly robes) of the venerable Author.

THE PRIEST, THE WOMAN, AND THE CONFESSIONAL.
Terrible, but True Revelations.

BY FATHER CHINIQUY.

To understand the evil results which arise from the practice of Auricular Confession, it is necessary that the testimony of a reliable witness be given. Such is that of the author, who held prominent positions in the priesthood for many years. The book has had a mission for good, and has awakened a desire amongst all classes of the people to unearth the iniquities and abominations connected with this doctrine, and hold them up to the light of day, that the people may see that there is but One to whom we must confess, and he is not a Romish priest.

Over 30,000 copies have been sold in this country, and the book has been translated into many languages, and is having an enormous sale. 296 pages 8vo, with portrait of the Author.

Regular price $1.00. Reduced to 75 cts. Postage 10 cts. extra when sent by mail.

The Reason why a good Roman Catholic cannot be a good citizen of this Republic.

The prospect for the future of the United States is not encouraging. Too much cannot be said or written against the evils of Romanism. Let this book have a wide circulation. Price: Paper 40 cts. Reduced to 25 cts. postpaid. Sold at the Crisis Office.

OUR HOPE,

THE COMING OF JESUS.

BY T. L. WAUGH.

TUNE.—"The Rustic Bridge."

Soon Jesus will come,
And he'll gather us home,
In yonder bright heavenly land;
No tears e'er will flow,
And no sorrow we'll know,
When gathered with that angel band.

CHO.—How bright is the prospect before us,
The saints there will all be victorious;
Pain and sorrow are past,
Death is conquered at last,
And Jesus shall reign evermore.

Signs show He is near,
Filling hearts full of cheer,
While we in expectancy wait;
There friends we shall see,
And with Jesus we'll be,
And pass through the bright pearly gate.

In that home of the blest,
There the weary shall rest,
From sin and from sorrow be free;
"Hosanna" we'll sing,
"Worthy Saviour, our King,
Who died to redeem even me."

Golden harps there shall ring,
While his praises we'll sing,
Our hearts there with rapture will thrill;
No more saints shall die,
While the ages roll by,
No sorrow our bosoms shall fill.

MISSION WORK IN WESTERN NEW YORK.—NO. 4.

BY C. H. SWEET.

Since Jan. 2nd, the date of my last report, I have been greatly hindered in my work by extremely cold weather, furious storms, and bad travelling; but notwithstanding these and other hindrances, I have managed to keep in the mission field about two thirds of the time.

Before concluding my last report I had commenced operations in East Oakfield, a small village of about two hundred inhabitants, situated ten miles south and east of East Shelby, and this has been my principal field of labor since then. Elder P. A. Smith preached the leading features of our faith and hope there some twenty-five or thirty years ago, and succeeded in leading a goodly number of people into the light of present truth; but, as in many other places in this and in other states, very little if any effort was made to place this interest upon a firm and an enduring basis. No organization was formed, and the converts were not instructed in regard to their duty to sacrifice of their time and means to help sustain the ordinances of God's house, and to aid in sending to others the truths which had proved a source of so much joy and blessing to them. This not only resulted in driving from these fields those faithful preachers who were dependent upon the voluntary contributions of the people for a support, but also in causing the spiritual life in the converts themselves to perish of starvation, in harmony with the inspired declaration, "There is that scattereth, and yet increaseth; and there is that withholdeth more than is meet, but it tendeth to poverty. The liberal soul shall be made fat: and he that watereth shall be watered also himself. Prov. 11:24, 25.

Those pioneers are deserving of credit for their self-sacrificing efforts to turn men from the darkness of error into the light of truth upon the fundamental doctrines of inspiration, but they did not take as much heed to how they built as they should have done. If circumstanced as they were, I presume that I should have made similar and possibly much greater mistakes. Of those who accepted the truth there under Bro. Smith's labors, some have died, others have moved away, while others have either backslidden from God or apostatized from the truth.

A few years later Spiritualism was introduced into the place and obtained quite a strong foothold. So blighting did the influence of its doctrines prove that morality was at a very low ebb, while spirituality was well nigh extinct. I was informed by some of the older inhabitants that not more than a dozen professors of religion could be found within a circle of two miles, while fully nine tenths of the people were skeptics. About one half of this dozen professors were Adventists, and these were the only human beings to whom we could look for sympathy and co-operation; and, strange to say, I had to toil on several weeks before hearing any of these open their mouths in public. This was largely due to their lack of faith in our being able to accomplish anything there.

But they got to work after awhile, and so did several persons belonging to other denominations. The most of the meetings were held in a hall owned by a Mr. Nash, who very generously gave us the use of it, and gave other evidences of a kindly interest in us personally and in the success of our work, going so far as to promise to help support a society if we succeeded in organizing one. Elder G. F. Haines was with me much of the time during my last three weeks, and rendered valuable assistance. Our preaching was mostly doctrinal, as the circumstances seemed to demand that we should first show the people that the Bible did not teach certain doctrines that they had read into it, and then gave as one of their principal reasons for rejecting it. Our next aim was to present the exact fulfillment of prophecy as an evidence that the authors of the books of the Bible "wrote as they were moved by the Holy Ghost."

Having devoted so much space to an account of the circumstances, I will try to state the apparent results in as few words as possible. We drew large congregations whenever the weather and traveling was at all favorable, and had the closest and most respectful attention. More than three quarters of our hearers were evidently convinced that the Bible clearly taught the doctrines which distinguish us as a people. Several persons who had wandered from the path of duty reconsecrated themselves to the service of God. One of the number was a young man who once preached among our people to good acceptance. He not only publicly confessed his unfaithfulness, but also announced his intention of resuming his God-given work. Two persons who never before made a public profession of religion arose for prayers. A good foundation was laid for the young man above referred to, or some other servant of the Lord, to build upon; and we expect to see the work go on there.

We were greatly disappointed in not receiving more sympathy and help from those Adventists who reside in adjacent neighborhoods. I know that some of them were so situated that they could not come, but I fear that others cared more for their own personal ease and worldly prosperity than they did for the success of the work for which some of us esteem it a privilege to suffer and to sacrifice. May all such be aroused from their drowsiness before the Bridegroom comes.

Since moving to this place I have held a few meetings at West Barre, hoping to at least call out the few Adventists residing over that way, and to awaken in them sufficient interest to draw them over to our meetings here at East Shelby, a distance of four or five miles. My success was so indifferent as to lead me to abandon the attempt in utter despair. I have also held a few meetings in a hall at North Oakfield, about six miles south of East Shelby. We there have good congregations, and there are hopeful indications of a revival interest. I shall devote the most of my time and attention to that place for a few weeks to come.

About all I have been able to do for East Shelby since moving here has been to keep up the regular preaching services, and I have often found it necessary to preach three times on Sunday, and ride a distance of fifteen and twenty miles in order to do that. The outlook here just at present is not at all encouraging. Our congregations are small, and with a very few honorable exceptions the people are very backward about meeting their pecuniary obligations to their pastor. From those Adventists residing in the surrounding country, to whom I appealed for sympathy and aid, I have received but one response. I came here with the expectation of working up interest enough here and in outlying districts to support a pastor, intending to withdraw from the charge in favor of some good man as soon as that point was reached; but it now looks as though it will take all of these interests combined to support a man one half of the time. As soon as I become fully convinced that this is the case, I shall deem it advisable to seek out some other field in this section of the State, where there is a fair prospect of awakening sufficient interest to support a man the remaining half of the time. I think it far better to make these provisions for the perpetuation of the work than to skip about here and there, creating something of a stir in many places, without leaving a permanent interest in any of them.

NOTES FROM MY DIARY.

BY W. H. LANNIN

After leaving the Brethren at Bowdoinham, Me., we sped over the steel rails toward Biddeford, where our dear brother in Christ, Ira Hill, awaited our coming. Arriving safely we waited somewhat impatiently the arrival of our humble household effects. In due time they came, and then work began in earnest. With the united help of our dear Bro. and his family, no time was lost in getting our effects cheerfully arranged in homelike order. As soon as this duty was performed, arrangements were made for both myself and wife to go on to Mechanic Falls and help the brethren sow the precious seed of gospel truth. Accordingly we left our new home and reported at the Falls on Friday, Feb. 10th.

Our labors were blessed of the Lord, although satan desired to withstand the work that was begun, by his artful devices. Our hearts were made to rejoice at seeing a very intelligent young man at the close of one of our meetings humbly kneel at the feet of Jesus, and accept with the heart the gospel message of salvation by faith. We remained with the church in this place until Feb. 20th, laboring every evening and speaking on many vital gospel topics. Having received a call from the York Co. committee to report at Biddeford, as there were two other places nearer home that needed my attention, we left once more for home, trusting and praying that the good work begun would continue despite all effort to the contrary.

When we arrived home we found out that nothing definite was done in the way of opening an effectual door for labor in either of the places mentioned in the letter received. We felt somewhat grieved in spirit, realizing that time was precious; but knowing very well that to rest on inactive oars would not improve circumstances, we at once telegraphed to the brethren at the Falls that we were coming back that way again. Arriving once more amongst the brethren, we prayed to the Lord for guidance. While stopping here a letter came to our address from Oxford, a village six miles distant, requesting us to come over and help them in the Master's service. We at once went and held an interesting series of nine meetings with blessed results. The villagers were awakened to the truths contained in the Word of God as never before. Many who were in gloom and the first stages of spiritualism have seen the light of truth, and are now walking therein. We were hospitably used by all the dear brethren, and even those out of the church administered to our temporal wants.

From this place we went over to Ottisfield Gore and preached Sunday, March 4th. Here we met brethren of like precious faith who desired us to arrange to come amongst them and hold a series of revival services. We promised to try and do so at our earliest convenience. Having, while laboring in Oxford arranged to return once more to Mechanic Falls as soon as we could conveniently do so, the next morning found us tired in body but strong in spirit, on our way toward the Falls. We had the pleasure of riding by the side of dear Bro. I. C. Wellcome on our way thither. It is so invigorating in spirit to one on the battle-field to meet with those who are fellow pilgrims on the journey toward the kingdom of God. My soul could truly say, "Bless the Lord, O my soul, and all that is within me, bless his holy name!" After bidding him God speed and receiving his loving benediction in return, I hurriedly left the car and wended my way to the home of Bro. J. B. Mason, who, by the way, is one of the most influential honey bee dealers in the United States. He is also the proprietor and editor of a "Bee and Poultry Journal."

I found a hearty welcome, and at once we set to work to stir up the people's minds to a sense of our being in town, by scattering five hundred dodgers throughout the town. The brethren had previously rented a large central hall for the proposed meetings, and we also set to work and painted on a transparency above the hall door a sign, "Gospel Meetings." We began meetings Tuesday, March 6th, and up to this present date the meetings are going along grandly. The interest is nightly on the increase, and new faces are to be seen every evening. There is one quality manifest in the audience that is quite encouraging to us, viz. a deep and calm interest taken in the different sides or phases of the glorious gospel of life only in Christ, as revealed in the much abused prophetical and apostolic Scriptures. To many here as elsewhere the Bible is a new book. Brethren and sisters, pray that we fail not either in body or spirit.

Mechanic Falls, Me.

FROM THE SIMEONS AND ANNAS.

Bro. Stockman:—To-day, March 1, I am threescore and fifteen years old, so I reckon myself among the number that you have invited to write a short letter. I have been a believer in the near coming of our Lord more than forty-five years, and although he has tarried long, I am still waiting, and I find the constant study of the Bible a help to while away the time. The blessed Book is an inexhaustible mine and never-failing source of encouragement, and those chapters which speak of our Lord's coming have ever been precious to me.

I am informed by some among our people that by reading the last eight verses of Luke 17, they conclude that we are to have a time of persecution just before the Lord comes, and that they feared those trials more than death. Now to such I would say, that as Matthew, Mark and Luke have each given us a part only of our Lord's discourse, those chapters, Matt. 24, Mark 13 and Luke 21, must be read in connection, as also Luke 17, where the Pharisees demanded of Jesus when the kingdom of God should come.

In Luke 17: 30 we read, "Even thus shall it be in the day when the Son of man is revealed. In that day, he which is upon the house-top and his stuff in the house, let him not come down to take it away." In what day? Is it in the day when the Son of man is revealed? Let us ask Matthew and Mark. Matt. 24: 15, Mark 13: 14—"But when ye shall see the abomination of desolation spoken of by Daniel the prophet standing where it ought not, let him that is on the house-top not go down to take anything out of his house." Now you will notice that Luke has not given us this verse: "When ye therefore shall see the abomination of desolation spoken of by Daniel the prophet." This verse was certainly in our Lord's sermon, and its omission changes the time for the fulfilment of the seven verses following very much.

If Luke had given us that verse as Matthew and Mark have, all would have been plain, and it is plain now if we read those chapters in connection and "rightly divide the word of truth." Then Matthew must have a little criticism, while Luke has those events as recorded in the seven last verses of his 17th chapter as taking place at one and the same time. Matthew has them somewhat scattered. Doubtless the 28th, 40th and 41st verses of the 24th of Matt. should have been placed with those that were to be fulfilled during the abomination of desolation, and thus harmonize with Luke.

When our Lord comes they are to be crying peace and safety. "And they answered and said unto him, Where, Lord? And he said unto them, Wheresoever the body is, thither will the eagles be gathered together"; wherever there were any that were of the body of Christ, and wherever antichrist reigned. The saints endured that great tribulation for 1260 years, and then it ended. We have had our trials in the past forty years, and now let us look for the Lord himself. No doubt if the "enemy of all righteousness" could by any means so change the truth of God into a lie as to make us choose death rather than the coming of our Lord and Saviour, it would please him well. But let us be on the alert for our wily foe, and he will soon be out of our way, for the saints of the Most High shall take the kingdom and possess the kingdom forever, even for ever and ever. JOS. M. ANDREWS.

New Boston, N. H.

Bro. Stockman:—I observed in the Crisis a request that your Advent friends of advanced years should state their age and some experience as regards their association with the Advent cause. Well, I am now in my eighty-first year, which you will call far advanced in life. I embraced the Advent doctrine of the near coming of Christ about 1837 or 1838, from reading the writings of Wm Miller, and then embraced the doctrine with all my heart. When 1844 came and our hopes were not realized, I was sadly disappointed. I hardly knew at that time what to think, but did really believe the Saviour would soon appear. My anxieties were very great, and had I the knowledge of the minds of others, I should and would have been much comforted. At that time it was difficult to get Advent literature.

After a time I heard of the publication of the Advent Herald. I at once procured it, and from this paper received much information, which was very interesting and afforded me much comfort on some subjects. After reading the weekly Herald some years, I learned of the publication of your Crisis, and obtained it. I have enjoyed its weekly utterances very much, and believe it to be the best paper published. I would not know how to do without its weekly visits. I have used every means in my power to obtain information by the purchase of tracts, pamphlets, and books which contained arguments on the subject of our Lord's near return to earth, and also the best interpretations of prophecy by your best authors. There is nothing in this world that I love to meditate upon so much as our Lord's second coming. I believe the signs and dates are about all fulfilled, and also believe that our Christ is now even at the door.

Yours in hope of immortality when Jesus comes, SOLOMON PEARSON.

German Town, N. B.

Bro. Stockman:—In reply to the invitation given in the Crisis of Feb. 22nd, I will try to pen a few words for the Crisis for the first time. I am one of those aged ones referred to. I am in my eighty-fourth year, and a widow for twenty years. Isolated from those of like precious faith, I hear no preaching except through the dear Crisis, which comes laden with Bible truth which gives me strength and courage to wait a little longer, for the prize is just ahead. Eternal life! O how cheering to those who have been long waiting for the return of their dear Lord to remove the curse and set up his everlasting kingdom. I am strong in the faith that we are in the perils of the last days spoken of by the prophets, and have been about thirty years. I have seen sorrow and trouble, but the dear Lord has been my refuge, and in him do I put my trust, for he has promised, "I will never leave thee nor forsake thee." Your sister waiting for the Bridegroom.

Stafford Springs, Ct. MRS. E. DAVIS.

Bro. Stockman:—I am now nearly eighty-two years of age; have been a member of the Baptist Church fifty-five years, a minister forty-eight years, and am still preaching. I embraced the Advent doctrines in 1842, and conditional immortality in 1844. The first I ever read on the subject was "Storrs' Six Sermons." They were very imperfect; then H. H. Dolney, then Grew's works, then a pamphlet by Ives, extracts from Constable's "Future Punishment" and all the principal works since.

I was personally acquainted with George Storrs, and took his paper, "Bible Examiner," until it was suspended. If you will examine Wellcome's history of the Advent cause, you will find my name associated with that of J. Lee. We were then the only two who advocated the cause in North Carolina. He is dead, and my daily prayer is that God will spare my life to witness the great event of my Saviour's return. Pray for me. Your Bro.,

J. P. PRITCHARD.

BARNES. Fell asleep in Jesus, at her home in Coaticook, P. Q., Feb. 14th, 1888, Adalaide E., beloved wife of Bro. Thomas A. Barnes, aged fifty-three years and ten months.

Our sister gave all to Christ, and her faith rested on the Word of God. She was unassuming and unobtrusive, and was ever ready to testify of the grace by which she was brought to Christ, and kept, though in the world, "from the evil." She was an Adventist, and her faith was strong in the glorious second advent of Christ as the time of the saints' reward. Her home was emphatically the place of rest and peace. Her husband and her children knew daily that she walked with God, and her willing hands ministered to their necessities, while she was to them the sweet example of a Christian wife and mother. All who visited her home felt the blessedness of her Christian spirit and the influence of her piety. The servants of Christ were by her and her husband always welcomed and kindly cared for, as we often have known by experience. But she has, like multitudes of others, sickened and died. For nearly half a year she has been sick and languishing on a bed of pain, but "she is at rest," as her husband, grief-stricken and sad, writes us, while rejoicing in the consolation afforded by the assurance that

"She sleeps in Jesus, blessed sleep,
From which none ever wake to weep."

She was granted on her sick-bed an especial experience such as she never had before, and proved the promise true, "My grace is sufficient for thee." For over twenty-eight years she and her husband have lived in peace and happiness together, and her kind words and cheering advice have often helped him on his weary, toilsome way. Her last words were, "I am happy in the Lord."

"'Tis blessed thus to die,"
To breathe the last faint breath,
To close the languid eye,
And sink to dreamless death.
Now we'll ne'er be parted more;
"Forever with the Lord,"
On that fair shining shore
You both will be ye reward.

Services by Eld. Chas. McClure. Text, John 11: 25, 26. A very large audience of sympathizing friends were present, for Sr. Barnes was well beloved. L. C. MCKINSTRY.

MCDOLE. Suddenly, but peacefully fell asleep in Jesus, at her residence in Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 24th, 1888, Sister Eliza J., relict of the late Andrew McDole, in the seventy-fifth year of her age.

It again becomes our painful duty to chronicle the death of another one of God's dear waiting children. For more than forty years our dear sister has been watching and waiting for the glorious appearing of our Life-giver and Redeemer. In early life she was converted to God, and united with the M. E. Church; but in 1843 and 4, when Bro. Miller and his co-laborers were preaching in this city the second advent of the Saviour near, she with her dear husband heard and rejoiced in the glorious proclamation, and although the subject of much affliction in her family, and personal physical suffering, the blessed hope sustained her to the last. She was an ardent lover and earnest advocate of present truth due this generation, and although no friend to death, notwithstanding it came suddenly she was ready. She leaves two daughters, a number of grandchildren, with numerous other relatives and friends, who deeply mourn their loss. Funeral services conducted by Eld. F. H. Burbank and the writer.

"Another weary pilgrim rests,
Her conflicts now are o'er;
Her name is numbered with the blest,
For Canaan's bright, eternal shore.
She loved the Saviour's living Word,
Her work is now well done,
She waited for our coming Lord,
Who soon will call her home."

HATCH. In Hopedale, Mass., Feb. 10th, 1888, Sister Fidelia M. Hatch, wife of the late Daniel H. Hatch, formerly of Portsmouth, N. H., aged eighty-four years, six months, and four days.

The subject of the above notice was a remarkable woman in many ways. She with her husband early embraced the Advent faith when preached by Father Miller in 1839 and '40. She became a widow sixteen years ago, her husband having "passed on" in 1872, fall in the "faith." She was the mother of twelve children, eight of whom are now living. In the largest and best sense she was a true and living Christian, a beloved mother, friend, and neighbor. All bless her for her sweet and beautiful life. In all her many, many troubles she never faltered, but implicitly trusted in the goodness and mercy of her heavenly father. She has long been a subscriber to the Crisis, and read its weekly pages with great comfort and satisfaction. She was a strong believer in the soon appearance of her beloved Master to bless and "glorify his saints." There was no bigotry in her faith. She conceded to others seeking the truth the same rights she claimed for herself, saying as she often did, "The good Lord will do just right." The aged and Rev. Adin Ballou in company with Rev. L. G. Wilson of this town attended and spoke words of cheer and comfort to a large company of relatives, friends and neighbors at the house of her son in Hopedale, with whom she has resided for the last sixteen years. G. O. HATCH.

SANBORN. At Franconia, N. H., Feb. 3rd, 1888, of consumption, Bro. Oliver Sanborn, aged fifty-two years and five months.

He served his country faithfully in the late war of the rebellion, being a member of the 6th Vermont Volunteers and was twice wounded and once suffered by sunstroke. A few years after the war he enlisted in the service of King Immanuel, and was buried by the writer in the liquid wave with two of his sisters and one other sister. It being the first time we ever administered the ordinance of baptism, we have felt a special interest in his welfare. We visited him several times during the last two months of his sickness, and always found him anxious to talk and hear about Jesus and the resurrection. He gave satisfactory evidence to all who conversed with him that his sins had all gone beforehand to judgment, and been cancelled through faith in the atoning blood. The deceased was never married, but lived with and cared for his widowed mother, who deeply mourns his loss, with several brothers and sisters. As we listened to the sighs and sobs of this widowed mother and friends, our mind went back to the time when the Prince of Life himself met a funeral procession and broke it up, and restored the son to his weeping mother. And so we in sympathy with the waiting, weeping bride of Christ, cry out from the heart, Come, Lord Jesus, and destroy death, and him that hath the power of death, which is the devil. Sermon by the writer, assisted by Brn. Brown and Howard. G. C. BOWLES.

HOUSTON. In Bangor, Me., Feb. 12, 1888, Cyrus H. Houston, aged seventy-one years and nine months.

The grim messenger death has laid his hand upon this another of the household of faith, and after quite a distressing illness he has laid down to wait the gathering of the ransomed host. Although he has not taken an active part in the work of the Lord for the past few years, yet he has been an attentive listener whenever it was his privilege to attend upon the means of grace. He leaves a wife and ten children to mourn his loss, and we trust that all may enter into the city of light when the Master shall come.

J. F. CLOTHEY.

HAWKES. Mrs. Susan Dean Hawkes was removed suddenly from earthly scenes by an attack of heart disease.

Mrs. Hawkes was a daughter of Thomas and Mary Dean, and was born in Winchester, N. H., April 28, 1816. She came to this town in 1833, and Jan. 1st, 1838, became the second wife of our respected citizen, Mr. Adam Hawkes, and is now called away after nearly fifty years of happy married life. She leaves one son, Mr. Adam Augustus Hawkes of this town, another deeply mourned son, Edgar Dean, having died July 4th, 1855, at the age of eight years. Mrs. Hawkes leaves half brothers and sister, Mr. Benjamin L. Skinner and Miss Maria Skinner of this town, and Mr. Isaac Skinner of Oakland, Cal. Mrs. Hawkes was an excellent Christian woman, of kindly and benevolent disposition and presence, and will be greatly lamented in the circle in which she moved. She was an active and devoted member of the Second Advent Church, and faithful to every duty. The funeral was attended at the residence of Mr. Hawkes on Main street, conducted by the Rev. Wm. Hall Williams, according to the full burial service of the Episcopal Church. The interment was in the family lot in Lakeside Cemetery.—Wakefield Banner.

BUGBEE. In Willington, Ct., Feb. 7th, 1888, Elizabeth Bugbee, wife of Bro. Jason Bugbee, aged eighty-eight years.

Sister Bugbee in early life gave her heart to God, and with her husband united with the M. E. Church. About 1843 she with her husband embraced the doctrine of the soon coming of the Lord and its kindred truths. She lived a consistent Christian life, and died in hope of a better resurrection. She left a husband, one son, and grandchildren to mourn her loss, but they mourn not as those which have no hope. Previous to her death she selected 1 Thess. 4: 13-18 to be used as a subject of remark at her funeral, from which the writer administered words of admonition and comfort. A. MORSE.

BODGE. Peacefully fell asleep in Jesus, after a long and painful sickness, Aug. 28, 1887, Sister Bodge, widow of the late James Bodge of Moultonborough, aged eighty-three years and three months.

She was the last one of seven daughters. Two brothers survive her. Bro. Sylvester Lovering being one of them. Our sister gave her heart to God when quite young, and served her own generation by the will of God, and now rests in hope, sweet hope. Loving friends do not sorrow as those who have no hope. Words of comfort by the writer. T. W. PIPER.

CORRESPONDENCE.

FROM ELD. J. F. ANDERSON.

Bro. Stockman:—I desire a little space in your columns. I have been a reader of the dear old Crisis for some time. I read so many encouraging letters from the brethren and sisters in Christ I feel it my duty to speak if possible a word of encouragement to those of like precious faith. In Jan. 1887 I was converted to God, and as soon as I was truly converted I felt it my duty to preach the gospel to other perishing souls at the same time seeing the great need of the work, I consented to work in the ministry, and praise the name of the Lord I am standing as a watchman on the walls of Zion.

Brethren, when I look around me and see so many going the downward road to perdition it makes me feel like preaching day and night. Though I am an unlearned fisherman, as it were, the Lord is blessing me in my feeble efforts. When I read the letters from our missionaries it makes my heart rejoice; but when I look round and see the little churches that have been established here by Bro. and Sr. Smith, and see how they are being scattered for the want of a shepherd, it makes me almost feel like weeping. It does seem to me that the ministers of God are not doing as much as they ought. I fear they have not as a general thing got faith sufficient to trust him fully. May God awaken the ministering brethren to a sense of their duty, that we may present the Word to the people in its purity.

The people are starving for the want of such preaching. We are almost compelled to cry out as they did from the so-called heathen land. But, brethren, there is not a greater heathen country on the earth today than Oregon, so far as understanding God's Word is concerned. This is saying a great deal, nevertheless it is true, God being my judge. Let us take courage, brethren, and be faithful till Jesus comes. It will not be long, if we live in the discharge of our duty, till we can say, "Lo, this is our God, we have waited for him and he will save us."

There is so much of Satan's doctrine preached here, it is almost impossible to get the people to receive the truth. I am preaching every Sunday, and if the Lord opens the way I will go all the time. There is but one minister west of the Cascade Mts. that is preaching all the time. I pray God that he may send more laborers into this part of his moral vineyard, so that when Jesus comes he may find us giving meat in due season. Now, brethren, I am honest in this matter. I feel that the day of judgment is so near at hand.

Now, to all who may read this feeble letter, I desire your prayers that I may continue steadfast in the apostles' doctrine. May God help us all to watch, so that that day may not come on us as a thief in the night, for he will come on the wicked as a thief, but the faithful shall know. Read 1. Thess. 5: 4, Rev. 3: 3. There is a great field of labor here, and but few laborers. I am, by the grace of God, doing all I can for the Master. I have a large family to support with my hands. But the more I study my Bible the more I feel like giving up all for Christ. It sometimes looks like a great trial, but I am going to work for Jesus. I am ready to go wherever the Lord requires me. Now, in conclusion I will say to the Brn. and Srs., pray for me that I may live in discharge of my duty, and at last gain a home in the kingdom.

Scappoose, Oregon.

FROM MIRA NOLEN.

Bro. Stockman:—I would like to give a word of testimony on the Lord's side through the Crisis to the brethren and sisters scattered abroad. About nine years ago I was brought to see the need of Jesus as my friend, through the preaching of Bro. Philo Hitchcock, now of Dakota. At that time he held a meeting at Mifflin, Wis., my home until about five years ago. There was a large number converted to God. Some have gone to other homes, some have gone back to the ways of the world, and some have fallen asleep. I am trusting Jesus day by day. The way grows better all the time. By his grace I am going to be faithful until he comes. Your sister in the love of Jesus.

Smithland, Ia.

FROM C. J. BUDLONG.

To the beloved editor of the Crisis, and his vast army of readers, heartfelt greeting:—It has seemed good to us, as we have read the many messages of love which have appeared from time to time in the columns of the Crisis, to occasionally report the progress of the cause of truth in this remote corner of the little State of Rhode Island, and we fervently hope that the space we now occupy may not be altogether lost, but the telling of the glad news of many reclaimed from the powers of darkness to the service of the one who is "altogether lovely," may so work upon the mind of the reader that, if disheartened and sad, it may inspire him with renewed strength, and a determination to seek to save the lost, and point the weary child of earth to the fountain of cleansing and healing which has been opened so that "Whosoever will may come" and bathe in its crystal, clear, and health-restoring waters, and emerge purified from sin, and basking in the sunshine of pardoning love.

Notwithstanding the severity of the weather, which has been remarkably cold for this locality revival services have been conducted in the chapel here by Bro. Gerish, and many have been brought to a knowledge of the truth of life only in Christ. One young man, with whom the writer has been many times conversing upon the state of man in death, the nature of the soul etc., after carefully studying the Word of God, and reading a number of tracts from the Crisis office which we gave him, came out and openly professed to renounce the wrong and accept the truth. And by his taking so decided a stand others were led to investigate our teachings, and also to accept of the salvation which is "so full and so free," and are now leading good and noble lives.

Bro. Gerish is indeed a power in this community, and by his fervent exhortations has succeeded in accomplishing much for the glory of God. We feel that without him our lot would be hard indeed. Dear friends of truth, remember us in your petitions to the throne of grace, for we know that "the prayer of the righteous availeth much," and that the one by whom all prayers are heard, will grant to strengthen us in our warfare against evil and the force of sin, and eventually lead us triumphant through the land of the foe, if we will but put our whole trust in him, and follow his leadings with the surest, confiding trust of a little child.

We cannot close without entreating the unsaved to trifle no longer with the pleadings of the blessed Redeemer. "Grieve not the Spirit." Turn to the Saviour while probation is extended, while the voice of God calls you in accents of unutterable love, while the great possibilities of the future are opening before you. Yield to him who is "the way, the truth, and the life," and perfect peace is yours on earth now, and when "he who is our life shall appear," immortal life in a world where death and sin cannot enter will be your reward.

Potter Hill, R. I.

REPORT OF LABOR.

I went from the Wis. Conference at Arena in Dec. to the Pine River church in Richland Co., and commenced meetings Christmas day. There has been much to discourage this little band. Among the rest, Ellen White-ism has tried its best to divide, distract, and destroy, but thank God the testator of the new covenant, Jesus, is greater than Moses. May they all be kept faithful followers of Jesus. I preached the first sermon there in the basement of a grist mill, on the chart some twenty-eight years ago. This was followed by Brn. Sheldon, Hough, and others, and the light has been held up there till now.

I staid three Sundays. The church was revived, three new ones started to serve God, and we appointed a church quarterly in three weeks, which was a blessed time of refreshing for all. Peace and love were multiplied, and I was chosen to supply them every four weeks as their pastor. From there I came to Sparta, Lacrosse valley, where very much talented labor and money have been spent to hold up the light of gospel truth. But very many have moved away to the far West, and time is telling on the older members so they can do but little. I found a Bro. Wilcox in the Advent Church, as leader of what he called his "Gideon band," something after the style of the Salvation army. I fell into the ranks as far as I could, and this movement has been the means of moving the city of Sparta as it has not been moved before for a long time as all admit. Some forty have made a start in the church and more than one hundred young men in other churches.

May God help the fathers and mothers in Israel to nourish and feed the young that they die not. We have continued the meetings one week since the Army went away, and the interest still is good. Last Sunday ten new ones, young men, signified a desire to start for the kingdom. Lord, give us wisdom to aid the work in this gleaning time. We are to arrange for a Sunday School next Sunday at three o'clock. Pray for us. GEO. W. TURNER.

IN lowliness is security. David walked in the valley, and feared no evil, for the Good Shepherd was with him. Learn to be meek and lowly in heart.

"SHORT and to the point," is a good motto in prayer-meeting.

"THE NIGHT IS FAR SPENT."

BY F. B. GRISWOLD.

Standing in the solemn night,
Waiting for the day,
I can see the coming light
Chase the gloom away.

So my spirit trembles not,
Though the shade enfolds me,
And with seeming subtle power
Clasps me round and holds me.

Well I know the magic word
That can darkness banish;
"Light be!" saith the God of love,
And all shadows vanish.

Oh, the vision of His glory!
Oh, the blessed dawning!
Oh, the day that has no evening!
Oh, the heavenly morning!

THAT PALE WOMAN.

At one of the villages on our coast there are a good many rough fishermen. There are a good number of churches and ministers there, and they have tried to do something for these men in their way; but finding they could not, they have given it up. The church said, "We have rung our bell, engaged our quartette choir, and if you do not come, we cannot help it."

There is no command for the people to go and get the gospel; the command is to carry the gospel to the people—"Go ye into all the world," that means everywhere. Miss Phelps was given up to die, but her physicians said, "If you go to such a village on our coast, perhaps the sea air may prolong your life; but it is an awfully wicked place." That pale woman arrived there, and took a room. She slept but little the first night, and toward morning was sleeping quietly, with her windows open for sea air, when she was awakened by the rough swearing of men under her window. She could not bear it, and hastily dressing, went down to the door, and said, "O men, I am a poor, sick, dying woman. I have come from the hills to prolong my life, but you are going to drive me away."

One wicked man said, "who is going to drive you away, you pale woman?" "You are; you have been swearing about my Saviour." The man trembled and said, "I will knock down the man that swears. Nobody shall swear while you are here." A man came along swearing. Said he, "You stop that; there is an angel here."

In a few days she took a little cabinet organ, hired a hall, opened the doors and windows, and the rough men gathered around. She touched the keys and began to sing, "What a friend we have in Jesus." Before she had finished, tears were in eyes unaccustomed to weep. In a little while she had a church, and had need for a minister, and they are doing great things there that never would have been done but for that pale woman.—Dr. Bates, in Service for Jesus.

A PULPIT WONDER.

Willliamstown, Ky., Feb. 17th.—Great and unflagging interest has been manifested nightly for the past week in the eloquent and wonderful preaching of the boy preacher, Rev. Pascal Porter, of near Madison, Ind., who is only eleven years old.

Ministers in the prime of their ministry, ministers grown gray in the service of their Master, hung with rapture upon the words that fell with burning eloquence from his youthful lips.

Never in the history of this place has such crowds assembled to hear the preaching of one person. People of every creed and denomination and without a creed, and men who had not entered a church for fifteen years, attended nightly and were thrilled with interest and filled with wonder. He is a handsome boy with a bright brown eye and well-shaped head. Out of the pulpit there is nothing in his manner or speech to indicate his wonderful gift, but in the pulpit he is a veritable giant. He possesses a most wonderful memory and great gift of language, and his sermons were logical, doctrinal and deep, and on each night he spoke on an entirely different subject. While all here proclaim that his preaching is wonderful and interesting the community are about equally divided as to whether his sermons are original or whether he has committed to memory the sermon of another; but all admit, whether they are original or not, that the boy preacher is a wonder and a prodigy.

He is never at a loss for the right word in the right place, and so thoroughly does he seem to understand and appreciate his subject that if he were not a boy the originality of his discourses would never be questioned. The interest in them is not by any means confined to the fact that they are delivered by a boy, and if delivered by a minister of mature years and were delivered with the same degree of eloquence all would be no less deeply interested.

He was born near Madison, Indiana, Nov. 6, 1876, and is the youngest of a family of seven children—three boys and four girls. As soon as he was old enough to talk he manifested a desire to preach the gospel and make the world better, but was not permitted to enter the ministry until he was nine years of age. His education is limited, only having advanced as far as the fourth grade in the public schools.—Sel.

THE men to be depended upon in this world are the men who act without talking and blustering; who stand for the right in the trying hour, and when "truth is fallen in the streets," are ready to bow down beside her and lift her up. May the Lord increase the number of those who are thus "valiant for the truth" in the earth.—ED.

Society, and see if any former action had been taken upon the subject, and report at the next meeting of the Society. Adjourned to call of Business Agent.

A meeting of the A. C. P. Society was held pursuant to call of the Business Agent, at Boston, Mass., April 17th, 1888, at 10, A. M., in the office of the World's Crisis. Present, J. Couch, E. G. The Secretary reported having searched the records, as per instruction of the Board, and found nothing in regard to advertising for other publishers.

Sister M. McKinstry having expressed a desire to come before the Society and make a statement in regard to an article written by Eld. L. C. McKinstry for the Crisis on the special work in which Bro. and Sr. McKinstry are engaged, and which article involved an advertisement of Bro. McKinstry's publications as for sale by him, she was permitted to come before the Society at this point and read the article referred to. After some discussion the following resolution was unanimously passed:

Whereas, the World's Crisis is the special medium for advertising the publications of the A. C. P. Society, and is not intended to become an advertising medium for any other party besides the A. C. P. Society; and, Whereas, to advertise for any other party would give a precedent whereby many could claim privileges of the same kind in the columns of the Crisis, and thus lead to a question of rights and privileges which might involve much controversy; therefore,

Resolved, that we do not think it advisable to advertise in the World's Crisis the sale of merchandise in the interests of any party except the A. C. P. Society.

The Business Agent was instructed to publish a list of ministers in the Crisis once in three months.

Voted, that this Society approve the Business Agent's hiring such clerk help as he may need in his office.

Burr and E. M. Andrews were appointed a Committee to join with the Business Agent in taking proper steps to ascertain about the reported bequest, and to secure whatever funds may be bequeathed to this Society.

Wallace, it was Voted, that the President appoint a Committee of three to take into consideration the arrangement of question books and papers for Sunday Schools according to the grades of classes, and the demands of the times, and to report to this Society. Also that it be issued weekly.

"The Committee appointed by the A. C. P. Society for the purpose of advising and acting with the Business Agent in purchasing printing presses and material to be used in printing our papers, tracts, circulars, etc., would hereby report that they have attended to our duties according to the best of our judgment. We have caused to be placed in the rooms rented by the Society certain machinery and material, as follows: A two-revolution Cottrell press for printing our papers, quartos, tracts, a Gordon job press, [illegible] folding machine, an Acme paper cutter, together with type, racks, imposing stones, lighting, and other material necessary for our work. This material and machinery is wholly new, and of excellent quality.

We have also purchased a Sprague Electric Motor, and had it placed in the upper floor, by which means ample power is furnished for running all our presses and machinery. Having also an opportunity to purchase a lot of type and fixtures for music printing at a low figure, we availed ourselves of it, and thus equipped the office with means to do its own music printing at less cost than formerly. The entire cost of the above mentioned presses and material amounted to about $8,770. Having thus completed our work, we offer this as our final report. F. BURR.
E. M. ANDREWS.

Report adopted, and it was voted that the Committee be remunerated for their labors.

The World's Crisis.

It has afforded us much pleasure during the past year to notice the interest manifested by our brethren and sisters to increase the circulation and extend the usefulness of our family and denominational paper, and we are happy to report that their labors have not been in vain. We had on our list at the commencement of the year, 9053 names. Our present list contains 9740 names, a net increase of 697, which we find by examining the annual reports is the largest gain made in any one year since 1864.

We have entered 2414 names on our list during the year, 1520 being for six months and a year, and 894 trial subscribers for three months, and have discontinued 1717. Of the 9740 names on our list, 904 are preachers, and others who are only able to pay at the rate of $1.00 per year; 254 are on our free list, and have the paper without money and without price.

The amount received for subscriptions for Crisis during the year is $12,201.75; for donations to the Crisis Poor Fund, $117.92. Total Receipts for Crisis, $12,319.67. The amount paid for publishing the Crisis, not including [illegible] commenced to do it ourselves, is $8,768.71.

The amount due on Crisis is $7,932.15. We have tried very hard to reduce this indebtedness, by sending circular letters to all who were owing over $5.00, expressing a willingness on the part of the Society to compromise with them if necessary, in order to have the account settled; and we requested them to write us stating the best terms they could offer us to cancel their indebtedness and pay for one year in advance. Only a few have responded, and the most of those could only pay at greatly reduced rates, while the majority of those to whom we sent letters pay no attention to them whatever, and we can only recommend the discontinuance of their subscription, unless we can get some response from them.

We would also recommend the Society to take into consideration the propriety of changing the Crisis from its present form to one of eight pages, as it will better accommodate those who desire to preserve their papers, and will be more in keeping with the times in which we are living.

The Young Pilgrim.

This paper is not so extensively patronized as we think it should be among our people and in our Sunday Schools, yet we are happy to report it as gaining ground slowly, but surely. We had on our list at the commencement of the year 6077 subscribers; our present list numbers 6216, an increase of 139 during the year. We have received on subscriptions for the Young Pilgrim $1,250.71, and have expended for publishing the same $1,055.50, which does not include press work since we began to do our own printing. The amount now due on the Young Pilgrim by subscribers is estimated at $486.95.

The Blessed Hope Quarterly.

This publication is rapidly gaining favor with those Sunday Schools that prefer sound gospel truth to the false theology and fiction so prevalent in our world to-day, and which is leading the minds of the young from the plain teaching of the word of God. We would recommend that our pastors and preachers everywhere make extra efforts to introduce the Blessed Hope Quarterly and Young Pilgrim into all our Sunday Schools where they are not already used. During the year we have published four numbers of the Blessed Hope Quarterly; two numbers of eight thousand each, one of eight thousand five hundred, and for the last number we published an edition of ten thousand copies, which is the largest edition published since the Quarterly was started.

The amount received on subscriptions for the Quarterly is $1,259.37. The expenditures, not including the last number, amount to $996.78. The amount due on the list is estimated at $306.59.

Book and Tract Department.

In this department we have published during the year 500 copies "The Ministerial Service Book," 128 pages (new); 1000 copies of a new Sunday School Music book, entitled "Heart Melodies," 208 pages; 1741 copies of "The New [illegible] Harp," cloth binding, 525 copies in half leather, and 12 copies in full Turkey morocco binding, each of which contained new additions [illegible] with cover; "The Resurrection of the Dead," 16 pages; "The Bible Doctrine of Man in Death," 28 pages; "Personality and Immortality of Man," 48 pages; "Jesus the Christ; Was he Divine?" 20 pages; "The Christian Doctrine of Probation," 32 pages, and "The Approaching Consummation," 32 pages.

We have published one edition of 10,000 copies of "Prophetic Probabilities," for Bro. E. C. Brough; 2000 copies of a 20 page tract, for Bro. Wm. Hobbs, entitled, "Death as the negative of Conscious Life," and for Bro. Tucker a four page tract, entitled, "Prepare to meet thy God," 1000 copies. The amount received for books, tracts, etc., is $6,229.58, and from ledger accounts, which is mostly for books sold on credit, $3,814.51; from the Tract Fund Donations, $248.70;—total, $10,292.79. The amount paid for books, tracts, etc., bought and manufactured. is $7,262.14.

The "Crisis" Poor Fund.

The donations received for this fund during the year amount to $117.92. We have sent the Crisis free to the amount of $265.00, at the rate of $1.00 per year, which we trust has been the means of comforting the hearts of many who are not able to pay for the Crisis.

The Tract Fund.

The past year has been one of unusual interest in the distribution of tracts. We have received numerous calls for these silent preachers from different parts of the country, East, West, North and South, and have responded to each call in quantities, as we thought the case required. How much good has been accomplished will doubtless be unknown till the return of the Master and the books are opened. The amount received for the Tract Fund is $248.70. We extend the thanks of the Society to the donors for the same. We have granted tracts to the amount of $494.15.

Help the Needy Fund.

Cash received by donations to this fund, $170.20. Cash paid as requested by donors when sending money, and where other needy cases have presented themselves, $77.75. Balance in treasury, Aug. 1, 1888, $92.45.

Since our last annual meeting some important changes have been made in the business department of the Publication Society.

Our Rooms.

These were found altogether too small to accommodate our increasing business, and having ascertained that we could lease two extra floors in the same building with our office, at a very small increase from what we had been paying for rent, we presented the matter to the Publication Society, who instructed us to secure the lease of the extra [illegible] and now, instead of confining our business to two floors, we are occupying four stories in a large block, situated on the corner of two well known streets in our city. After securing the above rooms, the matter of fitting up a was laid before the Society for their consideration. A Committee was appointed to investigate the subject, and after making a very thorough investigation, reported favorably. A new Committee was formed to purchase the necessary machinery and material for the office. You have heard their report, and it only remains for us to say that we are fully convinced that making this outlay was a move in the right direction, and should have been done earlier in our history as a Society. We can now do our work at a saving of at least 25 per cent from what it cost us formerly. Our machinery is of the latest and most improved make in the market, and is giving perfect satisfaction in every particular. Having thoroughly investigated the machinery several times since it has been in operation, we fail to find any place where we could wish the Committee had done differently.

In our Job Printing and Music Departments we have a large quantity of material, and competent help for doing all kinds of Book, Job and Music printing, at prices much less than we have been in the habit of paying for such work. With these extra facilities for doing our own work at bottom prices, and while the world at large is perishing for the Word of life, it remains for the Society to broaden its sphere of usefulness, and extend its influence for good, by putting into circulation such books and other publications as will best subserve the interest of the Society, and warn the world of approaching judgment.

We would recommend the Society to consider the matter of publishing a monthly tract, treating upon the various doctrines that distinguish us as a people, to be sent free to our preaching brethren and others, who will see that they are judiciously distributed, and by this means get our faith before those who have never heard the good news of a coming Redeemer.

All of which is respectfully submitted.
CHAS. H. WOODMAN, Agent.

Voted, that the regular time for assembling each day be at 8 o'clock A. M., and 1 o'clock P. M. Adjourned.

The Association was again called to order at 8 o'clock A. M. on Thursday, Sept. 6. Devotional services were duly conducted, after which the Chairman mentioned by a few appropriate remarks, the afflictions that had come during the past year upon some of the former members of this Association, mentioning especially the death of Sr. L. M. Stoddard, and the more recent death of Eld. C. P. Dow, of Canada, and of Dr. N. Field, of Ind.; also the affliction by severe sickness of Eld. S. G. Mathewson, of Mass., and the infirmities of Elds. L. Boutelle, of Mass., and S. S. Brewer, of New Hamp[illegible] ones mentioned. F. Burr, Wm. Sheldon, D. R. Mansfield, R. H. Bateman and O. R. Fassett were appointed said Committee.

Voted, that the Standing Committees be appointed by the Chair. At a later date in the meeting, though recorded here, Eld. Stockman, by permission of the Association, appointed F. Burr, W. J. Hobbs and J. A. Cargile as Committee on Resolutions, instead of appointing Standing Committees.

The Committee on Western publishing interests, who were chosen at the annual meeting in 1887, Eld. Wm. Sheldon, chairman, reported through Eld. W. J. Hobbs, a member of the said Committee, that the mind of the Committee was in favor of establishing a Western paper by a change of the Constitution of the Association, dividing the Association into two bodies East and West, each to control its own financial interests and publications. The report was accepted, and motion made to adopt. Moved to re-commit. Substitute by L. C. McKinstry to refer the subject to joint Committee on Western publication interests and Revision of the Constitution. Substitute carried.

The joint Committee then retired to consult, and the Association adjourned to call of Chair.

The Association was called to order at 1 P. M. Prayer by Eld. J. A. Cargile. The Committee on Expression of Condolence with the surviving relatives and friends of the late Dr. N. Field, of Ind., read a paper on the subject, which was adopted, as follows:

Expressions of condolence passed by the S. A. C. Association, assembled at Aurora, Ill., Sept. 6th, 1888, on the death of Dr. Nathaniel Field, of Jeffersonville, Ind.

To the family of the deceased, this Association extends their heartfelt sympathy in the loss of a kind, loving, and noble father, and pray that God may sustain them in the midst of their sorrow and bereavement, by giving them the consolation afforded by the hope of the gospel, which promises a resurrection from the dead to immortality and eternal life.

To the A. C. Church at Jeffersonville, Ind.: We learn with sadness the death of your aged and revered pastor, who for over forty years, has faithfully served you as an able and highly accredited minister, building you up in the most holy faith, both financially and spiritually, and like a wise servant has always been found, "giving the household meat in due season"; and now, being left without an under shepherd, we hope the great head of the Church will soon send you another man of God, who will faithfully break unto you the "bread of life."

To the Second Advent Christian body at large, we recognize in the death of our dearly beloved and venerable Brother Field, an irreparable loss, he being a wise, judicious, energetic, and faithful co-laborer in the ministry of the Word, and who stood foremost among Adventists as a bold and able defender of the doctrine of the personal coming and kingdom of our Lord Jesus Christ, and of immortality through Him alone.

D. R. MANSFIELD,
R. H. BATEMAN, Secretary,
O. R. FASSETT, Secretary, } COM.

The above Committee was continued for further report.

Eld. H. Pollard then read a paper on Western publishing interests in behalf of joint Committee, not as a report of said Committee, but to bring the subject more definitely before the Association. The paper was as follows:

Your Committee respectfully report

1. To form two Publication Societies having official Boards elected by the S. A. C. A., but not otherwise connected, and having no common treasury, will compel the West to build a publishing house from the ground up, which will certainly cause alienation between East and West, and damage the chances of a Western paper on that basis. We deem it impracticable.

2. To form two entirely independent Societies, or Boards, not elected by a common parent Association, will in our judgment disrupt East and West still sooner, and more completely. This is therefore worse still.

3. We, therefore, ask the S. A. C. Association to recommend the A. C. P. Society to issue a prospectus of a Western paper, to pledge the columns and mail list of the Crisis in aid of a Western paper, and to appropriate at the earliest possible date a definite sum of money to assist to establish a Western paper for the S. A. C. A., before they create a Western Publishing Board or Society of any kind.

Voted, to eliminate the first two paragraphs from the report. On the last paragraph an amendment by Eld. M. Grant, proposing that $500.00 be donated by the A. C. P. Society when $2000 were raised by general donations, was voted down. Also a substitute by Eld. McKinstry, embracing in different language the same idea with the original, [illegible] inal third paragraph with the words "[illegible] fore" eliminated was then adopted.

Adjourned at 2.50 P. M., to permit a session of the A. A. Mission Society.

The Association was called again at 3.10 P. M. Eld. W. J. Hobbs moved that the Western delegates be requested to nominate a Committee of Western men to prepare a prospectus for a Western paper. Eld. McKinstry moved as an amendment that the Committee be raised from the floor. The amendment was lost, and the original motion sustained.

Voted, that the report of Committee on Revision of Constitution be passed for the present.

The Association then proceeded to ballot for officers of the A. C. P. Society. The following were appointed tellers of ballots: A. W. Sibley, H. Pollard, P. Hitchcock. The following is the result of ballots:

Board of Directors of A. C. P. Society.
President A. C. P. Society, J. Couch.
Secretary A. C. P. Society, F. Burr.
Treas. and Bus. Ag't, C. H. Woodman.

Editorial Committee.
G. H. Wallace, E. M. Andrews, L. C. McKinstry.

Publishing Committee.
H. H. Tucker, M. Stevens, E. M. Low[illegible]

During the interval of time in counting ballots, Elds. C. Fike, J. August Smith, M. McCulloch, M. Grant, and Sr. Overlock of Minn., responded to calls for remarks, and some others remarked without being called upon, all of which was to the general interest and encouragement of the hearers.

On ballot for Editor of the World's Crisis, of 88 votes, Eld. E. A. Stockman received 87, and was elected. Eld. Stockman thanked the Association for this expression of favor, and remarking upon the great amount of Editorial work required of one person in the Crisis office compared with other offices where more help was employed, and also considering his age, he suggested that some measures be adopted to relieve him of some of his work. Eld. McKinstry moved that the Association proceed to elect an Assistant Editor for the World's Crisis. The motion was changed, and carried, to recommend the increase of the Editor's salary to $1500 per year, for the purpose of enabling him to employ help in editorial work.

Voted, to recommend that a month's vacation be granted to Editor Stockman, and all editorial expenses for the vacation be paid by the A. C. P. S. Adjourned at 5.30 P. M., to call of Chair.

The Chair called the Association at 6.30 P. M. Prayer by M. Grant. The question of electing a Western Corresponding Editor for the World's Crisis was acted upon by balloting "yea" or "nay." The "nay" vote was a majority, but for cause the ballot was afterwards reconsidered, as will appear farther on.

The following ballots were then declared elective:

Editor of Young Pilgrim—F. Burr.
Editor Blessed Hope Quarterly—F. Burr.

Officers of the S. A. C. Association.

President—E. A. Stockman.
Vice President—Wm. Sheldon.
Secretary—F. Burr.
Treasurer—C. H. Woodman.

Board of Directors.

A. W. Sibley, E. M. Andrews, M. Grant, D. R. Mansfield, H. Pollard, E. G. Higgins, J. Couch, G. H. Wallace, H. H. Tucker.

The above Board were elected on plurality of votes as per order of the Association.

The report of Western delegates on nomination of five members to prepare a prospectus for a Western paper was adopted, as follows:—W. J. Hobbs, H. Pollard, R. H. Bateman, P. Hitchcock, A. Armour. Adjourned at 8.30 P. M.

Friday, Sept. 7, 1888. The Association was called to order at 8 A. M. Prayer by D. R. Mansfield.

Because of misapprehensions on the part of many when the "yea" and "nay" vote was taken at a former session, concerning a Western Corresponding Editor for the World's Crisis, a reconsideration of the vote was allowed, which resulted in a unanimous ballot for Wm. Sheldon as Western Corresponding Editor.

The Secretary then read a letter from Eld. H. F. Carpenter, of Cal., addressed to the Association, concerning the needs of the publishing interests on the Pacific coast. The letter was referred to W. J. Hobbs and M. Grant as a Committee to answer said letter.

Eld. L. C. McKinstry of the Committee on Revision of Constitution reported progress by reading certain papers setting forth the need of a thorough revision of the Constitution of the A. C. P. Society, in order that the membership of said Society may be made perpetual, and that its various departments may be made more harmonious and operative according to the demands of the times. But as the changes could not be made thoroughly until other matters now pending shall be established and fixed, it was Voted, that we approve the report of progress as made by Eld. McKinstry, and the Committee is continued.

Voted, that we recommend that Eld. McKinstry be paid $30 as remuneration for his services in Committee work.

Report of the Committee on deceased and afflicted ones was read and adopted, as follows:

In behalf of the Second Advent Christian Association of America, assembled in annual meeting at Aurora, Ill., Sept. 6, 1888, the undersigned Committee, appointed to prepare expressions of condolence and regard for certain deceased and afflicted ones who have been stricken and afflicted since the occasion of our last annual meeting, would specially note:

1. That we regard the death of Sr. L. M. Stoddard, a devoted ministerial handmaid of the Lord's anointing, as a great affliction to this Association, and we do hereby express our sorrow thereat; nevertheless we rejoice in the glorious hope of seeing our deceased sister again in the day of Christ, and are comforted thereby.

2. Also that in the more recent death of Eld. C. P. Dow, of Magog, P. Q., we have met with a loss of one of our most efficient laborers in Canada, one who was firm for truth and right, and who, by pen and word, accomplished doubly successful service for the Lord. He is held in grateful remembrance by us, and we sympathize with his afflicted family in their loss, while at the same time we look forward with bright anticipation to the future reunion of the faithful, when we expect to see our deceased brother raised from the dead and made immortal.

3. We also express our sympathy with our aged and dearly beloved Bro. S. G. Mathewson, of Mass., who has been recently prostrated by sickness. May the Lord yet give to him a measure of health that will assure his life as a token of divine favor. His work in this Association for many years past has been of great benefit to the cause of the Lord, and we regret that he is unable to meet with us, but we pray that his rest from labors may be in peace and eternal hope.

We would also express our deep regard for our aged brethren and co-laborers, Elds. S. S. Brewer, of N. H., and L. Boutelle, of Mass., whose years in the past have been so full of successful labor in the ministry, but whose age and infirmities have limited their present work, and caused them to rest from constant toil. May the blessing of God be upon them, and may they realize that even down to old age the Lord's presence is a constant and satisfying portion.

F. Burr,
Wm. Sheldon,
D. R. Mansfield,
R. H. Bateman,
O. R. Fassett.

The following salaries were then recommended:—Editor of Young Pilgrim, $300; Editor of Blessed Hope Quarterly, $300; Business Agent, $1200; Western Corresponding Editor, $350; Secretary of S. A. C. Association, $20.

Voted, to accept the trust of the "Sick and Poor Ministers' Fund" from the Mass. A. C. Conference. Elds. A. W. Sibley and F. Burr were elected a Committee to join with the Treasurer of the Association in disbursing the funds of said trust.

The report of Committee on Resolutions was read and adopted, as follows:

On Publications.

Whereas, Our opportunities for spreading the great truths which distinguish us as a people are much increased, and

Whereas, we believe that God has called us as a people, for the special purpose of giving these dispensational truths and warning the world of coming judgment, and duly appreciating the work of this Association in the past, and especially our success in the last few years in the old world as well as our own country, and believing that still more remains to be done; therefore,

Resolved, That we recommend the A. C. P. Society to increase the size of the World's Crisis to an eight-page paper, and that they publish monthly a series of small tracts, embracing sermons and elucidations of certain great truths which distinguish us as a people; and further, that brethren and sisters be invited to write on such subjects as may seem good, and send to our Publication Committee, for their acceptance or rejection, as they may think best.

Roman Catholicism.

Whereas, the "Babylon" of the book of Revelation, and the "Man of Sin" of which Paul wrote to the Thessalonian church, are evidently fulfilled in the deeds of the Roman Catholic church, and

Whereas, the said church is seeking by currupt means to obtain control of the literary and other institutions of this country, and thus become the ruling power in church and state, which result would bring about the persecution of Christians as in former days; therefore,

Resolved, That this Association hereby express our decided opposition to all such inroads of the Papacy upon the liberties of the people of God, and upon our civil institutions, while at the same time we regard these efforts of Catholicism as a sign of the times indicating the nearness of the day of Christ's coming to destroy the "Man of Sin" and establish the everlasting kingdom of God.

Christian Burden Bearers' Association.

Whereas, it is the privilege and duty of Christians to "bear one another's burdens, and so fulfill the law of Christ," and

Whereas, the Christian Burden Bearers' Association is an association of Christians for the sole purpose of mutual relief to the afflicted, and is not a secret society of any sort, but is an open means of benefit, without salaried officers, and in which the funds are devoted, aside from incidental expenses, to the sole benefit of the afflicted; therefore,

Resolved, That we recognize the Christian Burden Bearers' Association as a gospel means of relief, and recommend all Christians to procure circulars concerning the said Association of C. R. Crossett, 231 Pearl St., Manchester, N. H., and thus inform themselves of its nature and benefits.

Sundry Matters.

Whereas, this Association has, year by year, at former annual meetings, declared its interest in and regard for the following objects: Sunday Schools, Churches, Missions, Temperance, and Ministerial Education; and

Whereas, our minds are still occupied with those objects as in former years; therefore,

Resolved, That we simply reaffirm our determination to do all we can to enlarge our work in behalf of those several objects, and also we express our increased interest in all the objects aforesaid, and trust the Lord will bless all efforts to success in such gospel work.

F. Furr,
W. J. Hobbs, } Committee.
J. A. Cargile,

Voted, that we commend the efforts of Eld. L. C. McKinstry in his General Biblical Institute to the favorable consideration of our constituents. F. Burr, E. M. Andrews and M. Grant were chosen, at Eld. McKinstry's request for assistance, to confer with Eld. McKinstry in his Biblical Institute work.

Voted, that we tender our sincere thanks to the Committee and workers on this campground, for the cordial reception and comfortable arrangements they have prepared and given to this Association.

Voted, that the thanks of this Association are hereby tendered to our Chairman, Eld. E. A. Stockman, for his patience, forbearance and impartiality, in ruling during this annual meeting.

Voted, that we hereby express our thanks to the Secretary, for his courtesy in recording motions and attending to his duties. Adjourned at 12, M., to call of Chair.

Eld. Stockman called the Association together again at 3 P. M. Prayer by Eld. H. Pollard. The Committee on reply to H. F. Carpenter's letter reported a desire to have time to give the matter a more perfect consideration. Voted, that the subject be placed in the hands of the Committee on Prospectus for a Western paper, for a full and final action.

Voted, that the World's Crisis be enlarged sufficiently to meet the demand of the times.

Eld. A. S. Calkins, of Illinois, a visiting minister of the gospel, was privileged to read the following document:

Whereas, some of our people think it best to take no part in political matters, and do not perform the duty of citizens by voting; therefore,

Resolved, That it is the judgment of this Association that citizens of this country should do their duty as such, and cast their votes and give their influence for such men and measures as will further good and pure government, and in particular for the prohibition of the liquor traffic.

It was suggested that the discussion of the above resolution would open quite a field of controversy, and was entirely outside the objects of this Association, and a decision upon it would also tend to compromise the right of private opinion; it was therefore

After a few words of good cheer by the Chair and others, the Association adjourned to call of Chair, or otherwise sine die.

Frank Burr, Secretary S. A. C. A.

WHAT WE LEARNED AT THE WESTERN ASSOCIATION.

Several important things came to our notice while West, attending the annual session of the S. A. C. Association.

1. Although few in number, the preachers in the Western States are of the right stamp, well up in points of manhood, character, and training, and best of all, thoroughly Adventistic and devoted to the Master.

2. They avoid side-issues and subverting unprofitable questions, and keep to the main issue.

3. They are in harmony with each other, and the prospects of a grand, successful campaign for the spread of the truth were never so good as now.

REVIVALS—REVIVAL WORK.

Shall we have revivals all around, in every church, in every congregation? Why not? Is not God able? Is not Christ willing and anxious? Is not the Spirit ready and mighty? Is not the demand real, urgent, alarming? Is not the time short? Is not mercy's day dwindled to a brief rushing period? Would not many hearts on earth be glad? Would not angels in heaven rejoice?

What hinders? Something hinders, else every church in the land would be all aflame with pentecostal power and glory. What are the hindrances? They are many, and potent, and sinful. Somebody is fearfully to blame. Is it sinners wholly? Does the guilt lie at the door of the church? Is the pulpit at fault? Yes, each and all. There is neglect, criminal neglect, wicked resistance, fatal refusal on the part of sinners. Whether the church be dead or alive; whether the pulpit be true, earnest, mighty to persuade, or indolent, cold and time-serving, any sinner, all sinners, may come to God and be saved if they will. The waters of salvation may be obstructed by the lukewarmness of the people of God, but not so obstructed that an anxious soul may not find the Saviour by decided and earnest seeking. An unfaithful ministry is a terrible barricade against the flow of redeeming mercy, but a lost sinner, who feels his absolute, desperate need of salvation, may rush past a sleeping church, a formal and venal priesthood, and find easy and certain access to the "Fountain opened to the house of David and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem for sin and for uncleanness." No man need perish on account of the shortcomings of Christians.

Hindrance the next is an unaccountable want of faith in the practicability of revival work. A feeling has somehow come over many of our people that it is not much use trying to save the impenitent. That the Holy Spirit cannot or does not reach and affect human hearts now as in other years. That the mass of unsaved men have settled their eternal destiny. That the gospel has lost its power to awaken and convert sinners.

Now this is all wrong. So to feel and so to teach is an ungrateful reflection on the love and grace of Jesus the Saviour, and on the mind and power of the Spirit. As Christ's final hour drew near, the close of his ministry on earth, he quickened his pace, and his heart yearned more intensely toward his own blinded people, and towards a world sinking under the weight and curse of its own unbelief. And he has commanded the church to "occupy till he comes,"—not till near the time of his coming, but till we hear the judgment trumpet and see him in the clouds of heaven. And in the supper call he represented that in the very last days of the gospel, just as mercy's sun is setting, there shall be a great ingathering of the poor, the naked, the halt, the blind. They will come to be sure from the highways and hedges, from the lanes and alleys. But they will come.

Can we believe that the Son of God falters in his intercession plea, at the right hand of power, as he sees the awful moment approaching that shall settle the fate of the race for whose redemption he poured out his blood and life? Can we conclude that the Holy Spirit, who for all these ages has sought to make Christ's redemptive work effective,—can we think that the divine Spirit in any measure, ceases to urge on human hearts the calls of mercy as he sees the dread moment of changless doom drawing nigh?

Why then should we slacken our hands? Why waver in faith that Christ still waits to be gracious, that the Spirit is still mighty to convince? that sinners may still be reached and won? It dishonors our Lord to fall back in discouragement and inactivity while he is still earnestly praying, "Father, forgive them."

How can we have revival? First of all we must have faith in God's power and willingness to save, and in the possibility and practicability of successful work for souls. If we half doubt we shall certainly fail. But confidence and persistence will surely succeed. If we preach that revival is hardly to be expected and the churches believe us, no earnest work will be done, and no lost ones will be saved.

Moreover, there must be specific effort. Divine truth must be directly and persistently and lovingly pressed on the consciences of the unsaved. Loving but burning appeals must be made directly and pungently to the undecided. Invitation upon invitation must be pressed home. There must be no fear of over-persuading the impenitent. There is no danger of that. There must be union of faith and effort. Every prayer, every appeal, every sermon, every invitation, must be openly backed up by the whole body of living members.

Especially, the preaching must be adapted to arouse dead professors and awaken careless sinners. Theological disquisition, rhetorical flourish or theoretical argumentation, will not be likely to result in revival. The preacher must be thoroughly endued with power from on high, and an intense desire for the salvation of men. He must be animated by genuine and tremendous zeal to win souls, as trophies of Christ's infinite love. He must urge with real confidence the great Bible motives of repentance—the "exceeding sinfulness of sin; the great love of God and Christ; the necessity and validity of the atonement; the sinner's responsibility, arising from his power of choice; the necessity, certainty and extreme nearness of the final judgment; the second coming of Christ to destroy utterly all the unrighteous. And all this should be enforced by a faithful and most solemn presentation of the "signs" which prove that the day of the Lord is "nigh, even at the doors." It may be relied upon with absolute certainty that such ministrations of God's Word, and such co-operative effort of the churches, will be honored by the Holy Spirit with glorious results as long as Christ intercedes for a ruined world, and the gospel of grace is allowed to have free course.

Shall we have revival in all our congregations? Heaven is more than willing. Grace is still free and sufficient. The Holy Spirit is still with us. Shall we allow unbelief and inactivity to prevent it? How then can we stand acquitted when we meet the unsaved at the bar of God?

WOMAN AT THE BALLOT BOX.

We think it was Dr. Adam Clarke who said that one woman, in any moral enterprise, is worth seven men and a half. In this fact alone do we see any hope of the redemption of Boston from the misrule of rum and Jesuitism. The politicians are on their supple knees to the Catholic voters. Their obsequiousness is simply disgusting. And the Protestant pulpits, with some exceptions, seem humiliatingly afraid of politics and gold in the pews. The bold and defiant aggressions of Romanism are due, largely, to the want of pluck in the city pastors. Division of opinion, timidity and half acquiescence have inspired the always alert and defiant Jesuits with a recklessness of assault upon our common school system, and our religious liberties, which, fifty years ago, would have aroused Boston to an indignation sufficient to have driven the now insolent foe out of our midst.

Had there been ten ministers of Christ in Boston with the spirit of the Non-conformists in their souls, led by such men as Samuel Wesley, Trelawney and Ken, Rev. Mr. Davis would not have been sent to jail for a full year for preaching the gospel on Boston Common, or, if he had been the governor, would have released him at the first request. But we are not living in the times of James the Second, but in times, so far as Christian courage is concerned, much worse.

But what of woman at the ballot box? There is in progress a ... movement among Protestant women of this city intended to increase the woman's ballot for members of the school committee, at the approaching election. More than eighteen thousand ladies have already registered, and the work seems but just begun. And a new movement is now on foot, led by Mrs. Martha L. Shepherd, the converted nun, for the formation of a British-American Woman's Association, for the purpose of resisting the assaults of Romanism on our schools and religious liberties. If this display of female loyalty and Christian courage shall have the effect of shaming the men into a decent manifestation of interest in the safety of our public institutions, it will inspire hope for the redemption of this once American city from the meshes of Jesuitical rule.

THE WAITING TIME.

In a tract recently published by Silas Henn, to antagonize the claim that the waiting time—the forty-five years' difference between the 1290 and 1335 days—ends in 1889, an effort is made to place the little horn and its time of persecution in the future, making it the future antichrist, or personal man of sin. We will not here pause to pay our compliments to this untenable theory, which we may notice at another time; but if the waiting time does not end in 1889, as some believe, it will not be owing to the fact that the Papacy has been measured, instead of a future antichrist.

After Daniel, or the angel in addressing Daniel, gave a measurement of 1290 days from the setting up of the "abomination," he adds: "Blessed is he that waiteth and cometh to the 1335 days." The question to settle in this connection is whether a special waiting subsequent to the close of the 1290 days is meant, or whether the general waiting of the entire church is meant, without reference to a past disappointment. And here we would discourage dogmatism. While there is, to say the least, a plausibility to the claim that this waiting time spans the difference between the close of the 1290 and 1335 days, and while this claim seems to be corroborated by the forty-five years' waiting of the Israelites after their disappointment, it is by no means certain that this special waiting is meant by the angel, for there is a general waiting for the church at large through the whole dispensation, which does not stand connected with any disappointment, which may possibly be meant, as in 1 Thess. 1:9: "Ye turned unto God from idols to serve the living and true God, and to wait for his Son from heaven." Here is a general waiting for Christ that does not result from a disappointment.

To claim that waiting always involves a previous disappointment, is a mistake; and to claim that it never involves this thought, is equally incorrect. But that the church was to meet a disappointment, is a conspicuous fact, and the claim that there was consequently to be a special waiting, is certain, whether that is the waiting given in Daniel or not. On this point we object to dogmatism. Give seeming probabilities their full weight as probabilities, without attempting to convert them into absolute certainties.

THE ENLARGED CRISIS.

The prospect of the enlargement and change of the form of the Crisis, so as to make it more convenient for perusal and preservation, is hailed with delight in every direction. And the additional prospect that a prophetic department, as a substitute for the Quarterly Journal of Prophecy, will be added, will augment the interest amazingly, both as a periodical for home and foreign fields, making it worthy of patronage in every direction.

We trust this new interest in the paper will set its subscribers to work at once to augment its list of subscribers, both East and West. Between now and January one thousand new names ought to be added to the list. Just how soon the change will be made we cannot say; but those who subscribe before the change is made will be sure to get the first numbers of the new form—a consideration of importance to those who wish to preserve important articles in a convenient form, or to keep the paper on file. Let us strike early for an enlarged list of subscribers, not among our own people only, but among those also who lack the light we enjoy.

CONDITIONAL IMMORTALITY.

Various objections are filed in against this theory, as against other gospel truths. But are the objections valid? is the point to settle. If so, the theory falls; if not, the assault will prove no detriment thereto. One of the objections urged is that this view would shut infants out of the kingdom, since they are incapable of complying with conditions. But the originators of this objection fail to see its force against their own views on the same line, as they claim that salvation is conditional. Here they forget that infants cannot comply with the conditions, and must therefore be lost, if their objection against conditional immortality is valid.

As immortality is one feature of salvation, any principle that will allow infants to be saved, will also remove this objection to conditional immortality, as all can see at a glance. The conditions of the gospel relate to adults, and not to those who have not crossed the line of accountability; so a noncompliance with these conditions on the part of infants no more cuts off their claim to immortality than it does to salvation in full, of which immortality is a part.

PROPHETICAL.

HOW SHALL WE STUDY THE SIGNS OF THE TIMES?

BY J. COUCH.

The signs of any period of time are the events and tokens which manifest the leading characteristics of the period, especially those which are dangerous and need to be watchfully shunned. Our merciful Heavenly Father always gives sufficient signs to warn his creatures of impending danger, and always furnishes means by which to escape the fatal snares.

As the people of every period are exposed to dangers, every period has its signs which show the particular snares to be escaped at that time. God's signs, given for the protection of a people, are always prophetically announced, therefore the people of every period are in part, at least, dependent upon the prophetic scriptures for their safety. The safety of all men depends upon receiving "the testimony of Jesus Christ," which "is the spirit of prophecy."

The Creator never sent a judgment upon men for their sins without first giving them prophetic signs and using means to draw their minds in a way to impress them with the fact of the approaching danger, giving them an opportunity to prepare for it. These principles are made especially applicable to periods preceding the first and second coming of Christ. The importance of heeding those signs, and the results of rejecting them and their forewarning, were fully developed at the first appearing.

According to the consecutive prophecies the period has come for the signs of the second coming to be seen. If so, then it has become an important duty of the church to watch for those signs, and when they appear, to proclaim to the people the approaching judgment.

How shall we watch for these signs? First, study the sacred prophecies, to learn what events were foretold as being signs to characterize the present period. When the prophetic statements are understood, look for just such events as that language describes. This has been the rule by which true faith has been established in all ages.

The Jews were fatally ensnared because they refused to accept the signs of the first advent, every one of which was an event literally described. This rule established by Inspiration is the only divine authority we have by which we can determine what events will constitute the signs of the last times. The prophecies giving these signs should be read with a view to learn what events are predicted in the various departments—physical, political, religious, moral, and then watch to learn if such events are transpiring. By this means we may learn quite definitely what the conditions of the earth and atmosphere will be in the last days, these conditions being the signs foretold as indicating the approach of the day of the Lord.

So it is in the department of the nations. The Lord has told us distinctly what kingdoms should precede those among whom the last signs should be seen, and also informed us what the special conditions of the last nations should be. The same rules apply to the ecclesiastical department. The prophecies give the progressive history of the great apostate church down to the last stage, and at that point expressly state her condition when she is about to be plunged into the sea of destruction. This last condition will be a sign to be watched for.

The history of the true church is also given, showing her various conflicts and victories, until she reaches her last position in the warfare, and that position, and the work there accomplished, becomes another distinct sign of Christ's coming. So it is in the social department. The closing circumstances of its history are signs of its speedy termination.

If this generation is occupying this last special period of time, as many in all parts of the world profess to believe, it certainly becomes a very important duty of every servant of Christ to watch with great diligence and earnestness present developments in all departments of this world's history, to learn what signs of the present times are being manifested. Christ taught distinctly that certain signs would appear, by which the church might "know" that his coming is at the door. To say that those signs are not so described that they may be definitely identified is to say that the Saviour's instructions are not sufficiently explicit to be understood without depending upon the great uncertainty of human interpretations of figures of speech or illustrations.

The Bible rule is this: When God predicts a sign, the event constituting that sign is just such as the language foretelling the sign, literally interpreted, describes. Every sign of the first appearing was according to this rule. Whoever preaches and publishes this vitally important truth of the gospel due this generation, will preach all he is able after earnest investigation, the signs of the present times. This we believe is what God has called his servants of the present period to do.

Brethren, let us do this, even if we are required to sacrifice many things which the flesh and the world may present as desirable.

QUAR. JOURNAL OF PROPHECY.

The A. A. Mission Society at its late Session at Aurora, Ill., by the advice of the Editor of the Quarterly Journal thought it best, after the issuing of the next number, to discontinue the publication of the same, and to use the columns of the World's Crisis for the publication of prophetic articles, making the Crisis the organ of the A. A. Mission Society. Those who have paid for the Quarterly Journal in advance will find the amount subject to their order. Address all communication to E. M. Andrews, 39 Bloomingdale St., Chelsea, Mass.

SPRINGFIELD CAMPMEETING.

As there has been a Springfield Campmeeting Association formed, it is necessary for all interested in the Advent cause in this section to feel interested in helping to sustain this Campmeeting. It is the father of all the Second Advent Campmeetings in the New England States, and should be kept up. It was in Springfield that the first great tent was raised. It was twenty-five rods around, and seated or covered four thousand people. Over two hundred were converted under it, and as many more got quickened, and four times as many more got their first lessons on the Advent doctrine that has spread all through other States, and caused other camp and other meetings to start.

Now as the old gentleman has held the fort for forty-six years past without an organization, and as the old forefathers have nearly died, the life of this meeting will depend upon the rising generation of Adventists. Now as the buildings and seats must be repaired and made new, or the meetings will run down, help is needed. Some have done nobly. Some of our preachers have subscribed fifty dollars each. Some pledged last year, and others ought to this year. Just think of it, and see if it is not duty to help the old man by sending your pledge to me, the solicitor of pledges.

I have met with good success among outsiders, but we lack eight or nine hundred dollars yet, to do what is necessary. The committee want to know this fall what to depend upon, before contracting to have the work done. As I started the first meeting here, that is one reason why I should feel an interest to have it continue, if I don't. Direct to Chicopee Falls, Mass.

FROM ELD. L. BOUTELLE.

Bro. Stockman:—In reading over the biography of the late Sr. Fassett, the reminiscences of the Advent movement in the past, the manner in which he dealt with them in their flight from Egypt, and his infinite care for them in any and every emergency, only show the divinity of this Advent message of glad tidings to a lost world. It is heartcheering to the weary pilgrim, when the old enemy is taking out from the elect, if possible, every prop on which they depend, to read over, as in this biography, the dealings of God with his people, led out here by the fulfilment of prophecy and the Spirit of the Lord fully attending its proclamation. The dealings of God with Bro. and Sr. Fassett are not isolated cases of the divine goodness to those whom he thrust into this sacred work, of which the angels of God had the oversight.

And the ambassadors of this charge had the care and protection of the divine hand as no other people had. The self-denial was greater than any other religionists were called to, and the blessings under this cross the sweetest. The divine protection was guaranteed, and every believing worker in calling to supper at supper time found it fulfilled. They found his promises sure. Would he so wonderfully fulfill these promises to them if he had not called them out to this work? Nothing will strengthen the faith of the Advent believer more than to see how God miraculously dealt with this people in the first years of warfare, when they were called out to look for and expect their coming Lord. The opening of doors, hearts, houses, hands, and pockets was simultaneous and spontaneous, and to the bearer of this flying message the only inquiry was, "Do you lack anything." The answer was, "No good thing," for the Lord was ahead of his chosen with ample supply.

Brethren, read the history of Adventism in the past and see how God wrought in making way for his truth and his people, and remember that the same God is still alive and will direct by the same unerring word his people on to perfect victory. "Only believe," and keep in sight of the pillar of light and we shall soon see the culmination of all these sacred promises, and our most sanguine expectations will be realized. The crisis is soon coming, and the groaning creation will be delivered from bondage into the glorious liberty of the sons of God. Amen.

STARTLING ANNOUNCEMENT.

Dr. Talmage, of Brooklyn, is reported as saying: "I believe the next twelve months will be the most stupendous year that heaven ever saw. The nations are quaking now with the coming of God." He believes that unusual efforts will be made to reach the unsaved, but if they refuse to accept the offers of salvation, then alarming judgments will follow. He says it will be a year of mercies and of judgments; year of invitation and of warning; year of jubilee and of woe. Which side are you going to be on?

It is a remarkable fact that thousands who have been indifferent on the subject of the Lord's near coming are now feeling great interest in the subject. The evidences that we are near the end are so strong and clear, that careful observers are compelled to admit that the subject has become one of very grave importance. As the evidences continue to multiply and strengthen, it seems to be now certain that the long-looked-for event cannot be much longer delayed. The Lord has sent out the Salvation Army "into the highways and hedges" to "compel them to come in," which is the last call of mercy before his return. It is astonishing to see what an amount of work has been done by them in these few years. It surpasses all other Christian ... been a special effort to save the poorest and vilest classes who were considered too low to be reached. In seeking them, many others more respectable have been saved, and have taken hold of the work with great earnestness, producing glorious results. After the Salvation Army has been in a place, and had their series of meetings, but few more are gathered. It seems to be the last call of mercy.

The great movement on the Lord's near coming, which began nearly fifty years ago, was the special alarm to awaken the people to the fact that we had reached "the time of the end." The supper-time" had arrived when all should prepare for the final gathering; but many made excuses, and neglected the necessary preparation. When the effect of that proclamation seemed nearly spent, and was looked upon as a fanatical, and unhealthy movement, the Lord raised up Bro. Moody and others to hold the great union meetings in Europe and America, when such crowds assembled that no churches were large enough to accommodate the people. Bro. Moody and his co-laborers told the people that the coming of Christ must be very near. He said: "I think we are in the toenails of the metallic age. Again: "There may be some standing in the audience who may never see death." Again he says: "We are near the glory. No one can read the prophecies of Scripture with his eyes open and fail to perceive that the second coming of Christ and the glory of the millennium is near at hand, and yet those who ought to be watching are asleep." These are samples of his sayings before immense audiences in Europe and America.

Next came the Salvation Army to gather in those who were too low down to attend any religious meetings, but who spent their time mostly in rum saloons among drunkards and harlots. Thousands of these are now happy Christians, ready to welcome Jesus. The waiting time must be about ended.

THE CONN. CAMPMEETING.

There will be a meeting of the Connecticut Advent Christian Campmeeting Association at the time and place of the meeting of the A. C. Conference, to be held in New Haven, Oct. 11 to 14, as per notice in the Crisis. Every member of the Association will receive a postal from the Secretary this week, so that no one will fail to hear of the meeting. It is necessary that every member of the Association be present, as business of importance will come before the body. If any more meetings are to be held upon the grounds at Plainville, there must be something done in the way of raising funds and planning otherwise for the future meetings. The committee can do nothing without funds and instruction. It is quite the custom to-day to simply form associations, appoint committees, put the work into their hands, and then for every one to sit down and watch the committee work, with the understanding that if the committee does not do its work to suit every one of the hundred and one different persons and minds, we will make it hot for them. Now this said committee can do nothing and propose to do nothing, unless the Association put funds in their hands.

It is useless to hold Campmeetings like the one at Plainville, with no accommodations for people who may come. There is no place for any person to room who might wish to come to stay through the meetings. The water supply is very deficient, even for the few who meet there at the present, and with the larger number who might attend if better accommodations were provided, would be entirely inadequate to supply the wants of the meeting. There are many other things which need to be looked after, and one object of the calling of this Association at the time given is that these matters may be provided for. Funds are needed, several hundred dollars, in fact, and must be forthcoming if there are to be any future meetings at Plainville. The committee do not propose to do anything about further meetings without instructions and money to carry out the same. Hence it is quite necessary that every member who sees this article, or receives a postal, or who may see the Secretary's notice in the Crisis should if possible be present at the meeting.

D. T. Call, President.

There is no pleasure so great as the pleasure of doing good—as the satisfaction of knowing that you have lightened some one's burdens, comforted some troubled heart, and strengthened and encouraged some one who was ready to faint. Sometimes it takes but a little thing to do this. Some word of counsel or sympathy, some little act of kindness, some small token of regard, when a person is discouraged and cast down, may be the means of cheering and comforting him, and inspiring him with new hope.—Ex.

Correction.—In the Roster of the A. C. Conference of Oregon and Washington Territory the name of Eld. Aaron Preston, of Damascus, Oregon, was unintentionally omitted. Alson W. Stearns, Ex-Secretary.

The greatest trials of the early church came from without, while those of the modern church come from within.

NOTICES.

MAINE STATE CONFERENCE.

The annual session of the Maine State A. C. Conference will be held at Lewiston, Maine, OCT. 10th to 14th inclusive. The church at Lewiston have extended a unanimous and cordial invitation to the brethren and sisters in Maine to come up and worship the Lord together. And here we wish to say that this conference is not wholly nor mostly for business, but is, as our constitution specifies, to give the brethren and sisters an extra occasion to meet together for the worship of God and building up of his cause. We hope all will so regard it, and make an extra effort to attend, and that many churches and societies that have not heretofore will this year elect and send delegates, and we hope some of the preachers who have not attended before will come this year.

ART. 3, Sec. 2, of constitution reads: "Each church or society shall be allowed one delegate, and one additional delegate for every twenty actual members, said delegates to be elected by the church or society which they represent, and to be provided with a certificate of election attested by recording officer of the same. The recording officer shall also with the certificate of election certify to the actual membership of the church or society. These delegates hold their membership until the next annual session of conference."

NOTE.—By church is meant a regularly organized body of believers in covenant relation, with properly appointed officers. By society is meant any body of believers working in co-operation with us, meeting habitually for the worship of God, and so far set in order as to have a properly appointed clerk, and a [illegible]

We would call the attention of our preachers to Art. 7: "It shall be the duty of each preacher to be present at the sessions of conference, and when not able, to report by letter."

We would also call attention to Art. 9, part of Sec. 3: "Candidates for ordination or license must present to the committee (of ordination or license) a letter of recommendation from a quarterly conference or church within the State."

Our conference has been growing in numbers and increasing in interest each year, and we hope for a large increase this year. The committee of entertainment are Frank E. Davis, Auburn; S. Collins, Jonas Strout, Lewiston; and Henry W. Westcott, 122 7th Street, Auburn, who will see that homes are provided for all.

The Maine Central R. R. will give return tickets at one fare. Call for tickets to Maine State Advent Christian Conference. Tickets will be on sale only the 10th and 11th. We hope all will come then, but if any cannot come till later, they should purchase tickets on those days. We hope all the preachers who can will come at the first, and remain over Sunday, it takes away so much from the interest of the meeting to have many go away.

A New Singing Book!

HEART MELODIES.

DESIGNED ESPECIALLY FOR SUNDAY SCHOOLS, AND CAN BE USED IN Prayer and Praise Meetings, the Home Circle, etc.

This is a neat and attractive book of 208 pages, full of sweet and stirring music, composed by musicians who understand the "signs of the times," and who have put heart and soul into their hymns and songs. If you wish a book that meets the demand of the times for hymns on soul-stirring themes, the Lord's coming, the Restitution, the Kingdom of God, the teaching and power of the Holy Spirit, and the blessedness of the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ, HEART MELODIES is the only book prepared for Sunday School service that we know of, fulfilling all these requirements.

THE CHRISTIAN'S SECRET OF HOLINESS.

BY MARK GUY PEARSE.

Twenty-seventh thousand English edition. First thousand American edition.

This is decidedly the best book on holiness we have yet seen. In grasp and scope of conception; in freshness and vigor of expression; in freedom from the extravagance and rashness which mar many works on this important scriptural subject; in richness of experimental power; in strength and conclusiveness of biblical argument; in close scrutiny of false experiences; in direct and effective appeals to the understanding, the conscience and the heart, it surpasses all other productions of recent times. It is neatly bound, contains nearly three hundred pages, and is on sale at the Crisis Office at the low price of [illegible] cts. post paid.

"I SHALL BE SATISFIED WHEN I AWAKE WITH THY LIKENESS."

Even now my heart is ravished
With my Saviour's precious love,
And, as hasting on to glory,
Daily I his sweetness prove,
Though he leads to living pastures,
And I taste a flowing tide,
Yet, until I see his beauty,
I shall ne'er be satisfied.

Many a song he gives to brighten
All the long and dreary night,
Many a cup of joy he gives me,
For in me he has delight.
Surely, with such love abounding,
I could give up all beside;
Still, I'm sure, until I see him,
I can ne'er be satisfied.

O, my heart, with grace uplifted,
Would each fiery trial stem;
But, to gaze upon the Victor,
Decked with many a diadem—
Him to see, I've sweet desirings,
Who for me once bled and died;
And I know, till I behold him,
I can ne'er be satisfied.

For with him, I know, are treasured
Rarest things, both new and old;
But his love, his heart's affection,
Choicer is than finest gold;
Changeless, too; than death, e'en stronger,
For my Lord was crucified;
And until these eyes behold him,
I can ne'er be satisfied.

Soon the day-dawn will be breaking,
And the shadows flee away;
Now, by faith, in joy and gladness,
I await the coming day;
For I know my soul is safely
Hidden in his wounded side;
And anon he sweetly tells me
I shall soon be satisfied.

Lo! He tells me now his secret,
Cheering with his heavenly smile;
Telling me, in love's low whisper,
It is but "a little while."
Yes, for soon to brightest glory
He will fetch away his bride,
Then I'll shine in his own likeness,
And be ever satisfied.

FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.

LETTER FROM J. C. SMITH.

Lord's day, Aug. 26, we had a good day in the Lord. Bro. Sawyer and wife were with us from Uckfield. We had three services. Bro. Sawyer gave us a good discourse in the morning, after which we had a number of live exhortations. In the afternoon we met again on the beach, and raised our chart, a new one father C. has kindly sent us, and bore testimony to the truthfulness of God's holy Word. Some of our enemies had complained that our old ones looked dirty, etc. But had they realized what that chart had been through for the last sixteen years of hard fighting for Jesus on the frontier, from place to place, amid tornadoes and cyclones, and the bursting of bombshells over our heads, and the pelting of rocks, and the continuous usage of it both summer and winter, he would not have wondered why it looked so dingy and worn. And had he realized the many victories that had been gained in the name of the great King under its prophetic teachings, he would have praised the great God as we do, that such a "Prophetical Chart" had ever been invented and commanded by the great head of the church, "to write the vision, and make it plain upon tables, that he may run that readeth it. For the vision is yet for an appointed time, but at the end it shall speak and not lie; though it tarry, wait for it, because it will surely come, it will not tarry. Behold, his soul which is lifted up is not upright in him; but the just shall live by his faith."

And now as we have a new, clean, beautiful chart, describing earth's kingdoms, the rise and fall of the same, and also showing our very nearness to the judgment scene, thousands look upon it with wonder and amazement and many with interest and consolation. And as we raise it day after day and night after night, many read and run swiftly on chariot wheels to tell it to others. A dear Bro. Williams and wife from Wimbleton, London, who has charge of a male choir of twenty-five, some of the finest singers in London, was directed of the Lord to come to Eastbourne, as he had a few days to spare from his toil as builder. He first thought of going to his wife's home in Wales, but the way hedged up there. Then he thought of going to another place, but something hindered, so he decided to come to E. He heard us on the chart and other subjects, became deeply interested, and said he "took in a good deal of what we had to say, and should go home and investigate further." He brought works to read, and aided us greatly in our singing, as he was one of the best singers that I ever heard. The Lord aids him in singing for Jesus and his glory. Brethren, pray for them, that as they have returned to their home they may have strength and grace given to sound out the glad anthems of praise and joy, that they may "sound the gospel of grace abroad."

Another noble man and his wife, by the name of Taylor, from Birmingham, listened with great interest, and drank in the truth to their thirsty souls. At the close they said that it had done them more good than anything else since they came to Eastbourne. [illegible] appreciation. They were eager to take tracts and papers home with them. They told me they had traveled much, had been in the States, St. Louis, Kansas, and many other places. Another man handed me the following note after speaking on the four universal temporary kingdoms of earth, and showing that the next would be the fifth, and that the kingdom of God. He was stirred up to write his opinion. It was as follows: "The fifth kingdom is the British Empire, which alone has broken the fourth, our Roman Empire. You will not make it inteligible to the people unless you put the return of the ten tribes, British Israel, to Palestine literal. They have to build the temple, and be in the land seventy years before Christ comes." These and many other strange notions are afloat here. But the Lord's truth shines out and exposes all. These man-made notions, which are visions only of fancy, will come to naught with every other speculating fable.

Monday, 27th, Bro. Sawyer tarried with us and spoke on the beach. We had two meetings and good attention, 29th we held two, 30th two, 31st two, Sept. 1st one. And it would have done you all good could you have seen the attention manifested, and the eagerness for tracts and papers at the close of each meeting. One noble man said at the close of one meeting, after speaking on the papacy, showing its corrupt system and great swelling words, "I fully accept all you have to say," and wanted tracts to read. Bro. and Sr. Reeds, and Bro. [illegible] from Uckfield, have been at a [illegible] of our meetings to encourage. Bro. Sawyer returned again to aid on Sunday, Sept. 2d, and we had a heavenly sitting together in Christ. At night, as the tide came in and the raging waves ran high, a multitude met on the ocean strand, and eight noble courageous souls came with the full determination to obey the Lord in baptism. A number of them had been sprinkled, but no longer considered this of any account, learning a more perfect way of "being buried with Christ in baptism, planted in the likeness of his death, and raised in the likeness of his resurrection." And with this gospel faith of Christ's death, burial, and resurrection for their justification and salvation, they decided to obey the Testator's laws, if old ocean did surge and foam, and waves run high.

The precious Lord gave me strength, so that I was not afraid of wind nor wave under his command. So Bro. Ritcher, a primitive M. E. preacher, a whole-souled man of God, who weighs, I think, over two hundred, went in first, and the Lord enabled me to bury him and raise him from the watery grave. Then Bro. Forsey, another primitive M. E. preacher, a true man, and one who has accepted the truth fully, obeyed next, and Bro. R., after he was baptized, aided in the administration. But the waves run so high that they nearly threw us down. Then came Bro. Baldwin, then the wives of all these brethren, and then Bro. R.'s little son, eleven years old, who had said, God had commanded him to be baptized, and had encouraged his mother to go with them. And the eighth was a dear young sister Marks, whom I have mentioned in my letter previous, who had become interested at our meetings on the Strand, and who is receiving persecution at the store where she works, and no sympathy from home. Pray for her. I tell you, dear brethren and sisters, it took courage for these dear ones to obey the Lord, for there were the roughest winds and waves that I ever experienced in baptizing. But how sweet the blessing, to have a "good conscience toward God by the resurrection of Jesus Christ." And in obedience to the divine command, peace followed. Sr. Forsey exclaimed, "I am glad that those folks ever came round, for now we are ready for the Lord's coming." So, Bro. Grant, you have great reason to thank God that you were ever sent to Eastbourne, and we as great, that the Lord has ever sent us as feeble instruments in following up the work, and raising our voices before the surging multitude that throng the strand from day to day.

After the baptism we met at our house, and had sweet songs of cheer and testimonies of strength, and set in order a church of twenty, and even twenty-three took the Bible as their only rule of faith and creed, church order and discipline, making Christian character our only test of fellowship and communion. The two preaching brethren R. and F. were unanimously chosen as elders. To the Lord be all the praise, for they are well reported without the camp among those with whom they have to do. Brn. Hudson and Hookham were chosen as deacons, and Brn. West and Hudson as Secretary and Treasurer. All the brethren and sisters say that they have received new life and vigor, such as they have never received before. Bro. Hookham for the last two weeks at the close of each week in paying off his men has given them each a tract, and invited them to meeting. Three others have spoken about going forward in baptism.

Yesterday, Sept. 3d, a noble preacher from the Salvation Army came to see us, and said he was not satisfied, and wanted to learn about these things we advocate. We conversed more than two hours, and at the close had a precious season of prayer. Then I filled his hands with truth to peruse and investigate, and he went away, saying, "Remember me in your prayers." This brother is spoken well of. Pray for him, brethren and sisters. Another primitive M. E. preacher has been to our meeting, and Bro. R. says he has given up eternal torment, and was well pleased with our meeting. So, brethren and sisters, while you are having your great annual Feast of Tabernacles at Alton Bay, and the Lord is blessing you, he also deigns to bestow upon us a shower of grace. In all of our ministry for the last twenty-two years we have never been able to scatter so much seed among so many in so short a time as we have here. Excursions come in from every quarter. Now we need tracts and papers to scatter among the perishing multitudes, and means to help some of these dear brethren out in the work, Bro. Forsey for one. He works daily for his family and only gets a little over five dollars per week. He is compelled thus to do. Now who will send to Bro. Andrews means to help in this great work, or to me, my address as given in Crisis? I will give acknowledgment, and put it to good use for the Master. Send in of your abundance, brethren, that the storehouse may be full. God bless you. Do not fail to respond for Jesus' sake. From your brethren and sisters in Christ.

PAUL IN ARABIA.

BY F. L. PIPER.

Some who are taking their first lessons in public work for the Lord, might learn many things from the experience of Paul. With some, after the conviction has settled on their minds that they should preach the gospel, their first work is to run down to some conference or ministerial committee, urging their claim for a license to preach or for ordination. They appear anxious lest the world may not discover that they are ministers, and give them their proper place.

Paul's experience betrays no such feelings. Previous to his converion, few men in Jerusalem or Judea were better known than Saul. But after conversion he does not even make use of his previous notoriety, but seeks without "official recognition"—save that from Heaven, and in a new country—to humbly labor for his new-found Master, unheralded and unknown. For a time he boldly preached in Damascus, but persecution drove him from the city. Here he had met with sufficient success to have commended him to the fellowship of the church and council in Jerusalem, but he does not seek it, and does not even put himself in the way of either their favor or reproof.

He at once started for Arabia, a difficult and uninviting field for the new gospel and [illegible] says, "But when it pleased God, who separated me from my mother's womb, and called me by his grace, to reveal his Son in me, that I might preach him among the heathen; immediately I conferred not with flesh and blood; neither went I up to Jerusalem to them which were apostles before me: but I went into Arabia, and returned again unto Damascus. Then after three years I went up to Jerusalem to see Peter, and abode with him fifteen days."

We cannot discover that Paul sought prestige or influence in Judea, where his previous life and fame gave him the opportunity to pose as a "reformer;" but in new fields, under the blessing of Christ, and on his own personal merits, rather than as an "accredited apostle," he patiently labored on. In time he was recognized and found his place, and the ages have felt the influence of his great work.

Let those who are entering the Lord's work study this experience. Be anxious first to know that God calls, and the best test of this will be found in your own work. Humbly, it may be unknown, work for the Lord, anxious not for yourself, but for his cause, and if by faithfulness you outgrow your present sphere, a larger field and better opportunities will seek you out. Seek Arabia, and its humble work and glorious walk with Christ, and let Jerusalem, its council and higher fellowship, seek you.

THE BIBLE.

The Bible is no ordinary product of the human mind and the human heart. For some reason men have been tremendously interested in it. There have been martyrs for its truths. It has directed history for centuries. Its earlier writings record the story of that force which inaugurated the world-movement of Christianity. No man whosoever, infidel, non-believer, or of the faith, but admits willingly or necessarily that in this book there is something that has made it essentially different from all other books. This truth we are now beginning to realize. The last fifty years have witnessed a change in the attitude toward the Bible. We are beginning now to look at the Bible in other than the devotional light, to study it as an historical force, as a causative power in the record of progress. Our thought concerning the Bible is tending to become critical, scientific, philosophic, in a word, literary. This means that we are taking the Bible purely on its own merits, and are seeking to know what it intrinsically is.

History is the record of deeds; literature, the embodiment of life. We have both in the Bible. The study of history gives knowledge; that of literature instructs in wisdom. The critical study of the Scriptures will prove that they embody life, and are, therefore, literature in the truest sense of the word. Every good result that follows from the study of other literature will follow in greater or less degree from the study of this. It will broaden our sympathies, and this more perhaps than in the study of any other literature; for the Bible contains—it is well worthy of noting—the best remains of the literary products of the Semitic peoples. Therefore in studying it we are studying the constitution of the Semitic mind, the qualities, traits and peculiarities of the Semitic genius. Were this the only result of a literary study of the Bible there would still be in it reason enough for its pursuit.

Of this Semitic race the Hebrews, few as they were in numbers, have done more than any other division to change the constitution of society, more, indeed, than any other division of all mankind. Why this has been so the literary student must earnestly inquire. His first step is to find out where and how the Hebrews differed from the peoples all about them. Only thus can he arrive at that philosophical understanding of their literature which he desires. Only thus can he know why the Hebrews wrought a greater work for mankind than the Egyptians, the Assyrians or the Greeks, who were their contemporaries. He soon begins to realize that this was largely because the Hebrews cared for the matter rather than the manner, and at their best were lovers of the works of Jehovah rather than of those of man.

A POWER THAT CAN BREAK ANY CHAIN.

The fetters that the hammer of the gospel have broken off, if piled together, would make a mountain. The captives whom Christ has set free, if stood side by side, would make an army. Quicker than a ship-chandler's furnace ever melted a cable, quicker than the bayonets of revolution pried open the Bastile, you may be liberated, and made a free son or a free daughter of God. You have only to choose between serfdom and emancipation, between a chain and a coronet, between Satan and God. Make up your mind, and make it up quick.

When the king of Sparta had crossed the Hellespont, and was about to march through Thrace, he sent word to the people in the different regions, asking them whether he should march through their countries as a friend or an enemy. "By all means as a friend," answered most of the regions; but the king of Macedon replied, "I will take time to consider it." "Then," said the king of Sparta, "let him consider it; but meantime we march—we march!" So Christ our King, gives us our choice between his friendship and his frown, and many of us have long been considering what we had better do; but meantime he marches on.

ITS WEAKEST LINK.

[If] a chain can be made up of a thousand links, and nine hundred and ninety-nine are strong, but one is weak, the chain will be in danger of breaking at that one weak link. We may be strong in a thousand excellences and yet have one weakness which endangers us. That is the reason that we sometimes see men distinguished for a whole round of virtues collapse and go down. The weak link in the otherwise stout chain gave way under the pressure.

The first chain bridge was built in Scotland. Walter Scott tells how the French imitated it in a bridge across the river Seine. But there was one weak point in that chain bridge. There was a middle bolt that was of poor material, but they did not know how much depended on that middle bolt of the chain bridge. On the opening day a procession started, led on by the builder of the bridge, and, when the mighty weight of the procession was fairly on it, the bridge broke and precipitated the multitudes. The bridge was all right except in that middle bolt. So the bridge of character may be made up of mighty links strong enough to hold a mountain, but if there be one weak spot, that one point unlooked-after may be the destruction of everything. And what multitudes have gone down for all time and all eternity because in the chain bridge of their character there was lacking a strong middle bolt!

KISSING MOTHER.

A father, talking to his careless daughter, said: "I want to speak to you of your mother. It may be that you have noticed a care-worn look upon her face. Perhaps it was not brought there by any act of yours, still it is your duty to chase it away. I want you to get up to-morrow morning and get breakfast; and when your mother comes, and begins to express her surprise, go right up to her and kiss her. You can't imagine how it will brighten her dear face.

"Besides, you owe her many kisses. Away back, when you were a little girl, she kissed you when no one else was tempted by your fever-tainted breath and swollen face. You were not as attractive then as you are now. And through those years of childish sunshine and shadows, she was always ready to cure, by the magic of a mother's kiss, the little, dirty, chubby hands, whenever they were injured in those first skirmishes with the rough old world; and then the midnight kiss with which she routed so many bad dreams, as she leaned above your restless pillow,—these have all been on interest for long, long years.

"She may not be so pretty as you are; but if you had done your share of work during the last ten years, the contrast would not be so marked. Her face has more wrinkles than yours; yet if you were sick, that face would appear far more beautiful than an angel's, as it hovered over you, watching every opportunity to minister to your comfort; and every one of those wrinkles would seem to be bright wavelets of sunshine chasing each other over the dear face.

"She will leave you one of these days. These burdens, if not lifted from her shoulders, will break her down. Those rough, hard hands, that have done so many necessary things for you, will be crossed upon her lifeless breast. When those neglected lips, that gave you your first baby kiss, and those sad, tired eyes, are forever closed, then you will appreciate your mother; but it will be too late."—Eli Perkins' Book.

THE DEATH-BED.

You may never have a death-bed; but imagine yourself on a death-bed now. If you were, indeed, stretched on the bed from which you should arise no more, how would all your little frivolities, all your vices, and spites, and enmities, and hatreds, and worldly schemes seem to you then? Would they not shrivel into insignificance? Would they not seem to you small, poverty-stricken, base, as well as evil? What alchemy has death to transmute these into things of eternal value? Two children are sent into the fields to glean among the reapers. The one comes home laden with the ripe golden ears, happy with the results of toil and the sense of duty done; the other has played, and idled, and chased butterflies all through the long summer day, and comes back, sick and shamed and fretful and afraid, with nothing in its hand but a few acrid, flaccid, poisonous, withered poppies faded from scarlet into lurid blackness, which have poisoned its blood and stained its hands, and are only fit to fling away as hateful, not only valueless but vile.

Which child will your life resemble? I am speaking to some of the young. "Rejoice, oh, young man, in thy youth, and let thy heart cheer thee in the days of thy youth." I believe the advice was given seriously, not cynically, and in a world "wrapped round with sweet air, and full of sunshine, and abounding with knowledge," if you keep innocence you will find much happiness. Only "remember;" remember that the eternal hues of life's sunshine gleam on the solemn and awful background of the eternal realities. Ah, try now to look at the world and its allurements as they will seem in the last hour; to look at unlawful pleasures as it shall then seem, not only a disappointing, but a depraving and an envenomed thing; to look at the small aims of ambition as they shall seem when they have dwindled into their true paltriness. "Set your affections on things above, not on things of the earth, for the things which are seen are temporal, but the things which are not seen are eternal."—F. W. Farrar.

SILENCE TO GOD.

There is a suggestive little book written by Dr. Alexander Maclaren, and entitled "Week-day Evening Addresses." He says on one page: "It is to be observed that, literally rendered, 'Truly my soul waiteth upon God,' means 'My soul is silence unto God.' That forcible form of expression describes the completeness of the psalmist's unmurmuring submission and quiet faith. His whole being is one great stillness, broken by no clamorous passions; by no loud-voiced desires; by no remonstrating reluctance. There is a similar phrase in another psalm (109:4) which may help to illustrate this: 'For my love they are my adversaries, but I am prayer.' His soul is one supplication. The enemies' wrath awakens no flush of passion on his cheek or ripple of vengeance in his heart. He meets it all with prayer. Wrapped in devotion and heedless of their rage, he is like Stephen when he kneeled down among his yelling murderers, and cried with a loud voice: 'Lord, lay not this sin to their charge.'"

BISHOP SOULE ON DANCING.

Once, in Alabama, in a parlor filled with an intelligent and refined company, while the bishop was conversing with a group of friends, another group in a corner was discussing the innocence of modern dancing, most of them in favor of it. At length they agreed to leave it to the bishop, and approaching, asked his opinion. (Silence.) "Well, I never saw dancing but once, and I must confess I was pleased with it. (Great suspense, and glances exchanged.) I have been to Paris and to London, and most of our own land, but have never seen the exercise but once. (Eager attention.) While I was in Paris, among other things I saw several monkeys taught to dance and keep time; and I must confess I was pleased with it, for I thought it became them very much."

"IN HONOR PREFERRING ONE ANOTHER."

BY R. P. WOODWARD.

Competition is the watchword of business. Press to the front, crowd out the weak, trample down the poor, each one for himself. And so the struggle of life becomes a struggle for life, with the odds heavily against all but the favored few. This is the way of the world, the custom of "the Gentiles." "But it shall not be so among you." Your competition shall be that of brothers and friends, your rivalry shall be that of love. The strong should bear the infirmities of the weak, the rich should lighten the burdens of the poor.

This method of doing business would certainly be revolutionary. Even now men question its practicability. Nevertheless, this is the royal law, the law of love. And so far as it has ever been tried, the results are most satisfactory. This is not what I set out to say. The principle is a good one in business, but I had special reference to the church, and more especial reference to the ministers of Christ. For it is a sad fact that the spirit of rivalry and competition is not unknown among those who preach the gospel of peace and love. As of old, some desire to have the preeminence, and any opportunity for self-advancement is not apt to be neglected, even though it means the pulling down of some one else.

Brethren, if our work is of God, why should we strive to exalt ourselves? Why should we not quietly work the work of God, and then leave the whole matter in his hands? "In due time" he will exalt us if we deserve it, and if it is for the best. "If any man desire to be first, the same shall be last, and servant of all." There are few sadder sights in this sad world than the ambassadors of Christ, striving for power and place, indulging in petty jealousies, pushing and crowding the weak and timid, taking by sheer force positions otherwise unattainable. And some of the bitterest sneers which infidels utter against the religion of Christ are based on facts of this very kind. My brethren, these things ought not so to be.

But there is another side to the matter. Some noble souls there are, who have never descended into the mire of pollution of unseemly strife for place. I have in my mind the case of a minister of Christ, who is a bright and shining example of the better way. A man himself whom God has not favored with great worldly advancement and success, he never seemed to grudge any other the measure of success which may fall to him. He is always ready to give way to others, always prompt to recognize real merit, and give honor where honor is due.

In an acquaintance of years. I never could detect the slightest approach to self-seeking in his dealings with his ministerial brethren. In fact he seemed to be, so far as that was concerned, absolutely unselfish. And though men may not give him the honor he deserves, I know of one, at least, in whose memory his name will ever be a sweet perfume, a constant incentive to Christian unselfishness. Would God there [illegible] servants who had as much of the spirit of the Master! May God help us all to do his will, "in honor preferring one another."

Portland, Me., Aug. 27, 1888.

AN OPEN DOOR. WHO WILL ENTER?

In the city of Bath, Maine, there has existed for more than twenty years a small Advent church. It has, in times gone by, been a thriving and prosperous society, a light and a power for good in the surrounding community. For some years, under the faithful pastorate of Eld. Wm. Burch, it grew and flourished. After his departure, some five or six years ago, the church was, in many ways, exceedingly unfortunate. Trouble and discord were brought in, and thereby many who had previously labored and worshiped with them became disaffected and left. Most of the old pioneers of the faith, have one after another, ceased their labors and fallen asleep in Jesus. Many others of the younger and once active members have removed to other places. A few only of earnest, faithful, working members remain. But these few are holding on by faith, while longing and praying for a better condition of things.

This society has a fine, commodious, and centrally located house of worship, in good repair, and free of all incumbrances, with only a small annual rent to pay for the use of the land, which they do not own but lease. This little church sorely needs and earnestly desires a devoted, faithful, God-sent pastor and teacher, one who is more anxious to serve God and save souls than to secure a salary or gain renown. So far as earthly possessions are concerned it is poor indeed. And yet one of its members, alone, freely offers at his own expense, to board a minister, should one be obtained, and also to do something more by way of help. Others likewise will gladly do all that they can to support the stated preaching of the "good news of the coming kingdom."

The church for months past has been earnestly praying that God would speedily send them a pastor, a man of faith, full of the Holy Ghost and of power. For awhile, at least, they would probably be unable to do more than barely support a pastor without a family. Whoever may come, therefore, should come relying upon his own efforts with the blessing of God, to so increase the church and congregation as to thereby also secure an increase of his own pay as pastor. The writer has for a long time and without cost to the church preached unto them the Word when no one else could be obtained, as best he was able in his physical weakness and inability. It may, however, well be questioned whether such gratuitous preaching is, on the whole, wise and best for the people in view of the well known fact that usually "That which costs one nothing, is also to him worth nothing." Be this as it may, we are fully convinced that the time has come when the Advent church in Bath must either have a pastor who can, and will give his whole time and efforts to laboring with and among them, and in gathering others into the "little flock," or else they must soon close the doors of their chapel, sorrowfully disband, and reluctantly give up their existence as a church.

In conclusion the writer will only add that, for one, he, although not a member of this church, would feel exceedingly sad if compelled to witness such a result. For with the present constantly increasing tendency in most of the larger, and leading denominations, not only to depart further and further from many of the plain and literal truths of God's word, but also more and more in their modes of worship to adopt and glory in a mere elegant, ostentatious, and popular formalism, pleasing indeed to human pride and vanity, but nevertheless utterly devoid of divine power and the true spirit of humble and devout worship; with these undeniable tendencies upon us, how exceedingly important that those branches of the church which still hold to the literal Word, and to the primitive, apostolic simplicity of worship, should hold on and endeavor to stem this rapidly increasing current of religious scepticism, and churchly formalism.

And now, finally, in regard to a pastor for the little church at Bath, for which we write, our conviction is strong that if the right man (and if God sends one, as we trust he will, he will be the right one) can be secured, he will soon see the fruits of his labors in the increasing numbers both of the church, and of the society, and therefore, also in the constantly augmenting amount of his financial receipts. Now, what young man among the preachers of "the gospel of the soon coming kingdom," who may chance to read this communication, will be found ready to respond and come trusting in the Lord both for success and for pay?

AURORA, ILL.

BY R. FORESTER.

I thank God for the opportunity of enjoying the meeting at Aurora. Being a stranger to nearly all present, we felt a timidity that interfered to some extent with our enjoyment, yet memory has been enriched by that which maketh glad. We feel more than ever that we are a part of the great Advent body of which Christ is surely the head. I certainly never saw so many representative men together, and at the same time so little egotism. They seemed truly to "be kindly affectioned one to another with brotherly kindness, in honor preferring one another." The heavenly injunction, "Let nothing be done through strife or vainglory, but in lowliness of mind let each esteem other better than themselves," never received a more beautiful and complete exemplification than it did in the conduct of those brethren. They seemed truly "to be subject one to another, and to be clothed with humility." May they continue steadfastly in the same mind, that "in due time they may be exalted."

It was truly a family reunion. The Orient and the Occident were together, the polite and accomplished East, and the "rowdy West" commingled and intermingled without friction; and more still, strangers needed an interpreter to enable them to distinguish between the people of the widely separated localities represented. Truly we were "of one heart and of one mind," "all speaking the same things." My daily prayer is that we may "be kept in the unity of the Spirit and the bonds of peace." "Thy will be done." "Be ye also ready." "Occupy till I come," were used as texts, and stand [illegible] There was a decided dissent to definite time theorizing, and as decided an assent to the position that we are occupying, that chronological period when we should "lift up our heads, knowing he is nigh even at the doors."

The duties of the present hour were felt to be threefold; to proclaim, "Behold the Judge standeth at the door; to make known the object of his coming, which involves the question of elective or conditional immortality, together with an eschatology that will stand the test of a biblical examination by a critical age. A present and full salvation is to be preached; a present salvation, deliverance from the guilt and dominion of sin, justified as to the past, sanctified as to the present. A full salvation involving a release from the effects of sin, which will be accomplished when we shall be glorified. Justification for the past, sanctification for the present, glorification in the future. "When he shall appear we shall be like him." May the dear Lord give us wisdom, grace, and strength equal to our needs, that this great work may be wrought successfully. Your fellow-servant.

FROM W. J. CUSTAR.

Bro. Stockman:—I feel impressed to inform you and all the Crisis family that our heavenly Father continues to bless the labors of his true and faithful ministering servant, in the convincing and converting power of his word and Holy Spirit. The good seed is being sown and finding lodgement in good and honest hearts, resulting in much fruit to the honor and glory of his dear name. One of our much esteemed young ministers, who was ordained at our annual conference in Sept. 1887, by our dear brother, J. A. Cargile, of Alabama, has been traveling through portions of Jackson, Roane, Clay, Kanawha, Braxton, and Nicholas counties, accomplishing much good in the Master's cause.

Another of our good brother ministers, S. S. Jones, of Island Branch church, left his home in Kanawha Co., and made a tour through the above named counties, from the third of August to the tenth, thence to their homes in time to attend our annual conference, which convened Sept. 6th, 1888, with the Pleasant Grove church, Jackson Co., W. Va. The results will be given in the report by our secretary, Bro. Munday. When those two brethren reached a place in Nicholas Co. (Beaver Mills) where they had an appointment, they met with bitter opposition by the so-called Orthodox minister and people, of the M. E. church and others. One preacher declared that such men ought to be burned at the stake, etc.

Notwithstanding all such threats of violence, our ministers were protected and their labors blessed at that place. At the close of the meeting held on Thursday night, Aug. 9th, some ten or twelve arose for prayers, when there was such an outpouring of the Holy Spirit that a great shout went up of praise to God and the Lamb. One dear sister was baptized in the likeness of Christ's death and resurrection, and came forth from the watery grave rejoicing in hope of the glory of God, in which all who were united in bonds of sweet fellowship and sympathy joined heartily.

FROM MRS. W. H. GAUMER.

Bro. Stockman:—Please allow me a little space in the columns of the dear old Crisis to say that I love the dear Crisis and believe the dear Lord is coming soon. I was converted three years ago. I united with the United Brethren church as there was no Advent church at that time. The first Advent preacher I ever heard was Eld. [illegible] in Delta, Ohio. I was but ten years old. I was baptized by him. I have been baptized twice by Advent ministers, once by my uncle, Alexander Decker, from New Jersey. The next was Eld. Conant. He came here a stranger, and went to preaching. He shows that the Bible is fulfilled, and that Jesus is soon coming. Oh, how I love the appearing of Jesus. My Bible is a new book to me. We all love Eld. Conant and wife. We have Sunday School every Sunday, preaching afterward and prayer meeting Sabbath evening, and once during the week. The Spirit of the Lord is with us. There are only a small number of us that are looking for the soon coming of Jesus. We had the pleasure of hearing Eld. Bower, and also Eld. Burtenshaw was with us in June. We had a good meeting.

The Lord was with us in power. We are looking for them again this fall, if the Lord is willing, to hold a two weeks' meeting. Since Eld. Conant came here he has baptized about twenty persons. I am young in the faith of Jesus' soon coming but I love it. My husband is with me. Pray for us. Your sister in Christ.

LIFTED ABOVE OURSELVES.

It is a grand prayer for every one, and worth offering oftentimes, "O Lord lift us above ourselves." The responsibilities of life are gauged not by what we are, but by what we may become. Every man's life is a sort of swamp acre. There are stones in it, a hundred loads. There are boulders, of tons weight. There is cold and wet soil. It is [illegible] life's work to cut the grass which grows of itself on this acre. Faith and work are to drain this soil, to pick off the stones, to blast the boulders, and to lift the plot up into dryness and fecundity. [illegible] not be done. Improvements are expensive and laborious. There is hardship, and sweat, and toil in them. These cowardly souls are everywhere. They are busy digging a little hole to hide their own talent because it is not ten. They are coming up every day to difficulties which they count impossibilities. They are groaning life away, with the monotonous cry, "I cannot." "Others are gifted," they say, "but we are not." Gifts carry responsibilities. Let others see to them. We are not eloquent—therefore never a word for Christ. Let others declare the salvation of God. We will hide it in our hearts. If God wants anything done for him which demands nerve, and pluck, and faith, let him raise up more of such men as Harlan Page, who, in common life, would do uncommon things for Christ. But average Christians are exempt. The few are armed men in God's host. The many are non combatants.

These words are no exaggeration. Would you prove them, look around in your own church—possibly in your own soul; and when you see the outcome of all this—what a nerveless, flabby, cowardly thing Christian life must be with such conceptions—then open the old Book and find what godliness is. Right through the Old Testament, God-fearing and God-serving are simple assaults upon the impossible. Abraham's faith finds it so. Moses must march over the sea with his ransomed millions, although the waters are not as yet divided. See the grand old judges and prophets and kings setting up their battering rams in front of impregnable walls. We cannot specify instances. The Bible is one continuous story of faith lifting men above themselves.

The same is true of real Christian life in all ages. Grace is a Hercules, working marvels in infancy, and moving through life amid prodigies of strength. This is true of great lives. It is true of smaller ones. He who doubts this has yet his alphabet to learn. He who has never met what at first he thought an impossibility, has never traveled out of sight of his spiritual nursery. The man who ventures only to the limits of his conscious force has simply gone to the front gate. He who has crossed sea and climbed mountains in his God-serving has all the while been a miracle-worker through the might of grace within him. Our prayer and our strain must be toward a single purpose—to rise above ourselves, above fear and distrust and sensitiveness and conscious inability. There is nothing short of this in a life worth calling Christian. We are in a dungeon. We must throw ourselves against the gratings, shouting, "Deliver me from my persecutors; for they are stronger than I. Bring my soul out of prison, that I may praise thy name." We are like St. Paul, in infirmity and suspense and struggle and wait. But we must climb the crumbling cliff, as Paul did, shouting with brave souls, "I take pleasure in infirmities, in reproaches, in necessities, in persecutions, in distresses, for Christ's sake! for when I am weak, then am I strong." "I can do all things through Christ, which strengtheneth me." If we do work in life worth doing at all, we must be lifted above ourselves. They who at last walk the golden streets will have climbed heavenward with many a tug.—Sel.

FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.

LETTER FROM J. C. SMITH.

Sept. 9th. Every night the past week we have had meetings, either on the ocean strand or at hall or at our home, and the Lord has signally blest our efforts. There is not a meeting passes but some one or more new hearers from London or some other place become interested, and often they walk with us over a mile to our home after meeting, and there we talk over the blessed things of the kingdom with them, and have a season of prayer, and sing our scriptural songs of praise and rejoicing, that welcomes our coming King. And not a night passes, when we are on the strand, but some one or more of our brethren return with us also. I can tell you, dear brethren and sisters, that this movement is of the Lord, and the children are like new-born babes. They desire the sincere milk of the Word, that they may grow thereby, and they are not afraid of the strong meat either. They love the "sound doctrine." And while many of our brethren and sisters that have come out have foes of their own household, and are persecuted for righteousness sake, some in stores and shops, yet they take it patiently.

We have had over eighty meetings since we came to Eastbourne. Bro. H., that we first baptized, notwithstanding he works hard, has missed but a very few meetings. Other brethren have to work in shops, and cannot come always, but all have the work at heart and would come if they were able. When all have a mind to work the blessing of God attends, and thus it is here. The statement of Nehemiah, "So built we the wall, and all the wall was joined together unto the half thereof, for the people had a mind to work," gives us great encouragement to press the battle, though we meet great opposition as Nehemiah did; for he said, "But it came to pass, that when Sanballat and Tobiah and the Arabians and the Ammonites and the Ashdodites heard that the walls of Jerusalem were made up, and that the breaches began to be stopped, then they were very wroth, and conspired all of them together to come and to fight against Jerusalem, and to hinder it. Nevertheless we made our prayer unto our God, and set a watch against them day and night because of them."

We have the same experience here as in the States since the church has been set in order, Bro. Ritcher and Forsey, having resigned from the Primitive Methodist, have met with some hard rebuffs, also others of the church, but the work goes on. On the ninth of September we had five meetings, and three happy souls obeyed the Lord in baptism, notwithstanding the heavy sea and roar of the ocean. But nothing daunted these young converts in going forth in obedience to the divine commission of our Saviour, and by thus doing they have obeyed that "form of doctrine" that has been delivered for all of God's children to walk in.

Sept. 16th. Another week has passed and gone as usual. Every night we have held meetings, and during the day we have scattered much seed in the city, and among the thousands that come here for health and pleasure. Bro. Ritcher tells me that the most intelligent from all parts of England come here; so we have had a grand opportunity to scatter this refreshing, God-given faith of Jesus' coming, of the crowning day so soon to dawn, when all the glories of eternity will be ushered in among them. Thousands have gone away to tell it to others. Every night good and orderly interest is manifested, and people will stand an hour. To-day at our service in the afternoon five of us spoke, and they stood over two hours at a time. Our hearts leap for joy to see the interest manifested. We praise the Lord for his power and grace to save, and for such a divine revelation as he has given us, so easily understood, and that gives peace in believing and joy in the Holy Ghost.

All through the past week we have had refreshing seasons. A number of others [illegible] dressmaker, Miss Paul, who has other helpers under her charge in London, has been directed here by the Lord. She heard the glad tidings on the beach. The Lord touched her heart, and she gladly put on Christ by baptism to-day after the P. M. service. Have had four precious seasons to-day. Brn. Ritcher, Forsey and Wiers, gave in testimony for God and his truth. The Lord has also raised up another, young Bro. Burton, a colporteur, some sixteen miles away, to sound out the good news of Jesus' coming. We saw an account of his speaking in one of the public meetings held at Bexhill, where a preacher was eulogizing some dead man and speaking of worldly things. He arose and gave him a good sound admonition, and told him that souls were perishing, and the coming of the Lord was nigh, and admonished him to preach the Word, and not to be found a slothful servant.

I thought that we would love to become acquainted with him, so on Wednesday last I bundled up an armful of tracts and papers, took cars and went out, but was disappointed in finding him away. We left tracts for him and our address, and scattered among the hundreds there what seed we had and returned. The second day after our return we received a letter from him with an order for four shillings' worth of tracts to scatter. Thus the Word of God runs swiftly. We are now being diminished greatly in our supply of tracts and papers.

Dear brethren and sisters, you that are able, send in to Bros. Andrews and Wellcome, that we may have a supply to scatter among thousands in this vastly populated country, where starvation as to the glorious truths we love is going on. Respond quickly, brethren, for some poor soul may perish before I can get a supply. Pray for us. As ever, yours in Christ.

LETTER FROM INDIA.

The following extract from a letter received from our missionary in South India, Bro. C. Masillamani, shows what is the result of the effort put forth by the Society in spreading the truth in the far off land of India.

E. M. A.

"My Dear Sir:—It is just six years since the publication and circulation of the life and Advent truths begun in this far away country. During this short period thousands of English tracts, journals, pamphlets, etc., have been received from America and England and extensively circulated all over India, Ceylon, and Burmah. Again, a great number of tracts and journals have been printed and published in Tamil, Telugu, and Malayalim, most of them being the translations of English productions. By the wide circulation of these tracts and journals, as well as by our preaching the glorious truths have been spreading in all directions.

In the space of these six years great numbers of Europeans and natives, by reading our publications, have been convinced of the truths advocated in them. Those who have openly embraced the truth have come forward to help us as tract distributers. I am glad to hear the names of certain government chaplains and European missionaries among the preachers of the truths pertaining to the near coming of Christ and life only in him. Praise God for raising up a good number of zealous and earnest workers from among the natives to preach the gospel truth and circulate our tracts in several places. Some of these voluntary helpers are personally well acquainted with me, and others whom I have never seen in person often write to me from different places, acknowledging their convictions of the truth which they have been led to embrace through the perusal of our tracts and journals.

By zealously teaching the truths they have received, and spreading the tracts and journals often sent to them, they openly show that they are believers of the doctrines relating to conditional immortality. Such friends, on their visits to Madras, came to my residence in order to get from me a clearer knowledge of the truth they have embraced, and on their departure carry with them numerous tracts and journals to circulate them in their own places. Roman Catholics and Hindus also sometimes come and get tracts from the repository and distribute them among their neighbors. An educated Roman Catholic, who has lately removed from Madras and settled himself in Burmah, now and then writes for our tracts and gets them through his friends and distributes them among his friends and neighbors in Burmah.

Two years ago a friend, an Advent believer, came to see me from Trunivilly, about 450 miles from here. In the course of our conversation he asked me to send some Tamil tracts and journals to his friend, one Mr. David, in North Trunivilly. Mr. David with an anxiously inquiring mind read the tracts and journals sent to him, and his mind, through the power of the Holy Spirit, was enlightened to find the truth. He wrote me a letter and thankfully acknowledged the receipt of the packets despatched to him, in which he says, 'I have very carefully read all the tracts that you have kindly sent to me, and most cordially adopted the scriptural views treated in them. Now I continue to teach them to my friends and neighbors, and all the tracts and journals that you kindly sent me have been circulated, and they are eagerly received and read by the people here. I am glad to inform you that some of my friends have embraced these truths and openly teach them to others. There is an increasing demand for these very interesting and instructive tracts which bring to light so many hitherto hidden truths of the gospel of our Lord. Many have been convinced of these truths by reading these tracts. Thus your tracts are doing a noble work in this region. We shall feel greatly thankful to you if you would regularly send us your [illegible]

WORDS OF TRUTH.

BY J. H. & M. T. NEFF.

In every age God has called his servants to lift up their voices against the prevailing errors and sins of the multitude. Noah was called to stand alone to warn the antediluvian world. Moses and Aaron were alone against kings and princes, magicians and wise men, and the multitudes of Egypt. Elijah was alone when he testified against an apostate king and a backsliding people. Daniel and his fellows stood alone against the decrees of mighty monarchs. The majority are usually to be found on the side of error and falsehood. The fact that doctors of divinity have the world on their side does not prove them to be on the side of truth and of God. The wide gate and the broad road attract the multitudes, while the strait gate and the narrow way are sought only by the few. John the Baptist was alone when he came forth as a voice of one crying, "Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make his paths strait. Repent ye for the kingdom of heaven is at hand." Jesus was alone when he preached eternal life, and "of the people there were none with him." He trod the wine-press alone. John the revelator was alone on the Isle of Patmos where he saw the celestial city.

While probation continues, they must expect that the world will know them not, "because it knew him not." Great and small, high and low, rich and poor are to be judged "out of those things which were written in the books, according to their works." Day after day, passing into eternity, bears its burden of records for the books of heaven. Words once spoken, deeds once done, can never be recalled. Angels of God have registered both the good and the evil. The mightiest conqueror upon the earth cannot call back the record of even a single day. Our acts, our words, even our most secret motives, all have their weight in deciding our destiny for weal or woe. Though they may be forgotten by us, they will bear their testimony to justify or condemn. They go before us to the judgment. The use made of every talent will be scrutinized. Have we improved the capital intrusted to us by God? Will the Lord at his coming receive his own with usury? No value is attached to the mere profession of faith in Christ, nothing is counted as genuine but that love which is shown by works. Love one another, for love thinketh no evil. God is love.

WHY AM I AN ADVENTIST?

BY H. POLLARD.

I am an Adventist because I am a Christian. A Christian is one who openly avows Jesus Christ as Lord and Saviour, and obeys him to the extent of his own knowledge and ability. To do this constantly is the supreme desire and object of my life. God helping me, I will be a true follower of Jesus Christ whatever that may require me to do or to be. Jesus Christ tells me in plain words by the inspired record, "If I go I will come again." John 14:3. He certainly went away literally, personally and visibly. He has not yet returned in that sense in which he went away. Many other scriptures assert his future advent as literal, as personal, as visible, and I cannot be a Christian unless I believe them and expect his coming. This constitutes me an Adventist.

I do not assume to judge those who say they are Christians, but deny that Christ will ever personally return to this earth. They have to deal with Jesus and his word, not with me. But I cannot myself be a Christian unless I am an Adventist. But there is a stronger sense in which I am an Adventist, and for the same reason, because I am a Christian. Jesus Christ has taught his followers to "know" when his second advent will be very near. He gave them predicted signs by which to be sure they are not mistaken. He commanded them to then hold themselves in instant readiness to meet him by sudden translation, warning them to remember Lot's wife, and avoid a similarly fatal carelessness, and he predicted a strange and general disbelief and indifference to this truth at that time. I cannot now take space for extended quotations to verify these assertions, nor are they necessary.

The credible testimony of history and of many witnesses informs me that the predicted signs have all occurred. All the great prophecies of Scripture, as interpreted by able scholars, combine to unmistakably confirm the words of Christ, and point to the very near future with thrilling power. The disbelief of the world and strange indifference of much of the church completes the evidence. Let those who will ignore these facts or explain them away; I neither wish nor dare to. I want eternal life, and to meet my returning Lord with joy. For me there is no alternative. If I am to be a Christian I must be an Adventist in believing that Christ is "now nigh at hand," "even at the door," and this belief I must openly confess.

Nor is this all. If I would be a sincere Christian I must be as consistent in my faith as I can. I cannot believe in the literal, personal, visible return of Christ in the near future, and ignore the revealed object of his coming, or the reasons which make it necessary. It is impossible to believe that for which we can assign no sufficient purpose or reason. Hence, to assist our faith inspired writers have told us both why Christ is coming again, and what he is coming to do. The great object of his coming is to reward his friends and punish his foes, and the only scriptural and possible reason why he comes here to do this, is that both his friends and foes are here, and not in another world called heaven or hell.

If Jesus' friends with few exceptions are all in heaven where he has gone, then they can be, and are already rewarded there. If his enemies have gone to a hell of punish[illegible], then they must have been already judged and remanded to a just recompense. Those friends and enemies yet in the flesh can also by physical death receive reward or punishment, and the scriptural object of Christ's second advent is then accomplished without that advent, and no reason whatever remains why he should come again. Believing that Christ is coming again, and soon, I cannot be a sincere Christian unless I believe that the resurrection of "all that are in the graves" is an essential condition to future rewards or punishment. I know there are Christians who do not thus believe. With their faith I have nothing to do. I am certain that in order to be a sincere Christian I must be a consistent Adventist.

But there are brethren whose faith is identical with my own who refuse to be called Adventists, lest they should sanction a sectarian name and promote sectarian divisions. Though claiming to be thorough Adventists in faith, they decline to be called by any name but Christian, and they would fain persuade me that I do wrong in calling myself an Adventist. But I fail to see how it can be wrong to be called whatever one truly is. If I am truly an Adventist, can it be wrong to be called by that distinctive term? It seems to me that the wrong, if it exists, must be in what I am and not what I am called. It cannot be wrong for me to bear the name American unless it expresses an untruth. How then can it be wrong to call myself an Adventist when I truly am one? The name Christian is a common heritage of all followers of Christ, and includes by common usage many who are utterly unchristian in character. That name no longer designates distinctive faith or character as it formerly did; yet we love it and bear it, and would rather die than disown it.

I am a Christian. I glory in that precious name, but I am also an Adventist just as truly as I am a Christian. Worlds would not tempt me to deny it. And since that name designates a distinctive and purely Christian faith, I cannot see how as a Christian I can consistently or truthfully refuse to be called an Advent Christian. To make a bug-a-boo of the name Adventist looks to me like a trick of Satan; if he can speciously persuade us to disown the name of our distinctive faith, we are then but a single step from denying that faith itself. If being a Christian is any reason for being an Adventist, as I have endeavored to show, then it cannot be wrong. And unless it is wrong to be an Adventist I must, because I am a Christian, gladly accept and bear the name that truthfully denotes the faith I love.

CHRISTIAN LABOR.

How beautiful the Revised Version on the commission of Matt. 28:19—"Go ye therefore, and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." Each gospel minister is to "make disciples," else he is not divinely commissioned. He is either a backslidden minister, or has sadly mistaken his calling, who is not wise to win souls. Eld. Swan, the Baptist evangelist of southern New England, preached years without converts, thinking he was "sowing seed"; but when convinced that such was a worthless ministry, in the agony of his soul he besought the Lord to clothe him with a power that would reach the unsaved, and he entered into a revival grace that made all the churches marvel, gathering a thousand converts in a city of seven thousand inhabitants.

Charles Wesley reached a point in his ministry where he expected converts from every sermon. David Staner everywhere led sinners to Christ. Thomas Smith converted infidels more rapidly than an ordinary evangelist would Sabbath School children. Farrell's ministry led bigoted Catholics to a saving faith by scores in a single sermon. The converts of John Elias could be found in every town in Wales. Charles G. Finney sometimes closed a protracted meeting with every person in the place or region of country converted to Christ.

William B. Christie, by his quiet power, moved hundreds to give their hearts to the Lord under a single sermon. Benj. Abbott, or "Father Abbott" as he was called by the early Methodists, was sometimes obliged to discontinue his sermon and go to praying for alarmed sinners begging for mercy. E. B. Morgan passed sleepless nights in great spiritual distress, when an evening passed in protracted work and no sinners presented themselves for prayers.

Such men believed in immediate results, and constantly received them. A Methodist preacher, who saw constant revivals attend his labors in every place, would first call sinners forward for prayers, and if they did not come he would ask his church to come forward for a new conversion, till they could successfully travail in soul for the unsaved.

"Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth laborers into his harvest." Said a distinguished preacher, "It is none of my business whether I see results of my labors or not." In some form this pernicious sentiment has often found utterance from the lips of an unsuccessful ministry. The Master makes his reapers responsible for the largest possible results. They are themselves to be a constant success in this great work of bringing in sheaves, and then, with burdened hearts and in the agony of faith, pray for yet other laborers to be associated with them in the harvest field. John Knox prayed, "Give me Scotland, or I die." God heard that prayer, as he did that of Patrick Hamilton, the gifted young Scotchman who, while burning at the stake, exclaimed, "How long, O Lord, shall darkness cover this realm?"

The brazen ball could stop the mouth of Paul Craw while burning at the stake, but it could not prevent the holy man from turning his face toward heaven, with the silent expression of prayer for Scotland. The first signal aid sent to Knox after his agonizing prayer for Scotland was the bold and saintly George Wishart. His prophecy, while burning at the stake, and its literal fulfilment, were as much inspired as the prayers of Knox, of Hamilton and of Craw. In fourteen short years thereafter Scotland was wrested from the power of Papacy, and years before the death of Knox became Protestant, with an evangelical ministry more constant than that of any other Protestant country, through the centuries that followed.

Some wonderful stories are found in religious biographies of spiritual laborers being sent both to individual churches, and also large regions of country, in answer to the prayer of faith. C. G. Finney collected quite a good number. Sick men upon their dying beds, lone women with wrestling faith, missionaries in heathen lands, have poured out their burdened desires into the ears of Jehovah, to see in return amazing answers in an almost incredibly short time. Sending for a noted revival evangelist is man's way, but praying the Lord of the harvest for spiritual help is the divinely ordained way of revival work. Cornelius prayed Peter from Joppa to Cesarea, and from a Jewish church to a Gentile congregation, in spite of Peter's prejudice against "anything common or unclean." When will the church learn God's way of supplying their needs?

The story of Acts 13 is a beautiful illustration of the thought. Antioch, the most spiritual of all the Gentile churches, contained "certain prophets and teachers, as Barnabas, and Simeon that was called Niger, and Lucius of Cyrene, and Manaen, which had been brought up with Herod the tetrarch, and Saul. And as they ministered to the Lord and fasted, the Holy Ghost said, Separate me Barnabas and Saul for the work whereunto I have called them. And when they had fasted and prayed, and laid their hands on them, they sent them away. So they, being sent forth by the Holy Ghost, departed unto Seleucia and from thence they sailed to Cyprus."

Five spiritual men, whose hearts were burdened and burning with missionary love, prayed with fasting for more laborers to be sent into the harvest field. The Holy Ghost immediately selected two of that number for evangelistic work, and Luke was the third that was quickly called to follow Barnabas and Paul. Niger and Manaen are only mentioned in this text. Josephus mentions a certain Manaen, of great wisdom, sanctity, and a prophet withal. Dr. Lightfoot thinks him to be the Manaen of this text. Thus honored were the disciples who prayed for laborers in God's field. The church at Thessalonica, in their work of faith, and labor of love, and patience of hope," became "ensamples to all that believed in Macedonia and Achaia, and from them "sounded out the word of the Lord, not only in Macedonia and Achaia, but also in every place . . . into the regions beyond."

All churches working under the guidance of the Holy Spirit carry holy, benevolent burdens for a lost world, pray for laborers to be sent into the great harvest field, and then respond in person when the Holy Ghost selects some of their number. Unto the faithful at Ephesus came a message direct from heaven, "I know thy works, and thy labor, and thy patience."

To the Hebrews Paul wrote: "God is not unrighteous to forget your work and labor of love which ye have showed toward his name, in that ye have ministered to the saints, and do minister." Here is a labor to relieve the bodily wants especially mentioned. Those who have a true love for men will, as the early Methodists tersely worded it, be engaged in "doing good to the bodies and souls of men." The two forms of labor belong properly together. All truly sanctified hearts are equally responsive in relieving physical suffering, or administering spiritual admonition and consolation, or engaging in "intercessions for all men." This is the first phase of sanctification, when the heart and hands and tongue and pocket all respond, as an awakened conscience and discerning eye and hearing ears discover a way for Christian labor.

Women, too, have a part in both these kinds of labor. Dorcas "was full of good works and alms-deeds which she did." When she died, so many widows whom she had relieved "stood by, weeping and showing the coats and garments which Dorcas had made when she was with them," that Peter concluded that she could not be allowed to remain in death's cold embrace, so by the power of God called her back to life again. Euodias and Syntyche labored in a directly spiritual way. Paul wrote of them, "I entreat thee also, true yokefellow, help those women which labored with me in the gospel."

In Rom. 16, Paul makes mention of not less than eight Christian women who labored in one or both of these capacities. He speaks of Phebe, "minister of the church which is at Cenchrea." "Greet Priscilla and Aquila [her husband], my helpers in Christ Jesus." "Greet Mary, who bestowed much labor on us." "Salute [the two sisters] Tryphena and Tryphosa, who labored in the Lord. Salute the beloved Persis, which labored much in the Lord." He mentions also the mother of Rufus, "Julia, Nereus and his sister." Paul frowned on ignorant, clamorous women at Corinth who sought to turn the church into a debating club, but everywhere encouraged works of love and spiritual labor, when bestowed by women of true piety, with no other restraint but to pray or prophesy with their heads covered.

Brethren in the ministry, suffer if you please words of counsel and admonition. Let us go forth in this divine labor, with hearts made tender and responsive by the constraining love of Christ, so forgetful of self and all selfish interests that we would gladly seek the meanest place in all the world, if we can thereby save the perishing. Let us learn the divine way of weeping between the porch and the altar, of travailing in birth for lost souls, till the awakening and wooing influences of the Spirit, combined with our own holy example and admonition, leads them to Christ. Let us keep constantly before the church the importance of continuous Christian labor, teaching believers how to come into a condition where they can leave all their petty, selfish burdens at Jesus' feet, and take instead "the burden of the Lord," and the wants and woes of the perishing.

Again, as you meet together in the capacity of conferences, associations, and all general gatherings, as well as in more retired fields of labor, "pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth laborers into his harvest. Say not ye there are yet four months and then cometh the harvest. Behold, I say unto you, Lift up your eyes and look on the fields; for they are white already to harvest." Let us join in Habakkuk's prayer, "O Lord, revive thy work," and in the apostle's motive power, "The love of Christ constraineth us."

IT is a wise remark of Bishop Wilberforce that "there is a blessed peace in looking for nothing but our daily task, and our portion of Christ's cross between this day and the appointed time when we shall fall asleep in him."—Ex.

BOASTING.

BY W. H. TENNEY.

"My soul shall make her boast in the Lord; the humble shall hear thereof, and be glad."—Psa. 34:2.

What an age of boasting and bragging this is, and in all departments of life too. But this boasting is not a very new thing. The great Goliath of Gath had this same spirit of boasting when he defied the armies of the God of Israel. "Am I a dog, that thou comest to me?" he asks with scorn and disdain, as the young David came with the sling and five smooth stones, but in the name and strength of God. "Is not this great Babylon, that I have built for the house of the kingdom by the might of my power, and for the honor of my majesty?" asks the proud king of Babylon, as in his greatness he surveys the great and beautiful city of his kingdom.

Boasting seems to be a common characteristic of human nature. Sometimes we hear people say, "I am saved. I am the Lord's, and he is mine. The blood of Jesus has washed all my sins away." To some this sounds like boasting. But is it? "You must not give such a positive testimony," say they. "It will discourage the weak ones." See here. Suppose a dozen persons were all sick with the same disease, and some one of the number should find a remedy and were cured, made every whit whole; would it be boasting, would it discourage the other sick ones for them to say, and very confidently too, "I am well. The remedy has cured me. I am saved from the disease?" Certainly not. They would all be glad to know that there was a remedy that was a cure, and that some one had been made well.

Sin is the most terrible of diseases. Jesus Christ was manifested to take away sins. Is he a cure? Will the remedy heal? "Is there no balm in Gilead? Is there no physician there? Why then is not the health of the daughter of my people recovered? If you have taken the remedy and it has cured you, it is but due the one who prescribed the medicine that you should tell of what it has done for you. On one of the journeys of the Great Physician, a woman came up behind him and touched the hem of his garment. She was immediately made whole. "Who touched me?" asks the Master. Then the woman came trembling and told how she touched him, and that she was healed immediately. He wanted a confession from her of his healing power.

It is not boasting to state a simple fact. If we came to Jesus with our sins and asked his pardon, and he has forgiven us and washed us in his blood, and put his Spirit into our hearts, it is not boasting to say so. "Let the redeemed of the Lord say so." It is simply honoring the Great Physician, if he has saved us, to say so, and we must do it, for "with the heart man believeth unto righteousness, and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation." "My soul shall make her boast in the Lord." If we boast in ourselves it will amount to naught, but if in the Lord, "the humble shall hear thereof, and be glad. "Likewise reckon ye also yourselves to be dead indeed unto sin, but alive unto God through our Lord Jesus Christ."

If you take a positive stand for Christ, if you are out and out for him, you may disturb some lazy, lukewarm professor, or ambitious hypocrite, but you will not discourage any of the Lord's true disciples, however weak they may be. They will rejoice to know of the strength and keeping power of the dear Redeemer. "He that believeth on the Son of God hath the witness in himself." "The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit that we are the children of God." "And if ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise." "Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be; but we know that when he shall appear we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is." "I know whom I have believed, and am persuaded that he is able to keep that which I have committed unto him against that day." "Unto him that loved us, and washed us from our sins in his own blood, be glory."

"I'm a child of the King,
A child of the King.
With Jesus, my Saviour,
I'm a child of the King."

THE PROFESSION OF FAITH.

BY RUBY M. HARDING.

In this narrow way of life, the path of faith is sometimes very rugged and steep. Paul found it so, and in his letter to the Hebrews he says, "Let us hold fast the profession of our faith without wavering, for he is faithful that promised." What is faith? "Faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen." Faith is recorded all through the New Testament. People with incurable diseases were healed by faith, and the dead were raised. So the sin-sick soul may be made whole to-day, by believing by faith on Jesus.

And faith without works is dead. "For if the body without the spirit is dead, so faith without works is dead also." Faith must go with works. Why did he give the admonition to hold fast without wavering? It was because they were subject to the trial of their faith in olden times, even as we at the present time. Paul has written thus: "I reckon the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed in us." He endured hardship, trial, suffering and imprisonment, "like a good soldier," saying, "I glory in tribulation, knowing that tribulation worketh patience, and patience experience, and experience hope." We cannot pluck all flowers from this narrow way. It may be that the plans we hold so dear may be withheld from us, because if given they would be of the greatest harm.

Trials will come. After bathing in the sunlight of God's mercy, trials like a dark cloud seem to settle around us. We should look to the one that never leaves or forsakes us, "knowing that the trial of our faith being much more precious than of gold that perisheth though it be tried with fire, might be found unto praise, and honor, and glory at the appearing of Jesus, our Saviour." "For he is faithful that promised." What has he promised? Peace that passeth understanding, and everlasting life. "To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the tree of life, which is in the midst of the paradise of God." Then let us hope on, pray on, and at last enter the pearly gates. Let us truly "hold fast the profession of our faith without wavering," and if we are discouraged, "Let us therefore come boldly unto the throne of grace, that we may obtain mercy, and find grace to help in time of need." "For we are not of them who draw back unto perdition, but of them that believe to the saving of the soul."

Brothers, sisters, the way may be dreary in the valley of trial, no one seems to care for your soul, yet the unseen hand of God guides you and protects you. He cares for your soul. When the hill of trial is surmounted, the clouds will all vanish, all will be sunshine, while beyond the river lies the beautiful city. Yes, it is all beautiful. "We shall be glad and rejoice with exceeding great joy," for the trials will be as nothing compared with "the glory that shall be revealed." Over by the fair crystal river, with the loved and blest, at home forever. Jesus is coming soon. The Saturday night of this life may be dark and the tempest may rage, but the last glad Sabbath morn is just ahead. Then the "Sun of Righteousness will arise with healing in his wings." We shall all know as we are known, when all the mists have fled away. May we be ready for the last great day, having "kept the faith," without wavering, and receive what he has promised, eternal life.

BODILY PRESENCE.

BY C. R. COFF.

To those who look at the flesh more than unto spiritual things, bodily presence in a minister counts for more than God reckons it to be worth. The writer once heard a young man advised to preach, and among other things his portly and tall figure was mentioned as a great advantage in his favor. This was done by another preacher!

Not long since it came also to the writer's notice that a certain candidate for pastor of an orthodox church was objected to by a leading member because he was small! It occurred to me that that preacher was not out of proportion to that man's contribution to his predecessor's support. Indeed, it may be that some preachers might have grown larger if they had been fed better, worked and worried less by unspiritual churches. Perhaps it is not too late yet to try this experiment on some young fellow. But if it is meat that this world knows all about is what is wanted, then a sleek, plump, well-fed Catholic priest is a fair sample.

But then, after the wisdom of this world, bodily size is no criterion of ability. In the U. S. Senate there have been few superior in brilliancy and power of argument to Alexander H. Stephens of Georgia, who weighed but about ninety pounds. But it is needless to dilate here. Much less is it a reason why men should enter the holy and awful calling of being an ambassador for Christ more than another man who happens to be small of stature. We read of one man who happened to be small of stature that on a certain day salvation came to his house; and that certainly was one good qualification why he should preach above one who had not had such an arrival. It occurs to me that a bullet from a minnie rifle, well directed, will do more execution than a paper wad from a big gun.

One must know Christ, and Christ must know him, before the acquaintanceship will spread much. One may spread an idea from town to town, and after all the people may know no more of Christ by personal experience than they did before. What would you think of a man who should introduce another to your confidence whom he did not know himself? Well, if any man succeeds in introducing Christ to a people, they never fail to find Christ a true friend, and Paul rejoiced that Christ was preached anyhow; but will a man who does not know Christ by a personal experience of his own long succeed in preaching him to others?

Paul said of himself that his "bodily presence was weak, and his speech contemptible." Yet Christ did that for that man which makes his influence felt to-day, eighteen hundred years this side, as no other man's is in divine things. We have never read that he had two Ds. affixed to his name, though he was entitled to a whole string. He would probably have cast them to the dung heap, with all the rest of his many qualifications of which flesh might boast if they had been tendered him. Christ came up over the horizon to that man's vision with such almost unutterable effulgence that all other considerations passed into the deadly nightshade of total eclipse. He knew all that the rest knew, and more too—he knew Christ, and pressed for the mark of the high calling to know more of him and the power of his resurrection, if it were to die in conformity to his death.

O what an object is Christ for all our powers! "THAT I MAY KNOW HIM"! That is the great goal to which our willing feet should press. Who ever fathomed his love? Who ever measured his grace? Who ever understood him fully? To whom is he not yet "the mystery of godliness, God manifest in the flesh," though he has been preached well on to two centuries? Men have quarrelled about his nature, and have at the same time advertised their ignorance of him and missed the mark. He has been on hand many a time when least expected. That will be so again one of these days! Ah! unless to know him ourselves and present him to others is our chief aim, our Christianity is at a low ebb.

OUR DENOMINATIONAL POSITIONS.

We say denominational because by right of divine calling, no less than by ecclesiastical and historical necessity, we are a denomination. If we refuse to denominate ourselves, the communities in which we live and worship God will be swift to denominate, or name, us. Any people worthy of being called of Jehovah to a particular work, and invested with special trusts, are entitled to distinctiveness—to be known of men by virtue and within the scope of their divine appointment. To be ashamed of being properly denominated, or named, is to shamefully ignore the wisdom and grace of God in setting us apart to a special purpose.

The saintly and statesmanlike heroism of Moses in "choosing to suffer affliction with the people of God," in distinction from all other peoples on earth, ought to challenge our admiration. And the majestic example of St. Paul, who abnegated everything that was flattering in human prospects, that his great intellectual gifts and affluent learning might be effectual for the truth, and for the people "everywhere spoken against," should rebuke any flinching among us, from the open recognition of our position and the full responsibility of our faith, and our appointed work. Never making war upon others, we should always and everywhere be true to ourselves. For nothing else will the Lord spew a people out of his mouth so soon as for holding the truth in unrighteousness.

The grounds of our denominational distinctiveness are clearly marked, and very broad. What are they? First, Adventists are the only people under the sun who are a unit in belief of the necessity and certainty of the personal and literal return of the Son of God to this world. Scattered through the denominations, as wheat sparsely growing among tares, may be found those who have "turned from idols to serve the living God, and to wait for his Son from heaven." But what religious people, as such, excepting the Adventists, confront the skepticism and infidelity of this age with the scriptural doctrine of our Lord's second personal coming? Should the voice of the Advent pulpit and press be silenced, the world would straightway forget that the Saviour had promised to return, and the judgment day would crash upon a guilty race without adequate warning. The certainty, solemnity, importance and prominence with which the New Testament invests the second advent, furnish imperative reasons for our denominational distinctiveness. To allow ourselves to be absorbed by non-Advent peoples would frustrate the divine purpose of merciful warning, to this last generation, of impending doom. To be sure the Lord might swiftly raise up or call out another people to resume our forfeited trusts and finish our deserted work; but that would not hide our ineffable unfaithfulness, nor cover our guilt in the day of reckoning. We have received and accepted our solemn charge and high responsibility at the hands of the most high God, and we can retreat only at the peril of the hot displeasure of Him who hath called us and anointed us to proclaim his words, standing between his threatened wrath and the unsheltered multitudes of self-blinded men.

And, second, more exclusively still the Adventists stand for the imminence of the day of the Lord. Of the few, scattered among the great denominations, who admit the literalness of the second coming, small indeed is the number who are seriously affected by the evidences of the nearness of that amazingly awful event. The Adventists alone, as a people, discern the "signs of the times," realizing that we are at the grand centre of a majestic group of transpiring scenes, prophetical and premonitory, which leave no room to doubt that the consummation is "near, even at the doors." Delivered from traditional mysticism, and reading the Scriptures in their own light, our people are able to see the convincing and culminating proofs of deliverance at hand, and through them God shines, as through a pillar of fire, on the deep darkness of these times.

The Advent message of judgment near sustains the relation to the destiny of this generation which Noah's preaching held to the wicked before the flood. As God's antediluvian messenger was necessary to the divine faithfulness and mercy then, so are they who are set to proclaim the final destruction necessary to Jehovah's purpose of tender admonition to the race of this time, upon whom the end of all things is ready to fall. Should Advent voices be hushed, utter and fateful silence would enwrap the world as to the imminence of the last act in the sad drama of earthly history. How august our positions! How imposing our responsibilities! How appalling would our denominational defection be!

Some may affect to believe that in the grand scope of the divine and gracious economy we are of insignificant account. But the "gifts and calling of God" are never of trifling import; and on dispensational proclamations turn the destinies of whole generations.

Moreover, the Adventists—particularly the "Crisis Adventists"—are openly and unanimously committed to the key-stone doctrine of conditional immortality. Clearly discerning in the glowing and focal light of the Scriptures, both the Old and the New, the necessity of the resurrection of the dead, they naturally and necessarily accept the real nature of man, and immortality as the gift of God, through Christ only. And our denominational position on this question alone is sufficient warrant for distinctive recognition of our calling and work. It is not egotistic to say that our pulpits and our literature have been a potent influence in awakening the widely spreading interest and inquiry concerning this most scriptural and important doctrine now manifested in all the denominations. The great truth once discovered that man is not innately immortal, and that for eternal life he must look to Christ and the resurrection, the necessity of the Saviour's return is clearly apparent, and all the doctrines of the Bible fall into a golden line of wonderful and resplendent accord.

Now in these great and inclusive truths our denominational unity arises; and from these controlling centers of doctrine we must work in all directions and on all scriptural lines, employing every instrumentality within our reach, aiming in all we preach and write and testify to promulgate the things of most importance and best adapted to edify and strengthen the household of faith, and arouse the slumbering masses to a sense of the terrible scenes that crowd so closely upon us.

Towards other Christian peoples we should be respectful, courteous, charitable. Censorship of others, from whom we differ, is no part of our calling. Christ is judge, and at his bar all must answer for themselves. Our work is to "preach the Word," in the love and power of it; and our Lord will take care of all the rest. With "love for all, and malice for none," let us be true to our appointed trusts.

The feeling that we are appointed to criticise and denounce others, and that other feeling that our own denominational distinctiveness is of no importance, are antipodal but equal follies. To create opposition by uncalled for attacks, and then fight the foes we have made, is both impolitic and unchristian. The tidings of our coming King are solemn enough, grand enough, inspiring enough to exhaust all the faculties and forces of our being, leaving nothing in us for others but love and good will. May the glory of our calling and the majesty of our message fill our heads and hearts and hands.

☞ PLEASE CUT THIS OUT AND KEEP IT.

We do not believe that one of our contributors would intentionally impose upon us burdens which belong to themselves. But carelessness on the part of many writers for the Crisis does load us with much perplexity and hard work that belongs to the writers and not to the Editors.

Will you cut this out and keep it on your desk where you cannot fail of seeing it when you are writing:

1. Write on ONE SIDE of the page only.
2. Leave a wide MARGIN for CORRECTIONS.
3. NEVER ABBREVIATE; spell all words in FULL.
4. VERIFY all quoted TEXTS.
5. NEVER write matter for the paper and business on the SAME SHEET. Doing so gives us a world of trouble.
6. NEVER write with a PENCIL.

Now these few simple things all our writers, even the most illiterate, can observe if they will. If you will do your duty in these regards we will take special pains to present your articles in the paper at their very best. But if any will pay no attention to these fair and kind requests they must not be surprised if their communications do not appear.

Take Special Notice.

We can NOT return articles which we do not publish. What is not worth COPYING is not worth PRINTING. And all this we say in love, and for the good of the writers as well as for the good of the paper.

PERSONAL.

We visited our dear Brother S. G. Mathewson at his quiet home in Worcester, a few days since, and found him up and able to be about, and to ride out occasionally. He is feeling hopeful, and expects to live till the Lord comes. We tenderly commend him to the prayerful remembrance of God's people, specially to the many who have listened to his preaching with so much interest and profit.

"Fly swifter round, ye wheels of time,
And bring the welcome day."

PREMATURELY ELATED.

The Editor of the Herald of Life, in his last issue, says:

"A few weeks ago Eld. Albion Ross said to me, 'I wonder that the Crisis brethren do not come over to your side of the house in a body; for holding, as you do with them, the materialistic view of man's nature, your conclusions are the only logical ones.' Yes, that is true; and we will welcome all the spiritual minded ones of their number to our ranks. The sooner they come along the better."

We congratulate the Editor of the Herald of Life on that crumb of comfort, which is hardly a crumb, because it happens that Bro. Albion Ross is not authorized to commit the "Crisis brethren" to the dogma of the non-resurrection of the wicked dead and its cognate fallacies. It is quite possible that "Crisis brethren" may feel competent to decide for themselves in matters of doctrine, and that they will abide in the truth whoever else may be left to turn away from it. If our dear Bro. Ross cannot see the difference in the doctrinal position of the "Crisis brethren" and that of the Herald brethren, it is fortunate that others can.

MUCH IMPROVED.

The Herald of Life comes to our table this morning in its changed and enlarged form, making a much improved and very neat appearance. We congratulate the Managing Board and the Editor upon their enterprise and good taste.

THAT LECTURE COURSE.

Eld. and Mrs. L. C. Mc Kinstry will start next week on their Western Lecture Course. These lectures have given unbounded satisfaction in the East, and we hope our people in the West will be sure to avail themselves of the pleasure and profit to be derived from attending the full course.

WESTERN EDITORIALS.

GOING BEFORE TO THE JUDGMENT.

Why will some persist in speaking of pardon as "sins going before to the judgment," while admitting that the judgment is not yet in session, and will not be till Christ returns? Sins cannot go before to a day yet future—cannot go to the judgment day before that day arrives. The text which is so often perverted in this way relates not to the day of final judgment, but simply to a display of temporal judgment from the divine hand, in advance of the final judgment, not by way of pardon, but of wrath visited upon offenders beforehand. The Revision thus renders the text: "Some men's sins are evident, going before unto judgment [condemnation;] and some men also they follow after. In like manner also there are good works that are evident; and such as are otherwise cannot be hid." 1 Tim. 5: 24, 25.

Some men's sins, being open to the world, receive open strokes of temporal judgment, while others get no such open condemnation in this life. Likewise the special temporal favor of the Lord is openly bestowed upon some that do good deeds in this life, while others are not the recipients of such blessings here. This is the sentiment of the text, and accords with observation. W. S.

OUR PROPHETIC WORK.

John the Baptist, though a meagre integral part of the religious world in his day, was the prophetic "voice of one crying in the wilderness, "Prepare ye the way of the Lord," being the forerunner of the Messiah's first Advent. The recognized religious officials of the church did not sanction John, nor receive his message; but he was nevertheless "a man sent from God," with a message "from heaven"—their unbelief could not obliterate that fact, nor was its meagre magnitude a justiying reason for spurning it. So in our day, the Second Advent has been heralded in fulfillment of prophecy—a prophetic cry has been given, not by the modern Sanhedrim of the Gentile church, nor under their sanction—men sent of God, having the great message burning like fire shut up in their bones, have taken their lives in their hands, leaving their reputation in the rear, and have gone out to cry aloud, "Behold, the Bridegroom cometh," and God will honor the move in the end in spite of mistakes.

Brief Personal Retrospect.

When but a boy, in 1842, being in my thirteenth year, I first heard the preaching of the Advent of Christ at hand—was thrilled by it, and entered the service of the Lord, believing the message was of divine origin. In 1843, with many others, we looked for the Lord, being then a lad in my fourteenth year. Again, in 1844, we looked with renewed confidence on the strength of the Autumn types. But time rolled on. We subsequently entered the ministry. With impaired health, in the month of June of the present year, we entered the fortieth year of our ministry, during the first week of which we baptized two, married one couple, organized one small church, preached four sermons, and attended one campmeeting. Never have we seen the time when we wished for health to use in this work more than now. It has been our privilege to aid in sounding the prophetic trumpet in twenty-two different States of the Union, besides in the Canadas.

We have seen some strange apostacies from the cause during this time, but this has not created a doubt in our mind as to the origin of the message; there were apostacies during the lives of the apostles, while they were confirming their mission by actually raising men from the dead. Then why should these things stagger us now? But our work is not all done. Though misunderstood by some, deserted by some, and perverted by others, this prophetic work is due in this last generation, and somebody must do it: "Blessed is that servant whom his Lord, when he cometh, shall find so doing." Who will do this work, if its friends do not? It is true that "hope long deferred maketh the heart sick," and that such sick ones can be found in our midst—sick of waiting and watching for Christ, and propose to ungird their loins, and seek repose, relaxing into extreme indefiniteness, becoming almost as indefinite as the nominal church was before the cry first aroused us; and some seek an excuse for this indefinite position in the excessive definiteness of those extremists who boldly rush in where angels dare not tread, in pointing out the very day and hour of the event—so like the pendulum of a clock they swing to the other extreme.

There are strong points of prophetic probabilities that we have no right to shut our eyes to, using probabilities as probabilities; and past excesses should not prevent this, though we should learn modesty of expression from past overpositive expressions. We need not expect knowledge so definite as to preclude watchfulness, nor make watchfulness so elastic as to neutralize prophetic time—both themes are of divine origin, and should not be made to conflict. But to hold this prophetic proclamation all right theoretically is not enough. We need a baptism of its spirit that will set us to work for God, to rescue the perishing multitudes that are almost upon the threshold of the judgment day, and are minus of hope. "Faith without works is dead"—or, a faith that does not produce works is a dead faith—so a prophetic faith that does not lead to activity, to vigorous works, lacks the spirit of divine life. A faith that will theorize all day, and argue all night, and combat in public and private, and is a stranger to the closet, and does not weep between the porch and the altar, and make earnest and tearful pleas to the ungodly, is a faith without a spirit—a lifeless faith—a theory not divinely vitalized.

A prophetic faith of the right kind will do a right prophetic work—a work of earnestness, filled with the spirit of God. A mere mental faith, that simply assents to a fact, but does not feel, and impart that feeling to others, is a faith that needs a new element added to it—divinity imparted—that will make it operative; a faith that will cry unto God day and night, and entreat the lost to accept salvation before the close of mercy's door. W. S.

PROPHETICAL.

"AND FROM THE TIME."

BY S. HALL.

The angel, in concluding the work for which he was commissioned, gave in his last visit to the prophet Daniel some additional instruction upon a matter that he did not yet understand, but which he was especially anxious to know; a matter, too, that would be of interest to God's people in the future, by making known that a marked and strange event would some time transpire, from which time the fiery trials through which the saints would pass would be more severe than ever. But with this he also gives the assurance that from that point there shall be reckoned certain measures of time, which he proceeds to give, of sufficient length to include the entire pilgrimage of the militant church. Such being the case, the inquiry would very naturally be as to what that was, and when it occurred.

In regard to that marked event the angel had previously foretold that a power would arise in its time called a "little horn," that would subdue three of the ten kingdoms of divided Rome. The evident reason for this was, that the evil designs which that power had in view could be more successfully carried out if these opposing kingdoms were brought into subjection, including the coveted city of Rome. The time of their conquest, therefore, forms an epoch from which began the period reaching to the time of rest.

Among those who have spoken and written on prophetic events, there has been to some extent a question as to which were these three, and at what time they were subdued. With the Adventists of our day there seems to have been no doubt that the Vandals and Ostrogoths were two of them, but which was the other? As many as four different ones have been named, but by looking into the matter there seems no more difficulty in deciding which than in either of the other two.

After a large portion of the church had so far apostatized as to seek an alliance with some strong power, so that by the force of arms they could compel all others to accept of what they called the orthodox or catholic faith, aiming to make this universal, they were gratified to know that to the Franks they could now look for the help they desired. After the pretended conversion and baptism of Clovis the king in 496, followed then and soon after by his whole army, there existed such a condition of things as made it plainly evident that the predicted career of that "other king whose look was more stout than his fellows" was ready for work.

The church was elated with the prospect of such aid, and the Brit. Encyc. says, "From this moment the firm alliance between the church and the Franks began, an alliance which affected both; the church became more warlike and aggressive, the Franks grew more civilized." Kitchin, His. France, says, "The Franks became the sword of the church; the church made the fortune of the Franks." Bryce, Rom. Emp. says, "The eager sympathy of the priesthood enabled the Franks to vanquish their Visigoth and Burgundian enemies." Menzel says, "From this period the Franks and the Roman bishops or popes mutually supported each other." Guizot, His. France, says the Pope hasted to express his joy to Clovis: "The church, our common mother, rejoiceth to have born unto God so great a king. Continue, glorious and illustrious son, to cheer the heart of this tender mother; be a column of iron to support her, and she in turn will give thee victory over all thine enemies." Gibbon says, "The eldest, or rather, the only son of the church was acknowledged by the clergy as their lawful sovereign or glorious deliverer, and the arms of Clovis were strenuously supported by the zeal and favor of the Catholic faction."

Now it appears very evident that the Burgundian kingdom, always named as one of the ten of divided Rome, was the first of the three "plucked up" by this new and strange power. That they were Christians professedly weighed nothing as long as they were not Catholics. It was a religious war, instigated by this church, readily begun and prosecuted by the military arm of the Franks. Clovis began the war, defeated and laid them under tribute, but the kingdom was not completely subdued until his sons, after his death, renewed the conflict and overthrew them in 532 or 34.

The next kingdom that it was decided should be overthrown in the interests of the Catholic faith was that of the Vandals, who in their religious belief were Arians. For this work help was sought from the emperor of the east, Justinian, a bigoted Catholic, who despatched an army for this purpose in June 533, of over 100,000 men, and within seven months, or as Curteis says, "By the close of the year [illegible] the Vandal kingdom was at an end, and Africa was once more made a province of the Roman empire for one hundred and fifty years."

The third kingdom that stood in the way was that of the Eastern or Ostrogoths in Italy, who were quite a formidable nation, but they were not orthodox, and must be uprooted. Within one year an army was raised by Justinian, placed under the command of the same able general, Belisarius, and after a prolonged war with alternate successes and reverses they were brought to submission in 554. Hallam says, "The dominion of the Ostrogoths was annihilated by the arms of Belisarius and Narses, and that nation appears no more in history."

As all hindrances seemed to be now taken out of the way, the combined power of an apostate church with that of the civil arm could insist upon the acceptance of whatever was declared to be the true faith, and subject all who refused to the direst consequences. This project was fully carried out, and for long centuries Christ's true church had a sorrowful experience.

But an exception might be taken to the view here presented, as it is opposed to the theory of Bishop Newton, who thought that the ten kingdoms of Rome might exist at a later date. After quoting from several annalists, who gave the division of Rome into ten kingdoms by the year 500, he proposed to "fix these ten kingdoms at a different era from any of the foregoing, and see how they stood in the eighth century"—observing, however, "Not that there were constantly ten; they were sometimes more and sometimes fewer, but as Sir I. Newton says, 'whatever was their number afterwards, they are still called the ten kings from their first number.'" An accommodating view, certainly.

The reason why he was anxious to find these ten at so late a date, as he informs us, was because he supposed that by this time the Pope had gained such temporal or civil power as really to become the little horn. But the reason evidently is not sound. And the three horns that he said were then plucked up, and the manner of the work, only increases doubt of its correctness.

A church, it is submitted, even an apostate church, or any ecclesiastical hierarchy is not, of itself, the little horn of prophecy any more than any civil government of itself, is such. The Romish church disclaims ever having put heretics to death; her province was to decide who were such, and turn them over to the civil power she was at the time allied with. It is of little importance when the Pope had bestowed on him the precarious authority of a temporal prince over the patrimony of St. Peter in Italy, or how long he retained it.

But the Bishop includes in his list of ten kings in the eighth century the Burgundians and Goths. Surely this must be on his supposition that there were then "fewer" than ten, for he could not mean that these two then existed. Godwin, His. France, says, "The sons of Clovis fiercely assailed the Burgundians, and reduced their whole country to subjection." The Encyc. Brit. says, "The Burgundian kingdom lasted till 534, then incorporated into the empire of the Franks. Gundeman was the last of the dynasty." Gibbon calls their subjection by the sons of Clovis "the final ruin of that kingdom." Howell, His. Rom. Emp. 1685, says, "The Burgundian kingdom came to its end in 532; the last king was slain by the sons of Clovis, who took possession of their fair territories." Bruce, Rom. Emp. says, "The Burgundian kingdom founded in 406, was destroyed by the sons of Clovis in 534." Collier, 1688, says, "Their last king, Gundeman, was slain in 532 or 4," adding, "Thus ended the kingdom of Burgundy which had lasted 126 years after their coming into Gaul, . . . and the kingdom was possessed by the Merovingian line of France, and continued in that crown for above 340 years." This would be till towards the close of the ninth century, and there is no evidence that they were ever after this an independent nation.

As to the Goths, it was not of course the Westro, or Visigoths in Spain that were subdued, for they were Catholics, but the Ostro or Eastern Goths in Italy were, in 554, as found in the histories of those times by Gibbon, and Howell, and Bowers, and never after regained their kingdom.

Wherever any nation has been conquered, very many people of that race or stock could afterwards be found. So it has always been since the subversion of the kingdom of the Amalekites. Thus it was with each of these nations. Their government overthrown, but the race not extinct. They were spoken of for a long time afterwards, but always as in a condition of vassalage or servitude—no king or kingdom after their subjection at the time here given.

Bishop Newton includes in his list of ten kings found in the eighth century the Alemanic. There seems to be a failure of history to show that such a kingdom had an existence after it was overthrown by Clovis the Frank while he was a pagan conqueror, and before the little horn power was developed. Gibbon appears to have stated a fact, as other historians attest, in saying that their last king was slain, his people slaughtered and pursued till they threw down their arms in submission, and were then "graciously permitted to enjoy their peculiar institutions under the government of official, and at length, of hereditary dukes." The time during which these temporary or official dukes were appointed, continued till the seventh century, when, as we learn from Hallam, "the hereditary succession of their dukes was tolerably established."

The titles of duke and earl, as Collier says, were for a long time known under the empire, but "the empire declining, those dignities were abolished by some of the kingdoms, but kept by the Franks, who, probably to imitate the Romans, established some in their new conquests, as the Suabians or Alemanes when subjected by Clovis." Though in subjection, as they were a brave people they would very likely be sometimes employed in military exploits, as in the Gothic war.

Howell says, "The Franks had dominion over the Alemanes when two dukes, Leutharis and Butilanus, went to the assistance of the Goths in 552," and that they called Theodobald, the Frank, their king. Their kingdom had long since ended.

During the Gothic war there were engaged in it as allies, Franks, Burgundians, Germans, Alemanes, Lombards, and help [illegible] only as the Gothic war, as it really was. Justinian made no war upon any of these allies in distinction from the Goths, but of course his purpose was to conquer whoever composed the Gothic army.

It seems undeniable that the Burgundian, Vandal, and Gothic kingdoms were subverted by that little horn power; and if the records of the past make anything clear and to be relied upon, how shall it be doubted that the work foretold by the angel was accomplished in 554, or that there is the place for beginning the 1290 and 1335 years of Dan. 12.

Beginning thence, the 1290 would extend to 1844, at which time the sincere expectations and hopes of a large body of Christian people were suddenly checked. From misapprehending our position we believed, among other things, that we had come to the close of the 1335 years (beginning them, of course, at an earlier date), when we had only to come, as is now evident, to the close of the 1290 years; and under the sad disappointment there was from that time no other way for us but to wait; and wait we must until the lapse of time brings us to the end of the 1335 years, then the whole church of God is promised a rest.

Though on some prophecies opinions vary, there is here a general agreement that with the ending of these years, whenever that may be, comes the resurrection and restitution. And in this instance, at least, the angel Gabriel is authorized to promise a time of blessedness to the saints, and with the promise also to give the length of the time, from certain events named, that reaches to it.

COMPLIMENTARY.

Bro. and Sr. Mc Kinstry have just closed the course of their interesting lectures on "Redemption" and the "World's Great Empires," and have endeared themselves to the people. At the close of Mrs. Mc Kinstry's lecture last Sunday evening, a resolution complimentary to them was adopted by a rising vote of the great congregation. So great has been the interest that it was thought best to have preaching in the same hall next Sunday, and Bro. Mc Kinstry is to send us a preacher. May the good Lord bless his word.

Resolved unanimously that the heartfelt thanks of this audience be tendered to Eld. and Mrs. L. C. Mc Kinstry for their wonderfully interesting and instructive course of lectures on "Redemption" and the World's Great Empires."

Resolved, that we appreciate their ability, masterly memory, and oratorical powers as well as the truths so clearly portrayed, and fully recommend them to all who may fortunately come within their reach.

Adopted by a rising vote by the great congregation, and voted to send a copy of the resolution to the World's Crisis for publication. SAMUEL BECK, Secretary.

Fiskdale, Mass.

REPORT OF LABORS.

Bro. Stockman.—I have been at Addison two Sundays, and have been able to preach to the people who love to hear the Bible promises repeated, even if they have heard them before. This morning we had a splendid hail shower of an hour. The hail-stones were not icy but snowy, and as round and as large as peas. They came thick and fast, but soon turned to snow and rain, and this depleted our congregation. But the hungry were there, some coming ten miles and more. We did the best we could to instruct them in the gospel that saves to the uttermost. We had a goodly number over fourscore to listen with a relish that inspires so that the words come easy and give you living notes to depend upon. I find that the old disciples come out when the younger ones stay at home.

It is a time when but few express a desire to be saved by the gospel of grace, especially if it must have the Lord's coming and the judgment, where we shall all appear, on the end of it. I shall remain awhile longer in this delightful Lake Champlain valley, doing what little I can for the blessed cause of my Master. Jesus and his coming is my theme. O that men would flee the wrath to come.

L. BOUTELLE.

FROM M. R. MILES.

Bro. Stockman:—I am glad you are still in the editorial chair. You would have had my vote if I had been at the convention. I suppose Bro. Haines cast the vote of New York the same as though all of the delegates had been there. We would like to have enjoyed the meeting, but thought we could do more good preaching the gospel where there were not so many ministers. We have been at home part of the summer, but we have done some mission work.

Since the last of May we have traveled several hundred miles, preached forty-four [illegible] tended thirty prayer meetings, baptized twenty-two and helped in building a chapel at Geneva, which will be ready for dedication soon. It will be a good, commodious house. We think it will be paid for when it is dedicated. We expect to attend the dedication and spend some time with the people at Geneva and vicinity, the Lord will. We are glad the Crisis is to be enlarged and that Bro. Couch is to have a corner to write on prophecy. It has been my mind for several years that the Crisis should be enlarged.

SOUTHERN GA. CONFERENCE.

Dear Brother:—Since writing the notice of our Southern Georgia Conference, to be opened on the 18th, the deluge of water upon the city of Augusta has caused the great National Exposition to be deferred to Nov. 10, to run till Dec. 15. So the Exposition will not be in operation at the time of our Conference, as stated in the notice. We hope the putting off of the Exposition will not cause any of the dear ones to fail to attend the Conference.

As several brethren abroad have inquired of me in regard to lands for sale suitable for comfortable homes in this part of Georgia, I will answer it in few words, that several homes can be purchased in this and adjoining counties, near enough to the Augusta market and railroad facilities, and I think on easy terms. We would be glad if our Northern brethren would procure homes among us. I, for one, feel that we all belong to one great family, with one common Father. Come, brethren, to the Conference, see for yourselves, and enjoy the feast. May the Lord bless and save us all in the kingdom. JNO. HOWARD.

Wrens, Jefferson Co., Ga.

INVITATION.

To the Brethren, Sisters and Friends of the No. Ill. Conf., Greeting:—The church in De Kalb extends to you a special invitation to be present at this session of Quarterly Conference, Oct. 11th to 14th. The church desires a full meeting, and is prepared to care for all that come. If you believe the coming of the Lord is near at hand, come. If you have a desire to labor for souls, and if love for the perishing is like fire shut up in your bones, come. If you are cold, subject to chills, or in any sense feel that you are below the full stature of a man in Christ, come. Make a special effort to come. If not met at the depot, inquire for the writer, or for Temperance Hall. For the church.

J. NELSON POTTER, Pastor.

SECULAR NEWS.

FOREIGN.

PARIS, Oct. 4. It is officially stated that the government was much surprised by the impression produced abroad by President Carnot's decree in regard to foreigners intending to reside in France. It is pointed out that former cabinets have examined the question and came to a favorable conclusion in regard to it. No foreign power has offered any observation to the government in relation to the decree, the legality of which is based upon article 471 of the penal code.

DUBLIN, Oct. 4. Cardinal Moran, archbishop of Sydney, N. S. W., upon the occasion of his presentation with the freedom of the city of Dublin, declared that Australia, together with Ireland, would struggle for legislative freedom.

WHO IS THE WHITECHAPEL MURDERER?—The terrible series of eight murders in London has been productive of an extraordinary amount of theoretical discussion and apparently no effective, practical measures of discovering the murderer. In each case the scene has been in Whitechapel, one of the most dangerous regions of the city; the victim has been a degraded woman of the lowest class, and the process of murder has been accomplished with fiendish mutilation. Upon these evident facts there has been built a network of theories, chiefly in regard to the character of the murderer. One set of medical experts pronounce the unknown man a maniac, pure and simple. Others read the testimony of the inquests in a different way. They say that there were shown indications of anatomical knowledge which were only less indicated in consequence of haste, and that the work was done with a lust, it is true of the savage, but with a skill which was more that of a scientist than of a wandering lunatic. One physician declares that the Whitechapel murderer is a cannibal, and cites as authority of similar cases that of Giles de Rets, the original Blue Beard of the reign of Louis XV., who slaughtered 200 female children in the same way as the Whitechapel butcher. A return of the lowest instincts of cannibalism may be possible when "checks imposed by centuries of civilization are removed by disease or by defects inherited from degenerate parents."—Her.

ITALY AND THE PAPACY.—It is said that the Holy See regards as a fresh affront the new penal code which the Italian Chamber adopted almost unanimously. Article 173 declares punishable by a year's imprisonment and a fine of 1000 francs any minister of religion who, in the exercise of his function, shall publicly censure or vituperate the institutions or laws of the State, or the acts of the authorities. Article 174 prescribes imprisonment of from six months to three [illegible] of from 1500 to [illegible] francs, and permanent or temporary interdiction from his functions for an ecclesiastic who, "abusing the moral force derived from his ministry, shall excite others to ignore the institutions or laws of the State, or the acts of the authorities, or otherwise to transgress the duties owed to the State, or those attaching to a public office, or who shall prejudice legitimate patrimonial interests or disturb the peace of families."—Her.

—The superstition of the lower classes of Naples was recently illustrated in a striking manner. Some workmen who were engaged in repairs on a palace, in knocking down the stucco of the facade, discovered on the wall the picture of a Madonna and child, and soon uncovered the whole without injuring it. The rumor of the discovery soon spread, and in less than an hour the street was full of people. "Ah!" cried a woman, "look at those shining eyes, and that rosy, smiling mouth?" And she knelt down and began to recite the "Ave Maria." Other women went about crying "A miracle! a miracle!" and collected coppers wherewith to buy wax candles, and, as if by magic, a splendidly illuminated altar was soon erected beneath the picture.

DOMESTIC.

OSWEGO, N. Y., Oct. 5. A frightful collision occurred near Hannibal station, on the Rome, Watertown and Ogdensburg Railroad, at eight o'clock this morning. A Lehigh Valley passenger train, using the Rome, Watertown and Ogdensburg tracks between Oswego and Sterling Junction, collided with a wildcat train from Oswego on a curve in a deep cut. The wildcat was running, it is said, 50 miles an hour, and the Lehigh Valley train about 40. They come together with a terrific crash, and the two locomotives were smashed in a thousand pieces and several cars were demolished. Engineer Slatterly of the wildcat remained on his engine with his hand on the lever and was instantly killed, the lever going through his body. His fireman, John Riley, jumped but was caught in the wreck and frightfully scalded. Conductor Moss and Brakeman Thomas Massey of the wildcat were also badly injured.

A. E. Hatch was the engineer of the Lehigh Valley. He and his fireman jumped. The latter escaped, but Hatch was badly cut about the head and scalded. Julius Smith, the baggageman, and M. Westgate, conductor, [illegible] in the baggage car eating lunch when [illegible] crash came. Both were injured, and Westgate may die. The wreck will not be cleared before night. It is said the crew of the wildcat attempted to make one more station than ordered.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 5. A horrible tale of widespread destitution comes from Ramsey Co., Dakota, where the entire population is said to be on the verge of starvation. Mayor Smith received yesterday an appeal signed by county officials and prominent citizens of Ramsey, urging the people of St. Paul to take steps at once to alleviate the distress existing in the county. The appeal for aid is accompanied by a statement to the effect that recent frosts destroyed thousands of bushels of wheat and left destitute the residents of all but one of the townships in the county. Application has been made to the county authorities for assistance, but it has been discovered that the want is so great that it would financially ruin the county to attempt to alleviate it.

Jacksonville, Fla., Oct. 8. Dr. Neal Mitchell, president of the board of health, has issued the following official bulletin for the 24 hours ending at 6 P. M.: New cases, 52; deaths, 6; total cases, 3022; total deaths, 27[illegible]. Of the new cases, 15 are white and [illegible] colored.

FIFTY YEARS IN THE CHURCH OF ROME.

BY FATHER CHINIQUY.

Truly vivid, fascinating, and tragic. No history like it since Luther.

There is no book upon the Romish controversy so comprehensive as this. It is a complete picture of the inner workings, aims and objects of Popery. It is from the experience of a living witness, and challenges contradiction. It is a large but very valuable work, and is fast becoming a standard authority. No lover of his country should remain ignorant of its contents. A handsome volume of 832 pages, printed on clear type, on fine tinted paper. It is bound in strong cloth, marbled edges, and gilt stamp on side and back. Contains two portraits (one representing him in priestly robes) of the venerable Author.

New edition just out, containing several full page engravings. Reduced to $2.25. Postage 20 cents extra when sent by mail.

THE PRIEST, THE WOMAN, AND THE CONFESSIONAL.

Terrible, but True Revelations.

BY FATHER CHINIQUY.

To understand the evil results which arise from the practice of Auricular Confession, it is necessary that the testimony of a reliable witness be given. Such is that of the author, who held prominent positions in the priesthood for many years. The book has had a mission for good, and has awakened a desire amongst all classes of the people to unearth the iniquities and abominations connected with this doctrine, and hold them up to the light of day, that the people may see that there is but One to whom we must confess, and he is not a Romish priest. 296 pages 8vo, with portrait of the Author.

New edition just out, containing several full page engravings. Regular price $1.00. Reduced to 75 cts. Postage 10 cts. extra when sent by mail.

ROMANISM, THE DANGER AHEAD.

The Reason why a good Roman Catholic cannot be a good citizen of this Republic.

BY A. J. GROVER.

In this pamphlet of over a hundred pages the writer has given to the people of America statements of facts and figures which they will do well to reflect upon. The prospect for the future of the United States is not encouraging. Too much cannot be said or written against the evils of Romanism. Let this book have a wide circulation. Price: Paper 40 cts. Reduced to 25 cts. postpaid. Sold at the Crisis Office.

ROMANISM AND REFORMATION, from the Standpoint of Prophecy. By Rev. H. Grattan Guinness, author of "Light for the Last Days," "Approaching End of the Age," etc. Contents: Daniel's Foreview of Romanism; John's Foreview of Romanism; Paul's Foreview of Romanism; Interpretation of this Triple Prophecy in Pre-Reformation Times, and its Practical Effect: Its Interpretation in Post-Reformation Times, and Practical Effect; Double Foreview of the Reformation in Old Testament Types and New Testament Prophecies. For sale at the "Crisis" Office. Price 1.50.

6000 YEARS OF GENERAL HISTORY

made easy to remember by

ADAMS' HISTORICAL CHART.

ON ROLLERS, linen-mounted, entire, adapted for attachment to Wall or Blackboard. $15.00.

PORTFOLIO FORM, in half binding, the Chart linen-mounted, and folded to leaf as a book, capable of extension. $15.00.

BOOK FORM, in cloth, the Chart paper-mounted, folded and bound, not extended. $10.00.

The above to be sent by express, or mail prepaid.

The object of Adams' Chart is to Picture History; to so arrange and tabulate the subjects of history that Men, Events and Nations may be located in time, by being seen in their positions on the Chart, as the School Atlas locates places; to enable the reader to readily ascertain the contemporaneous events of the whole world, decade by decade, and century by century, throughout all historic time, by simply tracing the dated line across the face of the Chart. The march of fifty-nine centuries is delineated, and the great transactions of the world—national, civil, military, religious, maritime, architectural, inventive and literary—with the advent of great men, all are pictorially represented in their time relations, so that an accurate outline of history may be rapidly and easily acquired.

A Circular giving full information will be sent free on application.

NOTICES.

THE BIBLICAL INSTITUTE.

As a number have written us saying that they intended commencing the course of study in the A. C. G. B. I. this autumn, this is to say to all such, and to any others who intend or wish to do so, that we desire very much that all such inform us of their intentions at once, that we may arrange for them to commence. We wish also that all who have our examination questions will return them, whether answered or not, as they are of value and it is a great disadvantage not to have them.

L. C. McKINSTRY, Principal, Haverhill, Mass., Box D.

SOUTHERN GEORGIA CONFERENCE.—The next Annual Conference of our churches will be held with Minton's Chapel, in Johnson County, commencing OCT. 18th, and hold over Sunday. The great National Exposition will be in progress several days at the same time in the city of Augusta, Georgia, giving ample time to attend both with but a small amount over the expense of one. We hope to have the presence and counsel of the most zealous and consecrated Adventists. JER. HOWARD, Secretary.

NOTICE.—Brethren of the Prov. Quebec, Northern Vt., and Northern N. H. Conference, where shall our next annual meeting be held? The time is drawing nigh and will soon be here, if Jesus does not come before or by that time, and we want to be able to make the best arrangements we can with railroads, etc., and get the notice into the Crisis in good season. So please send in your invitations at once to Elder HARRY D. SELBY, Hatley, Quebec, Secretary of Conference.

NOTICE.—A special meeting will be held with the church at Middle Simonds, Carleton Co., N. B., commencing Thursday, OCT. 18, and continue over the following Sabbath. A general invitation is extended to all the brethren and sisters to attend and assist in the work of the Lord. S. WOODWORTH.

MAINE STATE CONFERENCE.

The annual session of the Maine State A. C. Conference will be held at Lewiston, Maine, OCT. 10th to 14th inclusive. The church at Lewiston have extended a unanimous and cordial invitation to the brethren and sisters in Maine to come up and worship the Lord together. And here we wish to say that this conference is not wholly nor mostly for business, but is, as our constitution specifies, to give the brethren and sisters an extra occasion to meet together for the worship of God and building up of his cause. We hope all will so regard it, and make an extra effort to attend, and that many churches and societies that have not heretofore will this year elect and send delegates, and we hope some of the preachers who have not attended before will come this year.

ART. 3, Sec. 2, of constitution reads: "Each church or society shall be allowed one delegate, and one additional delegate for every twenty actual members, said delegates to be elected by the church or society which they represent, and to be provided with a certificate of election attested by recording officer of the same. The time recording officer shall also with the certificate of election certify to the actual membership of the church or society. These delegates hold their membership until the next annual session of conference.

NOTE.—By church is meant a regularly organized body of believers in covenant relation, with properly appointed officers. By society is meant any body of believers working in co-operation with us, meeting habitually for the worship of God, and so far set in order as to have a properly appointed clerk, and a record of their doings as a body.

We would call the attention of our preachers to Art. 7: "It shall be the duty of each preacher to be present at the sessions of conference, and when not able, to report by letter."

We would also call attention to Art. 9, part of Sec. 3: "Candidates for ordination or license must present to the committee (of ordination or license) a letter of recommendation from a quarterly conference or church within the State."

Our conference has been growing in numbers and increasing in interest each year, and we hope for a large increase this year. The committee of entertainment are Frank E. Davis, Auburn; S. Collins, Jonas Street, Lewiston; and Henry W. Westcott, 122 7th Street, Auburn, who will see that homes are provided for all.

The Maine Central R. R. will give return tickets at one fare. Call for tickets to Maine State Advent Christian Conference. Tickets will be on sale only the 10th and 11th. We hope all will come then, but if any cannot come till later, they should purchase tickets on those days. We hope all the preachers who can will come at the first, and remain over Sunday, it takes away so much from the interest of the meeting to have many go away.

O. S. FRENCH, President.
E. O. DINSMORE, Secretary.

NOTICE.—The next session of the Kennebec County Advent Quarterly Conference will be held at the Booker meeting-house, South Gardiner, Me., commencing Thursday evening, OCT. 18th, and hold over the following Sunday. THE HOLY CITY.

BY THOMAS B. WILSON.

For thee to-night my heart is yearning,
Fair city of the loved and blest;
To thee my thoughts are ever turning,
Sweet home of peace and rest.

When shall I see thy starry portals,
Thy gates of pearl, thy streets of gold,
And with the shining ones immortal,
The city of my love behold?

When shall I see the crystal river,
Flowing from the throne of God,
The tree of life that blooms forever,
To bless the nations all abroad?

When shall I see the many mansions
In my Father's house so fair?
When shall I meet my blessed Saviour,
And his glorious image bear?

Here a pilgrim and a stranger,
Up and down the earth I roam,
Longing, 'mid my toil and danger,
To see my bright eternal home.

For thee to-night my heart is yearning,
Jerusalem, the blest above.
Dear Lamb of God, haste thy returning,
And bring the city of my love.

Roxbury, Mass.

MISSION WORK IN WESTERN NEW YORK.

BY C. H. SWEET.

Our tent meetings at Honeoye commenced Sunday, Aug. 26, and closed the following Sunday evening. The one Protestant church in the place so threw their influence against us that we found it quite impossible to get much of a hearing. The few who did attend became deeply interested, and were made sad by our early leave-taking. A member of one of the most ungodly families in the place came to me at the close of the last service, and extended to me her tearful thanks for the good the meeting had done her. Had we been in a hall instead of the tent, we would have remained longer; but we felt as though there were other localities where the tent could be used to much better advantage.

One of these localities was Carney Hollow, a district in the southeastern part of the town of Springwater, and I removed the tent to that place with the least possible delay. Bro. G. F. Haines was with me during the most of my stay at Honeoye, but could not assist me in removing to and commencing the work at Carney Hollow, his duties as delegate to the S. A. C. Association calling him to Aurora, Ill., just then. I succeeded in getting the tent repitched the following Thursday, but stormy weather and other unfavorable circumstances prevented our holding any public service before Saturday evening. Bro. F. L. Piper came to my aid the following Tuesday, and remained three evenings, not only affording me needed relief, but adding much to the interest and profit of the meetings.

We found only a very few Christians ready to enter at once upon the good work with us, but we were well received by the great mass of the people, and were accorded a much better hearing than any gospel minister has been able to obtain there for a number of years. The weather proved so cold and stormy that we were compelled to strike the tent before we had succeeded in working up very much of an interest, our closing service being held Sunday evening, Sept. 16th. What little work we did was productive of such apparent results as the thorough conversion of one of the most intelligent and influential ladies in the place, the return to the fold of God of two heart-wanderers, the complete deliverance from the power of Satan of one young man who arose for prayers during our tent meetings at Wright's, and such a revulsion of feeling towards Adventists as led to our being offered free access to a church which was once closed against our people, on the ground that we were not considered a Christian denomination.

I was not only urged to give them an appointment whenever I could, but was particularly requested to expound some of the doctrines which distinguish us as a people. During my stay at Carney Hollow, I was called upon to conduct the funeral services of a young man who was killed by falling from a high building, which he was engaged in painting. His home was at Wright's, and he was one of a goodly number who were deeply affected by our faithful preaching of the present truth when we were there with the tent. He did not make a public profession of religion, but he told several friends that he never before listened to preaching that commended itself to his judgment or stirred his heart as that did. He further declared himself fully convinced that we had the truth, and that he had decided to live a better life. Whether he so far acted up to his convictions as to seek and obtain a pardon of his sins is an open question with his surviving friends. A young man who was with him at the time of the accident, and who was also under conviction during the tent meetings, was so impressed with the danger of further delay that he embraced the first opportunity he had to publicly declare his determination to devote the remainder of his life to the service of Christ.

As I could remain in that section only about one week longer, and as it appeared to me that more could be accomplished at Wright's during that time than at Carney Hollow, I went over to the former place and commenced meetings in their school-house Tuesday evening, Sept. 18th, and closed them Sunday evening, Sept. 23d. In addition to the young man before mentioned as having been so much affected by the sudden death of his friend, a remarkably well-read man and his wife were converted, and took hold of the work of the Lord with such a well directed zeal as is not often seen among modern converts.

Circumstances compelled me to come home this week to hunt up a tenement and move my family, hence I could not follow up this work as I would have liked to do. But as soon as I have succeeded in getting my family settled in their new home, I shall return to that field we have been cultivating so successfully this summer. I think we can organize several new churches this fall, and arrange a circuit that will give some faithful Adventist minister a good support.

I wish to add that we are greatly indebted to our dear Bro. G. F. Haines for the success that has attended our tent work this summer. He has not only freely given very much of his time during the tent season, even at the expense of his already failing health, but had paved the way for the tent in the two places where we have been most successful, by the self-sacrificing efforts he has put forth there from time to time during the past year or two. Our thanks are also due to the church at Springwater for their kindly interest, as manifested in permitting Bro. Haines to be with me Sunday evenings, and also on their prayer meeting nights. Neither should we forget to thank Bro. F. L. Piper and the Rochester church for their sympathy and valuable assistance. May our heavenly Father richly bless and abundantly reward each and every one who has in any way contributed to the success of this summer's tent work in western New York.

The members of our Western N. Y., A. C. Home Missionary Society will be pleased to learn that we have got through the summer's campaign at an expense to the Society of less than ten dollars. I trust that the Executive Board will now see their way clear to put a man into the field with me, for I cannot believe that Western New York Adventists will withhold their contributions from a mission that is doing so much for the spread of the light of present truth, and for the salvation of sinners.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S SOCIETY OF CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

As no mention of this society has been made in our denominational paper, the Crisis, I have felt impressed to say a few words respecting it. About seven years ago the present month, the Rev. Francis E. Clark, then pastor of the Baptist church at Portland, Me., wishing to enlist the services of the young people of his community in religious work, organized the above named society, which has been so blessed of God that it has been enabled to encircle the globe, and persuade thousands of the young to enlist under its banners and bravely fight in the service of the great King.

The seventh convention has just closed at Chicago, where nearly five thousand young people, representing every State and Territory in the Union, as well as the lands beyond the sea, and embracing members of all denominations, met together in the great Armory Hall of Battery D. and expressed their determination to work for God while life should last, that they might win "a crown of glory that fadeth not away," and hear the glad "Well done" from the pure lips of the Master, when he shall come to make up his jewels.

The society is divided into two branches, the active force and the associate membership. It is required of each active member that he or she take some part, however slight, in each meeting. Thus it will be seen that these members are schooled to do efficient work in the vineyard of the Master, and by their lives are constantly whispering to their companions the beautiful sentence, "Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth." And these companions, seeing their good works, and that they are leading lives consistent with the glorious religion they profess, are many times led to enter upon that "strait and narrow way" that broadens and deepens as they wander therein, and finally ends in perfect peace, lasting happiness, abiding rest.

By the report of the Secretary at the convention it is learned that there are now over 4,879 Societies of Christian Endeavor at work in the world, with a membership of more than 310,000. In New York alone there are more than nine hundred of these organizations, and in Massachusetts nearly six hundred, and the movement is yet in its infancy. Is it not indeed pleasant to find so many of the young of the land actively at work for the upbuilding of the kingdom of God? Let us join hands with them, brethren and sisters, interest ourselves in aiding them to persevere in this good work, that promises to be fraught with so much good to frail humanity; and by so doing the number of those who shall sit down to the marriage supper of the Lamb will be increased, and God will bless us more abundantly, yea, our cup of gladness will be full to overflowing. OUR CONFERENCE.

The second quarterly session of the Bristol and Plymouth Counties A. C. Conference was held with the church in Fall River, Mass., commencing Tuesday evening, Sept. 18th, and holding through the following Friday evening. The session was quite fully attended, and was a season of blessing to the Fall River church and to many others. The dedication of the neat new chapel occurred Wednesday evening of this session, the sermon being delivered by Eld. Wm. A. Burch of New Bedford. The house was filled with people, and when the sermon closed Eld. Rufus Wendell made some remarks in such a way that there was pledged toward the indebtedness of the church $210. His remarks were highly appreciated by the Fall River church, as also by the Conference.

The preachers present during the session were Elders Wendell, Burch, Thatcher, Mosher, Stanton, and Bro. H. W. Bowman. The preaching was good and the congregations were excellent, notwithstanding the very unpleasant weather. We left the Fall River church much pleased with their new home and its location, and trust God will add unto them such as shall be saved. A business meeting was held Thursday morning, Eld. F. S. Stanton, President in the chair. After prayer by Eld. B. F. Mosher, Bro. H. W. Bowman was chosen Secretary pro tem.

The Treasurer's report was read and accepted. The report of labors of our Evangelist was given, and showed an encouraging condition of the cause in our little churches. Report was accepted. The following churches and interests were reported: Fall River, Taunton, Fairhaven, New Bedford, Attleboro Falls, Middleboro, Brockton, Plainville, Mattapoisett, Whitman, No. Hanson, Matthewson Sq., New Boston, Tinkhamtown, Braley's Station, Acushnet, Tremont and Plymouth. The reports were listened to with much interest.

A unanimous rising vote of thanks was tendered the Fall River church for their kind entertainment of this Conference. Reports of labors were given by Brn. Wendell, Burch, Bowman, Thatcher and Mosher. There were two business sessions during the Conference. Adjourned.

H. W. BOWMAN, B. F. MOSHER, Secretaries, pro tem.

IF we would be useful to others in a spiritual direction we must put on Christ. We must be animated by his Spirit, and go forth to our work in his strength.

FROM AN AGED "ANNA."

Bro. Stockman:—My eyes have grown dim by reason of advanced age, so that I cannot read the Crisis as I would be glad to do, but my hearing is quite good, and I have the privilege of hearing it read by the good people where I now reside—at Bro. Dunn's, North Springfield, Vt. The Crisis is a weekly visitor here, and I enjoy hearing it read very much. I was one hundred years old last August, the 29th day. The Lord's goodness and mercy have followed me, and been with me all this long journey, and I cannot find words to express my thanks and praise to his holy name.

I gave my heart to Jesus when only ten years of age, and he has been exceeding good to me, and always true to his promise. I love him still, and long to see him in whom my soul delighteth, and be made like him. I came out among the Methodists, and the first part of my religious life for many years was with that devoted people. Then they were humble and separate from the world, and could easily be known by their plainness and simplicity of dress and godly life. But, alas, I fear that many have in these last days departed from the simplicity of Christ, and drifted into pride and fashion. The Lord have mercy upon his professed people, and help them to continue in the faith once delivered to the saints.

I heard the message by Bro. Miller, "Behold, the Bridegroom cometh!" and I believed it because it was in the Bible. I embraced the truth, and although my mind did not fix upon definite time, I believed it very near. The Lord told me then, through his Word, "If the vision tarry, wait for it; for it will surely come, it will not tarry." So from that time until now I have been waiting like Simeon and Anna for the kingdom to come and for the consolation of Israel. I can say with the poet,

"Fly swifter round, ye wheels of time,
And bring the welcome day."

I feel homesick, and long to see how it looks in the new earth. I love his appearing, and as old as I am, I would rather live to see him come than to die and go down to the grave. But the Lord's will be done. I am not afraid to die, for if I do it will be only a little while, a short sleep, and with David "I shall be satisfied when I awake in his likeness."

The people here had an anniversary meeting on my one hundredth birthday, which I attended, and was blessed in so doing. It was an impressive meeting. The Lord bless it to all is my prayer. I have attended meeting at the A. C. Church here several times this summer to listen to the words of life, for which privilege I give praise to God. May the Lord help us to be faithful, and keep all the waiting ones from pride and all evil, so that when the King in his beauty comes, as he soon will, we may truly say, "Lo, this is our God, we have waited for him. This is the Lord, we will be glad and rejoice in his salvation."

LUCINDA FLETCHER.

CORRESPONDENCE.

FROM J. W. McCULLIN.

Bro. Stockman:—If you will be so kind as to allow me a little space in the dear old Crisis, I will endeavor to tell the Brn. and Srs. of like precious faith what the good Lord has done lately in this part of his vineyard, through the preaching of one of his servants. Our beloved and esteemed brother, Eld. Isaac W. King, of Wilmington, held a series of meetings with the two churches, Salem and Jones' Chapel, of both which he is pastor, commencing Sept. 15th, and continuing till the 24th. The meetings resulted in the conversion of nineteen who were baptized, and sixteen from other churches, some Methodists, some Missionary Baptists, some Quakers, a number of Freewill Baptists, and one Baptist preacher. These have all come out of the mist of darkness and have become the children of light through the preaching of truth.

Error has vanished and the true light now shineth. All glory be to God. There are yet more to come. They are almost persuaded, and will without a doubt board the old Advent ship at our next meeting. Baptism was administered at Williams' mills on the evening of the 23d, in the presence of a large and attentive congregation. Bro. King buried the candidates in a liquid grave, exhorting them that like as Christ rose from the dead, they also should rise to walk in newness of life.

Eld. King is a powerful preacher, and wields his sword mightily, to the dividing asunder of truth and error. The sectarian spirit was driven away like chaff before the wind, and all denominations seemed to join hands with us in perfect love and union. Brn. and Srs., pray to the good Lord to help us to do still more for the spread of his last message to a ruined world, and to make us able through faith and obedience to obtain a crown of life that shall not fade away. Your Bro. in hope of eternal life.

Mt. Olive, N. C.

FROM ELD. JAMES PERRIN.

Bro. Stockman:—I see in the Crisis of Sept. 12th, the heading, "Mission tent, northern Michigan," an appeal to the brethren and sisters for funds to start a mission tent, and to get it into the field at once. Now, dear friends, you that claim to be children of the coming King, do not let this appeal for means go unheeded. Come up to the help of the cause at once. Bro. English is as true to the cause as is the needle to the pole. Every cent that is donated will be judiciously used in the cause. The sign of the Son of man will soon be seen, as we verily believe. Then comes the fulfillment of Isa. 2: 19–21, "In that day a man shall cast his idols of silver, and his idols of gold, which they made each one for himself to worship, to the moles and the bats, to go into the clefts of the rocks, and into the tops of the ragged rocks for fear of the Lord and for the glory of his majesty, when he ariseth to shake terribly the earth."

May the Lord help us all to be found with the harness on. A word to Bro. English. When you get the tent in operation and can do no better in the line of help in preaching, send the writer word. All my charge will be to see that I have about $2 per week. That will board me. Had I means I would furnish my own board, for I had rather be found in a tent contending earnestly for these dispensational truths, than in any other place on earth. May God bless the effort.

Manchester, Mich.

FROM SR. ALICE R. PALMER.

I was thinking when I was reading the Crisis that I would like to write a few lines, as I have an opportunity to do so. I have a great many trials and temptations, but the Lord knows all about them. He knows where I am, and how I am and all my circumstances. I do thank the Lord that I have come out of darkness. I am just taking an interest in the words of our blessed Saviour. I do love to read the Crisis so much. Sometimes I carry it into the mill and read it. It is a blessed paper.

I was on the Springfield camp-ground this last season, and I shall never forget the kindness that dear Sr. Lord and her dear blind mother showed me. They did me so much good. Sr. Lord and Sr. Crum went down with me when I was baptized. That was the most glorious day that I ever experienced. I do thank the Lord that I have come out on the Lord's side, for the Lord has promised to be with those that are faithful to the end.

Jesus is coming soon, and I mean to be more faithful, so when he comes I may have a home in his blessed kingdom. "He that shall come will come and will not tarry." When Jesus comes he will wipe all tears from their eyes, and "there shall be no more death, neither sorrow nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain." Thank Jesus. Such a rest will be glorious. Your sister in Christ.

Three Rivers, Mass.

FROM M. A. ELLIOTT.

Dear Editor:—It is always cheering to read that God is blessing by his Spirit. Within a few weeks four of the Sunday School scholars have given their hearts to the Saviour, and obeyed him in baptism. We are glad to see the youth walking in the narrow way. Our hearts are often sad when we see "those who were once enlightened and have tasted of the heavenly gift" turn away. "He that often being reproved hardeneth his neck shall suddenly be destroyed."

The tide of evil increases each day, and professed followers of the Saviour disappear in the current. Read what is transpiring daily, not only among the lower classes of our world, but in higher circles. It seems that they lose all sense of moral obligations, domestic and financial, and yield themselves to him "who goeth about like a roaring lion, seeking whom he may devour." "A little while" and the scene will be changed. My prayer is often, "Come, Lord Jesus, put an end to sin and suffering."

Penacook, N. H.

FROM MRS. S. E. TEEPLE.

Bro. Stockman:—With your permission I will appear again in the columns of the dear old Crisis, to let the children of God know where I am and have been since I last appeared in its columns. I came to Bridgeport, Ct., to take charge of a small mission, called the Faith Church the first of April, and am to leave the first of Oct. I felt led of the Lord to come here and obeyed, and have been much blest in my work. The future alone will tell how much of the seed that has been sown will bear fruit to the glory of God.

And now I must go to another field and break up the fallow ground, and scatter the gospel seed, and so help get a bride ready to meet the Bridegroom. To God be all the praise for all his blessings that he is continually bestowing upon me. My P. O. address will be Torrington, Ct. Your sister in Christ.

CANADA A. C. MISSION.

Having had the privilege of attending a series of meetings held at Waterloo, P. Q., by the mission workers of Tent No. 2 of the Canadian A. C. Mission Society, I thought a few words might not be out of place in the columns of our dear paper, the Crisis, in reference to its success there. It came from Ontario to Waterloo quite unexpectedly to the several members of the church there, who had been praying the Lord to send whomsoever he would for the benefit of the cause and the salvation of perishing men. So now a way seemed to open as an answer to prayer to charge the enemy's ranks.

Accordingly arrangements were made. The tent was pitched in the park by a cordial consent of the mayor (Catholic) free of charge, and the meetings commenced with short notice, and the weather a considerable part of the time quite unfavorable, and some prejudice to meet. The prospect seemed somewhat discouraging. However, the meeting seemed to increase in interest even to the close. Several made a start to serve the Lord and to walk the narrow way. Fifteen persons showed their faith in death and the resurrection by putting on Christ by being buried in the liquid grave by Bro. I. W. Sornberger.

Prejudice gave way to the light of truth, and the multitude came and anxiously listened, the tent being unable to hold the throng the last Saturday evening and Sunday. The unsaved were heard to exclaim, "It is too bad to pull down the tent now"; for they never saw such an interest manifested as was now witnessed by all classes. Deep conviction rested upon others. Some were almost persuaded to yield to the service of the Master. I am of the opinion that the meeting should have continued longer. May the Lord bless the seed sown, and make it productive of fruitful results in the final harvest. Yours in hope.

C. D. JEWELL.

THE SOLID ROCK.—A gentleman once wished to examine a deep coal mine. Coming to the mouth of the shaft, he noticed a rope by which he supposed the miners descended. Taking hold slowly he let himself down. When at last he came to the end of the rope, he found to his horror that he had not reached the bottom of the mine; he realized that he had made a fatal mistake. He could not reascend, and to let go his hold was to fall, perhaps hundreds of feet to the rocks below. All around was darkness. He called wildly for help, but there came no response. At last, giving up to his fate, he let go the rope and fell. He dropped about six inches, and stood safe and sound upon the rock bottom of the mine. That rope was long enough for the tall miners, and the shortest of them had learned to have faith and let go without fear. They knew the firm rock would receive and hold them. Just so we may know that Christ will hold us, if we let go everything else and trust him.—Ex.

SELECTED MISCELLANY.

EVERYTHING goes to rebuke the confidence with which skeptics wrote a few years ago concerning references to Egypt and Canaan in the early books of the Bible. The facts mentioned in Scripture were treated as unsubstantial myths of an illiterate age. In the Contemporary Review of August, Prof. Sayce refers to "the great event of the season"—the discovery in Upper Egypt of letters and despatches sent by the governors and kings of Palestine, Syria, Mesopotamia, and Babylon to Egyptian monarchs. Evidences of this active literary intercourse go back to the date of the Exodus. Henceforth, instead of regarding the period of Joseph as fabulous, it is evident that schools of literature then existed; and Prof. Sayce avers that the discoveries are likely to have most important bearings upon the criticism of the Pentateuch.

BISHOP LATIMER, burned at the stake in A. D. 1555, said: "There will be a parliament in which Christ himself shall bear rule and not men, and which the righteous pray for when they say, "Thy kingdom come;" because they know that therein reformation of all things shall be had. Let us, therefore, have a desire that this day may come quickly. Let us hasten God forward. Let us cry unto him day and night. "Most merciful father thy kingdom come . . . That man or that woman that saith these words, "Thy kingdom come," with a faithful heart, no doubt desirest in every deed that God will come to judgment, and amend all things in this world, and put down Satan, that old serpent under our feet."

VOLCANO CRESTS.

When the eagle and the sparrow both shall build their only nests
On the hot, uncertain edges of unspent volcano crests,
What shall purge a poisoned nation, what assuage its giddy heat?
What shall calm avenging earthquakes boiling under bloody feet?
When the land is young no longer, but grown old in chronic sins,
When the strife of class with classes both for bread and breath begins;
When the poor shall swarm with riot, and the magic checks of trade
Stretch between the hungry worker and the work his hands have made;
When the social vultures thicken, and the strong the weak devour;
When the corpses of the people strew the stairways up to power;
When loud Faction sends its foxes blazing through the standing corn,
From the firebrands of the Furies who shall save a world forlorn?
Through the ages crieth Wisdom, and to-day she crieth long.
Make the sound of God's own pulses every nation's marching song
Who beholds the hasting judgment, who now feels what angels see,
Who in God as King has gladness, only he may dare be free. —By Joseph Cook in "Our Day."

THE celebrated French historian, William Cotch, in the introduction to his work entitled "Revolutions in Europe," on page twenty-four, says: "Moses, independently of his nativity, and the remote age in which he lived, merits implicit credit from the simplicity of his narrative, and from the circumstance that there has never yet been discovered on the surface, or in the internal structure of the earth, any organic evidence or a work of human art that can lead us to believe that the history of the world, or more properly speaking, of the human race, is antecedent to the age which the Jewish legislator has assigned it."

TO DERIVE any real advantage from a study of the Bible we must get out of our heads the idea that we are too wise to be taught by it. The more teachable we become, the more we learn in all schools, and especially in the divine school. Self-conceit is not a good preparation for any school. And it is also true that we shall fail to receive much spiritual profit from a diligent searching of the inspired volume, when that searching is made not so much from a desire to learn the truth, as to forge weapons against some one who happens to differ from us in matters of mere opinion, and that neither regard as of the first importance. We cannot get on much while searching the Scriptures in this spirit.

"GIE'S YOUR HAND."—Two members of the kirk in Scotland were good friends till they took different sides at the time of the Disruption. They were both thatchers by trade. When the dispute about the principle of their kirks grew hot, they ceased to speak to each other. But one day they were both employed at the same job. Each took one side of the roof; and when they had worked up to the top, there they were face to face. They couldn't flee; so at last Andrew took off his cap, and scratching his head, said: "Johnny, you and me, I think, ha'e been very foolish to dispute as we ha'e done concerning Christ's will aboot our kirks, until we ha'e clean forgotten his will aboot oor ain selves; and so we hae' fought and fought for what we ca' the truth, and it has ended in spite. Whatever's wrang, it's perfectly certain that it never can be right to be uncivil, unneighborly, unkind—in fac', tae hate ane anither. Na, na! that's the devil's work, and no God's. Noo, it strikes me that, maybe, it's wi' the kirk as wi' this house—ye're working on a'e side, and me on t'ither; but if we only do our work weel, we will meet at the tap at last. Gie's your han', neighbor." And so they shook hands, and were the best of friends ever after.

IT is related that one day, when Napoleon I. was reviewing his troops in Paris, he let fall the reins of his horse from his hands upon the animal's neck, when the proud charger galloped away. Before the rider could recover the bridle, a common soldier ran out from the ranks, caught the reins, stopped the horse, and placed the bridle again in the hands of the Emperor. "Much obliged to you, captain," said Napoleon. The man immediately believed his chief, and said, "Of what regiment, Sire?" Napoleon, delighted with his quick perception and ready trust in his word, replied, "Of my Guards!" and rode away. As soon as the Emperor left, the man laid down his gun, saying, "He may take it who will;" and, instead of returning to the ranks whence he so suddenly issued, he started for the company of staff-officers. They were amazed at his apparent rudeness and disobedience of orders, and one of the generals contemptuously said, "What does this fellow want here?" "This fellow," replied the soldier, proudly, "is a captain of the Guards." "You, my poor friend, you are mad to say so!" was the answer of the superior officer. "He said it," replied the soldier, pointing to the Emperor, still in sight. "I ask your pardon, sir," said the general, respectfully; "I was not aware of it." And so the soldier came duly to his post as captain of Napoleon's Guards.

WHERE IS CAIN?

DEAR BRO. CARPENTER:—The following verses were given me last winter by Bro. Cary of Kansas; they were written by some brother in Iowa, and I think are worth publishing.

"Is man such a mystery as theology would teach,
Possessing entities no human eye can reach?
Is man a soul, or possessor of a soul, and knows not this,
And must it always live in endless woe or bliss?
God made a man of dust, to this we all agree;
But did he add a soul or spirit man, of one man making three?
Does dust man return to dust again, and spirit man to God,
While the soul man down to hell is cast to writhe in fire and blood?
Then Cain, who died so long ago, must in this sad condition dwell;
One Cain in dust, one Cain with God, and the other Cain in hell."

YOUNG. In Sioux City, Iowa, at his residence, 810 Prince St., Sunday night, Sept. 16, 1888, Capt. John Wesley Young, aged seventy-one years, eight months, and five days.

He was a believer and faithful witness of the Advent faith for almost a half century. He with his good wife, Annie C. Young, heard William Miller in Chardon St. Chapel, in 1842, and received the truth, from which they never turned aside. I attended the funeral of Sr. Young Oct. 9, 1881, and to-day laid away her husband to await the coming of Christ at the resurrection.

Capt. Young was born in Baltimore, Md., Jan. 7, 1817. He was left an orphan, and while quite young went to Scituate Harbor, Mass., to live with an uncle. He became a cabin boy, and before he was twenty-one years of age he rose to the office of captain. He was married in 1838 to Miss Anne Damon. He then settled in East Boston, where his children, May, Laura, John W., and George, with three others who sleep, were born. In 1855, like many of the old Adventists, he removed west, to the State of Illinois, where he engaged in business. In 1868 he removed to Sioux City. In all his business interests he was successful. But with all his care and toil the old family Bible was read every day, while he and his good wife kept up the family altar with its light and blessing in the household. In his last and painful illness he was watched over night and day by his good and faithful wife, with an unequalled wifely devotion to the last moment, together with his loving children. Tuesday, A. M., Sept. 18th, a large congregation, among whom were the leading citizens of the city, with the family and friends, gathered at the home of our deceased brother for the funeral. I read the Scriptures from 1. Cor. 15; and Rev Mr. Glass offered prayer. Among the hymns was, "We shall sleep, but not forever." I spoke on the "blessed hope" from Titus 2: 13, when we went to the graveyard, on the banks of the Floyd, and tenderly laid him away beside his wife, for rest till Jesus comes.

JOSHUA V. HIMES.

DUREN. At Fairfield, Me., June 29th, 1888, of paralysis, Benjamin Duren, aged seventy-eight years and ten months.

Another Simeon has departed in peace. My dear Bro. Duren was converted to God in 1843. For several years he was class leader in the M. E. church. He was a good man, and highly esteemed by all who knew him. He loved and believed in the gospel of the kingdom. Several years ago he was much renewed in the spirit of his mind, while Eld. Lovejoy and myself were holding meetings in Advent Hall. His home was a home for God's heralds of our soon coming King. Two years ago last May he was stricken with paralysis. He never walked again, and was a great sufferer until he fell asleep. He leaves a Christian wife, with sons and daughters, who deeply mourn his absence. But those noble sons and daughters, with their godly mother, sorrow not as others which have no hope. Funeral services by Eld. Curtice.

"He resteth now. No more his breast
Heaves with its weary breath:
Pain sits no longer on the brow
Where lies the calm of death.
Sunk to his rest, like tired child,
He lies in slumber deep,
Soft folded in the arms of Him
Who 'giveth his beloved sleep.'"

JOHN G. HOOK.

HINCKLEY. At West Alton, N. H., March 1st, 1888, our dear mother, Susan Hinckley, aged eighty-two years.

Our aged mother fell asleep to awake in the bright morn when death will be no more. In her youthful days she sought and found the Saviour, and united with the Free-Will Baptist church. When the Advent message was first proclaimed, she became interested in the truth, and loved the appearing of our Lord. This was her only hope, and as she said, "A little while and Jesus will come, then I will live to die no more." The life she lived told all who knew her that she was a child of God. We miss her, and those prayers which were offered in our behalf are still fresh in our memory. As we go to the old homestead it seems as though we could hear mother pray. We turn from her grave in hope. Yes, soon the sainted host will be reunited, never to part again. May the dear children be ready to meet mother on the Eden shore. E. N. HINCKLEY.

STRONG. In Darien, Genessee Co., N. Y., Aug. 30th, 1888, Mr. Miner Strong, aged sixty-five years.

He had been a great sufferer for many years, and at last grew weaker, which resulted in his death. As a business man he was equalled by no one. As a neighbor and friend he was much thought of, as was manifested by the very large congregation that gathered at his late residence on Sunday, Sept. 2nd, to attend his funeral. He has left a wife, who is a member of the A. C. church, one child, two brothers, and an aged mother, eighty-nine years old to mourn their loss. May this be sanctified to the bereaved family. Funeral attended by the writer.

GEO. A. STREETER.

BALL. In South Berwick Great Works, Me., Aug. 23, 1888, Mary Ball, aged seventy years nine days.

Sister Ball died very suddenly, being sick only a few days. She lived with her nephew four years, and he kindly cared for her. She had been a believer for a long time. Her presence and counsels will be sadly missed, but she rests in hope, and sorrowing friends are comforted with the hope of a speedy reunion. She leaves one brother and many friends to mourn her loss. Words of comfort spoken by the writers.

M. M. and A. A. YOUNG.

RHODES. In Lowell, Mass., Sept. 24th, Ethel May, only child of Arthur E. and Bertha F. Rhodes, aged two months and fourteen days.

Early taken from the chilling frosts of this blighted world, safely laid to rest where no jarring sound can disturb its quiet slumbers, the little one will sleep on until the glad resurrection morning, and then awake to sinless, painless, never ending life. May the mourning father and mother be ready then to join their sweet babe.

M. G. C.

ROBBINS. In Raymond, Maine, Aug. 27, 1888, Thomas Alden Robbins, aged seventy-eight years.

He sleeps in Jesus. MRS. J. E. JORDAN.

THE INFIDEL'S WAGER.

A young man named Thorpe, who afterwards became an effective minister of that gospel which at first he ridiculed, was one of Mr. Whitefield's most insulting opposers; and, possessing an unusual talent for mimicry, he not only interrupted his sermons in public, but ridiculed them in private in convivial theatrical circles.

On one occasion, at such a gathering for revelry and wit, he and three of his companions laid a wager for the most effective imitation and ridicule of Whitefield's preaching. Each was to open the Bible at random, and deliver an extempore harangue from the first verse that presented itself, and the audience, after the profane exhibition, were to adjudge the prize.

Thorpe's three competitors each went through the game with impious buffoonery, and then it came to his turn. They had the table for their rostrum; and as he was about to step upon it, confident of his superior ability, Thorpe exclaimed, "I shall beat you all." They handed him the Bible, and when he opened it the invisible providence of God directed his eye at the first glance to the verse in the thirteenth chapter of Luke's Gospel—"Except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish."

He read the words, but the moment he had uttered them he began to see and to feel their full import. The sword of the Spirit in that passage went through his soul as a flash of lightning. An instantaneous conviction of his own guilt as a sinner before God seized hold upon him; and his conscience was fearfully aroused. The retribution in that passage he felt was for himself, its terrors glared upon him; and out of that rapid and overwhelming conviction he preached.

His fervor and fire increased as he went on, the sympathetic gloom of his audience deepened the convictions in his own soul, and the sentences fell from his lips with such intense and burning imagery, and with such point and power of language, that, as he afterwards stated, it seemed to him as if his hair would stand erect with terror at their awfulness. Yet no man interrupted him, for all felt and saw, from the solemnity of his manner, what an overwhelming impression there was upon him; and though their astonishment gradually deepened into anger, yet they sat spell-bound, listening and gazing at him. And when he had finished a profound silence reigned in the whole circle, and not one word concerning the wager was uttered.

Thorpe instantly withdrew from the company, without speaking a word, and never returned to that society; but, after a season of the deepest distress and conflict, passed into the full light of the gospel, and at length became a most successful preacher of its grace.—Dr. Cheever.

WHERE TO FIND HEAVEN.—There was a Methodist preacher who preached one day on heaven. The next morning he was going down town and he met one of his old, wealthy members. This old fellow met the preacher and he said: "Pastor, you preached a good sermon about heaven. You told me all about heaven, but you never told me where heaven is." "Ah," said the pastor, "I am glad of the opportunity this morning. I have just come from the hill-top yonder. In that cottage there is a member of your church. She is sick in bed with fever; her two little children are sick in the other bed, and she has not got a bit of coal or a stick of wood, or flour or sugar or any bread. If you will go down town and buy fifty dollars' worth of things, nice provisions, and send them up to her, and then go up there and say, 'My sister, I have brought these nice provisions in the name of our Lord and Saviour;' if you ask for a Bible, and you read the twenty-third Psalm, and you then get down on your knees and pray,—if you don't see heaven before you get through I'll pay the bill." The next morning he said, "Pastor, I saw heaven, and I spent fifteen minutes in heaven as certainly as you are listening."—Ex.

TO THE man of a kindly spirit there is a bright side to everything he looks at; while to the ill-natured man not even the noonday sun is without its disfiguring spots. "Whence come wars, and whence come fightings among you? Come they not hence even of your pleasures that war in your members?" If you would improve your surroundings, you should improve your mental and moral eyesight; for if there were more good inside of you, things outside would look a great deal better to you.—Ex.

IS THERE a better secret than this for making the whole fabric of life perfect? "Any good thing that I can do;" that covers all our duty to God and to ourselves. "Any kindness that I can show to any human being;" that covers all our duty to our neighbor. Love to God and to our neighbor is the fulfilling of the law.—Ex.

IN the sight of God, greatness does not depend on the extent of our sphere, or on the effect produced, but on the power of virtue in the soul, in the energy with which God's will is performed, the spirit in which trials are borne, and the earnestness with which goodness is loved and pursued.—Ex.

WHEN Christ's Spirit dwells in the heart, it will shine out in the life, and every one who sees a true disciple will know that he has been with Jesus, and learned of him.

MISSIONS.

FOREIGN MISSION.

LETTER FROM J. C. SMITH.

Nov. 23d Bro. Horniman came from Brighton, a distance of twenty-five miles, on his tricycle. He was four hours making the trip, and rested an hour on the way. He was with us at our meeting, and gave us a very interesting account of how he received the truth from a neighbor while in Wisconsin, and what he had passed through in coming to this country on account of the truth he held. He spoke on points that our opponents meet us with. At the close of our meeting he stated that he had not been to such a meeting for twenty-five years, and that he should return to Brighton and tell his friends that he had been to a jubilee meeting. He also stated that he should want us to come up to B. and have meetings in his drawing room. He subscribed for the Crisis while with us, and took home books for the benefit of others.

Sunday, 25th, we had three interesting services, and the Lord blessed our gathering together and our waiting upon him. Bro. Forsey spoke in the A. M., and the Lord aided me to speak in afternoon and evening. We are now having a series of meetings every night through the week. Bro. Forsey has decided to leave all and follow Jesus. He has been at work for a firm that kept him at work early and late, so that often he could not attend meetings. They paid him twenty-two shillings per week; but we decided to make that up to him, as his family is depending on him for support. He has now entered the mission work for Jesus, to scatter the great and glorious truths we love as a people far and near, as the Lord shall open the way. Neighboring villages have already been visited by Brn. Hudson, Cunningham and myself, and tracts and papers scattered from house to house, and shop to shop. Now Bro. Forsey purposes to go into others and spread the good news. Had we means and tracts we would love to keep Bro. H. in the field also, as he is a capital hand as colporteur.

This country has long been neglected, and the straightforward gospel and its shining light of coming glory, very soon to be ushered in by the appearing of Jesus, with the destruction of the evil one, with all sin and sinners, are doctrines that are not known by the masses, and are ignored by the majority of the professed teachers. It has been told us that one of the preachers had much to say about us to-day, that it was a terrible thing for those missionaries to be scattering so much heresy. One man has written to me from Brighton, since we scattered the seed there. He states that he is not a papist. He received one of our tracts. By the way he writes I think he would gladly have my head taken off, as many had under the papal persecution, if it was in his power to do so.

Bro. Seymour handed me an item from the Christian World of Nov. 22d, headed, "The Church of the Future," in which Mr. Brooke Lambert spoke of the "glorious ideal of the Church of England as the successor of the papacy, the foster-mother of the Protestant churches of the globe." He would have the gates of the church made wide enough to satisfy the requirements of all. He complains of the dissenters going off on some new truth, and calls them "false liberalists of the nonconformist sects." While the Church of England is complaining in fear of losing their pasture, the Catholic church, with the pope at the head, is complaining bitterly of the Catholic prelates of England. Already the filial devotion of all Catholic pastors and people in all parts of the world, and also the free and healthy public opinion of all civilized nations, has rebuked and condemned this penal legislation. And we also add our protest to that of the civilized world, together with all Catholics, our detestation of such great injustice. It seems that the time has nearly arrived when the "kings of the earth and merchants are to bewail her and to lament for her when they shall see the smoke of her burning, standing afar off for the fear of her torment, saying, Alas, alas, that great city Babylon, that mighty city, for in one hour is thy judgment come. And the merchants of the earth shall weep and mourn over her, for no man buyeth their merchandise any more. The merchandise of gold and silver and precious stones and of pearls and fine linen and purple and silk and scarlet and all thyine wood, and all manner of vessels of ivory and all manner of vessels of most precious wood, and of brass and iron and marble. And cinnamon and odors and ointments and frankincense and wine and oil and fine flour and wheat and beasts and sheep and horses and chariots and slaves and souls of men, and the fruits that thy soul lusted after are departed from thee, and all things that were dainty and goodly are departed from thee, and thou shalt find them no more at all. The merchants of these things which were made rich by her shall stand afar off for the fear of her torment, weeping and wailing, and saying, Alas, alas that great city that was clothed in fine linen, and purple and scarlet, and decked with gold, and precious stones and pearls. For in one hour so great riches is come to naught." Rev. 18: 9-17.

Great events are just before us. Says the editor of the Christian World, a paper that has the largest circulation of any religious paper in Europe, under the heading of "A Simmering Continent," "Passing incidents continue to bear witness to the general state of unrest throughout Europe, and to the probability that before long the continent throughout its length and breadth will be one vast bonfire." This is certainly very strong language for such a popular paper to utter. But many wise men see the coming storm, both for the papacy and the political powers of earth." But the wicked shall do wickedly, and none of the wicked shall understand; but the wise shall understand." Dan. 12: 10.

What is needed in these closing moments of time is that every man, woman and child should stand with loins girded about and lights burning, and "ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding; that when he cometh and knocketh they may open to him immediately. Blessed are those servants, whom the lord when he cometh shall find watching." We need more tracts and papers to scatter for Jesus and his coming.

GLAD TIDINGS FROM AFAR.

The following letter from Bro. Masillamani, the missionary for the A. A. Mission Society in Madras, India, will give some idea of the work being done through the efforts of that society in far-off India. God bless the work and those who donate for its support. Brethren, pray for this work.

E. M. ANDREWS, Treasurer.

My dear Sir:—My hearty thanks are due to our Christian friends in America and England, who continue regularly to forward valuable papers, journals, magazines, tracts, etc., to my address, which after being read by myself, are loaned or given away to others who are equally interested in reading them. Our English as well as vernacular journals and tracts are most thankfully welcomed in all places where they are sent. Both Christians and non-Christians, in general, feel interested in reading them. Some educated Hindus express their high appreciation of the important doctrines advocated in our publications.

But I am sorry to say that some opposition has been experienced from able and wealthy Hindus, who have organized an association for preaching and propagating Hinduism, which they call "the true religion." They call their association "The Hindu Tract Society," and have sent messengers to preach in the open air and to advise the people against listening to the Christian preachers. On Sunday mornings the divine service is regularly conducted in my residence, which we call "The Advent Mission House." I read and expound the Scriptures to a few people who assemble to hear me.

I am glad to inform you that some of the sectarian pulpits and prayer meetings, which had been long shut up against me, have been recently opened to my preaching. The Spirit of God enables me on such occasions faithfully to preach the truths relating to life and immortality only in Christ and his soon coming to reign in his eternal kingdom on earth. Christians in general express their desire often to hear about the second coming of our Lord. Religious inquirers often come to my house, whom I receive and teach on the glorious truths of the gospel. They receive my words with earnestness. Often questions are asked on the misunderstood passages of the Scriptures, and answers are received to their satisfaction. Some invite me to their own houses to learn of me more of the truths contained in our tracts which they have read. As once a catechist remarked, "It is rare to see a Christian house where there are not found some tracts published by the Advent Christian believers.

When not otherwise engaged in the evening I go to the beach, general post-office, central station, and other thoroughfares to preach the gospel of the kingdom and distribute tracts. At such times people of different classes crowd around and listen to my words with attention, and thankfully accept the tracts offered them. Some of our unpaid helpers often come to the Tract Repository to get tracts for free circulation and to hear me. Our voluntary tract distributors are doing a great work in Madras and other places. They carry with them a great number of tracts and pamphlets and scatter them among the people in hospitals, poorhouses, public offices, railway stations, etc. Some of them accompany me when I go to preach to the Hindus, and help me in preaching and distributing tracts.

Two weeks ago a Christian teacher told me, "Day before yesterday a Roman Catholic Christian at Royapuram died at the advanced age of one hundred and ten years. There was a large gathering of people at his funeral. Your man, Mr. Israel, (one of our tract distributors came there with numerous tracts in his hands and scattered them among the crowd. The people with solemn earnestness received and read them, and discussed the subjects treated in them!" Bro. Israel often goes to the Egmore railway station and scatters numerous tracts among the passengers, which they carry with them to various places in South India. Bro. Brankhurst, the postmaster of the central station, distributed a vast number of the English and vernacular tracts among the numerous passengers who crowd there.

Bro. Gibson, the assistant traveling post-superintendent, every week carries with him a great many tracts and journals and scatters them for three hundred miles along the Madras railway. The passengers who get these tracts take them to their houses thousands of miles distant. Thus the seed of the gospel of the kingdom of God is spread far and wide. Bro. Ramalingum also takes hundreds of tracts which he specially circulates among the Christians in Madras.

I am glad to hear that in some places European missionaries and native ministers have come forward to preach the truths advocated in our tracts. Evangelists and catechists, who work under the missionaries, more boldly and openly come to our Tract Repository in order to get tracts to be distributed among their Christian friends and neighbors.

PROPHETICAL.

THE PROPHETIC PERIODS.

BY J. COUCH.

A period is a designated portion of time, as a week, a month, a year. A period is designed to measure the distance between two specified points, or the time of the continuance of an event or condition, as from the commencement to the end of a government; the beginning and end of a social condition, and the time required for the earth to make a revolution.

A prophetic period is a stated portion of time given in the sacred prophecies for the purpose of giving the chronological distance between certain specified events, or the length of the continuance of such events.

Has the Creator exhibited His estimation of the relative importance of such measurements to His church? He has emphatically, by interspersing them through all the divine dispensations, and so arranging them as to indicate when the most momentous events of earthly history, and the most signal epochs of His people's experience should occur.

God appointed and published the time for the flood, the burning of the cities, the exode, the taking of Babylon, the dedication of the New Tyre and the time of the First Advent of Christ. Many others, too numerous to mention here, were given in the same way.

That the rule by which these were given had a general application to the divine administration appears from the following testimony: "To every thing there is a season, and a time to every purpose under the heaven." Ecc. 3: 1. "Whoso keepeth the commandment shall feel no evil thing: and a wise man's heart discerneth both time and judgment. Because to every purpose there is time and judgment, therefore the misery of man is great upon him." Ecc. 8: 5, 6. "Surely the Lord God will do nothing, but he revealeth his secret unto his servants the prophets." Amos 3: 7.

Why has the "misery of man" been "great" on account of God's revealments of his purposes to bring upon the race chastisements and judgments and the "time" of their occurrence? Because such revelations were designed as forewarnings, giving rebels an opportunity to repent and escape the threatened punishment, so that when the number of those involved is relatively large the "misery" of the infliction is "great" because it involves a great number. Is it not scripturally true that, in all recorded cases of God's judgments upon men, he has given the requisite forewarnings, including the periods of the events? and is it not also true that in all cases a great majority of those warned refused to accept the warning, and by this means entailed upon themselves the threatened calamities? According to the Bible it is true. Did those events take on like characteristics because they were controlled by the same government? They did. Will future events, controlled by the same laws, executed by and upon the same characteristic classes, result in the same experiences? They will. Has Christ given any testimony upon this vastly important subject? He has. In his lament over the fatal error of the Jews he said: "For the days shall come upon thee, that thine enemies shall cast a trench about thee, and compass thee round, and keep thee in on every side. And shall lay thee even with the ground, and thy children within thee, and they shall not leave in thee one stone upon another; because thou knewest not the time of thy visitation." Luke 13: 43, 44.

God had foretold the coming of Christ, the period of its occurrence, the signs indicating it, the advantages and disadvantages to the Jews contingent upon their acceptance or rejection of the predictions relating to the great event. The real cause of their fatal step as Christ shows was their failure to accept God's revealed "time of their visitation." Christ in this case correctly represented a principle which must be general in the divine government, and which involves this rule: When God publishes an appointment of a period, during which specified events are to occur which will require specific action of the church, if the church occupying that period fails to accept that revelation she cannot do the special work required, and she brings upon herself the threatened chastisements. The Saviour states this point emphatically, and connects the general principle with the last judgment and coming of Christ by making the period of Noah and Lot like the period which shall end the gospel age.

The subject of God's revelations concerning the time and circumstances of the judgments He has sent upon men, as they relate to the importance of understanding them as their Author designed, is one of vast magnitude and vital interest to our race. It is easy to learn what God approves and disapproves as to the position He would have men take who occupy the periods when such revealments are being fulfilled, by learning what positions the classes took in the past when predicted judgments came, and whom He justified and whom he condemned.

The Bible record upon this point is unmistakably explicit, recording in every case justification of the class who sought to understand the revelations giving time and events, and by that means were prepared to meet them. In every case the class who disregarded such prophecies, and were not expecting the inflictions of judgments when they came, failed to prepare for the same and were overwhelmed in condemnation.

Will the immutable Jehovah change the principles of His government when the last generation shall come, and the final judgment is impending, so that a new line will be drawn between the justified and the condemned? No, the attributes of God, the characteristics of his government and every Bible testimony forbids it.

The vital importance of this subject causes the enemy to make special efforts to prostitute the subject by false interpretations, the folly of its friends, the unpopularity of its advocates, and every available influence so as to stamp into the dust and obliterate the great message which God will commit to be published by His last commissioned people.

As the Bible record shows that the church of the past ages had great responsibilities thrown upon her at the occurrence of every chastisement of men for their sins, and at all the great epochs in her history, by having committed to her the prophetic forewarnings of coming judgments and their chronological location, can we reasonably suppose that a changeless God would, when the greatest of all judgments is approaching and the greatest of all earthly changes is impending, fail to furnish the church with as definite predictions of time and events as at any previous period? It is both unreasonable and unscriptural.

Christ said of the last advent, "Watch, lest coming suddenly—unexpectedly—He find you sleeping"—unconscious of its approach. Again He said, "Take heed to yourselves, lest at any time your hearts be overcharged with surfeiting, and drunkenness, and cares of this life, and so that day come upon you unawares. For as a snare shall it come on all them that dwell on the face of the whole earth."—Luke 21: 34.

This warning of Christ proves that it will be just as dangerous for the people of the last generation not to know when the last judgment is coming as it was for the people of Noah's, Lot's, Moses', and the Jews' time not to know the time of their visitation."

The church is in all cases required to make an effort to understand the time of these judgment visitations just as definitely as they are revealed, for God designed that His Word should be understood as He gave it.

Is it true that the most noted Christian teachers have through the centuries taught that the Bible gives prophetic measurements running to the end of the gospel and the last judgment? It is true. A large class of these writers took the position that the church, as she draws near the end, will be furnished with means by which she will be enabled to understand more definitely when the consummation of the gospel plan will come than their predecessors could do. Prominent among these were Isaac Newton, John Wesley and George Whitefield.

If we have come to these last days, the church should now make an earnest effort to understand, as God has revealed it and no more so, the time when the last judgment will come. May the Lord give us wisdom not to indulge in [illegible] judge others by our conclusions, or make our faith which rests upon collateral proof the same as if it was supported by positive proof. The Lord has not given the year, as men reckon time, in which the end will come, but he has given the year according to His prophetic reckoning, therefore human reckoning must be adjusted to the prophetic, which depends upon circumstantial proof; for there is no prophetic proof of the year of our A. D. in which the end will come.

To say that we have the same faith that Christ will come in 1889, or any other year, that we have that there will be a resurrection of the dead is a misconception, for one rests upon direct promise or positive proof, the other upon circumstantial proof. Much saving Bible faith rests upon collateral proof, therefore the faith of 1889 may be a Bible faith.

A WARNING WORD.

BY A. ARMOUR.

"And there shall be a time of trouble." Dan. 12: 1. Is it still in the future? Most certainly it is. Michael has not yet stood up; nor have Daniel's people been delivered, every one found written in the book; nor have many, or any of them that sleep in the dust awaked, some to everlasting life, as must be the case if this time of trouble were in the past. It still lies before us, dark and dreadful. But we are apt to forget that. It is more pleasant to put all such times of trouble in the past, under the papacy, or the Mohammedans, and to say their times are ended; they cannot return again. In the days of Bunyan's pilgrim, giant Pagan had been long dead, and giant Pope had grown so infirm that he could only sit in his cave's mouth and grin at pilgrims as they went past, and bite his nails because he could not get at them. This may be so; yet we read: "And there shall be a time of trouble."

The poet Cowper wrote something like this:

"Six thousand years of sorrow have well-nigh
Fulfilled their tardy and disastrous course
Over a sin-sick world; and what remains
Is merely as the working of a storm
Before a calm, that rocks itself to rest."

This may be true in the main, but the Word of God asserts that "there shall be a time of trouble," and we had better believe it. The gospel ship is nearing the coast of the land of life and glory, but it is just as surely sailing into a storm. What then? Make ready for it. Take in the fair weather rigging. Make all snug, and double the lookout.

"Trouble." It is a world of trouble anyway. Trouble of body, disease; trouble of mind, anxiety; and trouble of estate, adversity. What kind of trouble is here spoken of? and what degree of trouble is worthy to be mentioned along with such weighty events as the judgment—deliverance of the people whose names are written in the book of life, and the resurrection of the dead? Tsarah, straitness, distress; from tsar, to bind, to vex. It is then trouble of outward circumstances. This will produce trouble of mind in those who mind earthly things. Tsar as a noun is very frequently rendered "enemy." Tsarah, the feminine form, is used for the abstract idea. An enemy is one who binds or restrains or hinders by opposing; the abstract noun related to "enemy" would be enmity, and from the root-meaning of the word enmity operating to produce restraint and distress. "Such as never was since there was a nation"; how long is that? I do not find any goyim before the flood, and the first occurrence of the word is in Gen. 10: 5 ("Gentiles" and "nations"); and Balaam said, "Amalek was the first of the nations." Num. 24: 20. [This Amalek should not be confounded with the descendants of Amalek the grandson of Esau, as Amalek was a people in the days of Abraham (Gen. 14: 7), who was Esau's grandfather.]

Perhaps the reader will have noticed in the Hebrew Tsar a spelling sometimes used for the title of the Czar of Russia. This is not without significance. Certainly the Czar is now the troubler of the nations. Russia is the nation which is liable to break the peace any day, and is certain to do so before long. No doubt the prince of Rosh (Gog of Ezekiel) is the Czar of Russia; and, strange to say, Agag was the title of the kings of Amalek. Haman (Esther 3: 1) was an Agagite, probably of the royal family of Amalek. A-gag and Gog are akin. The Tsar, by pre-eminence the "enemy" of Israel, the troubler, sits on the throne of Russia.

This is suggestive, as the mention of "since there was a nation" directs the mind to national trouble. I shall not enlarge further now, but if any desire more light let them meditate on Isa. 59, putting the Hebrew word Tsar in place of its English representative "enemy" in ver. 19. Also read Ezek. 38, and 39 in the Revised Version; and some time, and some where, I have much more to say, if the Lord will.

"There shall be a time of trouble," a duration of it, longer or shorter. Perhaps we have forgotten what the apostle James wrote about Capital and Labor in the last days. Though things are comparatively quiet now, that controversy is not yet settled. And Bunyan's old giant has quit biting his nails, and is getting his fingers into the national purses of the U. S., and other countries. His faithful children are getting into the teachers' desks of the public schools. He means to get hold of the reins of government in this very country, and is using every means to attain that end.

Without being an alarmist, and without endorsing the speculations of the Editor of the Christian Herald as to the dates and events of the future, it is well not to be lulled to sleep. Indeed, we should prepare to meet such a time. We will need God's keeping power and his helping hand then especially. "Because thou hast kept the word of my patience, I also will keep thee from the hour of temptation, which shall come upon all the world to try them that dwell upon the earth. Behold, I come quickly: hold that fast which thou hast, that no man take thy crown." Rev. 3: 10, 11. See also Luke 21: 34-36.

Beloved brethren and sisters, we are not to be "carried to the skies on flowery beds of ease," nor is the millennium to dawn upon us by the gradual extension of Christianity as we glide peacefully along. What is revealed as to its nature and details I do not here attempt to unfold, but I do ask your most serious attention to the great fact that one "shall come to his end, and none shall help him. And at that time shall Michael stand up, the great prince which standeth for the children of thy people: and there shall be a time of trouble, such as never was since there was a nation even to that same time: and at that time thy people shall be delivered, every one that shall be found written in the book. And many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt." It is no fancy, but a revealed reality.

What then is our hope? For what should we pray? For what should we live? We should seek to be worthy to be caught up to meet the Lord and to stay above the storm, whenever he may come into the clouds to gather his saints unto him. And we know not at what time his coming may be. "Are you ready, should you hear the midnight call?"

JOHN 8: 36.

BY SR. T. B. LANG.

"If the Son therefore shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed."

While meditating on this subject, I thought with the help of the Lord I would write a few thoughts on it, as I understand the Bible teaches in harmony with what I have experienced. Thank the Lord, we can acquaint ourselves with him and be at peace, and thereby have good will come to us in this present world. Yes, praise God, it is one hundred fold in this life, with persecution, and in the world to come life everlasting. And signs that are unmistakable proclaim the time to be near when the people of God that have made a covenant with him by sacrifice shall be delivered, every one whose name is written in the book of life. Praise the Lord. That takes in every one that the Son has made free.

To be made free is to be made free in harmony with the word of God, for that is to judge us in the last day. Well, praise God, he makes me free from sin. "His name shall be called Jesus, for he shall save his people from their sins." He saves me from fear, for perfect love casteth out fear. He saves me from seeking to please men, for if we seek to please men we are not the servants of God. He saves me, praise the dear Lord, from the love of the world, for "if any man love the world the love of the Father is not in him." He saves me from pride, for "the day cometh that shall burn as an oven, and all the proud, yea, all that do wickedly shall be stubble, and the day that cometh shall burn them up."

He saves me from conforming to the fashions of the world. "Let not your adorning be that of plaiting the hair and of wearing of gold or of putting on of apparel." He saves me from care and anxiety, for Jesus says, "Cast all your care on me." This done there is none left. Praise the Lord. He makes me free from jesting and foolish talking. "Let your speech be always with grace, seasoned with salt." I am so glad the love of it is all taken out of my heart, and my joy and rejoicing is in the Lord, who bought this freedom for me with his own precious blood. He has made me free from fretting. "Fret not yourselves because of evil doers." He saves me from hatred, for God is love. Well, he does save me from the fruits of the flesh, which are manifest in every unregenerate heart to some extent. But by submitting fully to the Lord he does save me from all these things.

We read, "He is the same yesterday, today, and forever." Since I submitted fully, and by his precious blood was cleansed from all unrighteousness, and by faith received the second blessing, the baptism of the Holy Spirit, it has had the same effect on my life. Now this is just what Jesus did for me when he made me free indeed. It is not freedom from tears, sorrow, and death, nor trials or temptation; but, praise the Lord, I can count it all joy when I fall into divers temptation. I do praise the dear Lord for the freedom we can and do have here, and for the hope of soon having the Scriptures fulfilled, "Death is swallowed up in victory." My prayer is, hasten the time, bring in everlasting righteousness, and let the whole earth be filled with thy glory.

MY PILGRIMAGE.

BY L. BOUTELLE.

Commissioned by my Lord to go,
And neither stop for rain or snow,
I have to run, leave all behind,
And preach glad tidings to mankind.
This cheering "message" we must bring,
Go tell of the soon coming King,
Give signs that show his coming near,
Declare the same and without fear.
By day and night I preach and pray,
My work is hard for every day;
A weary pilgrim, homeward bound,
Rest surely here cannot be found.
A missionary, the world my field,
The Spirit's sword I have to wield.
I'm like a man upon the wheel,
He must go round though bad he feel;
My wife and children, home and all,
I have to leave at Master's call.
Forty-seven years I've run the round,
And still upon this earth I'm found,
Beseeching men to turn and run
To Christ and pray, "Thy kingdom come!"
No salary promised, only bread
With water sure we shall be fed.
A bitter cup we have to drink,
'Tis a hard life I sometimes think;
Out in the world, no scrip nor purse,
Our friends look cold, and this is worse.
I look to Christ and then I see
One who was rich, made poor for me,
And foxes holes in which to rest;
The Son of man," I hear him say,
"No where his sacred head to lay."
My murmuring now has gone and fled,
I'll follow Christ, my living head;
I'll keep the faith and fight by grace,
And so I'll run the heavenly race;
We gird this gospel armor tight,
And keep the golden crown in sight.
We'll suffer on and will not fear,
The better day is almost here;
With cheerful hope we'll wait and sing
The coming of our rightful King.
Pilgrims and strangers we must be,
If we would live and reign with thee,
Sun, moon and stars do also say,
We soon shall see the blissful day.
Of other signs there is no lack,
Then we'll believe and not turn back.
And when this crowning race is run,
It's by grace alone that we have won.
The watchmen soon their work will leave,
And their reward they will receive.
Father, may it be thy will divine,
That in thy kingdom I may shine,
And with my Lord forever be Clothed with immortality.

THE EFFECT OF FAITH.

BY FRANK BURR.

We are sometimes told that it makes no difference what a person believes, if he is only honest hearted and sincere in his faith; that character is not estimated by one's faith, but by his motives and life. No doubt a person's motives and conduct will be the things considered by the Lord in the day of judgment, and his eternal destiny will be meted out to him "according to his works," as is written in the Word, but upon a careful consideration of the subject perhaps it will be more clearly seen that a person's faith has much to do with his works, and that all character, whether good or bad, is more or less the result of one's acting out simply what he believes.

Some, to be sure, may through perverse will do that which they know will be an injury to them, but in such a case the person simply stultifies his own faith, and acts out that which may be another's faith, and which is contrary to his own conception of truth. He denies his faith by his deeds, doing that which he knows is evil and which brings him only evil in result, and he acts thus because he is either perversely wicked, or because he does not possess the strength of will to resist the temptation.

But another question arises at the outset in this line of thought, and that is, what is good character in the sight of God? Of what will the Lord approve, and what does he denounce? One might answer, he will approve goodness and denounce unrighteousness. True, but what is goodness in his estimation, and what is unrighteousness? As all mankind are to answer to the Creator for their deeds, it would be well for all to understand by what law we are to be judged; whether it is to be by a law of our own devising, or one which has been proclaimed from heaven.

The Lord speaks in his book of "the law of faith" (Rom. 3: 27), and he has declared that true faith is the basis of righteousness in his sight. Any one can understand what faith is; it is simply to believe God. To believe God from the heart is to lovingly believe his word. Suppose one denies the word of God; certainly he can not expect to be approved by the Lord, even if he is ever so kind, and good natured, and honest among men. He who denies the word of the Lord, or disputes it, is certainly rebellious, and not fit to live in God's kingdom when it is to be established on the earth. No one could find fault with a ruler who would shut out from his dominion those who will not believe him.

It is said that many good persons deny the Bible simply because they do not believe it is God's word. They would believe if they were convinced. But it is not for the lack of evidence that men are skeptical, but rather because they are not willing to let the evidence bear upon their minds. Most persons, if not all, who are skeptical, are thus because they do not want to believe. If they did believe, their lives would be affected by it, and they would confess and worship the Lord Jesus as their Saviour, which is just what they are determined not to do.

A person's faith is the foundation of his life, of his character. The ungodly believe in themselves, and they serve themselves as well as they can. They believe in this world, and they seek the things of this world. The godly believe in God and the Lord Jesus Christ, and they serve God and the Lord Jesus Christ. They believe in a "world to come" and they "seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness."

But there is such a variety of creeds among Christian men that people often think it is a matter of little importance what a person believes, especially in relation to certain things that pertain to forms and future expectations. To such sprinkling is just as good as immersion as an ordinance, and to believe that a person's resurrection takes place at death is just as good as to believe in a future resurrection of the body, and much more of the same sort. Has the Lord spoken? If so, does it not make a difference whether we believe his word, or something contrary to it? The New Testament contains his word to us; sprinkling is not once mentioned in it as baptism, but immersion is positively declared in Rom. 6: 4 and Col. 2: 12. And the resurrection of the body is plainly declared in 1 Cor. 15: 44, 53. But if a person insists upon these truths he is considered bigoted, and called a crank. Is the Lord's word of any consequence? Is it not of the utmost consequence? Whoever thinks that a person's faith is a matter of little consequence, let him act out a Bible faith for awhile, and then he will know by his experience whether it is so or not.

TEMPTATION.

BY C. S. COFF.

Professed Christians will pray, "Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil," and expect the Lord is going to do the whole job without their co-operation. It is a great mistake. God can do wonders independently of us, but there are many things which he does through us, and this battle of life against temptation is one of them. It is a fruitless task without his help; it is a grand success with his assistance. But, brother, you must paddle as well as pray. God helps those who show some disposition to help themselves. What can I do, you say, toward gaining the mastery over my temptation, my besetting sin? You can do much. Is it the temptation that comes from evil associates? To obtain the Lord's blessing in that direction you must come over on the Lord's side and quit the camp of sin. "No man can serve two masters." The man who undertakes to divide his smiles between holy conversation and filthy stories, will find the wear and tear too much for his spirituality. A righteous man not only ought to be pleased with much in this world, but vexed with a good deal that is going on. If you have not learned how to frown on evil, you do not know how the joy of salvation works. You cannot have a pass on the gospel train and be a stockholder or director in the Black Valley railroad. Quit keeping the devil's books.

In many cases of temptation it lies with man, aided by the Holy Spirit, to remove the cause. Some one of the five senses may furnish the avenue through which one may run right into temptation. David said, "I will set no wicked thing before my eyes." That will remove a large cause of trouble. What a man does with his stock and tools on hand will have something to do with his success in quitting the tobacco habit; and then if he comes in contact with it afterwards accidentally, let him testify against it, and shake off the dirt from his feet as he quits the place. What a woman does with her jewelry will have something to do, perhaps, with reviving the old passion to wear it when she has been convinced that wearing such gewgaws and Indian relics is no part of godliness.

If your eyes trouble your piety, look the other way. If your ears hear that which annoys you, stop them with your fingers, Bunyan-like, and run crying eternal life. Does your tongue trouble you? Give it plenty to do in praise of God and in kind words to others. Do the neighbors annoy? "Overcome evil with good." The untutored savage appreciates kindness, but resents abuses naturally enough. The mud in the stream may come from your fountain after all. The boy who treats an elephant to a chew of tobacco need not tell me afterwards that that elephant persecutes him. But when charity has suffered long and is kind, if nothing is to be bettered, move to some other locality; this is a big world.

Do your passions tempt you to evil? Look out how you feed them. It need not be surprising if a horse kept up in idleness and fed high is kinky and unmanageable when he gets out. Leave off the oats or do more work with him. Moreover, cry out to God with David to create within you a clean heart. But even then, when that is done, you are not to be beyond watchfulness. Above all run in the way of God's commandments, and then you will not have much time to go on the devil's errands. See that your feet are pointed the right way, prayer meeting night especially.

APOSTLES never wasted a moment on a gospel of patchwork. Their twofold text was, turn to the Lord, which meant repent-

BIRTH OF THE MANGER KING.

The wings of the Roman eagle covered the known world. In his magnificent palace on the Capitoline Hill sat Cæsar the August, swaying the scepter of universal empire with greater power than had ever before fallen to the lot of mortal man, or ever since. At that same moment, slumbering in a manger at Bethlehem, was a strangely beautiful babe, before whose kingly majesty the thrones of the Cæsars and all the thrones of earth were destined to crumble and pass away; and the Roman gods and godesses—Jupiter, Juno, Venus, Bacchus, Diana—disappearing at the glory of his name, should vanish from the memory of men. Octavius Cæsar and all the Cæsars have long since closed their career and sleep in the common receptacle of the dead, where the dust of peasant and king knows no distinction. But the Babe of the manger still lives, waiting the appointed time when he shall sit upon a throne mightier than that of Cæsar the August, and be Prince of a realm broader and grander than universal Rome.

The birth of Jesus was the dividing line between two momentous ages. The ancient shadowy dispensation surged against that manger cradle and broke into a flood of glorious light, whose radiance filled all the earth. A new and grander order of things was born into this world, at the advent of the Son of Mary, within that rude but hospitable inclosure in the city of David. From those humble and obscure surroundings the Star of Bethlehem arose and shed its healing beams on a forlorn world.

"A star shines forth in heaven suddenly.
O, wondrous orb! Less than the sun, yet greater;
Less in its outward light, but greater in
Its inward glory—pointing to a mystery.
That morning star sent forth its beams afar
Into the land of those who had no light,
Led them as blind men in a way which they knew not,
Until they came and saw the light of men,
Offered their gifts, received the light of life,
Worshiped, and went their way."

Birth of the manger King! But slightly noticed under these mundane skies. A triple band of Magi from the land of the rising sun, star-guided, came alone to the Khan at Bethlehem, where Joseph and Mary and the young child were, bringing their gifts of gold, frankincense and myrrh. They alone, with two age-stricken children of Jacob, discerned the glory of their time. But up in heaven, where God and angels are, was sung anew the song of the morning stars, in measures set to "peace on earth and good will toward men." The "heavenly host" could not restrain their joy. Earthward they flew, on swiftest wing, and poured their richest numbers on the listening hills, and ears of wondering shepherds, waking from their midnight dreams, who alone of all the sons of men had hearts to catch that melody of peace and joy.

But through the circling centuries the holy name of that Babe of the manger has become a talisman of hope, the tower of strength, the solace in distress, the covert from the storm, the song of joy in the darkness of night, the refuge from sin, the light of life from the dead, the surety and seal of immortal years, the pledge of crown and palm and kingdom. Holy name! Name above all names but one! Let it be prattled by infant tongues! Let it be rehearsed by trembling lips of age! Let it be sung, in concert sweet, by old and young together! Under its charming power let sad hearts be joyful! Moved by its beneficence let the poor be rich, and rich as poor become! At its mention let the outcast find a friend, and the orphan feel the warmth of parental arms! Wherever it is recited let blessings be disbursed, and joy be the common lot! Let it ever be remembered, in prayer, in praise, in every gift and token of peace and love!

What if the holy angels, who struck their newest, sweetest, grandest notes at the birth of the manger King, sacred memorial keep; and when the smiling stars stand where they did of yore, attune their celestial voices to holy concert before the throne at whose right hand he sitteth, waiting the appointed day when earth shall again and forever be made glad by the glory of his presence?

The heavenly songsters know just when it was—whether in our December bleak and chill, or in our April bland and gay—they woke the echoes of Judean hill and vale with their mighty anthem over the newborn babe in the manger. Nor need we, because, in these distant ages, we know not at just what moment the wonderful advent occurred, therefore withhold our grateful memorial. We do know that he came to us, bringing life and salvation, at the time appointed of his Father. And gladly will we bring our meed of praise, and joyfully join hearts and hands in memory of His birth, and in hope of his early return.

"How bright appears the Morning Star,
With mercy beaming from afar!
The host of heaven rejoices!
O, Righteous Branch! O, Jesse's Rod!
Thou Son of man and Son of God!
We too will lift our voices.
Jesus! Jesus! Holy, Holy, yet most lowly!
Draw thou near us;
Great Immanuel! stoop and hear us,
Rejoice, ye heavens! thou earth, reply!
With praise, ye sinners, fill the sky,
For this his incarnation!
Incarnate One! put forth thy power,
Ride on, ride on, great Conqueror,
Till we know thy salvation.
Amen! Amen!
Hallelujah! Hallelujah!
Praise be given
Evermore by earth and heaven."

REVIVAL WORK.

We are informed that Bro. Tucker's new pastorate at East Norwalk, Conn., is opening very prosperously; quite a revival interest is in progress. So it may be, so it ought to be in all our churches. Now is the time to push salvation work.

A powerful work of grace is reported in the Advent church at Concord, N. H., under the labors of Bro W. O. Hale. There is a good prospect of large ingatherings of souls.

CHRISTMAS SONG.

BY O. W. SEDERQUIST.

'Twas eighteen hundred years ago that angels sang the birth
Of Jesus Christ, the Son of God, in Bethlehem on earth.
The child of hope so long foretold, Redeemer of our race,
Who came with blessings for the poor through God's abounding grace.

CHO.—Sing of his birth, ye mortals, sing,
The angels sang his birth;
Sing till he comes as Conqueror,
To reign o'er all the earth.

The wise men saw the guiding star, and hasten d to the stall,
Where lay the helpless infant Christ, the sovereign Lord of all;
They bowed the knee in reverence, presenting gifts of gold,
Frankincense, myrrh, as sacred things, in Scripture we are told.

A child of wisdom, love and grace, a friend of rich and poor,
His name is called the Prince of peace, he opens wide the door
To all mankind, to every tribe, and children young as we.
"Forbid them not," the Saviour said, "but bring them unto me."

He took not angels' nature, but the seed of Abraham,
For it behooved the Prince of life to be like fallen man.
As flesh and blood he lived and died, a Saviour for the lost,
That those redeemed from sin might see how much their pardon cost.

O wondrous love, that God should bless the world with grace so free,
In giving his beloved Son to die on Calvary
He slept in death like other men, he rose and left the grave,
Ascended to his Father's throne, the mighty Lord, to save.

THE OLD YEAR.

As the Roman count measures time, 1888 years of the Vulgar Era have ended, or the 1893rd since the true time of Christ's birth; but the Jewish count would terminate the year about the first of April. But with either count, the old year is drawing to its close, leaving the saint one year nearer the kingdom, and the sinner one year nearer the lake of fire. How many years more may elapse before the judgment day will arrive we know not, but the indications that the next may be the last, are deserving of candid attention, though we are far from favoring an over sanguine time mania. The claim that the 1335 days may terminate in 1889, is not without seeming merit, but should not be converted into a dogmatical faith. For many years we have been convinced that the 2300 days cannot extend beyond 1895-6—the 1900th year from the birth of Christ—and they may end previously. We cannot definitely end them next year, and yet we can see how they may possibly end even there.

With the exit of the old year, we may well make a "Selah"—pause and ponder. How much work have we done for God? Has our work been well done? Have we been letting our light shine? Are we "living epistles read and known of all men?" Are we ready for the judgment? These are questions that should receive consideration. There is still more work to do, for our absent Master is still saying to us, "Occupy till I come." He will not neglect to come, even if we neglect to occupy. At his return comes the inspection—let us be ready for it. W. S.

ZOE AND PSUCHE LIFE.

A correspondent inquires, "Is it true that the Greek term zoe always signifies eternal life, and that psuche always means temporal life, as some claim?" We reply that the claim is not tenable. Both words are sometimes applied to temporal life, and both are sometimes used to designate eternal life, as the following facts will show:

1. Zoe is used in the following texts in reference to temporal life: "For what is your zoe? It is even a vapor, that appeareth for a little time, and then vanisheth away." James 4:14. "Seeing he giveth to all zoen, and breath, and all things." Acts 17:25. "If in this zoe only we have hope in Christ." 1 Cor. 15:19.

2. Psuche is used in the following texts to bring to view eternal life. "He that loveth his psuchen shall lose it; and he that hateth his psuchen in this world shall keep it unto eternal zoen." John 12:25. "He that loseth his psuchen for my sake shall find it." Matt. 12:39. "But whosoever will lose his psuchen for my sake, the same shall save it." Luke 9:24, and other texts.

3. Death took away the zoe of Christ, and also his psuche—not two lives, but two names for one life. "In his humiliation his judgment was taken away: and who shall declare his generation? for his zoe is taken from the earth." Acts 8:33. "For the Son of man came . . . to give his psuchen a ransom for many." Mark 10:45.

The foregoing texts, and others that might be quoted, invalidate the claim that zoe always signifies eternal life, and that psuche never signifies endless life, proving that all men have zoe—life, and that death terminates it. Instead of having two kinds of life, we have the duration of life gauged by its basis; a mortal nature producing only temporal life, but the immortal nature, obtained at the resurrection, will produce eternal life: "This mortal shall put on immortality." W. S.

THE KEY TO THE APOSTOLIC SUCCESS.

The apostolic attitude and consequent success, what was it? In 2 Cor. 11:23-28, we have a long list of infirmities, reproaches, necessities, persecutions, distresses, which came upon Paul and some of his fellow-workers. How were they received? Paul expressly declares (2 Cor. 12:10) that he received each one with pleasure! Took pleasure in sitting down under them? in submitting to them? No, no! Pleasure in submitting them to God. Rejoicing in them as fresh opportunities for God to show himself the deliverer. "Most gladly therefore will I glory" in them "that the power of Christ may rest upon me" (verse 9). Glad to have a stake (see verse 7, Revised Version, margin; also Alford) driven through the flesh or self hood. The spiritual self which was in danger of exaltation through the abundance of visions and revelations thus impaled, for that is the figure; dead, thrust to death. Glad of this spiritual weakness which made Christ's opportunity. Henceforth, not an experience, even a third-heaven experience, but a living Christ,—his strength!

Glad of a day and a night in the deep," being drowned twenty-four hours gave opportunity for the mighty power of Christ, and nothing short of it, in resuscitation! Glad of "prisons oft," for they showed how prison walls and doors were nothing to the power of Christ, his people's deliverer! Glad of the weariness, painfulness, and hunger, for it gave God a chance to strengthen, heal, and feed; giving the living commentary upon the words, "My God shall supply all your need!" Thus also by faith did Paul wed "the power of Christ" to cold and nakedness; to perils by land and sea, from wild beasts and wilder men.

Thus we see him at Philippi surrounded by the fierce rabble, taking pleasure in that Christ whose "power" was yet to find among these blood-thirsty ones material for a Philippian church. Stripped naked, rejoicing that the "power of Christ" was to reclothe him. Beaten with many stripes, rejoicing in Jesus, who was to care for and heal the wounds. Imprisoned, feet in the stocks, Paul commends all to God and praises him that the devil's rage, inner prisons, impassable walls, give a grand chance for the "power of Christ' to set at liberty. "The power of Christ" does not disappoint him, though an earthquake is necessary to give the victory his faith has taken! God thinks it a little thing to make all the laws of nature subservient to the prayer of his believing children (See Psalm 18:5-19). But the moral earthquake is greater than the physical one. The "power of Christ, through the converted Roman Jailer, washes the wounds, feeds and cares for the bodies of Paul and Silas. No wonder they "take pleasure" in persecution and necessities which give the power of Christ such opportunities.

We can now understand Paul at Lystra (Acts 14:19). The stones of the infuriated mob cut deep into his flesh, the blood gushed forth, but there was a deeper gush from the well-spring of praise in his soul. "Most gladly therefore will I glory" in these distresses "that the power of Christ may rest upon me." Paul was thoroughly persuaded that the power of Christ over all the devil's work was now to have a fresh exhibition. Again he was not disappointed. Truly they stoned him to death and dragged his inanimate form out of the city: howbeit as his Christian companions stood around his dead body "he rose up and came into the city." God could raise the dead, he could not disappoint his child's faith. "And the next day he (Paul) departed with Barnabas to Derbe." "Out of weakness he was made strong" certainly, thus to rise up for a twenty or forty miles' journey, if not on foot, over roughest of roads in rudest of conveyances; a journey followed by continuous preaching and journeying (Acts 14:21, 22).

We hear his soul's song through those tempestuous days on the Mediterranean (Acts 27:14-20). Triumphant faith makes melody to the Lord. "I take pleasure" in "perils of waters" "that the power of Christ may rest upon me," now "I am weak . . . I am strong." The mighty response from the heart of the Infinite is, "Lo, God hath given thee all them that sail with thee." Not, "God hath given thee the bodies of them that sail with thee," but "them." Was not the whole precious cargo of living souls, plucked out of the enemy's power by being brought face to face with the mightiest "power of Christ;" and made recipients of the power of his love and his grace?

Cast on the Island of Melita, a deadly viper fastens on Paul's hand. As he begins to feel the pain of the venom run up his arm, "Most gladly," he whispers to Jesus, "will I glory" in this infirmity, "that the power of Christ may rest upon me," and these barbarians may see thy grace and might! Even while he sings he shakes off the beast into the fire and feels no harm. They who look to see the death of a murderer, whom vengeance suffers not to live, now change their minds and apply to him for supernatural aid. He introduces Jesus, the great healer, and Publius, "a chief man of the island," and others also which had diseases came and were healed." Paul counted that Jesus' "name, through faith in his name," had all power equally among Christians, barbarians, men, or devils. Glorious truth!

The God of the apostle still lives! Apostolic successes are still consequent upon the apostolic attitude. "These signs shall follow them that believe. In my name shall they cast out devils, they shall speak with new tongues, they shall take up serpents, and if they drink any deadly thing it shall not hurt them; they shall lay hands on the sick, and they shall recover" (Mark 16:17, 18). "Behold, I give unto you power over all the power of the enemy" (Luke 10:19).

Beloved, shall the time past of our lives suffice for discounting our God, his character, and his Word? Shall we to-day accept what our gracious God freely gives—Christ, a victorious power through all our spirit, soul, and body; our circumstances and labors? Shall Jesus have the joy of putting us in that 11 of Hebrews' list of those who, "through faith, . . . obtained promises?" "Amen, even so come, Lord Jesus."—E. SISSON, in Triumphs of Faith.

WE are not at liberty to avoid crosses; they are planted by the hand of a wise Providence, and to avoid them is to turn aside from God himself.

A NEW YEAR'S GIFT.

The following generous offer has been made. Who will be the other nineteen. If you cannot give a hundred, give what you can. Make a New Year's gift to the Lord. All sums from a nickle to a thousand dollars can be profitably used in the mission work. Good results are reported from our missionaries now in the field. We could do ten times as much had we the means at our disposal. E. M. ANDREWS

THE OFFER.—I would be one of twenty to give one hundred dollars each for Home and Foreign Missions as a New Year's gift. If the Lord is coming so soon, we should show our faith by our works. Yours in hope, W. S. HOWDEN.

THE ADVENTISTS.

The Adventists are holding a very interesting series of meetings. Elder Miles Grant, of Boston, Mass., a very able minister of the gospel, is laboring with them. The general topics are lectures from the great prophetic and historical chart. This class of Christians are quite in earnest, and their meetings are full of lively interest. In common with other churches they teach the divinity of Christ, faith, repentance, and salvation through him alone, baptism, his second coming and the resurrection of the dead. They also hold that immortality is conditioned on character, and is not an inherited constitutional quality, possessed by all men, hence they hold that those who die in their sins will be destroyed instead of being tormented eternally. They state that this belief is spreading rapidly among Christian people in both Europe and America. According to the census reports, the Adventists are increasing faster than any other denomination. They have numerous and large campmeetings. The one at Springfield, Mass., has over two hundred tents and cottages; and the one at Alton Bay, N. H., between four and five hundred cottages. Several thousand people attend these meetings. Only about four years since they started in this State; now they have a conference of about ten churches, with nearly a thousand members. The church here in the city has made wonderful progress. The [illegible] and personal coming of Christ. Judging from their preaching and conversations, one must conclude that they believe that we are living in the last generation, and near its close.—Southern Paper.

CHURCH NEWS.

Bro. Stockman:—I came to Bangor to fill the desk for Bro. Clothey two Sundays, and I find the church in a prosperous condition under his faithful labors. The church thinks very highly of him. There has been a constant increase in numbers since he came here to look after the flock. Last Sunday was a blessed day in the Lord. We had a very large congregation all day, and in the evening two started anew for the kingdom of God. The Lord gave us great liberty in preaching his Word, and all expressed themselves as being greatly blessed in listening to the word of truth. We are having meetings evenings this week, and the power of God is with us. Some have come in from other churches and embraced the truth of the soon coming kingdom. Sinners are trembling at his word, and the brethren and sisters say it looks like old times when God's power was with them. We are to remain over Sunday and we expect to see more coming to the Lord. Praise his holy name. We will give him all the glory. Yours in hope. M. STEVENS.

Bro Stockman:—I am in the midst of a gracious manifestation of God's power here in Vershire, Vt., at the present writing—Dec. 4th. We commenced meetings here Oct 25th, and have held some forty services with glorious results, about thirty-five having started in the heavenly way, including a few backsliders. The weather has been dark and stormy most of the time, but it did not prevent the people from coming out to hear.

The whole town is stirred, and some remarkable conversions have occurred, a few whole families coming out on the Lord's side. Many more are under deep conviction. A dance which had been established has been discontinued, and a merchant has given public notice that no more goods are to be sold on the Sabbath. Brn. Moulton and Harding have been with me some, and worked faithfully. Jesus is soon coming. Our work is nearly done, and may it be well done is the prayer of your Bro., P. G. LORD.

Bro. Stockman:—We are in the midst of a glorious revival here. The church is in perfect harmony, and the Lord is blessing the people. A good number have been converted, and a large number of backsliders have been pardoned. For this we praise the Lord. Will all the Advent family hold us up by their prayers that God will save sinners in Concord, and prepare his people for his soon coming. Your brother in the work of the gospel. WM. O. HALE.

A glorious revival is now going on in Deer Island, Stinson Neck. The church is being revived, and backsliders and sinners are returning to the Lord, who abundantly pardons and fills them with his Spirit. All praise to Him who came to seek and save that which was lost! Brethren and sisters, pray for us. H. B. SEVEY.

MANY may be found who can tell of grace, but very few can be found who taste of grace. It is not every one who looks like a Christian that lives like a Christian.—ED.

"THE YEA AND AMEN PROMISES OF GOD."

BY MRS. M. A. TIBBETS.

To the human family the word legacy seems to possess a peculiar charm, for the reason, doubtless, that it embodies the idea of gain or riches of some kind. And the individual receiving such an intimation is very apt to manifest great anxiety until he comes into the possession of the promised inheritance. If, then, there is so much solicitude for the perishable treasures of time and sense, by those who only care for earthly things, may not the Christian who has the assurance that all "the promises of God are yea and amen in Christ Jesus," not only confidently look for their fulfillment in himself, but expect their accomplishment in the salvation of sinners? Do we not in general place too low an estimate on the divine legacy contained in the eternal and unwavering promises of God? Is not this one great reason why so little effort is put forth by the church in behalf of the perishing around us?

We have been commanded to be followers of those who through faith and patience inherit the promises. And if we would be benefited by their example, we must imitate them. Their zeal must become our own, their self-denial and devotion to the cause of Christ must be interwoven with our life and work. We often pray for the graces of faith, hope, and love, but prayer alone will not bring them. They must be wrought out in us by faith in God's promises and full consecration to his service. And we need not be concerned, so long as we lean on the promises of God, as to what portion of his vineyard we shall occupy or what kind of labor shall be assigned us.

For if in his providence ours should be a thorny pathway, or floods of tribulation be allowed to break in upon us, we have only to lay hold of the promise, "When thou passest through the waters I shall be with thee, and through the rivers they shall not overflow thee. When thou walkest through the fire thou shall not be burned, neither shall the flame kindle upon thee, because I am the Lord thy God, the Holy One of Israel, thy Saviour." O glorious hope, precious promise, "that no weapon formed against us shall prosper," so long as we fully trust in Jesus and let him guide us all along our pilgrim journey. And now that we are so near the consummation of our "blessed hope," the time of our glorious reward, the gift of immortality and eternal life, let us more than ever pray, "Come, Lord Jesus, come quickly."

AN ARMY OF ANGELS.

BY O. WATSON.

As I do not remember seeing an article on the above subject, I take the liberty to make a few remarks in reference to it. It may have been noticed that the Bible is almost silent regarding the names of angels. The name of the archangel is Michael, and that of another is Gabriel. The Mohammedans call the angel of death Azrael, and Milton speaks of Ithuriel, who touched Satan with a spear. Lucifer, the fallen potentate, was called "the son of the morning," and is the hero of "Paradise Lost,"

Military imagery is frequently used. Cohorts are not mentioned, but legions are referred to. A cohort consists of six hundred men, and a legion of six thousand. The Saviour said that more than twelve legions could be sent him, which would be more than seventy-two thousand. We are informed about the names of the cherubim who guarded Eden's gates with a flaming sword which turned every way," but they may have been dignitaries who have already been mentioned. Neither are we informed as to the name of the destroying angel in Egypt, or the one who went forth and slew Sennacherib's army. Nor do we know who visited "the cities of the plain," but they may have been the cherubim.

It will be the most magnificent spectacle that was ever witnessed when the heavenly hosts come upon the day of judgment. Perhaps it may not be improper to think of the infantry as having been marshalled into position by the archangel at the center. Gabriel and Azrael at the right and left, and the cherubim with the right and left wings. It may not lack cavalry, for chariots and horses of fire are mentioned; and what artillery may equal the tremendous detonation of the "great noise"? There will be a shout such as may "tear the sky's concave," and it will wake the sleeping for judgment.

RESOLUTIONS.

The following resolutions were passed upon the death of Sr. Keziah Wells by the Ladies' Tract and Mission Society connected with the Advent Christian Church of Kennebunk, Maine.

Whereas the hand of Divine Providence has removed our beloved sister, Keziah Wells, from our midst, and we are desirous of testifying our respect for her memory, and expressing our earnest and heartfelt sympathy with the family who are deprived by this dispensation of a wife and mother, therefore

Resolved that we tenderly condole with the family of our deceased sister in their hour of trial and bereavement, and devoutly commend them to the keeping of him who looks with pitying eye upon the afflicted.

Resolved that in our natural sorrow for the loss of a faithful and beloved sister, we find consolation in the belief that it is well with her for whom we mourn.

Resolved that these resolutions be spread upon the records of this Society, sent to the World's Crisis for publication, and transmitted to the family of the deceased, as a token of our respect for the Christian character of our sister who has gone to her rest, and of the interest felt by the Mission Society, of which she was a member, in those whom she loved and cherished.

IN AFFLICTION.

Bro. Stockman:—Our dear son is dead, and we are in affliction and sorrow. Will you and the dear brethren and sisters pray for us, that the dear Lord may give us grace to bear up under the dreadful blow; it is so hard to bear. We have had a good deal of sickness the past summer and fall. May God bless it all to our good. Your Bro. and Sr., DANIEL D. & MARY L. PAGE.

Penacook, N. H.

YOUR ADDRESS, PLEASE.

We are always thankful for all contributions to the tract mission work in which I am engaged, and I give certificates of membership and receipts by mail to all when they give me their address; and I often send them some new publications free. But when friends send me money, and do not give their address, I cannot reach them with a receipt, and they do not know that I get the money they send, I frequently get such letters. This week some one sent me twenty-five dollars for my mission work, but neither name nor town. Please give your address that I may make a correct record. I. C. WELLCOME.

CORRESPONDENCE.

FROM BRO. W. J. CUSTAR.

Brethren and Sisters:—On reading the letters published in the Crisis from members of one common family, children of God and heirs of the soon coming kingdom, I feel to thank God that there are so many true and faithful witnesses to the precious truth of his holy Word, which assures us that all who believe in him and by patient continuance in well doing seek for it shall obtain glory, honor, immortality, eternal life. I can look by faith to the time when all the faithful in Christ who shall have finished their course, fought the good fight, and kept the faith will with Paul receive the crown of righteousness, that the righteous Judge will give to all that love his appearing. How cheering the thought. Jesus is coming. Yes, Jesus is coming, not death as all our theoretical friends teach. Dear friends, death is not the voice that Jesus sends to call us to his arms. Why should intelligent people so wrest the plain word of God as to allow the devil's lie to be substituted for God's truth, which was manifested that he might destroy the works of the devil.

All know, who know anything about the works of the devil, that death temporal and death eternal are the result of his lie to the first pair in the garden. I am so stirred with this wrong idea in the minds of the people that I feel like exclaiming in the language of the poet, "O that I could speak so loud that all the world might hear it." Life only in Christ, out of him death. I agree with the sister in the Crisis of Nov. 21 that without this Bible doctrine of the resurrection from the dead and eternal life in Christ our hope would be built on a sandy foundation. Christ is the center of all our hope. Often the heart is made sick by this hope delaying. But cheer up, pilgrim soldiers, the signs indicate the near coming of the Lord. My heart responds with that of the apostle, "Even so come, Lord Jesus, and come quickly." Thank God, there's a better day, there's a crowning day coming on. I by his grace intend to be there. Then let us be faithful and ever ready to hail the glad day. Yours looking, watching, and waiting for his glorious appearing.

FROM SR. S. A. CUNNINGHAM.

Bro. Stockman:—After reading so many letters from different ones in the dear old Crisis, our weekly visitor, I thought I would write this letter, which is my first attempt. Dear brethren and sisters, after taking a view of my past life, I feel it a duty to tell the world and all the Crisis family how I came to be an Adventist. I first joined the M. P. Church at the age of eleven years. I remained a member of that church until 1887. My brother, C. E Shafer, was the first of our family to embrace the grand and glorious truth of the soon coming Lord and kingdom, and the destruction of that old serpent the devil.

I thank God that through him this grand truth was brought to me. When this great truth began to make an impression on my mind, I tried to banish it away by thinking I would go to heaven as soon as I died. It seemed as if I could not give up my place in the Methodist church and the doctrine of eternal life in misery. So I was halting between two opinions. Then I resolved to search for the truth in this matter, and I thank God that I found it. I imagined I was like Paul of old when the scales fell off his eyes. I found that the blessed Lord said, "If I go and prepare a place for you I will come again." That made me an Adventist.

I found in 1 John 3 that when he appeared we should be like him, and so many other blessed promises that I cannot number them. My husband, N. D. Cunningham, is preaching this truth and warning the people to flee the wrath to come. Dear brothers and sisters, let us all have on the wedding garment when the Bridegroom comes. Hoping to meet soon in the kingdom of God, I remain yours in hope of eternal life.

Linden, Va.

FROM MRS. M. HOLT.

Bro. Stockman:—As I read the Crisis and see so many good letters, it cheers my soul to think that there are so many dear ones waiting and watching for our dear Saviour. I can say that I am one that is on the watch for him. How I long to see him. It is some eight years since I became a firm believer in the Advent doctrine. As I search the Scriptures I find that the time is near for his return, and it behooves us to keep our lamps trimmed and burning. O, that we may be weighed in the balance and not found wanting.

My husband and myself are the only ones in this part of the country who believe that Christ will soon return. We are ridiculed for such a belief. I have heard professors say that they were not anxious to see the end of time. Why not? When we have a dear friend gone a journey, we are longing for their return. Dear readers, is not our dear Saviour dearer than all earthly friends? I believe that when Christ comes he will give his saints immortality, and not before. I believe that I shall be here on this earth and meet him in the clouds, and ever be with him. Pray for me that I may be found ready. Yours in Christ.

Mingo, Ohio.

THESE very feet of ours are purchased for Christ's service by the precious drops which fell from his own torn and pierced feet upon the cross. They are to be his errand-runners. How can we let the world, the flesh, and the devil have the use of what has been purchased with such payment?—ED.

SECULAR NEWS.

FOREIGN.

ST. JOHN, N. B., Dec. 19. The snow storm of yesterday was the most severe for years, but no damage is reported in the province. The only inconvenience felt is the partial suspension of train service along the northern division of the Inter-colonial Railway. At Moncton more than a dozen trains were held because of the blockade north of Campelton. A snow slide at Metapedia covered a special train, but no one was hurt. A crew of shovelers dug out the train, which is now slowly making its way to its destination.

The Quebec train reached here last night, ten hours late. The train hands had a very severe experience. In some cases, owing to the blinding sleet and snow, relays of men had to be provided, and cuttings were often filled up when nearly open. A storm of such length has not been known on the road for years, and it will cost the company thousands of dollars to re-open communication.

LONDON, Dec. 20. A dispatch from Suakin says: The combined force of British and Egyptians made an attack yesterday upon the rebel position. They stormed the redoubts and trenches, and after a brilliant engagement, lasting half an hour, drove the enemy into the bush. The rebels are reported to have lost a thousand men killed. The British loss was slight. The British are encamped in the rebel position. The victory was complete. A later dispatch says: The British lost four men killed and two wounded during a gallant cavalry charge. The Egyptian and black regiments charged the trenches and carried them brilliantly, losing two men killed and thirty wounded. The only officers wounded in the attacking force were two Egyptians.

SUAKIN, Dec. 20. Before dawn this morning the British man-of-war Starling and an Egyptian steamer moved up the coast, with orders to cover the rebels at Handoub. At daybreak the forts opened fire upon the rebel trenches, and the troops advanced to the attack, the black brigade on the right flank and the cavalry and mounted infantry covering. The Scottish borderers, the Welsh regiment and the Egyptian brigade occupied an embankment between the forts, the British infantry being held in reserve. The forts shelled the trenches, keeping up a terrific fire. The enemy held their ground with intense courage until the black brigade charged the trenches, which fell after half an hour's hard fighting. The rebels fought with fanatical bravery. Two of the enemy's guns were captured. The naval brigade did splendid work. The Scottish borderers are now at work entrenching the rebel position. The enemy are retreating toward Hasbeen and Tamar. The British force numbers four thousand men.

—The final collapse of the De Lessep's canal scheme cannot be delayed many weeks. When it comes it will mean trouble on the Isthmus of Panama, when the thousands of half-civilized laborers are thrown out of employment. American citizens have important business interests on the Isthmus, and it is the wiser plan to have a naval force at hand strong enough to protect them, rather than to wait until perchance the property is damaged or destroyed and then put in a claim for indemnity. The frigate Richmond and corvette Ossipee, which were intended for the Haytien expedition, are not needed for that service. They, or other suitable vessels, should be sent to Colon.

DOMESTIC.

CONCORD, N. H., Dec. 19. Master Bridge Builder Patterson of the Concord Railroad, who was at Hooksett when the accident occurred this forenoon, has just reached here by special train. Particulars gleaned from him are as follows: A force of eleven men, including carpenters and helpers, were at work on the middle of the "twin bridges," when, at about eleven o'clock, the cracking of iron and timbers was heard, and before any one could escape the bridge moved, and was precipitated over the falls into the water. Nine of the eleven went over the falls, three of them being drowned. Two in some manner got on to the ice above and were not carried over. One of the drowned men was Silas Goodale of Hooksett, aged 35, who had been Mr Patterson's foreman several years. The other two were stonemen and belonged in Nashua. Mr. Patterson saw Mr. Goodale just before being carried over the falls, but discovered no trace of him later. The men who escaped did so by clinging to portions of the bridge and floating to places of safety, from which they were rescued in boats. Mr. Patterson succeeded in getting on a large boulder, where he remained until released. N. J. Bluto, a lineman of the Western Union Telegraph Company, who belongs in Northern New York, was on the bridge and went through the falls, and when recovered was found to be badly bruised about the lower limbs and in an exhausted condition from exposure. A laborer named Fleming, who belongs in Suncook, was also badly hurt. None of the rescued men were fatally injured. The bodies of the drowned men have not been recovered. The bridge was supposed to be firmly stayed by heavy timbers, and the accident is solely attributed to the ice and high water which started the supports.

CAMDEN, Me., Dec. 19. There was a pathetic scene in the Supreme Court at Rockland to-day, it being the divorce case of Gardiner vs. Gardiner, which has been in hearing for the past two days, on the custody of three children, all boys. The youngest, a handsome boy of ten years, was awarded his mother, which caused great grief, as all three boys wanted to go with their father, with whom they have been living in Camden since their return from France last summer. It appeared to the court to-day that after the court Tuesday Mr. Gardiner returned home to Camden with all three boys. Some hours later one witness for the defendant appeared at Gardiner's house by order of the court for the custody of the child. Gardiner made no opposition, but the ten-years-old lad stoutly refused to go or leave his father. The messenger was not empowered to use force, and was obliged to return to Rockland without the child. This morning, a writ of habeas corpus was served on the boy, with a summons for Gardiner to appear in court. Accordingly Gardiner and the boy both appeared, when the child was ordered to the mother's custody, but still refused to go. The Deputy Sheriff was ordered to deliver him to his mother's arms, who tried to hold him, but he got away and went back to his father. Then his mother's junior attorney caught and carried him out of the court fighting, kicking and screaming. The father appeared much affected at the painful incident of having his son taken away from him by main force. His wife walked triumphantly out of the court with her attorney, bearing her struggling boy.

Mrs. Gardiner is a daughter of Henry Carey Baird, a well-known Philadelphia publisher. The social position of the parties gives the case great interest.

WICHITA, KAN., Dec. 20. Thomas McConnelly, a young teacher who came to Andale, Kansas, a short time ago from the East, was yesterday fatally injured by one of his pupils. He had some trouble about the organization of the school, and had gotten the ill-will of some of the pupils. While explaining a problem at the blackboard he was called a liar by a pupil. He remonstrated with the young bully, when a free fight ensued, during which the teacher received a fatal blow on the head with a poker in the hands of one of the boys.

As this is the hardest season of the year for a Conference, we hope all who can consistently will come to help and be helped. Call on Bro. Morse, near the station, corner of Vine and Water Streets, who will see that entertainment is provided for all. I. C. WELLCOME, President. E. O. DINSMORE, Secretary.

P. Q., No. Vt. and No. N. H. A. C. Conference.

The eleventh annual session of this Conference will convene with the Advent Christian Church of Waterloo, Quebec, in their new chapel, Tuesday, JAN. 8th, 1889, at ten o'clock A. M., closing Sunday evening, January 13th. Arrangements have been made with the following railroads:

The C. P. R. & Grand Trunk R. R. will pass and return at one and one-third fare, if twenty-five or more attend the meeting; if less than twenty-five, then one and two-thirds fare will be charged. All ministers, delegates, etc., passing over either or both of these roads, will please write to Secretary of Conference for a certificate (giving address), as you must have it to present to Ticket Agent, at starting point, for his signature, to insure the reduction on the return trip. Full fare will be charged going, and one-third returning, if these conditions are complied with. Those going over the Grand Trunk, will, I expect, need two certificates, as you will buy ticket to Sherbrooke, or nearest point to strike the C. P. R., where you will buy ticket again for Waterloo. All coming over Boston & Maine to Newport or Sherbrooke, will need certificates to present to Ticket Agent of C. P. R. Co., to be receipted by him. No certificate, no reduction on these two roads. The Boston & Maine R. R. will issue return tickets at two cents per mile from Hardwick and intermediate stations on St. Johnsbury & Lake Champlain Division to Newport, Vt., and from St. Johnsbury and intermediate stations to Newport, and from Stanstead Junction to Newport, and from Ayer's Flats and intermediate stations to Sherbrooke. All those coming over Boston & Maine line will take the C. P. R. at Newport or Sherbrooke.

Dear brethren and sisters in Christ, pray much for the success of this expected gathering. And you that belong to the Conference and live within its bounds, take the very good advice given to the old deacon by his son, after hearing him pray for the Lord to provide for the needs of the poor widow and her family at the top of the hill. Said he, "Father, you had better answer that prayer yourself. God has given you plenty of this world's goods, go and provide for them yourself." So come in the name of the Lord, expecting a feast of fat things from the table of the Lord, and be sure to bring a good supply yourself from the throne of grace.

D. GREGORY, 1st Vice President.
J. WARD, 2d Vice President.
H. D. SELBY, Secretary.

ADVENT CHRISTIAN BELIEVERS.

ARRANGED BY W. N. TENNEY.

TUNE.—"Marching through Georgia."

We're a band of waiting ones,
Looking for the Lord;
Watching for his coming,
According to his word;
The curse is lifted from the earth,
And Eden is restored
At the appearing of Jesus.

CHO.—Glory! glory! now the Saviour's near;
Glory! glory! soon he will appear;
With pearly clouds and glory bright,
He will our vision cheer,
And then he rewards all his children.

When Jesus comes to earth again,
We'll meet him in the air;
And with him is a city,
With mansions bright and fair;
And during earth's great final woe,
Will dwell securely there,
And be forever with Jesus.

From caverns rude and dreary wilds,
From east and west they'll come;
And from the ocean's bed they'll wake,
And be with Christ at home;
The sanctuary then is cleansed,
And saints no more shall roam
At the appearing of Jesus.

The living changed, the dead are raised,
A great and mighty throng;
Crowns on their heads, and waving palms,
They sing redemption's song;
From mountain heights and valleys green,
They'll sing both loud and long,
At the appearing of Jesus.

CORRESPONDENCE.

FROM SR. HATTIE M. CHASE.

Bro. Stockman:—I will now endeavor to write a few lines for the Crisis. This is my second letter. I am glad to tell you that I am still saved and do God's will by simply trusting in him. I have proved, on looking back upon five months spent in serving Jesus, that God has blessed me wonderfully. I am determined to go forward. I have proved that God's grace is sufficient for me. Though ofttimes the way looks dark and dreary, and our dear friends are called away, we have some one to sustain us and help us to bear our burdens. None can be happy until they lay their sins at the Saviour's feet and receive a full salvation. Some think more of fashion than they do of God. Fashion will not save them. Ladies spend hours at the mirror, dressing themselves in finery when they had better be praying to God to pardon their sins and reading their Bible.

God wants our hearts and our souls. I never have regretted the day when I gave my heart to God, for I go on my way rejoicing. No one has ever received the fulness of joy but those who have gone right down to the foot of the cross and got saved. Do you wish to be happy? Do you wish to enjoy life? Do you wish to give up your sinful ways? Do you wish to find a true friend, one that will never forsake you? Then cast your poor soul at the Saviour's feet. He is mighty to save, he is able to raise you to newness of life. Cast your care upon him. Come out of the darkness and enter into the light. Some will not come to Christ because they are afraid they will go back into the world. They need not think this if they are convinced that they will give up all for him and do his blessed will. They can try at any rate. Others are drifting along the shore, longing to be Christians, but cannot be reconciled to it. Others are out in the deep.

Thank God, I am out in the deep, and mean to keep there until Jesus comes to gather us home to his heavenly kingdom. They can scoff and sneer now, but when the day of judgment comes they will wish that they had served their God. But it will be too late. God will have to leave them behind to be dropped into the burning lake. Come, sinner, come to Jesus and find rest. He died that you might live. It makes me feel joyful to see the Salvation Army soldiers spreading salvation through the streets and all over the world, trying to bring sinners to the Saviour. May God bless them.

East Holden, Maine.

FROM ELD. J. RIDLEY.

Bro. Stockman:—There are various subjects that I want to write upon, so I will write this letter and let it cover the whole matter. I want to say for the benefit of those who have wondered at my long silence, that it has not been on account of a lack of interest that I have not written, but because of my having so much to occupy the attention of my hands, head, and heart. My all is on the altar. I am seeking day by day to know the will of God and to do it.

Our late quarterly meeting and the protracted meeting which followed were seasons of refreshing and profit. Bro. Bolster was with us three weeks. He rendered efficient service. The church was quickened into renewed activity, wanderers returned, and quite a number confessed their desire and purpose to serve the Lord. I baptized one young woman Sunday, Dec. 2. There were quite a number more who ought to have gone forward, but they put it off. We fear for some of them, lest they by refusing or neglecting to come out boldly and confess Christ and follow in his commandments fail of the grace of God which he is so willing to bestow upon the willing and obedient, and thus be led again captive by Satan. I am now (Dec. 11) helping Bro. Bolster and the New Hartford church. Various circumstances have worked against the interest of the meeting, but there are omens of good. The work is the Lord's and we expect to "press the battle," trusting in the Lord to give us the victory.

Now a few lines about our Western paper. I want to say to all, as I have repeatedly said to those who privately inquired, that I am heartily in favor of a Western paper for the S. A. C. A., to be controlled by a committee or publishing society of Western men, provided there is a good prospect of its being self-sustaining. We do not want any more experiments or lame sickly enterprises, to be kept alive by continual begging, nor any more side issues. I could not well attend the Aurora meeting, and so do not know how much financial help is "in sight," or what the prospect of establishing it upon a self-sustaining basis is.

I have just written to Bro. Armour concerning the matter, but will say here that I will do what I can, though it may not be much, in the way of getting subscribers and furnishing material for its columns. As to the place of permanent publication, I think it should be somewhere west of the Mississippi, Des Moines, Iowa, would be, I think, a suitable location. I desire, before closing, to return our thanks to those who so generously assisted in paying the expense of removing a cancer from my wife's face. Upward of $80.00 has been received. The operation has apparently been successful, and the place has already entirely healed. Yours waiting for the Life-giver.

FROM G. C. CHAMBERS.

Dear Bro:—For the relief of my mind I have decided to write a few lines to the dear brethren and sisters of the Crisis. I have been impressed for some time to write, but for fear I could not interest them I have not done so until now. I hope to be guided by the Holy Spirit. I hope that I am not guided by the spirit of bigotry, but I pray that I may be guided by the Holy Spirit of God. My dear brethren, the Saviour says, "My kingdom is not of this world." This declaration was fully witnessed and made manifest by the prophets and apostles, of whose lives and teaching we are thoroughly informed. Let us see when this kingdom was prepared for his people. We find in Matt. 25: 32, 33, 34, that it was before the foundation of the world. Is not this encouraging, to think that the kingdom was prepared so long ago, and that the mansions were there.

What loving kindness the Saviour had, bearing all our sins, even until he said, "It is finished." Let us be submissive and bear the cross and the trials, and resist temptations. We can in the strength of grace. Jesus makes the yoke easy and the burden light. In conclusion I will say, contend earnestly for the faith once delivered to the saints. We have no little to contend with. Read Eph. 6: 12. But thanks be to God, an armor is prepared. "Wherefore take unto you the whole armor of God," and face the foe, and Jesus being our captain we will, with the shield of faith and the sword of the Spirit, conquer. God give us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ. Dear brethren and sisters, pray for me. May God bless and keep you is my humble prayer.

Lake Ogden, Fla.

FROM SR. MOLLIE GROVE.

Dear Brn. and Srs. of the Crisis Family:—As the holidays approach, and we commemorate that time by making many hearts happy by gifts of love, let us remember not only our religious duty but our Christian privilege of remembering those who are not blessed with health and strength as we are. Do not use all your money to buy presents for those who will give you one in return, but give to those who cannot recompense you and "you shall be recompensed at the resurrection of the just." I speak of that other member of our family, Sr. Theria B. Weaver, of North Dana, Mass., whose sufferings, since attacked with cancer, are dreadful beyond description.

Truly her case is one deserving of all the love and sympathy which we can bestow upon her, and in her deep affliction let us make glad her heart by remembering her in a substantial way, and not let her be burdened by meeting necessary expenses not knowing where the money is coming from. You know when our Lord returns we will want our hearts made glad by hearing the "Well done" from him who will say, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me." Your sister hoping for eternal life.

FROM SR. M. S. CASWELL.

Bro. Stockman:—I thought I would pen a few lines to your precious paper, the Crisis. I am looking for the soon coming of the Saviour. I used to hear it said that when the world came to an end it would be burned up, and I used to fear in warm weather, but when winter came I thought I was all right, for it could not burn up with so much snow. But when I heard Brn. Harding and Lord preach the true gospel, I found that nothing was impossible with God. I was baptized by Bro. W. F. Harding, Oct. 9th, 1887. I feel that the Lord is my shepherd and I shall not want. The Saviour will soon come and set up his kingdom, and I hope we all will be ready to meet him when he comes. I desire an interest in all your prayers. Your Sr. in Christ.

THE ADVENT CHRISTIAN SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION.

A meeting of the above Association was held at Waterbury, Conn., Dec. 6th, 1888. The attendance was very good, and the exercises interesting and helpful to those interested in Sunday School work. After the opening prayer by Bro. Henry Stone, and introductory remarks by the President, Bro. Thomas Fitzsimons, Bro. H. H. Tucker addressed the convention, his subject being, "How shall we get the children into the Sunday School?" Several valuable suggestions were offered upon the subject, which formed the basis of a very interesting discussion by the delegates at the close of the address. This closed the forenoon session.

At 1.30 o'clock P. M., the meeting was again called to order by the President. After prayer by Bro. J. W. Davis, a temporary constitution was read and adopted.

Voted, that a committee of five be appointed by the Chair to draft a Constitution to be substituted for the one just adopted.

The following brethren were appointed: H. H. Tucker, Geo. C. Arms, Henry Stone, Dr. B. St. John, and L. F. Baker. Thirty-five Sunday School workers then signed the constitution, and the convention thus formed proceeded to elect its officers for the ensuing year, which resulted as follows: President, Thomas Fitzsimons; Vice Presidents, H. H. Tucker and L. F. Baker; Secretary, Geo. M. Teeple; Treasurer, J. W. Davis.

After the election of officers, Bro. L. F. Baker addressed the meeting upon the following subject: "The importance of teaching our children Bible views. What help shall we use?" The address was very interesting, and the discussion which followed profitable, as it brought out many thoughts of value to Sunday School workers. Bro. L. F. Baker then offered the following resolution, which was adopted by vote of the convention:

Resolved, That in the judgment of this convention it is expedient that our Publishing Board provide quarterlies adapted to the needs of our intermediate scholars. Reports from several schools were then listened to respecting their methods of conducting the school and keeping the pupils' interest. After voting to accept the invitation to hold the next meeting at Winsted, the meeting adjourned to the call of the Chair.

In the evening Bro. H. H. Tucker preached a very interesting sermon, after which several manifested a desire for the prayers of God's children. God has thus far manifested his approval of the work, and our prayer is that he may still lend his aid until many of the little ones who are now exposed to the danger of being wrecked by the false lights of these last days may see the "blessed hope," and be safely guided into the haven of eternal glory.

WORTHY OF CONSIDERATION.

The following testimony from Joseph H. Brown, Marlboro, N. H., is worthy the careful consideration of all the friends of Jesus. He says:

"I was a Master Mason twenty years, a Royal Arch Mason fifteen years, and an Odd Fellow eight years, during which time I was a minister of the gospel, and as I believe, 'a Christian.' I believed in and defended those organizations. Soon after I experienced entire sanctification, the Holy Spirit enabled me to see the whole subject of secret societies in a new light.

Except a short conversation with an old friend, I neither read nor heard anything from others respecting the matter while reinvestigating it. After much reflection and prayer, it appeared to me that I must withdraw from, and renounce all secret societies, or come into condemnation. That was the first time the matter was presented to me in that light. My heart was consciously free from inbred sin, and the light of the Holy Spirit filled my soul. Other things also which I had previously considered harmless, then appeared wrong. My spiritual perception was greatly clarified.

Under a deep sense of humiliation, bordering at times on agony, after delaying action until my opinions ripened into convictions, I took steps whereby I obtained certificates of honorable withdrawal from all secret societies. With them there came to my heart a sweet sense of God's approval, which grows sweeter and stronger as time advances. I shall now mention but one of the several reasons which prompted my action, namely: According to my understanding, Free Masonry and its offspring, Odd Fellowship, in their religious teachings, antagonize orthodoxy, and foster unscriptural views of the requisite preparation for heaven. This is done throughout their ritualistic work generally, and especially in their burial services, by assuming and implying that all who perform their covenant obligations as members of those orders go to heaven, in consequence thereof, with no other conditions required, at death.

While studiously avoiding all allusion to Jesus Christ and the Holy Spirit, and their redemptive work, under guise of neutrality as to religious creed, and while inculcating correct moral precepts, the theological atmosphere which is breathed in the work of the Lodges of those organizations is that of salvation by works, and not by faith. To the average mind, unevangelical doctrine is thereby inculcated, carnal security is fostered, and the seeds of spiritual ruin are sown.

My range of facts convinces me that, in not a few instances, the influence of the Lodge operates as a dry rot on the spirituality of professors of religion, and as an opiate on the religious creed and consciences of unprofessors. I profoundly believe that much of the subtile and fatal skepticisms of the times relative to the essential points of orthodoxy, is due to secret societies more than to anything else.

JOSEPH H. BROWN."

The voice from heaven says: "Be ye not unequally yoked together with unbelievers. . . . Come out from among them, and be ye separate saith the Lord, . . . and I will receive you and be a Father unto you, . . . saith the Lord Almighty." 2 Cor. 6: 14–18.

SELECTED MISCELLANY.

IMPRISONED AT CHILLON.

The old dungeon at Chillon, which Byron immortalized in his famous poem, has to-day a prisoner of a somewhat different stamp from him of whom the poet wrote, as will appear from the following, taken from the Pall Mall Gazette: "The prisoner of Chillon" at the present moment is Miss Charlotte Stirling, an English young lady of good family, who two years ago left a home of comfort and luxury to serve in the Salvation Army in Switzerland. She is now "doing her time"—one hundred days—in the famous old fortress on the shores of Lake Leman, where Bonnivard was imprisoned, and which is familiar to every one from Byron's lines:

"Chillon! thy prison is a holy place,
And thy sad floor an altar."

Miss Stirling had held some children's meetings at Orbe, and she was asked to visit the deathbed of one little twelve-year-old who had learned to sing "I love Jesus" at her meetings. For this offense, under an old law of 1834, one of those which, like the act de Heretico Comburendo which disfigured the English statute book until recently, still disgrace the laws of some Swiss cantons, Miss Stirling was condemned to one hundred days' imprisonment. She went to jail at the head of a triumphal procession, the processionists singing hymns as they marched up to the iron-barred gates of the prison.

LOST IN SIGHT OF HOME.

A few months ago during one of the severe storms that visited Colorado, a young man perished in sight of home. In his bewilderment he passed and repassed his own cottage, to lie down and die almost in range with the "light in the window," which his young wife had placed there to guide him home. All alone, she watched the long night through, listening in vain for the footsteps that would come no more, for, long before the morning dawned, the icy touch of death had for ever stilled that warm loving heart. The sad death was made still sadder by the fact that he was lost in sight of home. Lost, when he had almost reached the haven of safety and rest. How many wanderers from the Father's house are lost in sight of home, in the full glare of the gospel light! They have the open Bible, overflowing with its calls and promises, the faithful warnings from the sacred desk, the manifestations of God's providence—all tending to direct their steps heavenward—and yet from all these they turn away, waiting for the more convenient season, and are lost at last in sight of the many mansions.

WHOM NOT HAVING SEEN, YE LOVE.

We sometimes form a very strong attachment to some earthly friends whom yet we have never seen. We hear of their works; we catch their spirit; we see numerous and most expressive manifestations of it; and our interest in them is scarcely less than if we had seen them with these eyes. There are multitudes of holy men, living and dead, for whom we cherish the deepest affection and regard. How many precious spirits among the patriarchs, prophets, and apostles do we admire and love! for our souls have been trained and tuned to gratitude, submission, adoration, and praise by the sweet words in which their hearts once gushed and poured forth their rich devotions. Hence we feel as if we knew them. In fact, we are scarcely less acquainted with them than if we had seen them.

Yet, while we know them much, we have known Jesus more. The streams have been good; the fountain incomparably better. We have gone to them for instruction, but to Jesus much more; and for many other things than mere instruction. Their example has been valuable; that of Jesus has been priceless. We have not seen him; but we have seen and have felt the proofs of his unutterable love for us. We see such grace and such goodness and self-devotion to our race, such unsurpassed moral excellence, we cannot but admire, love, and adore him as if there were nothing else to be loved and adored on earth or in heaven.

Though our mortal eyes have not seen him, yet he has not left himself without witness to our hearts. His Spirit is commissioned to take the things of Christ, and show them to us. Perhaps in such a world as ours, this is as good as to see Jesus with our own eyes. In fact, he told his disciples it was better. It was "expedient for them that he should go away," and give scope for the Comforter to come. This great divine Teacher knows how to put our minds in a right position to see Jesus. He can give us the stand-point of facile and impressive observation, whence his beauties shine most sweetly, and whence his qualities as a Saviour are revealed so impressively that you cannot help seeing their wonderful adaptation to such a sinner as yourself. We have no reason to be dissatisfied with such visions of Jesus as we may have through the ministrations of his own commissioned and most competent Teacher.

When we have well improved these means and methods of cultivating our love for Jesus, we shall go higher. Having loved him here without the open vision of his glories, that open vision will be our ultimate reward. Just as it is precious to meet the friend whom we have loved without having seen on earth, so will it be most precious and blessed to see Jesus as he is. We shall know him then with a knowledge in which no imperfection can mingle, with a love which nothing can mar, with a fulness of soul which will leave nothing more or better to be desired. Soon, SOON, the visions of that perfect glory will burst upon our waiting eyes and longing hearts. Come, Lord Jesus, in thine own best time.—Oberlin Evangelist.

THE ALABASTER BOX.

Do not keep the alabaster boxes of your love and tenderness sealed up until your friends are dead. Fill their lives with sweetness; speak approving, cheering words while their ears can hear them, and while their hearts can be thrilled by them. The things you mean to say when they are gone, say before they go. The flowers you mean to send for their coffins, send to brighten and sweeten their home before they leave them. If my friends have alabaster boxes laid away, full of perfumes of sympathy and affection, which they intend to break over my dead body, I would rather they would bring them out in my weary hours and open them, that I may be refreshed and cheered by them when I need them. I would rather have a bare coffin without a flower, and a funeral without an eulogy, than a life without the sweetness of love and sympathy. Let us learn to anoint our friends beforehand for their burial. Post-mortem kindnesses do not cheer the burdened spirit; flowers on the coffin cast no fragrance backward over the weary days.—Talmage.

KNOW THY OPPORTUNITY.—There was a motto on the temple of Delphos which read: "Know thy opportunity." This is one of the great lessons of life which should be learned early. Many do with opportunities as children do at the seashore—fill their little hands with sand, and let the grains fall through, one by one, until all are gone. After all, it is contact of soul with soul that wins; and there is an open highway to every soul; and you shall find it, if you search for it in the spirit of the Master. God brings men of all classes close to us, that we may love them, and reach them with the truth. Some are scarred all over with sin and crime; are so degraded and repulsive that we shrink from contact with them; but they are men, and down deep within them there is a yearning for the life of God. This is your time to warn and save. Here is your opportunity. Don't miss it. You cannot do to-morrow the work of to-day. He whom you would save will be elsewhere, or other things will engage you.

DR. ARMITAGE, of New York, author of the latest history of the Baptist denomination, in an address last week to the students of Bristol college, said the man who was not ambitious to rise above the ordinary level of his profession had better not enter it. They must not be content to be ordinary students if they want to be extraordinary ministers. He also expressed the opinion that the attempt to expose and answer in the pulpit the arguments of skepticism, had made more infidels than all the press in the present day. Jesus Christ never argued with skeptics. There is no need to take hold of every hot poker which every fool heats for you. The preacher's business is to handle the Word of Life, and not hot pokers.

"I GIRDED thee, though thou hast not known me." Is. 45: 5. A little boy sat in front of his father, and held the reins which controlled a restive horse. Unknown to the boy, the reins passed around him and were also in his father's hands. He saw occasion to pull them. With artless simplicity the child looked around, saying, "Father, I thought I was driving; but I am not, am I?" Thus it is often with men who think they are shaping a destiny which a higher hand than theirs is really shaping. They do their own will, but they also do the will of God. A stronger hand guides them; a mightier power holds the helm of their vessel and saves from rock and wreck. Happy are they who quietly yield to the guidance of an Almighty hand.

"BLESSED ARE THE MERCIFUL."—Yesterday was the coldest day yet, and its sharpness furnished occasion for a very graceful act, of which the historian was witness. In a West End horse car sat a poor mother with a child in her arms. The clothes of the mother were thin, and could hold little or no more mending. The child, whose bandaged eyes suggested that the mother had been to see a doctor, was wrapped in a miserable little shawl that would be but as a sieve against a sharp wind. A lady on the other side of the car arose to leave; on her arm was folded a comfortable looking shawl. In passing she spread this over the child. "Keep it," she said in a low voice as she passed out.—Boston Evening Record.

A BEAUTIFUL THOUGHT.—God knows what keys in the human soul to touch, in order to draw out its sweetest and most perfect harmonies. They may be the minor strains of sadness and sorrow; they may be the loftiest notes of joy and gladness. God knows where the melodies of our natures are, and what discipline will call them forth; some, with plaintive song, must walk in the lowly vales of life's weary way; others, in loftier strains, shall sing of nothing but joy, as they tread the mountain-tops of life; but they all unite without a discord or jar, as the ascending anthem of loving and believing hearts finds its way into the chorus of the redeemed.

HOLINESS.—It is not necessary that we travel down into the valley to find the Pool of Siloam, and wait for the coming of the angel to trouble the waters, and for some strong man to lift us and put us in. No; the fountain is all around us, and flows divinely clear. The Son of God is waiting at this very moment to wash all our sins away. Have you a single stain upon your heart?—come to the fountain. Have you trouble and sorrow?—come at once and receive joy and comfort.—Bishop Simpson.

A MAN was seen one day going in a boat on a river with a large dog, which for some reason or other he wished to get rid of by drowning. He succeeded in throwing the animal into the water, but the creature sought with all diligence to re-enter the boat. As the man was attempting to beat off the dog from the boat he fell overboard, and would have been drowned had not the dog seized him by his coat and brought him to the shore. What a lesson does the action of this dumb animal teach all Christians—to return kindness for all acts of evil which may be committed against them.

WHEN the celebrated Hayden was asked how all his sacred music was so cheerful, the great composer replied: "I cannot make it otherwise; I write according to the thoughts I feel. When I think upon God, my heart is so full of joy that the notes dance and leap, as it were, from my pen; and since God has given me a cheerful heart, it will be pardoned me that I serve him with a cheerful spirit."

THE more grace any man hath, the more humble, meek and merciful he is; the more light any of us have, the greater discovery it makes of what is amiss in ourselves and others; the more truth dwells in us, the less fraud and deceit is wrought by us.

OBITUARIES.

BUNN. At half past three P. M., on Saturday, Nov. 10th. 1888, LaFayette Norris, son of Burris H. and Florence A. Bunn, and grandson of LaFayette and Harriet E. Norris, fell asleep in Jesus, aged one year and twelve days, at the residence of LaFayette Norris.

Little Fay, as we called him, was a remarkably intelligent and sweet-dispositioned child. He was a little sunbeam to all who came into his presence. It seemed that nothing could ruffle his constant good nature. To see him was to love him. The gaze from his large blue eyes and sweet, smiling countenance went right to the heart. We read that "they that turn many to righteousness shall shine as the stars forever and ever," and I believe that little Fay will have some stars in his crown, for I have no doubt that his short life has been and will be the means of turning some to righteousness. Indeed, I consider it quite possible that the wavelet that he made on the great ocean of time shall roll on and gather power until many shall owe their salvation in part to little Fay's short, sweet life.

An earnest desire has sprung up in his sorrowing mother's heart to share with her "dear little angel man," as she often called him, the glories of a never-fading life. I trust that others who have been cheered by little Fay's sweet ways, and who now sadly miss him, will also conclude that they want to again meet with him in that glorious home that awaits him but a little way in the future. In view of that glad moment when I shall again see little Fay, and other loved ones who now sleep in Jesus, my heart cries out, "Come, Lord Jesus, and come quickly." A funeral discourse was preached on Sunday, Nov. 18, by Elder Louis Hubbell, from Jer. 21: 16. Bro. Hubbell presented the gospel hope of a resurrection from the dead in a clear and forcible manner. And as it was the first Adventist funeral sermon ever heard by most of those present, they gave marked attention. The words spoken were very encouraging to the mourners.

CHAPMAN. In Savanna, Ill., Saturday, Dec. 1, 1888, Hanan W. Chapman, aged fifty-eight years, eleven months and nine days.

The subject of this notice was born in Hillsborough, Highland County, Ohio. At an early day he came to Illinois, and was a soldier in the late war. Since that time he has been a farmer by occupation. My acquaintance with him has been pleasant. I am compelled to say with one of old, "A good man has perished out of the earth." At a time he was much interested in what was presented in [redacted] was the only sis [redacted] and D. Mathewson. She is at [redacted] the morning of life, and the coming [redacted] Jesus Christ.

TEMPERANCE.

THE DEACON'S ERROR.

Had Deacon R—— been a man of less prominence in the village it would have mattered little as to the manner of life lived by himself and family; but when a man is singled out by his fellow-citizens to represent them in the law-making bodies of the country, as well as a leader in the church and in society, his doings and sayings, all his omissions and commissions, are noted and commented. Deacon R. was a man of more than ordinary ability. Genial and kind in his intercourse with his neighbors, broad in his views, liberal with his means and of boundless hospitality.

It was in the winter of 18— when the great temperance revival swept over our land, that the village of B—— had its stagnant life stirred to the depths by a wave of reform that came to it in the mighty upheaval. Large and enthusiastic meetings were held in the churches, pledges were circulated, and much earnest work was done by the friends of the cause. It was a matter of surprise that Deacon R's youngest daughter was a constant attendant at these meetings and surprise deepened into wonder when she openly allied herself with temperance people, by signing the pledge and throwing all the ardor of her young life into the cause.

The morning following this bold step, when Nannie came down to breakfast, her pleasant good morning received a very chilly response from her father, and as soon as the blessing was asked, he said to her: "I am sorry indeed that a child of mine should find it necessary to join in with a lot of fanatics, who, because they are too weak to control their appetites, bind themselves by a solemn pledge neither to touch, taste nor handle; but since you have confessed your weakness we will try not to throw temptation in your way, and will therefore drink our wine after you retire from the table."

Nannie's face crimsoned at this biting sarcasm, but she replied, very quietly: "You know, papa, I never drink anything but water, but I wanted to lend my little might of influence against this dreadful curse. I fear it will yet bring us sorrow, [redacted]r, oh, papa,—Charlie—do you think [redacted]harlie was quite temperate when he was [redacted]ome last, papa?"

"Come, come, daughter, it is rather pre[redacted]mptuous in you to criticise your brother [redacted]ho is older than you, and entirely competent [redacted]etent to take care of himself. Let us hear [redacted] more of this." Then in a more kindly [redacted]ne: "You are at liberty to do as you like [redacted]cut this teetotalism, but remember the [redacted]me liberty must be accorded to the other [redacted]mbers of the family. As to Charlie, [redacted]ng men will sow their 'wild oats,' but [redacted]u will see that your brother will make [redacted] man to be proud of; so don't bother [redacted]ur little head about reforming those who [redacted]e older and wiser than yourself."

[redacted]A few months later an event of consider[redacted]le importance to Deacon R's family fur[redacted]bed an occasion on which the deacon's [redacted]ory as to moderate drinking received a [redacted]st damaging blow. The thirty-third an[redacted]ersary of his marriage came in the holi[redacted]ys, and it pleased the deacon to celebrate [redacted]e event by giving a party such as had [redacted]ver before gathered in B——. Invita[redacted]ns were issued for several hundred guests, [redacted]l when the evening arrived, the well[redacted]ed rooms of their spacious residence sug[redacted]sted that few had failed to avail them[redacted]ves of this opportunity to congratulate [redacted] worthy couple who were now beginning [redacted]travel the down grade that leads so rap[redacted]y to old age. Seated in a conspicuous [redacted]ce in one of the brilliantly lighted par[redacted]s, surrounded by their friends and neigh[redacted]s, their faces beaming with serene en[redacted]ment and the content arising from con[redacted]us integrity duly appreciated, while [redacted]ir beautiful and accomplished daughters [redacted]ceived and entertained the guests, the [redacted]ne was one to gladden the heart of any [redacted]e. "Have you seen Charlie?" whispered [redacted]nnie, as she passed her sister in the wide [redacted]ll that led into the room where their par[redacted]ts sat. "O Mary! see—he is —" and [redacted] she stopped, her cheeks blanched and [redacted]e tottered and fell against the stairway. [redacted]astily recovering herself she passed up the [redacted]irs, and Mary turned to see the brother [redacted]vancing, or rather staggering, towards [redacted]ere his parents sat, with a vacant leer on [redacted] fine face that but too plainly told that [redacted] was intoxicated. When he had pushed [redacted] way through the crowd that was about [redacted] father and mother, he made an obse[redacted]ious bow, extended his hand, and in a [redacted]d voice made a silly speech full of ex[redacted]vagant expressions of love and venera[redacted] for his "honored parents." Had a [redacted]underbolt fallen upon these wretched par[redacted]ts they could scarcely have seemed more [redacted]mpletely and suddenly turned to stone; [redacted]t from between the white, set lips of the [redacted]ther came the command to leave the [redacted]om and the house.

[redacted]"Ha, ha!" laughed the inebriated youth. [redacted]The Governor (hick) is a little (hick) er[redacted]tic this evening (hick)!" and bowing [redacted]in in the same obsequious manner he [redacted]ered from the room, and some of his [redacted]anions hurried him away until reason [redacted]d, and with it a sense of the over[redacted]helming shame he had brought upon the [redacted]rents whom he did in truth respect, and [redacted]sters whom he devotedly loved.—Un[redacted]Signal.

PROPHETICAL.

A RIPE WORLD.

BY J. COUCH.

"And another angel came out of the temple, crying with a loud voice to him that sat on the cloud, Thrust in thy sickle, and reap: for the time is come for thee to reap; for the harvest of the earth is ripe."—Rev. 14: 15.

The text represents the human family by the figure of a field of ripe grain. The word ripe expresses a stage of progression;—a perfected condition. It is a state where a radical change of condition necessarily takes place. It is a transition point, passing from a preparatory process to the accomplishment of that for which the thing was designed. The cereals are sown that food may be produced. The food cannot be obtained until the plant has passed through certain progressive stages, into the condition of ripeness, when that progression ceases; it can then be converted into bread, as designed.

As the Creator has chosen this figure to represent the human race, the principal points of the illustration should be looked for in the history of that family. Humanity must advance through certain stages, or distinct conditions of experience, before reaching ripeness; and there the preparatory experience ceases. The figure presents humanity in the concrete, and not individually; for it includes in the harvest all the earth.

As human experience in this world has several distinct departments, as the religious, the national, the moral, etc., it is important to learn in this investigation if all the departments are included, or only one. We answer: The Bible teaches that all are included, but separately,—the national leading.

Let us now look at the symbol of the text as used by other prophets. Isaiah gives it thus: "In the day shalt thou make thy plant to grow, and in the morning shalt thou make thy seed to flourish: but the harvest shall be a heap, in the day of grief and of desperate sorrow. Woe to the multitude of many people, which make a noise like the noise of the seas; and to the rushing of nations, that make a rushing like the rushing of mighty waters! The nations shall rush like the rushing of many waters: but God shall rebuke them, and they shall flee far off and shall be chased as the chaff of the mountains before the wind, and like a rolling thing before the whirlwind. And behold at evening-tide trouble; and before the morning he is not. This is the portion of them that spoil us, and the lot of them that rob us." Isa. 17: 11–14.

Here the seed is sown in the morning of the progressive day, and the harvest is at the evening-tide, or close of the day. At that time there will be "grief and desperate sorrow"; not a golden age of universal peace. The grief will be caused by the "rushing of many people"—"nations," when they will become "as the chaff of the mountains," to be swept away "like thistle-down before the whirlwind." The same figures of chaff and wind are used by Daniel, in presenting the demolition of the last Gentile government upon the earth, for beyond them is the kingdom of God "under the whole heavens," which will be "an everlasting kingdom." Both prophets present the destruction of the same nations to be experienced at the same time, and this change is the transition represented in the figure of the text.

Joel takes up the same figure, and presents it thus: "Proclaim ye this among the Gentiles: Prepare war, wake up the mighty men, let all the men of war draw near; let them come up. Beat your ploughshares into swords, and your pruning-hooks into spears: let the weak say, I am strong. Assemble yourselves, and come, all ye heathen, and gather yourselves together round about: thither cause thy mighty ones to come down, O Lord. Let the heathen be wakened, and come up to the valley of Jehoshaphat; for there will I sit to judge all the heathen round about. Put ye in the sickle, for the harvest is ripe; come, get you down; for the press is full, the fats overflow; for their wickedness is great. . . . The sun and the moon shall be darkened; the stars shall withdraw their shining. . . . The heavens and the earth shall shake; but the Lord will be the hope of his people." Joel 3: 9–12, 15.

Here again the symbol of growing grain and its harvest is applied in the national department. God sends a forewarning message to the Gentiles, announcing that uncommon preparations for war will be made, and that this will extend to all the heathen: and that in connection with this war movement "mighty ones will come down" from the Lord; which corresponds perfectly with what the Revelator describes in his nineteenth chapter. By this we learn that Joel made the same chronological application of this symbol as did Isaiah. Joel continues his description, and gives identically the same symbols as are given in the text: The sickle, the ripe condition, and the harvest. The likeness is so perfect, that it is supposed that John, or the angel, quoted from Joel. Joel next presents "multitudes" just as did Isaiah, and locates them where the day of the Lord is near. The Revelator also refers to this day of the Lord, and calls it "the great day of his [the Lamb's] wrath." It is the day of the execution of his law upon rebels; it is the same day that Peter calls "the day of the Lord," who declared that in it "the heavens shall pass away with a great noise, and the elements melt with fervent heat; the earth also, and the works therein be burned up." 2 Peter 3: 10.

Again, Joel next gives the celestial signs which will indicate the approach of the woful day of the Lord's harvest scene, showing that they will be the darkening of the sun, and moon, and stars.

Christ, in presenting the time of his coming, when all the tribes—nations—of the earth shall mourn, gave as signs of the approach of that day the same given by the prophet, and in the same order. If Christ and Joel foretold the same signs, and it is evident that they did, then the chronology of the harvest is settled; for the Saviour gave these signs to show when he would come, and the gospel end.

Jesus, the perfect teacher, introduces in a clear and convincing manner this same symbolism, in the parable of the wheat and tares; and as an understanding of the application of the figure was so important, he gave an explanation of it which must be literal. He said: "He that soweth the good seed is the Son of man; the field is the world; the good seed are the children of the kingdom; but the tares are the children of the wicked one; the enemy that sowed them is the devil; the harvest is the end of the world; and the reapers are the angels. As therefore the tares are gathered and burned in the fire; so shall it be in the end of this world. The Son of man shall send forth his angels, and they shall gather out of his kingdom all things that offend, and them which do iniquity; and shall cast them into a furnace of fire: there shall be wailing and gnashing of teeth. Then shall the righteous shine forth in the kingdom of their Father. Who hath ears to hear, let him hear." (Matt. 13: 37–43.) No ingenuity of argument or sophistry can invalidate the proof here given by him who could not mistake or mislead, that this divine symbolism was designed to represent the human family divided into two classes,—righteous and wicked. It is direct proof, also, that the harvest was located at the end of the world; or as the revised margin, "the consummation of the age." The age is the gospel dispensation, and the consummation is the completion of the redemptive work of the gospel. The harvest, therefore, represents the events to transpire at the close of the gospel. The proof given by Christ in the illustration that the wheat and tares—righteous and wicked—are to continue unseparated unto the harvest, shows that there can be no period of universal righteousness and peace before the work of the gospel shall be finished. But every statement and illustration in the New Testament shows that wickedness will not only continue through the gospel age, but that the last days of that age will be the most wicked and perilous.

This interpretation of Christ presents the wicked at the harvest in the same condition as did Isaiah and Joel,—suffering the final punishment of the last judgment. The ultimate reward of the righteous, which is glory in the kingdom of God, is connected by Christ with the earth's great harvest.

The Revelator, in connection with the text, gives a very definite foreshadowing of the harvest scenes. He says: "And he that sat on the cloud thrust in his sickle on the earth; and the earth was reaped. And another angel came out of the temple which is in heaven, he also having a sharp sickle. And another angel came out from the altar, which had power over fire; and cried with a loud cry to him that had the sharp sickle, saying, Thrust in thy sharp sickle, and gather the clusters of the vine of the earth; for her grapes are fully ripe. And the angel thrust in his sickle into the earth, and gathered the vine of the earth, and cast it into the great wine-press of the wrath of God. And the wine-press was trodden without the city, and blood came out of the wine press, even unto the horse bridles, by the space of a thousand and six hundred furlongs." (Rev. 14: 16–20.) This passage, as in Matthew, presents in strong contrast the two classes, and, as in other cases, the history of the wicked is made specially prominent.

To make a clear distinction between the two classes, two angels are taken to represent the harvesting agencies, and two kinds of fruit—grain and grapes—are chosen to illustrate the different conditions and modes of harvesting the classes. The terrible destruction of the vast armies of rebels against God, is here set forth. They are trodden down under the crushing instrumentalities of final judgment, as grapes are trodden in the wine-press. O the flood of human gore, when the besom of destruction shall sweep our world from pole to pole!

Are there indications that the harvest is nearly ripe? We answer, There are. How do we know when the grain in the field is ripe? When we see that it has passed through certain stages of growth, and arrived at a certain condition, we know it is time for the reaping process. There are four natural stages of development of wheat, and these are named in the Bible, "blade," "stalk," "ear," and "full corn in the ear." (See Isa. 4: 24; Mark 4: 28.) Every agriculturist has witnessed these distinct stages, and that they come in changeless order. When it has reached its full size, it then dries or ripens.

As God gave this figure for the expressed purpose of showing the time of the ripe condition of human society, we are authorized to expect that God has somewhere furnished the prophetic history of society, in which four distinct stages, corresponding to the figure are given. And, as we find by the testimony of the inspired witnesses upon the harvest, that they made prominent the national conditions, we are invited to look for the four departments in political, consecutive prophecy.

As Daniel and the Revelator are the only consecutive prophets, we must look to them for the four departments. John's consecutive lines commence and end in the gospel dispensation; but Daniel's commence with the first human government of which there is any record, and ends with the gospel. Daniel presents four kingdoms of specific character, spanning the whole time of human governments, down to the great harvest. The four kingdoms exactly meet the requirements of the four stages of the grain. The prophetic ending of the fourth kingdom perfectly corresponds with the Bible account of the events of the harvest, and also with their chronology. Each ends all Gentile governments, and each connects with the signs of the last judgment, and each introduces the triumph of the saints, and the establishment of the kingdom of God. The proof, therefore, is incontrovertible, that the fourth kingdom, Rome, ends in the events of the harvest.

From this standpoint, when can the ripe condition of human society be looked for? We answer emphatically, when Rome has reached the last stage of its Bible history. All will admit that we have passed the first, second, and third kingdoms—Babylon, Persia, and Grecia, and that each exactly filled its prophetic mold. All must, also, acknowledge that the fourth kingdom—Rome—came at its appointed time, and in its order, and that it arose to fill its position more than nineteen hundred years ago. It is plain that Rome's prophetic history requires that its first development be that of a united imperial power, followed by a subdivision into a number of segmentary kingdoms, among which would be an intolerant power, inflicting martyrdom upon dissenters to its creed, and that its dominion to "wear out the saints" would continue twelve hundred and sixty years, when, under severe judgments from God, it would lose that dominion, and not regain it "unto the end."

The last period of Roman Bible history presents its segmentary kingdoms as "partly strong," and "partly brittle," i. e., partly united and partly antagonistic, while the intolerant power is shown to lose its civil control, and become like a "widow," without political support or protection.

Has Rome passed through these experiences as foretold? She has. Her imperial throne was established with universal power, and so remained until four seventy-six (476) A. D. A change then came, and soon the empire was divided into a number of kingdoms, and has remained so unto this day. There arose an intolerant Roman power, which put to death more than sixty millions of dissenters to its creed. This was exactly what God foretold. That persecution, authorized by national enactments, ceased between 1773 and 1780 A. D. According to the Word of God, the Roman kingdoms at the present time are "partly strong," being in a nominal alliance, and are "partly broken," i. e., in a chronic condition of antagonism. These are exactly the conditions God has shown Rome will be in when the great harvest comes.—Journal of Prophecy.

MISSIONS.

ADVENTISTS OF NEW HAMPSHIRE.

BY F. L. PIPER.

At the State Conference recently held in Manchester, a plan was outlined for opening a vigorous campaign of earnest work in our State. There were many who wanted to see fresh conference and protracted meeting fires blaze all over the State this winter, and a tent secured and put into the field another summer. The Conference took steps to have, if possible, all churches set in gospel order with officers and an enrolled membership, thus placing the work on a substantial basis. A State evangelist is to be put into the field, who will work in new or old places, preaching, gathering together and setting in order, and exercising over the churches that are without pastors something of a Presiding Elder's watch care.

Now to the point. The Mission Committee with whom this matter is left for arrangement, first of all need funds. The Committee consists of F. L. Piper, D. M. Leavitt, J. W. White, Charles Willey, and G. M. Little. At the Conference one hundred dollars was pledged; now we want to see the amount swell to five hundred dollars at once. Will every church and every Adventist in New Hampshire note this appeal and respond at once. Let those who can send money, and all send pledges of what you can do for the year to come; this will furnish us a basis on which to plan our work. Three persons have already pledged twenty-five dollars each for the work. Who will now follow with similar or smaller amounts? Let pledges be taken in all our churches in the State, and let the scattered believers also respond. All our churches in the State have been founded by mission work; let us now take up the work of building permanently and vigorously extending our borders.

The Committee feel the burden of this work, and are devising liberal measures for its extension. Shall we have the prompt co-operation of the Adventists of New Hampshire? Any member of the Committee will receive money or pledges.

That all lines of the work may be moving, the committee ask for correspondence from places where meetings may be held in new localities, or old interests strengthened, and where lacking, gospel order established in the churches.

May New Hampshire once more thrill with enthusiasm for mission work, and heartily respond from every quarter.

ROME AND TURKEY.

The confession is frequently made, that the hardest missionary field is in Papal countries; and we read of similar confessions in regard to Mohammedan lands. The subjects of the Pope and the votaries of the false prophet are alike hard to win. This is according to prophecy. Papacy and Mohammedism are both destined to go down under the judgment of God.

The following is significant in this view. It is from the Christian Commonwealth: "It is not too much to say that missions among the Turks are the forlorn hope of the Christian churches. Who hears at any time of the conversion of a Mussulman to Christianity? All over the world the gospel is making progress among heathen tribes. Idolatry is everywhere surrendering; but it cannot be said that there is any sign as yet of the collapse of Mohammedanism. As a political power, the cult of the False Prophet is as effete an anachronism as that of the Beast. It was among the corruptions of the Eastern churches that the 'Little Horn' rose up as if for providential chastisement, and that, as all students of ecclesiastical history mark with wonder, at the very same period as the ten-horned beast sprang into being by reason of the apostacy of the Church of the West. The seventh century witnessed the birth of Popery and Mahommedanism together; and, to complete the parallel, these two systems as secular usurpations have each received their mortal wounds in the nineteenth century, with a coincidence in point of time which is again a chronological marvel.

"It is evident that the present period is a spiritual crisis for the world. At this juncture Turkey, and especially Asiatic Turkey, ought to be the most important missionary field in the world. Many of our readers may not know that it is a favorite field with some of the American mission agencies, which are carrying on great enterprises in various parts of the Sultan's dominions. There is one thing which is most singular about mission work in Turkey, viz., that it is almost confined to attempts at the conversion of Christians to Christianity! This may sound like a ridiculous anomaly, but it is the anomaly of facts. The truth is that the Turks never allow, and they never will if they can help it, any liberty of action which encroaches on Mahommedanism. Turkey is open to all missionaries. Yes; but none of these must seek in any way to convert the believers in the Prophet! Let Protestants, Catholics, Greeks and Jews all go to work to convert Armenians, Druses, Marionites, or each other, and the Sultan and the Pashas smile with complacency. But should some young Mussulman be converted, there is a blaze of furious fanaticism forthwith. It is a fact that the most interesting country in the world is the most hermetically sealed, as yet, against the gospel, no matter what professed liberty is enjoyed."—The Watchword.

THERE is a little church at Benita, Africa, where on Sunday morning a number of boys and girls are to be seen with slates in their hands, taking notes of the sermon; and some of the elder ones copy their notes on paper and give them to other native Christians, that they may use them at meetings they hold in the towns near.—Ex.

ON the west coast of Africa there are now about two hundred churches, thirty-five thousand converts, one hundred thousand adherents, two hundred and seventy-five schools, and portions of scripture have been translated into thirty-five languages.—Ex.

THIBET is the only known country on earth not open to missions. It has an area of 750,000 square miles, about as large as the United States east of the Mississippi River.—Ex.

CHURCHYARD MUSINGS.

Solemnly, sadly, sullen and strange,
  Rustles the graveyard grass;
Something of sorrow and something of change,
  I hear it when I pass;
And the ivy taps on the mouldering stone,
And the wind in the trees gives a dismal moan,
  Like monks in the chapel at mass,
  And all things seem to sigh, "Alas!"

How sound each sleeps in his daisy bed!
How little that's thought, or felt, or said,
  Do they think, or feel, or know!
So tenderly tread o'er the dead;
For, a few years fled, and a few eyes red,
With tears forgotten as soon as shed,
  And we all must soon lie low!
  'Tis a way that the best must go—
  It has been ever, and must be so.

It will and it must, but not for long;
For faith is sure and hope is strong,
And man and his Maker have suffered wrong,
  And Death will have had his day;
And the world will undergo repair,
And all be made pure, and all be fair;
And sin and sorrow shall have no share,
  But in things that are passed away—
  Hasten the time, dear Lord, we pray.

THE RIVER JORDAN.

There are a hundred rivers in the world more majestic, picturesque, broad, and deep than the Jordan. Yet none so wonderful in its historic memories, none so hallowed in its sacred associations, none so remarkable in its physical features. It is the venerated river of the Holy Land. The first sight of the Jordan winding swiftly through the plain of Jericho, like a silver band, fills the mind with deep and uncontrollable emotion, for it has been associated with some of the greatest events of Scripture history from the patriarchs to the apostles. On its banks have occurred the most stupendous miracles of judgment, power, and love ever witnessed on earth. Its name is engraven on many pages of sacred history. Great poets have loved to sing, great painters have loved to paint this swift-flowing and sweet-winding river.

The Jordan is the sacred stream of the Jew who has Moses and the prophets, of the Christian who treasures the memories of his Lord and Master's life on earth, of the cast-out Ishmaelite who has dipped his wandering, bloody foot in this river since the days of Hagar, and of the faithful followers of Mahomet. The name of no other river is known so long and so far away as this. It has been translated into many a language, is the heritage of millions, and calls up the holiest thoughts from the Mahomedan on the burning plains of Africa and India, the Greenlander, in his long Arctic winter, and Lap amidst his mountains of eternal snow. The name Jordan not only calls up memories of the past, but it speaks to us in strange, shadowy truths of the future, happier land that lies beyond the cold stream of death. It would almost seem as if God had from the very first prepared this river to be the scene of wonderful events. It is the most remarkable river of the earth in its physical and geographical features. The name Jordan means "swift-flowing." It takes its rise in the north of Palestine, in a cave at Bainas, at the base of Mount Hermon. It descends rapidly through its whole course, for it is the swiftest-flowing river on earth. Another fountain is that at Can Tel-el-Kadi, or "hill of the Judge," called by Josephus Lenu Jordan, and a third spring is Nahr Hasbany, rising near Hasbeiya on Mount Hermon. The Ghor or valley through which the river flows is extremely tortuous. After flowing through a course of not less than one hundred and forty miles from Bainas the Jordan reluctantly pours its waters into the sea of death which has no outlet.

The whole valley of the Jordan is thus a huge rent in the earth's crust. Though its course is not much more than one hundred miles in length, at its northern end on the brow of Hermon we have a region of perpetual snow; at its southern end, along the shores of the Dead Sea, there are the climate and productions of the tropics.

Both banks of this wonderful river are bordered with rich, deep, green vegetation, acacias, oleanders, silver poplar, willows, terebinths, and other trees in which the fowls of the air have their habitation and sing among the branches. The river travels a course of country of about eighty miles, but so winding and tortuous is the stream that it actually travels a course of three hundred miles. When it reaches a distance of two or three miles from the Dead Sea its rich vegetation dies away, and the water rushes with terrible rapidity. This is now known in the religious language of Christendom as "the swelling or glory of the Jordan." This holy river was regarded by the Israelites as the glory of their country, for it is the only river in Palestine that always flows in a copious stream. Its appearance is exceedingly varied. Now it sweeps gracefully round a green meadow, softly kissing with its rippling waves the blushing flowers of oleander as they bend over it; now it clasps a wooded islet in its shining arms; now it flows swiftly against opposing rocks, and dashes madly forward in sheets of foam. Contrasted with the bare grey hills around, here and there are many spots of solemn beauty.—Restitution.

HUMBLE HEROISM.

An Incident of the Flood in the Alabama River during the Spring of 1886.

Negroes frequently exhibit a wonderful heroism in times of danger. An incident of this I witnessed in the spring of 1886, when a freshet in the Alabama river caused the country on each side to be overflowed by water for many miles.

The negroes on the river plantations were the greatest sufferers. Their cabins would be under water almost before they knew that danger threatened them, and hundreds of them were sometimes found huddled together on some knoll sufficiently elevated to be above the water. There they often remained two or three days and nights without food, and exposed to a soaking rain.

Many relief expeditions were sent out from the neighboring towns to rescue them. These consisted of one or more boats, manned by expert oarsmen and swimmers and filled with cooked provisions, blankets, etc. One day the news came that the negroes on a certain plantation had sought refuge upon a corn barn, around which the water was rapidly rising, and so rendering their condition exceedingly precarious. Two boats started out at once to their assistance. In one of these I went, accompanied by another white man and a negro. Just before dark we sighted the corn barn, upon which a mass of black humanity clustered like a swarm of bees. A heavy rain was now falling, and daylight beginning to fade away.

But we did not appreciate their extreme peril until the boat struck against the frail log building which was in the water to the edges of the roof and visibly shook and tottered. The poor creatures commenced to clamber hurriedly down to the boat.

"Stop!" I cried. "The women and children first."

The men obediently resumed their seats. We took in first the children and then the women, and were about to push off, telling the men we would hurry back for them as quickly as possible or send the first boat we met, when a very old woman (I noticed she was the last to get in the boat and had done so reluctantly) seized the corner of the house, and looking anxiously into my face, said: "Marster, ain't you gwine to take my old man?" "No, auntie," I answered; the boat is too full now. He must wait till we come back."

The words were hardly out of my mouth when, with a sudden spring, she was up and on the roof again. It shook as she scrambled on it and took her seat by a little, withered old black man, whose hand she seized and held as if she was afraid we would tear her away from him.

"Come, auntie," I cried, "this won't do. We can't leave you here, and we can't wait any longer on you."

"Go on, marster," she replied; "I thanks yer, en I pray de good Lawd to fetch you all safe home; but I am gwine to stay wid my ole man. Ef Simon got to git drownded, Lyddy gwine git drownded too. We dun bin togedder too long to part now."

And we had to leave her, after throwing some blankets and a lot of provisions to them.

As we rowed off in the rain and night, a high falsetto voice, tremulous with age, came across the waters from the crib where we left the almost certainly doomed group in the blackness of darkness. They dared not have a light for fear of setting fire to their frail support. We stopped our oars to listen to the song. It came clear and distinct. First Lyddy's trembling voice and then a chorus of a dozen or more of the deep bass voices of the men:

"We're a clingin' to de ark,
  Take us in, take us in;
Fur de watah's deep en dark,
  Take us in, take us in;
Do de flesh is po' en weak,
  Take us in, take us in;
'Tis de Lawd we gwinter seek,
  Take us in, take us in;
Den, Lawd, hole out dy han',
  Take us in, take us in;
Draw de sinnahs to de lan',
  Take us in, take us in."

We could wait and listen no longer to the weird sounds, but struck our oars in the water and hurried away.

Most fortunately, we came across a boat bent upon the same errand as ourselves, which went immediately to the barn and saved all of its living freight. The building had apparently been held down by their weight, for as the last one left it turned over and floated away to the gulf.

Their rescuers told us afterwards that as they neared it the first sound they heard was an old woman's voice singing:

"De Lawd is hyah'd our cry," answered by the men:

"Take us in, take us in;
En He'll save us by en by,
  Take us in, take us in."

To this simple-hearted old creature divorce courts and separations were unknown. With her it was "until death do us part."—Our Dumb Animals.

SYMPATHY OF OCCUPATION.

I advise you to cultivate sympathy of occupation. Sir James Mackintosh, one of the most eminent and elegant men that ever lived, while standing at the very height of his eminence, said to a great company of scholars, "My wife made me." She ought to be the advising partner in every firm. She ought to have a right—she has a right—to know everything. If a man goes into a business transaction that he dare not tell his wife of, you may depend that he is on his way to bankruptcy or moral ruin. There may be some things that he does not wish to trouble his wife with, but if he dare not tell her, he is on the road to discomfiture. On the other hand, the husband ought to be sympathetic with the wife's occupation. It is no easy thing to keep house. Many a woman that could have endured martyrdom as well as Margaret, the Scotch girl, has actually been worn out by home management.

There are a thousand martyrs to the kitchen. It is very annoying, after the vexation of the day around the stove or table, or in the nursery or parlor, to have a husband say, "You know nothing about trouble; you ought to be in the store half an hour." Sympathy of occupation! If the husband's work cover him with the soot of the furnace or the odors of the soap factories, let not the wife be easily disgusted at the begrimed hands or the unsavory aroma. Your gains are one, your interests are one, your losses are one; lay hold of the work of life with both hands. Four hands to fight the battles. Four eyes to watch the danger. Four shoulders on which to carry the trials. It is a sad thing when a painter has a wife who does not like pictures. It is a very sad thing when a wife is not suited unless her husband has what is called a "genteel business." As far as I understand a "genteel business," it is something to which a man goes at ten o'clock in the morning and comes home at two or three o'clock in the afternoon, and gets a large sum of money for doing nothing.

That is, I believe, a "genteel business," and there has been many a wife who has made the mistake of not being satisfied until the husband has given up the tanning of the hides or the turning of banisters, or the building of the walls, and puts himself in the circles where he has nothing to do but smoke cigars and drink wine, and get himself into habits that upset him, going down in the maelstrom and taking his wife and children with him.—Zion's Watchman.

THE FEVERISH HAND.

It was a Monday morning, and a rainy one at that. "Mother" was busy from the moment she sprang out of bed at the first sound of the rising-bell. Others besides children get out of bed "on the wrong side,' as this mother can testify. She began by thinking over all that lay before her. It made her "feel like flying." Bridget would be cross, as it was rainy; there was a chance of company for lunch, so the parlor must be tidied, as well as dining-room swept, dishes washed, lamps trimmed, beds made, and children started for school. Her hands grew hot as she buttered bread for luncheons, waited on those who had to start early, and tried to pacify the little ones and Bridget.

"My dear, you're feverish," said her husband, as he held her busy hands a moment. "Let the work go, and rest yourself; you'll find it pays."

"Just like a man!" thought the mother. "Why, I haven't time even for my prayers!" But the little woman had resolved that she would read a few verses before ten o'clock each day; so, standing by her bureau, she opened to the eighth chapter of Matthew, and read these words: "And he touched her hand, and the fever left her; and she arose and ministered unto them."

It seemed to that busy wife as if Jesus himself stood ready to heal her—to take the fever out of her hands, that she might minister wisely to her dear ones. The beds could wait till later in the day, the parlor might be a little disordered, she must feel his touch! She knelt, and he whispered, "My strength [not yours, child] is sufficient. As thy days so shall thy strength be. . . . My yoke is easy [this yoke you have been galled by is the world's yoke, the yoke of public opinion or housewifely ambition], take my yoke upon you and learn of me. . . . Ye shall find rest."

The day was not brighter, the work had still to be done; but the fever had left her, and all day she sang, "This God is our God, my Lord and my God."

It is true that, when the friends came to lunch, no fancy dishes had been prepared for the table, but the hostess's heart was filled with love for them as members, with her, of Christ, and they went away hungering for such a realization of him as they saw she had.

"Ah," said her husband, when he held her hands once more, "I see you took my advice, dear; the fever is quite gone."

The wife hesitated. Could she tell her secret? Was it not almost too sacred? Yet—it was the secret of the Lord (not hers), and would glorify him. Later on, when the two sat together, she told him what had cured her fever, and said quietly:

"I see that there is a more important ministry than the housekeeping, though I don't mean to neglect that."

"Let us ask the Lord to keep hold of our hands," said her husband. "Mine grow feverish in eager money-making, as yours in too eager housekeeping."

This is no fancy sketch. Dear mothers, busy, anxious housekeepers, let us go again to him, that he may touch our hands, lest they be feverish, and we cannot minister, in the highest sense, to those about us.—Congregationalist.

"WORK, FOR THE NIGHT COMETH."

We long to do great things, so we neglect
Ofttimes to do the little things we can—
The common daily duties—while we plan
  Some grand and high effect.

Our eyes are on the future, as we fail
To heed the stumbling-blocks along the way,
That fret our own and neighbors' feet; we say,
  What do small deeds avail?

We dream of coming years that shall be fair
With fruitful harvests, though we sow no seed
Of toil, prayer, self-denial, kindly deed,—
  And time goes unaware.

O dreamer, wake and work! thy place is best
For thee; the passing hour alone is thine;
Do thou what thou canst do; no more repine;
  Work, and so earn thy rest!

RELICS OF THE STONE AGE.

Marblehead rock, with its black and white beacon constructed partly of stone and partly of wood, is as familiar to yachtsmen and North Shore navigators as any object along the coast. It bears southeast by east half south from Marblehead lighthouse, and distant one-fourth of a mile. There is a clear middle passage, with five fathoms of water, between it and the point of Marblehead Great Neck, sometimes called Nanepashemet. This precipitous mass of rock, rising above the ever-restless water surrounding it, and containing, including the western half, about four acres of surface, is unquestionably of volcanic origin, if not the three-chimneyed crater of an active volcano in past eons. Vitrified rock, volcano ashes, both hardened and unhardened, with traces of lava flow and a mixing of the component parts into a remarkable conglomerate, show abundant traces of intense fiery action. Near the summit are three deep depressions, which, if not craters, must have been formed when the entire mass of rock was in a very soft or molten condition; the northeasterly one of these is now the bed of a pond, about twenty five feet in diameter, four and a half feet deep, with an overflow through a seam.

The second depression is larger and deeper than the others, supporting a swampy growth of bushes above its thick mud. The crater nearest the summit is from seven to twelve feet above the others, ninety feet in circumference, and somewhat sheltered from the easterly gales by the rocky crown on which stands the beacon. This crater is filled with comparatively dry earth, whose surface is level and covered with a sod of golden-rod, ivy, woodbine and other plant roots, with the undecaying heart of red cedar roots, which must have flourished here a very long time ago.

During the early days of autumn, Capt. J. C. Carter, a summer resident at the "Neck," discovered here many evidences of prehistoric occupation, and a removal of the entire sod and earth to a depth of two feet disclosed the site of a workshop, where human industry had prospered at the hands of the people of the stone age. Their rude implements, fashioned for war or the chase, after a rest of untold centuries, were again brought to the light of day.

The earth-stained and corroded condition of many of the articles proved conclusively that this had been a working-place for the ancient people through long generations. Deepest in the earth were numerous large and very rude spear-heads, which had become soft and chalky on their exterior surface through age, while some, which were accidentally broken by blows from the pickaxe, showed the interior full of the sparkling feldsite crystals, and as hard and flinty as ever. Here were found great stores of unused hammer-stones, which had been selected and placed in heaps containing twenty or more, but not used, and other scores scattered through the great mass of chippings, whose well-battered ends showed the marks of the innumerable blows they had dealt the hard feldsite quartz and sienite in the making of arrow and spear-heads therefrom. This rocky island must have been a bold headland of the mainland during the days of prehistoric occupation, and from its commanding outlook the dwellers there could watch both land and sea for enemies or game, and for these they were ever preparing spear and arrow. It is hardly probable that they would have carried in their frail canoes such quantities of material and climbed the precipitous sides of this rock to establish a stone-clipping shop on its airy height. How many thousands of years have passed since they were there, no man knoweth or ever will know, but undoubtedly it was a long time before the hungry, invading ocean had eaten enough of the land to make an island of Marblehead rock.

It is said to be the captain's intention to give the lot to the Peabody Academy of Science in Salem, if he has not already done so. It is said by those who have seen the articles to be the most remarkable find of very old stone implements ever made in the county of Essex.

WATCH!

"Unto them that look for him shall he appear the second time without sin unto salvation." Heb. 9:28. A friend recently returned from New Mexico, told me one morning, rising early for a day's hunt, he saw, dimly outlined against the gray sky, the form of a man. Fearing some sinister designs, my informant quickly called the attention of his friend, a resident of that region.

His fears were at once dispelled. "The man you see," said he, "is indeed a watcher, placed there for a purpose. But he is not a spy upon our actions. He is a descendant of the ancient Aztecs, the memory of whose glory still lingers in the darkened minds of this degraded people. They recall the golden age of Montezuma, their heaven-descended king, and cherish with fond hearts the tradition that he will come again to restore their ancient glory. This man is a sentinel placed on that height to watch for Montezuma, who is to come some morning at the exact moment when the sun first kisses those lofty peaks."

Such was the pathetic legend by my friend. Do you wonder that instantly there flashed into my mind the apostle's statement from which the title of this article has been taken? "Unto them that look for him shall he appear a second time without sin unto salvation."

As we may imagine Montezuma rewarding the fidelity of the sentinel by granting him the first vision of his beauty, so we are here told Jesus will reveal himself first of all to those who have been faithful to his command.

"Watch ye, therefore; for ye know not when the Master of the house cometh, at even, or at midnight, or at the cock-crowing, or in the morning; lest coming suddenly he find you sleeping. And what I say unto you I say unto all, Watch!" Mark 14:35, 36.

What Christian heart, pondering these promises, does not exclaim with the Apostle John on Patmos, "Even so, Lord Jesus, come quickly!"—A. P. Cobb.

ABLE TO SAVE THIEVES.

Mr. Willington says: "Some time ago I was preaching in a tent, and at the after-meeting a young man professed to be converted. While I was speaking to him, and striving to show him the way to Christ, he said to me, 'You do not know me; you do not know what sort I am, nor what I was going to do to-night.' 'No, I do not, but God does,' I replied; and he continued, 'I and others were going to break into the house of—,' and here he mentioned the name of the manager of a great railway company. Then he told me they had the plans of the house, how they had obtained them, and that on Wednesday night they were going to 'crack the crib.' I and two other gentlemen called on the manager, and told him of the purposed raid upon his house. He did not say much then, but on the following Saturday he called upon me and said, 'I am very much obliged to you for your warning; we have got the other three burglars fast.' Christ, who saved the thief on the cross, is able to save thieves anywhere, and not only thieves, but all who come to him imploring salvation; whatever the sin may be, Christ has purchased a full and perfect pardon for them."—Christian Herald.

IT is very sweet sometimes when sorrow is intense, just to pillow our head upon the Saviour's bosom in subdued, silent trust. There is comfort ever in simply resting in the "everlasting arms." But the richest of God's comfort comes from his Word. To neglect the Bible, when seeking divine comforting, is really closing our ears to the consolation he sends.

THERE are 200,000 people in the United States who have artificial legs or hands. This number does not include the veterans of the Union or the Confederate Army. In New York city and vicinity there are about five thousand men and women who have supplied the place of lost limbs with the manufactured article.

WE should measure our gifts in money by our receipts in grace. When the cause of Christ comes up for help, we should think what we owe Christ. "Freely have ye received, freely give."

WE often speak of being "settled in life." We might as well think of casting anchor in the midst of the Atlantic ocean, or talk of the permanent situation of a stone that is rolling down hill.

LETTERS.

FROM BRO. J. F. MORRISON.

To the loved ones scattered abroad, Greeting:—As I meditate on the goodness of the Lord and all that he has done for us, this Sabbath morning, I must speak of his mercies to me. I am so glad that the Lord has endowed me with an understanding sufficient to grasp the glorious truths taught in his Word, for now I am enabled to rejoice in the blessed hope once delivered to the saints in all its purity, yea, even by the dear Saviour himself. When I realize my condition as a child of nature, my helplessness, my utter unworthiness, and on the other hand what the dear Lord has done for me that I might have forgiveness of sins, and that for rendering obedience to him in my weakness he has promised eternal life, with all the joys, happiness, and blessings that are consequent upon, or spring from such a life, I am overwhelmed with wonder, joy, and thankfulness.

When I realize that life is a gift of God through Christ, that we must seek for glory, honor, and immortality, eternal life, by a continuance in well-doing, or forever fail to obtain it, that in order to obtain it, Christ has promised to come again to earth to raise the dead, to destroy the wicked, to renovate or renew the earth, establish his kingdom, and give to us our rewards, my thankfulness and rejoicing are beyond power of tongue to express, and I can truly say that, such being the case, I can be nothing but an Adventist. I glory in it because it is truth; I love it because it is the embodiment of the only true hope. I am willing to labor in weakness amid persecution, abuse and mockery; and am willing to be unpopular, to be almost friendless in this state of existence, to endure poverty or anything else, if thereby I can obtain the plaudits of my Master in the blessed resurrection morn. These are the fruits of Adventism.

I state for the benefit of the dear ones that I am doing all I can for the cause of the Master, considering I am poor, and have to work all the time to obtain a support for my family. I have a monthly appointment in a new field and hope to get some to see the truth. One thing I am able to rejoice in is, that my own brother has commenced to preach the grand truths we love. That is some reward for my labors. Bless the Lord for all his mercies. Brethren, I need books and tracts setting forth the truths of God's Word. I know of some good that has come from scattering them. I am not able now to buy. I have calls for them often. God bless you all, and bring us safely into the kingdom at last.

Huntsville, Ala.

FROM BRO. H. W. DAVIS.

Bro. Stockman:—Our last report left us at Wales, Ontario, where we remained until Sunday, Oct. 13th, when we closed up the tent work for the season. The weather was very cold and wet most of the time during our work at Wales, until the last Sunday, when we had immense crowds and blessed meetings. We enjoyed a precious season around the table of our absent Lord in memory of his death. Two happy souls were buried in baptism in the likeness of Christ's death, and three others on Monday. There are many others who desire to be baptized soon.

Our meetings at Wales were good. Some new ones came to Christ and the children of God were strengthened and built up in the truth of God. Thus closed up the tent work for the season, which has been the grandest of any I have ever witnessed. The last of June Brn. F. W. Fairbanks, H. T. Jackson, W. W. Ross, and myself and wife left our homes ~~and~~ came here to this province among entire strangers. As results we have seen over one hundred and eighty start in the service of Christ, and of these eighty are hopefully converted, besides many backsliders being reclaimed, and seed sown of which the day of God will reveal the fruits.

We have been enabled to establish regular services in all the localities where the tent has been pitched. We leave Bro. Fairbanks in charge of the work until the society shall have time to take action in the matter. The chance for work here is good for the winter months, if we only had the means to go on with. The expenses are very low here in proportion to work done. The total expenses of the season, including everything except the remuneration of the workers, only amounted to $147.71. And to offset this we received by collections in the meetings $65.32, reducing the expenses to the society to $81.39.

We made fifteen hundred visits, talking and praying with the people, and scattered with discretion about one hundred and fifty pounds of papers and tracts. I trust, dear brethren and sisters, that you will feel interested in this field of labor, and send in your means to Bro. H. I. Hastings, Ways Mills, P. Q., that we may be able to go on with it. We thank you and the Lord for what you have done in this matter. We desire to give God the praise and glory for all that has been done. Your Bro. in the work.

Wales, Ontario.

FROM ELD. N. SMITH.

Bro. Stockman:—Please give me a little space in the Crisis. I have been laboring some part of the time for fifteen years. Nine years ago I organized the church here at Jonesport with thirty members. It now numbers ninety-nine. There has been an addition of twenty-four this year. The church is running in good order with full house and spiritual meetings. Jonesport is one hundred miles from my home.

Feeling it my duty to travel into other destitute fields to labor for the cause of Christ and to be with my family more, I deem it necessary to withdraw my pastoral care from the church. By their request I agree to visit them and preach when I can. Any ministers coming to the place will first correspond with the committee. The church does not want any minister unless he is sound in doctrine. I leave them with my prayers and best wishes. Your brother in Christ, watching and waiting.

FROM B. FORESTER.

Bro. Stockman:—We just closed a splendid meeting of two weeks at Amity, Mo. We found a noble band of Christian workers at Amity and a fine class of people. We enjoyed our work there very much. The meetings grew in interest to the last. There were some additions to the church, and a number more will soon unite. May the blessing of heaven be upon the little band at Amity. The Amity brethren do not forget that the minister has temporal needs, while they receive spiritual things of him.

FROM D. D. REED.

Dear Old Crisis:—I wish to let you know that we are not dead nor asleep on this coast. We have been laboring this summer with our tents, one in the southern part of the State, the other in the northern, and the Lord has blest our labors abundantly. Four churches have been raised up, sound in the faith, looking for redemption, wide awake for the world to come.

We are what you can call sound Adventists on this coast. We believe the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, and we preach the same. We are united touching this very thing. Jesus is soon coming, then glory and eternal life comes, and not at death. "O hail, happy day!"

Santa Clara, Cal., Oct 15, 1889.

FROM T. W. MALONE.

Bro. Stockman:—We are a little band, organized at Shilo school-house, with only eight members in July, started here by Bro. Joshua Miller, of Collin Co., Texas. We had no more preaching till the fourth Sunday in September; then Brn. Miller and Taylor held a ten days' meeting. We had a good meeting with five conversions. Two more added to the church, seven in all. We are to have preaching again on the 4th of November next. We have hope of some others at that time, and hope and trust the Lord for new conversions. We have plenty of persecution of course, but we hope by the grace of God to bear it all for Christ's sake. We hope to have regular meetings for another year. Brethren, pray for us that we may continue to grow in faith. As ever yours.

Fremont, Texas.

FROM ELD. H. SLATER.

Dear Bro.:—Please allow me space in the Crisis for a short report of my labors in western Kansas. I have the pastorate of three churches. There have been twenty additions in the past three months. I have just closed a three weeks' meeting in a new field. When I went there, there was not one person professing Christianity in the district

There were seventy who came out and confessed Christ. I baptized thirty-seven, and set in order a church of forty-four members. I am to commence a protracted meeting in the south part of Smith County the twenty-first of this month. Pray for me that the Lord will continue to bless.

Reamsville, Kansas.

FROM ELD. G. W. ENGLISH.

Bro. Stockman:—Please let me say to the readers of the Crisis, that I am now in Alpena, Mich., pretty well north in the State. The weather being so cold, I had to pack the tent and rent a hall to hold meetings in. When I came here I found five Adventists in this city, a place of some twenty thousand inhabitants. A little flock indeed, but the Lord has added five more to their number. Bless his name. And the good work is still going on, and others are deeply wrought upon. We expect to continue for some time, the Lord willing. Give us your prayers that the Word of the Lord may have free course, run, and be glorified.

THAT which was to "the Jews a stumbling-block, and to "the Greek foolishness," Paul preached as the wisdom and power of God. What was this? It was the doctrine of "Christ crucified" for sinners, in which doctrine he believed, and to the propagation of which he devoted the best energies of life. Let every minister do likewise.—Ex.

CHURCH NEWS.

Bro. Stockman:—I wish to tell the Crisis family how thankful we are that God ever sent an Advent preacher here to preach the gospel truths. Brn. Joshua Miller and F. B. Taylor came here Sept. 20th. They stayed over two Sundays, preached ten times, and had several prayer meetings. Many were made happy. While here Bro. Miller baptized eight souls. Three were converted during the meeting. There is a band of fifteen here who are trying to serve the Lord with the Bible for their guide. We are praying and watching, that we may be ready and waiting when Jesus comes.

A. A. MURPHY.

Fremont, Parker Co., Texas.

Bro. Stockman:—I have never written to a paper before, and perhaps I should not do so now, as I am not even a Sr. as yet, but expect to be one as soon as possible. A young lady friend and myself were baptized (immersed) at this place by O. M. Owen, of Edinboro, last May. I intend to join the Plum church. I think my friend will do the same if possible.

Our church has not been making much progress lately, as we have had no preacher the past year. We have had a good, though small Sunday School all summer. It closed two weeks ago. Sr. Mollie Grove, who embraced the cause of the Lord under Sr. L. M. Stoddard, has been doing some grand work the past year. She has been preaching every other Sunday in Titusville all summer, also three Sundays at Fauncetown, and two at Dempseytown.

The A. C. Conference of Western Pennsylvania convened at Wallaceville, Venango Co., Pa., last week, the 4th, 5th, and 6th of October. Although held in the schoolhouse, as they could not get the M. E. church, those who were there said it was the best meeting ever held in this Conference. There were over sixty people from the following places: Edinboro, Blooming Valley, East Branch, Geneva, Titusville, Hydetown, Cherry Centre, and Plum.

Eld. Steele delivered two sermons, Friday and Saturday evenings. Eld. Owen of Edinboro addressed the people Sunday morning and evening. Eld. John T. Ongley of Cherry Centre also was present. The Lord's Supper was celebrated in the morning. The speaking meeting, which was a success, was taken charge of by Eld. Steele. There were a number of young people there from Edinboro and Blooming Valley. How odd it seems, and yet so pleasant, to have the young people take an active part in the work of the Lord.

I have written so much now that I fear the kind editor will consign me to the waste basket. As I have a terrible fear of that useful article I will close this somewhat lengthy epistle, and perhaps come again sometime. If not, I hope to meet all the dear friends when the Lord comes. I am your sister in the A. C. faith. I. G.

Plum, Pa.

Conference Reports.

KENNEBEC CO. CONFERENCE.

The last session of the Kennebec County Advent Quarterly Conference was held, according to appointment, in Cornville, Me., East Ridge. The attendance from abroad was quite small, but in the immediate vicinity a goodly number attended the meetings and were deeply interested in the word spoken. God's Holy Spirit was present to help in presenting his truth, and for the comforting of those who were willing to be saved by the way of the cross. All was harmonious from beginning to end.

Preachers present: F. E. Blaisdell, D. R. Hargraves, and Otis Trundy. If any one desires the December session, please inform J. R. Hall or F. E. Blaisdell.

The State Campmeeting held at Galesburg, Mich., was reported by Bro. Moore and Sr. Perkins. Much interest was awakened at Galesburg by this meeting, which was well attended throughout. Members of other churches were deeply interested in the glorious truths proclaimed. It was decided to hold another Campmeeting here next summer if time continues.

Bro. Pike reported the tent meeting at Kingsbury, Ind. The attendance was large and interest good. A goodly number rose for prayers. Two were immersed and others are expected to follow. Several members of other churches will unite with us. The Conference adjourned sine die.

OBITUARIES.

EMERSON. In Charleston, S. C., Aug. 4, 1889, of typhoid fever, Mr. Elijah Fay Emerson, son of Sr. J. C. Emerson, of Somerville, Mass., in the twenty-sixth year of his age.

The subject of this notice was a young man of exceeding promise. He possessed natural integrity and uprightness, and on his death bed gave evidence that his sins were forgiven, and he accepted Jesus as his Redeemer. His brother Alfred was a devoted attendant during his sickness, but all that a loving wife and affectionate brother could do for him, with able medical skill, could not save him from falling asleep in death. He lies buried in Chelsea, Mass. Funeral services were held by the writer at the house of his brother John, in East Boston. He leaves a widow and little son, three brothers, one sister, and a Christian mother to mourn their loss, who were all present at his burial. FRANK BURR.

CORNELL. Fell asleep in Jesus Oct. 5, 1889, at Ft. Edward, N. Y., at the age of one year, ten months, and eleven days, Walter Reuben, son of F. W. and Etta Cornell.

The frailty and uncertainty of human life has been very markedly illustrated in this death. Little Walter was well and very playful Friday evening, and was dead before midnight the following evening. He had convulsions until his strength was exhausted, when he quietly breathed out the life which God had given, and parents, a little brother, and sympathizing friends realized that death had accomplished his work. Our thoughts at once reverted to the promises of God telling of a resurrection and eternal life in the kingdom of God. This bereavement falls with crushing weight upon the parents, but they do not mourn without hope. We loved him, and expect to meet him in the palace of the King. The writer tried to comfort the mourning ones with words of divine promise. W. O. HIGLEY.

LINDSAY. At the residence of E. H. Lebaron, in Massiwippi, Quebec, Oct. 10, 1889, Stuart H. Lindsay, son of Rebecca T. Lindsay, aged fifteen years

Stuart was a good boy, loved by all who knew him. He was the only son. His mother was not able to go and see him in his sickness nor to attend the funeral, which was a very sore trial to her. He was living with his only sister at the time he was taken sick, and died there. He leaves a mother, one sister, and a large circle of friends. Services by the writer. CHAS. MCCLURE.

HASTINGS. In Barnston, Que., Sept. 25, 1889, at the residence of her son, H. I. Hastings, Sr. Sally P. Hastings, widow of the late Bro. Asa Hastings, aged nearly seventy three years.

Sr. Hastings has been a great sufferer at times, but was very ambitious, and attended the Campmeeting in June at Beebe Plain. She was the first member that has died in the church at Ways Mills since its organization. Their ranks have been broken by the loss of one that was loved by all. She leaves three daughters, two sons, one of them Elder Moses Hastings of Dakota, and quite a number of grandchildren to mourn their loss. May the Lord sustain them in this hour of trial. Services by the writer. Subject from 1 Cor. 15: 20. So we laid her by the side of her husband to wait the sounding of the trumpet.

CHARLES MCCLURE.

WARREN. Eld. John Warren died at the residence of his son, Charles Warren, in Bury, Quebec, Sept. 27, 1889, aged eighty years.

Eld. Warren was very widely known through the eastern townships. He was one of the early settlers in Bury, and was used to the hardships that are so common to those that come from the old country here and take up their farms. He came here with about four hundred emigrants forty years ago, and soon after landing embraced the Advent doctrine. Enduring the scoffs, he stood the test, was faithful to his trust, and died in the triumphs of faith. The writer has visited him in his declining years a number of times, and always found him very zealous for the truth. He leaves one son, his companion, one sister, and other friends to mourn their loss. Services by the writer. Subject from Job 19: 25–27. TEMPERANCE.

THE MOTHER'S PROTEST.

The sun is down; dark is the night;
'Tis growing late; the stars are bright;
I see the dram-shop windows' light:
  The air is cold and chilly;
The door is shut, but mirth is there,
Sweet sound of music fills the air,
While thronged within is manhood fair:
  God keep my boy, my Willie!

The fiery glass is filled again,
While tears of anguish fall like rain,
And orphans wail in helpless pain,
  While roars the north wind chilly.
And here I kneel with hands upraised,
And look to where the martyrs gazed,
And swear by Him whom Israel praised,
  They shall not have my Willie!

I know the dram-shop's halls are bright,
Its wine gleams redly in my sight,
And mirth is there, and hearts are light,
  While pass the night hours stilly;
And hearts may break, while loud the air
Resounds with joyous revels there;
By Him who helps us do and dare,
  They shall not have my Willie!

My bright, brave boy! thy blue eyes shine
With youth and love almost divine.
In pain I bore thee, thou art mine!
  Though fate may use thee illy.
And must I see thy young head bow
Beneath the demon wine-cup—thou
Who art so pure and sinless now?
  They must not have my Willie!

A VICTIM OF BRANDY.

But three years have passed since Mr. Paul Felix Labarriere was leaning back in a comfortable easy-chair in the inner room of a law office. The quiet of a tranquil city made a pillow for his existence, which was each day rendered more delightful by the liberality of his numerous clients.

To-day Paul Felix Labarriere is sitting upon a dirty bench in the eleventh tribunal of the Seine. His cheeks are sunken, his brow is wrinkled; he recounts his past, babbling in his speech, now pleading for mercy, now weeping for his lost honor.

What, then, has made so vast a difference in only these years? A very small matter truly—only a few bottles of brandy! Brandy has transformed the successful lawyer, the employee of government, into a malefactor.

The lawyer drank; his business forsook him. Having sold out the office where his credit had failed, he went to Paris. He persevered in his worship of the genius of the wine bottle. He sought for work. A merchant who employed him observed the depth of his potations and dismissed him. Another acquaintance took pity on him and delayed to some degree his ruin. But anon Labarriere became a thief. He discovered in the desk of his patron certain sums of money, and he appropriated them. When his deadly thirst increased on him, he must have brandy. His own funds were expended; he stole money for drink. Grown desperate, he took his employer's silverware and pledged it at the brandy seller's. And now behold him leaving the police court in charge of two constables!

Consider to what depths he has descended. Felix Labarriere is thirty-six. Hitherto his family name was unstained. In his abasement he has not lost consciousness of the deeds he has committed. He turns as he leaves the bar and begs pardon. "My appetite," he says, "was too strong for my will." But the law cannot condone his offences, and with a long groan he hears his sentence, and turns away to meet the penalty he has dared.—Ex.

QUESTIONS TO THE MAN WHO DRINKS.

Who has turkey stuffed with oysters and all the fixtures, Thanksgiving day—you or the man who sold you beer or whisky? Who has the fat of the land, all that money can buy—you or the saloon-keeper? Who keeps a horse and takes his wife and children out riding—you or the man who takes your money for drinks? Who wears good clothes—you or the saloon-keeper? Whose children are dressed nicely, and have all that childrent want to make life comfortable—yours or the saloon-keeper's? Who eats stale bread because it is cheap? Who buys cheap meat, buys cheap bones, and everything that is a little poor because it is cheap? Is it the saloon-keeper? When you are hauled up before the police court for being drunk and disorderly, whom does the judge smile upon, bow to and treat with deference—you or the man who jingles your weekly wages in his trouser's pockets? Who pays your fine—the man who has your money, or your poor, broken-hearted wife, who earns a few dollars extra by washing?

What good has come to you from drinking? Has it made you a better man? Has it made you a better father? Does your family love you because you drink? Are the men who get your money friends to whom you can turn in time of need? Is your head clearer, your soul purer, your intellect brighter, your hand steadier, your pocket fuller, your home happier, when you drink beer and whisky? These are a few points of hundreds for your consideration.

PROPHECY---SIGNS.

What is prophecy? What are signs? If we have prophecy, what need of signs? If signs, what need of prophecy? Has the Divine Father given us two orders of evidence concerning the same events? Then which should engage our attention?

Prophecy is prediction, foreknowledge expressed. Prophesying is foretelling coming events; and it may include the character and time of the events. Prophecy may be far-reaching, covering long periods of history; it may be consecutive, it may be fragmentary, it may be simple and direct, it may be involved, complex.

Prophecy is the basis of all revealed truth. Eliminate it from the Scriptures and the entire colossal structure of divine revelation would fall to pieces. Obliterate prophecy and the Christian is dumb before the Jew, and the redemption of man is a problem without a solution. To discredit prophecy is to deny the spirit and import of all the sacred writings.

Signs are tokens—something by which another thing is shown or represented; a wonder, miracle, phenomenon; any visible thing or appearance which indicates the existence or approach of something else. Signs may be the subjects of prophecy, and so include the force both of prediction and token. Signs in Scripture history usually immediately precede the events to which they relate.

As applied to our Lord's second coming prophecy assures the event, and describes, more or less minutely, intervening history. Signs show the near approach of the event, and are in the nature of warning to immediate preparation. The signs were not intended as a substitute for prophecy, but as a supplement to prediction. Christ, as a prophet, did not supersede Daniel, but supplemented, corroborated him. Still, the signs are not less important than the prophecy. The prediction, being written, may be wholly ignored, left unnoticed; but the signs, being visible and phenomenal, must be witnessed, and whether their import be heeded or not, they stand as witnesses for God which cannot be obscured. Thousands who disdain to read Daniel or John were forced to witness the darkening of the sun, and the falling of the stars—lesser lights.

The signs predicted by Christ (Matt. 24) were for the church no less, certainly, than for the world. And it is very significant that the Saviour—that Great Prophet—in direct answer to the question of the disciples as to the time of his coming, instead of turning their attention, to any extent, to any of the old prophets, predicted a series of miraculous events which should immediately precede and be the tokens of his return at hand. Any one carefully reading Matt. 24, with the corresponding accounts in the other gospels, will be irresistibly convinced that the Saviour's purpose was to turn the attention of his people, just before his appearing, to the signs as the special ground upon which they should know the event to be "nigh even at the doors." Let us reverently listen to his words:

"And as he sat upon the mount of Olives, the disciples came unto him privately, saying, Tell us, when shall these things be? and what shall be the sign of thy coming, and of the end of the world?"

These questions cover the destruction of the temple, Christ's coming, and the end of the world. By "When shall these things be?" they meant his prediction of the time when "there shall not be left here one stone upon another, that shall not be thrown down." (Verse 2.) And his answer was: "When therefore ye see the abomination of desolation, which was spoken of by Daniel the prophet, standing in the holy place (let him that readeth understand), then let them that are in Judea flee unto the mountains," etc., etc. And so they did.

By "What shall be the sign of thy coming, and of the end of the world?" they meant precisely what their plain and definite question stated. And this was their Lord's answer: "But immediately after the tribulation of those days the sun shall be darkened, and the moon shall not give her light, and the stars shall fall from heaven, and the powers of the heavens shall be shaken; and then shall all the tribes of the earth mourn; and they shall see the Son of man coming in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory." (Verses 29, 30.) "Now from the fig tree learn her parable: when her branch is now become tender, and putteth forth its leaves, ye know that summer is nigh; even so ye also, when ye shall see all these things, know ye that He is nigh, even at the doors." (R. V., verses 32, 33.)

In this answer the Saviour predicted a series of special signs or tokens, locating them immediately antecedent to his coming, and then told his disciples that by these things the nearness of his return should be known. "When ye shall see all these things, KNOW ye that He is nigh." And in Luke: "But when these things begin to come to pass, look up, and lift up your heads; because your redemption draweth nigh."

Is it not very clear that our Lord's purpose in answering his disciples in this way was to fasten the attention of his people, in the last of the days, upon these predicted tokens as the evidences of the immediateness of his return.

But if it shall be said that Christ's predictions do not point out the exact time of his coming, the answer is that he made them as definite as he desired them to be; and his statements, taken together with other lines of prophecy, ought to satisfy all who are looking and longing for his appearing. What we need, as it seems to us, is to study Old Testament prophecy not less, but New Testament prophecy more. And in the blending light of the Old and the New no sincere, humble seeker of the truth ought to be led very far astray.

O to know, by the infallible tokens foretold by Him who never erred, that his coming and kingdom are "nigh, even at the doors," is enough to fill all saints with transporting joy.

CURRENT THOUGHT.

Prof. Olin A. Curtis, in his inaugural address before the School of Theology, Boston University, Oct. 9, 1889, said:

"All the questions growing out of eschatology are becoming more important; but of them all, the doctrine of the Intermediate State demands the most searching consideration. Valuable monographs have been written, but the doctrine must be given a larger place in a systematic theology, and so related carefully to other parts of the system. The Romish doctrine of purgatory is too coarse; and the doctrine of a post-mortem probation is, as we believe, both unscriptural and unphilosophical. Two things must be protected: First, the significance of this life as a probation; second, a fair chance for every responsible creature. This can be done by saying that all decision bearing upon trend of character must be made here; but this decision may mean to some only what Dr. Whedon has called 'the spirit of faith, and the purpose of righteousness.' Here I would bring to bear a true doctrine of the intermediate state, showing how a fixed purpose of righteousness may there work out completely through personality, and the spirit of faith become an actual faith in Christ. In short, all that here in this life is implicit becomes explicit when we are 'absent from the body and present with the Lord.'"—Zion's Herald.

It may be due to our obtuseness; but if Prof. Curtis' propositions do not strongly and irresistibly imply the very "post-mortem" probation which he seeks to deny we cannot understand the meaning of words. The Prof. says: "Two things must be protected: First, the significance of this life as a probation; second, a fair chance for every responsible creature. This can be done by saying that all decision bearing upon the trend of character must be made here; but the decision may mean to some only what Dr. Whedon has called 'the spirit of faith and the purpose of righteousness.' Here I would bring to bear—continues Professor Curtis—a true doctrine of the intermediate state, showing how a fixed purpose of righteousness may there work out completely through personality, and the spirit of faith become an actual faith in Christ."

Now these propositions, stripped of rhetoric, mean simply that all a sinner needs to do in this life to insure ultimate salvation is to "purpose righteousness," and in the "intermediate state" that "purpose of righteousness" and "spirit of faith" may "become actual faith in Christ."

Thousands of persons in this life, more or less definitely, "purpose righteousness," but finish their earthly probation unregenerated. But, according to the Professor's theory, that "purpose" will, in the intermediate state, "work out" into "actual faith in Christ," and so result in certain salvation.

If that is not Futureism—probation after death in an intermediate state—who can tell what it is? If any process occurs in an intermediate state by which salvation is secured or completed, then Christ must be a Saviour in that state, and still be carrying on the work of salvation after death.

It is remarkable that Prof. Curtis fails to give a single text of Scripture in support of his views.

What would primitive Methodism have said to this new philosophy of an intermediate state? Surely Andover and Boston are coming to see eye to eye. And this is the theology taught in a Methodist University to-day.

WANTED.

Short, fresh, earnest articles for the Crisis. Communications on practical and experimental themes preferred. We do not discard prophetical and historic articles, but of these we usually have a sufficiency. Doctrinal articles, if clear and pointed, and not too long, will be very acceptable. Come, brethren and sisters, let us hear from you all around. And our special contributors—where are they? We are waiting to hear from you. We are in want of original matter. Please help us to give variety and freshness to the paper.

CHURCH NEWS.

Please send us Church News—not dissensions, dearth, or questions to be answered, but news of revivals, baptisms, additions, union, growth. But if these last mentioned conditions do not exist, then let us have news of humiliation, fasting and prayer; of confession of faults one to another, and strong cryings to God for forgiveness and the outpouring of the Holy Spirit. And good news will soon follow.

MISSION WORK.

The Boston Mission on Hanover Street, in charge of Bro. and Sr. Sherman, is doing well. The meetings are well attended and interesting; some conversions are reported.

The Emerald Street church, Boston, has organized a Church Mission Society, and has already made an appropriation of funds to the mission work. A good example.

THE DAILY AND THE ABOMINATION.

If the "daily" of Dan. 8 signifies the Jewish sacrificial daily, and if the "desolation" there mentioned means the Roman desolation, what does the "daily" and the "desolation" of Daniel 11 and 12 signify? Just the same precisely; but it should be remembered that the Roman desolation existed in two phases—its Pagan phase desolating Jerusalem, and its Papal phase desolating the church of Christ—and it is from this last phase that 1290 days are reckoned. Arms took away the Jewish daily about A.D. 70, and arms subsequently placed the Papal "abomination of desolation," but there was an interim between the two events of several centuries; and the measurement does not begin with the taking away of the Jewish daily, but rather with the setting up of the Papal "abomination of desolation"—a later event: "And from the time the daily shall be taken away, and the abomination that maketh desolate shall be set up [at a later date], there shall be 129 days"—that is, from the last event specified. We cannot measure the 1290 days from two events so remote from each other, and must begin with the last mentioned. Not simply after the daily should be taken away, but also after the placing of the abomination, there should be 1290 days.

ENDING OF THE 2300 DAYS IN 1889.

Having conclusively shown that if we jointly commence the seventy weeks and 2300 days with the Haman Edict, in the 12th of Artaxerxes, and then assume that Artaxerxes' 12th year was B.C. 412, in order to make the 2300 days end in 1889, that the sixty two weeks reckoned from the erection of Jerusalem's wall in the 32d of Artaxerxes, would reach therefrom to A.D. 43 for the Cross, the counter claim has been made that Josephus places the erection of the wall in Artaxerxes' 23d year; and that by allowing Artaxerxes' 12th year to be B.C. 412, his 23d year would be only 401 B.C.; and sixty-two weeks (434 years) reckoned therefrom would end in A.D. 33, at the Cross—we reply:

1. No; this would certainly then reach to A.D. 34, in which year the Passover preparation day fell on Tuesday; so by placing the crucifixion in that year, Christ would have been kept in the grave five nights prior to "the first day of the week," on which he rose. This consideration shows the incorrectness of the claim. And if, in order to escape this conclusion, an effort should be made to make the 23d of Artaxerxes synchronize with B.C. 400, in order to get the Cross in A.D. 33, the same claim would place the 12th of Artaxerxes in B.C. 411; and the 2300 reckoned from that date would have ended last year, instead of ending this year.

2. But the fact is, Josephus does not put the building of Jerusalem's wall in Artaxerxes' reign at all, in any year, but rather in the reign of his father Xerxes; and not even in the 23d year of his reign, but rather in the 25th to the 28th—in flat contradiction to the Bible as to the king and as to the time.

Which shall we believe? Josephus says that Nehemiah "came to Jerusalem in the twenty-and-fifth year of the reign of Xerxes." He adds: "For in so long a time was the wall built, in the twenty-and-eighth year of the reign of Xerxes." If we should guess that Artaxerxes was meant, and assume that his 12th year was B.C. 412, then his 25th year would be B.C. 399, and his 28th year would be B.C. 396, which end the sixty-two weeks (or 434 years to the Cross) reckoned from the first date, in A.D. 36; and reckoned from the last date, in A.D. 39—both of these endings being after the end of the rule of Tiberius, Caiaphas and Pilate, who were all living at the crucifixion. These facts are invulnerable, and rebuke this false chronology.

The Jewish daily sacrifice was not permanently restored under Cyrus, nor under Ezra; the efforts to this end were abortive, and Nehemiah had the work to do; and his enemies at first met him with ridicule, saying, "Will they sacrifice?" Neh. 4: 2. But Nehemiah succeeded.

Josephus disagrees with the Bible, not only concerning the name of the king who should build Jerusalem's wall, and the year of his reign in which it should be built, but also regarding the length of time employed in building it—he making it two years and four months, while the Bible makes it twelve years: "Even the time that I was appointed to be their governor in the land of Judah, from the 20th year even unto the 3d year of Artaxerxes the king, that is twelve years . . . I continued in the work of this wall." Neh. 5: 14-16. That settles the question, if testimony can do it. Moreover, the shocking assumption that the 12th of Artaxerxes was B.C. 412, would make Artaxerxes' first year to be B C 424, and that would make his father Xerxes to reign seven years after the beginning of the Peloponnessian war, which is fixed infallibly to B C. 431, while a strong array of history shows that Xerxes' grandson was then reigning, instead of Xerxes, besides giving a long list of events between Xerxes' death and this war; which facts rebuke the rashness of this assumed chronological location of Artaxerxes' reign, and show the consequent incorrectness of all measurements reckoned therefrom. W. S.

IGNORANCE OR DISHONESTY—WHICH?

Ever and anon some "fresh water" Adventist may be heard to say, "We don't believe in setting time"—ignorantly or purposely leaving the impression that other Adventists do believe in setting time—a thing that has never been done except by a few irresponsible fanatics; but the Lord has set the time, with approximate definiteness at least, and what Adventists have repeatedly attempted to do has been to find out the Lord's time. Shall we ignorantly say, We don't believe in trying to find out what the Lord has revealed on this point, and what he has given us a scriptural record of, having commanded us to search the record, and concerning which the affirmation is made, "The wise shall understand"? Some, it is true, have been unjustifiably positive, from premises that were untenable, and have likewise been unwarrantedly definite in their conclusions; but even these mistaken efforts to find out what the Lord has revealed cannot correctly be called setting time; it is only an incorrect argument; and does this argue that it is wrong to make a correct one? Very far from it indeed. Certain extravagances have been connected with these efforts, which are greatly to be deplored—dogmatism, excessive definiteness, and the like; but these, though seized upon by unbelievers as a pretext for discarding time computations altogether, are only human appendages, and do not result from a wise effort to comprehend prophetic instruction.

Now and then some fanatic has set the time, claiming to have had a revelation in vision that the end would come on a certain day; but this is a different thing from an effort to find out what the Bible reveals about the matter. God made the Bible to suit himself, and saw fit to put time into it, and we cannot take it out; and while it remains in the Bible it is the property of the church, and no amount of sickly talk about setting the time can obliterate the fact, and a score of mistakes about the matter could not change the prophetic programme. God's time, placed in the Bible so long ago, and "sealed up till the time of the end," when knowledge should "be increased"—not coming all at once—is the property of the last section of the church, and cannot be scoffed down. Never will a definiteness be obtained that shall end watchfulness, but sufficiently definite to be a light to the church, corroborating the signs of the times; and that light is already shining, and will shine clearer in spite of protests against setting time, or fanatical extremes. ANSWER TO QUERIES.

Bro. Sheldon:—Will you please answer the following questions in the Crisis?

1. Do you think Turkey is the King of the North referred to, that shall come to an end with none to help him?

2. If so, do you consider that he will leave Europe before the Lord shall come?

3. Do you expect the Lord to come before a general war shall begin?

Respectfully, Geo. Watson.

Reply.

We give a brief reply without here giving our arguments, which would require too much space for a brief note.

1. We do not regard Turkey as the king that is to come to a helpless end.

2. Therefore we do not wait for Turkey to be driven out of Europe before Christ can come.

3. We know of no prophecy that demands a general war before the Lord can come, though we have carefully read all the claims made on that line. "The battle of the great day" must be in the great day, and not before it arrives. W. S.

PERSONAL.

Bro. Stockman:—I wish to say through the Crisis that it has been some time since I have been able to go out in the gospel field, on account of my health and that of my wife. But the Lord has been very gracious to us in restoring us to health again. Now I wish to say to any desirous of my labors that I am ready to go. I feel, dear brethren, that this is the time for activity. The harvest field is not the place for rest or sleep, for we are in the time Daniel spoke of when we are to be purified and made white and tried. The blessed hope looks brighter and brighter as we see the great day of the Lord approaching. "Therefore we ought to give the more earnest heed to the things which we have heard, lest at any time we should let them slip." Let us fight the good fight of faith and lay hold on eternal life, which is in Christ. "The Lord make you to increase and abound in love one toward another and toward all men, even as we do toward you; to the end he may stablish your hearts unblamable in holiness before God, even our Father, at the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ with all his saints." Yours hoping for eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Lynn, Mass. A. Fogg.

To whom it may concern:—The A. C. church of Auburn, Ill., wishes to express a word of appreciation and gratitude for the services of their beloved pastor, J. F. Adair, who is about to retire from this part of the Lord's vineyard to labor in other fields. As he bids adieu to this church we desire him to feel that he has the good will and best wishes of every member, and that his work and labor of love for the past five years have been appreciated by his congregation. We trust that in that great day he will receive a crown of glory for his reward. As he leaves us we now recommend him to any church in need of a faithful and energetic pastor.

DEATH OF SISTER BISSELL.

Bro. Stockman:—Our dear brother, Archibald Bissell, of Lowell, was on last Saturday evening thrown into deep affliction by the sudden death (from paralytic stroke) of his beloved wife. The writer was a guest of the bereaved household at the time of the sad occurrence. An obituary will be furnished later. J. HEMENWAY.

SECULAR NEWS.

FOREIGN.

MONTREAL, Oct. 24. A serious explosion took place here at 6 30 this morning. At that hour a large quantity of dynamite stored in a small building at the corner of Panthalion and St. Jean Baptiste streets, in the northern district of the city, where main sewers were in course of construction, exploded. This building and adjoining one were blown to pieces, while upward of one hundred houses were either partly or wholly destroyed. The early hour at which the explosion occurred alone prevented it from being terribly fatal, but as it was, only one man, Jules Chartrand, was killed, while several men, women and children living in the demolished dwellings and stores were slightly injured. The whole district presents the same appearance as if an earthquake had been at work, or else the city had gone through a bombardment. Not a pane of glass remains in the whole district, which is almost a mile square.

PESTH, Oct. 23. The Pesther Lloyd says that, in a recent interview with Prof. Vambery, the Sultan of Turkey declared positively that the Porte would not join the triple alliance. Turkey, he said, desired to maintain a neutral attitude, and to be on the most friendly terms possible with all the powers. He regarded the coming of the Emperor William to Constantinople as an important and fortunate event. The Sultan said he was strongly opposed to autonomy for Armenia, because two-thirds of the inhabitants were Mohammedans, whom it would be unjust to ignore for the sake of the Christian inhabitants. Prof. Vambery describes the Sultan as an extremely conscientious and painstaking ruler.

BERLIN, Oct. 23 The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Cologne Gazette says he learns from official circles that the interview between the Czar and Prince Bismarck was devoted by the latter chiefly to correcting the Czar's erroneous views in regard to the triple alliance, and persuading him that its aims are peaceful. The Vienna Fremdenblatt, believing that Prince Bismarck succeeded in correcting the Czar's views, expresses the hope that the Czar's clearer insight will leaven Russian political parties.

BERLIN, Oct. 23. A cable dispatch has been received from Capt. Wissman stating that reliable news has been received concerning Emin Pasha and Henry M. Stanley, Sig. Casati and six Englishmen. They are all expected to arrive at Mwapwa the latter part of November. A dispatch received at Brussels confirms Capt. Wissmann's advices regarding Stanley and his party.

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Oct. 25. Advices received here from Apia, under date of the 15th inst., state that a battle is reported to have taken place on the island of Savali between forces of Malietoa and Tamasese. Three hundred men were engaged on each side. Several were killed and a number wounded. Which party won the victory is not known.

YOKOHAMA, Oct. 23. Count Ocuma, minister of foreign affairs, upon whose life an attempt was made a few days ago, was more seriously wounded than was at first supposed. Amputation of the leg became necessary.

ROME, Oct. 23. It is stated that Louis Kossuth, the Hungarian patriot, will become a naturalized Italian citizen, and that he will be nominated for senator.

ATHENS, Oct. 23. The Prince and Princess of Wales arrived here to day. They were met at the railway station by King George and the Czarewitch, and were given an enthusiastic reception by the populace.

LISBON, Oct 23. The funeral of the late King Luis will take place at 9 o'clock Saturday morning.

—The condition of Otto, the insane King of Bavaria, is precarious; he is unconscious, and his physicians are able to administer nourishment only at irregular intervals.

DOMESTIC.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 23. In the midst of a heavy northeast gale and a high sea, the Evanston life saving crew, composed of students of the Northwestern University, rescued 29 seamen and one woman last night. Three vessels had gone ashore, and the men in two of them were in imminent peril. The vessels were the steam barge David Ballantyne of Cleveland, the schooner Ironton of Cleveland, and tug Protection of Chicago. The work of rescue was impeded by the dense fog which prevailed. Three trips were made, and all the men from the Protection and Ironton were brought ashore. Another trip was then made to the steamer Ballantyne, but the captain and men thought the ship could weather the gale, and preferred to remain on board.

JOHNSTOWN, PA., Oct. 21. The citizens of Johnstown have raised $5 000 to continue the search for the dead. James McMillen, of the Cambria Iron Company, and A. J. Moxham, of the Johnson Company, subscribed $1,000 each. The work of cleaning out Stony Creek River, where the State forces have left off, will be commenced at once and continue as long as the weather will permit. The flood commission meets in Philadelphia to-morrow, and unless some hitch occurs at the meeting it is probable that the final distribution will be commenced on Wednesday or Thursday.

LONGING FOR HOME.

BY MRS. E. E. MILES.

Just over Jordan's s' ining river,
Not far away,
Our longing hearts are turning ever,
There's where we fain would stay.
All up and down the whole creation
Sadly we roam,
Still looking for the consummation,
And for the promised home.

REFRAIN.
All this world is dark and dreary,
Everywhere we roam;
And pilg'ims, how the heart grows weary,
O, how we sigh for home.

By faith we know the land is near us,
Soon we shall rest;
This blessed hope is ours to cheer us,
When by our cares opprest.
Soon shall these scenes of grief and sadness
Be ours no more;
Soon shall our hearts be filled with gladness
On Canaan's happy shore.

When all his saints are made immortal,
And Christ we see,
When through the city's pearly portal,
Gathered we all shall be,
We'll swell redemption's blessed chorus,
Sweet praises sing,
While the new heavens bending o'er us,
Shall with our anthems ring.

TRAVAIL OF SOUL.

BY V. P. SIMMONS.

"He shall see of the travail of his soul and shall be satisfied."—ISA. 53: 11.

"Of the travail of his soul he shall see (the fruit) and be satisfied."—Bishop Robert Louth's translation.

These words, spoken prophetically of Christ, have in a lesser degree become a fact in the experience of every disciple of Jesus who has armed himself "likewise with the same mind." In the presentation of this subject we will consider (1) what is travail of soul; (2) its relation to Christ; (3) its relation to Christians; (4) its effect upon Christians; (5) its effect upon sinners.

1. What is travail of soul? Webster defines physical travail "to labor with pain, to toil, to suffer the pangs of childbirth." In like manner mental and spiritual travail is that intense anguish of mind and heart begotten in Christ-like love for the erring, the suffering, and the perishing, that precedes the deliverance of the subject of its intense spiritual throes. Pre-eminently, spiritual travail is manifest in those longing desires for the salvation of sinners that often produce in believers fasting, prayers, supplications, sleepless nights, and such holy mental anguish as cannot be denied till the object of its ardent longings becomes a subject of saving grace. It is a common conclusion of Christian laborers that spiritual travail on the part of some saint must ever precede the birth of souls into the church of Christ and into the newness of life. Spiritual travail is also an experience of mingled anguish and faith for believers who are but babes in the grace of Christ and in need of deliverance from some error or evil that hinders their spiritual growth. Thus Paul wrote to the Galatians: "My little children, of whom I travail in birth again until Christ be formed in you." Again, an ardent mental and active labor to establish a particular church in the grace of God is called a travail of soul. Thus Paul to the Thesssalonians: "Ye remember, brethren, our labor and travail; for laboring night and day because we would not be chargeable unto any of you." Spiritual travail is also manifest in the anguish of desire and supplication for the raising to health of some beloved Christian worker. Thus Paul besought for the life of Epaphroditus, Luther for Melancthon; and I infer also such was the burden of John for "the well beloved Gaius."

2. Its relation to Christ. That Christ is the prophetic character of our text and of the whole 53d chapter of Isaiah is so plain that no proof will be offered. Each phase of his divinely human character is brought out in more than a score of especial experiences. In this we have to consider "the travail of his soul" for a race ruined by the fall of its first parents. Trace, if you please, this element of the Saviour's character, in the sighs and groans and supplications that marked the scenes of his labors, finding at the close of his great work that holy intensity, that superlative anguish, that spiritual agony of Gethsemane, when blood oozed from his pores, when but for an angel strengthening him he would have died of simply soul travail.

At one time it is recorded of him that he went out into a mountain to pray, and continued all night in prayer to God." The poet says of him:

"Cold mountains and the midnight air
Witnessed the fervor of his prayer."

Again of himself he says, "Now is my soul troubled." "A man of sorrows and acquainted with grief," his great heart "hath borne our griefs and carried our sorrows." That memorable night in the garden, when "being in an agony he prayed more earnestly, and his sweat was as it were great drops of blood falling down to the ground," was a night of soul travail when our divinely human Redeemer carried millions upon his "heart of hearts." Of this time Paul says, "Who in the days of his flesh, when he had offered up prayers and supplications, with strong crying and tears, unto him that was able to save him from death, was heard in that he feared." His prayer was answered; the cup of agony was lifted, and a benevolent sorrow that would have crushed out his life then and there passed from him, and he was allowed another form of death.

3. Its relation to Christians. When the mother of James and John besought extra honor for her sons in Christ's kingdom, Jesus asked, "Are ye able to drink of the cup that I shall drink of, and to be baptized with the baptism that I am baptized with? They say unto him, We are able. And he said unto them, Ye shall indeed drink of my cup, and be baptized with the baptism that I am baptized with." That was the cup of sorrow and travail referred to when in the garden he prayed, saying, "O, my Father, if this cup may not pass away from me, except I drink it, thy will be done."

At that time those identical disciples slept a short distance away, and he drank the cup alone. But after experiencing pentecostal power, they became "partakers of Christ's sufferings." The careful reader of the New Testament will observe two elements of experience brought to view in those texts that relate to the sufferings of believers, namely, suffering for Christ (Acts 5: 41), and suffering with Christ (Rom. 8: 17). We are "heirs of God, and joint heirs with Christ, if so be that we suffer with him, that we may be also glorified together." When we can "suffer with him" for lost men, and weep over a world lying in sin, then indeed do we illustrate that deep experience of 1 Pet. 4: 1—"Forasmuch, then, as Christ hath suffered for us in the flesh, arm yourselves likewise with the same mind; for he that hath suffered in the flesh hath ceased from sin."

Here proud, sinful self dies, and all selfish burdens are dropped when with yearning, benevolent love we can take on Christ's burden for others, and travail in birth for the sinful and the erring. Self-crucifixion is not all after the model of Calvary's cross; some of it is fashioned after the benevolent agony of Gethsemane.

"O garden of Olivet, thou dear, honored spot,
The fame of thy wonders shall ne'er be forgot;
The theme most transporting to seraphs above,
The triumph of sorrow, the triumph of love."

Many Christians with a surface experience have previous to revival work, like Peter, James and John, slept soundly, while some holy heart has during the long night shades, been engaged in sanctified agony for the perishing, and all-forgetful of self has breathed out intense, painful, compassionate supplication for the careless, the indifferent, and the wayward. In such suffering we have the truest type of a holy, sanctified Christian.

Paul's expressions to the Colossians, "My sufferings for you"; to the Corinthians, "As ye are partakers of the sufferings. so shall ye be also of the consolation"; to Timothy, "If we suffer, we shall also reign with him"; and Peter's saying, "Inasmuch as ye are partakers of Christ's sufferings, that when his glory shall be revealed, ye may be glad also with exceeding joy," each and all relate both to suffering for him and also suffering with him. To the persecuted church of Philippi Paul wrote, "For unto you it is given, in the behalf of Christ, not only to believe on him, but also to suffer for his sake." To the Romans, before any special persecution had broken upon that church, he wrote, "If so be that we suffer with him." If the time had not come to suffer for him in holy travail, they might "suffer with him."

4. Its effect upon Christians. Spiritual travail secures for believers an especial divine approval. In Ezekiel's vision of God at Jerusalem is a significant approval of such sanctified lamentations. "And the Lord said unto him, Go through the midst of the city, through the midst of Jerusalem, and set a mark upon the foreheads of the men that sigh and cry for all the abominations that be done in the midst thereof." The Hebrew is even more significant: "Set his [the Lord's] mark upon the foreheads" of the sighing ones.

When the Judah of divine choice and Zion of holy vows was smitten and afflicted, the weeping prophet in the land of Benjamin was moved to say, "Let mine eyes run down with tears night and day, and let them not cease; for the virgin daughter of my people is broken with a great breach, with a very grievous blow." The captive's lament over desolate Zion and Jerusalem is versed in the beauty of saintly sorrow. "The Lord hath trodden the virgin, the daughter of Judah, as in a winepress. For these things I weep; mine eye runneth down with water, because the comforter that should relieve my soul is far from me; my children are desolate, because the enemy prevail. Zion spreadeth forth her hands, and there is none to comfort her." As those captives in the sorrow of their souls gathered "by the river of Chebar, the heavens were opened," and one of them says, "I saw visions of God"; and Ezekiel poured into their ears the glad response of Jehovah's recognition of their sighs and benevolent wail over desolate Zion.

When Jeremiah lamented for the sins of the Jews and the desolation of Jerusalem, saying, "O that my head were waters, and mine eyes a fountain of tears, that I might weep day and night for the slain of the daughter of my people," then God filled the weeping prophet with gladness, using him as his ambassador to bear this message to captive Judah: "I have loved thee with an everlasting love, therefore with loving kindness have I drawn thee. Again I will build thee, and thou shalt be built, O virgin of Israel." Mark well the thought. Those who bear upon their hearts in prayerful pleadings the wants and woes of others shall be the elect messengers of God to bear a glad gospel to the people in return. Thus does Heaven recognize those who are bowed to the earth in sackcloth and ashes to bewail the sins of others.

Such Christians, above all others, become the truest fathers and mothers of the lambs of the fold. They are the spiritual parents of the young converts. Having travailed in birth for such, having experienced the intense birth throes, they watch with the keenest insight for every development of divine life in the soul. As the mother watches for every little intelligent expression in the babe, so do these for the spiritual development of their children in the Lord. Admonition, instruction and watch-care are given them with a solicitude so Christ-like, that it renders such believers co-workers with Christ by the bond of a common sympathy and a holy motive power that so fully establishes the heart in grace.

Such Christians are men and women of marvelous usefulness. Moses carried a nation upon his heart. Israel had grievously sinned. A golden calf had become their shrine. The Lord's anger was stirred for their destruction. Moses in two special seasons of soul travail pleaded for his countrymen, notwithstanding God had offered to raise up another people with Moses as the representative head, as Jacob had been to the Israelites. The man of God had no ambition in that direction. Once fill a man with soul travail, and all selfish ambition dies. Moses pleaded with the Lord, and said, "Oh, this people have sinned a great sin, and have made them gods of gold. Yet if now thou wilt, forgive their sin, and if not, blot me, I pray thee, out of the book which thou hast written." Such a man can touch the throne of God and save a nation from impending wrath.

INCENTIVES FOR CHRISTIAN WORK.

BY H. B. SEVEY.

Is repentance inculcated? Acts 3: 19, 21—"Repent ye therefore, and be converted that your sins may be blotted out, when the times of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord; and he shall send Jesus Christ, which before was preached unto you. whom the heavens must receive until the times of restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began."

Is love enforced? 1 Cor. 16: 22—"If any man love not the Lord Jesus Christ, let him be Anathema [accursed], Maran-atha [our Lord cometh]."

Are men exhorted to mortify lusts? Titus 2: 11—"For the grace of God that bringeth salvation hath appeared to all men, teaching us that, denying ungodliness and worldly lusts. we should live soberly, righteously, and godly in this present world, looking for that blessed hope and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Saviour Jesus Christ."

Is glory assured and holiness inculcated? 1 John 3: 2—"Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be; but we know that, when He shall appear, we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is. And every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself, even as he is pure."

Are watchfulness and prayer inculcated? Rev. 16: 15—"Behold, I come as a thief. Blessed is he that watcheth and keepeth his garments. lest he walk naked and they see his shame."

Is ministerial fidelity inculcated? 2 Tim. 4: 1, 2—"I charge thee therefore before God, and the Lord Jesus Christ, who shall judge the quick and dead at his appearing and his kingdom; preach the word."

Is consolation offered to those mourning for Christian friends? 1 Thess. 4: 13, 15—"But I would not have you ignorant, brethren, concerning them which are asleep, that ye sorrow not even as others which have no hope. For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with him For this we say unto you by the word of the Lord, that we which are alive and remain unto the coming of the Lord shall not prevent them which are asleep."

Is consolation amid trials, persecution, and martyrdom administered? It is by the reward to be given at the coming of the Lord. 2 Thess. 1: 7, 10—"And to you who are troubled, rest with us, when the Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven with his mighty angels, in flaming fire taking vengeance on them that know not God, and that obey not the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ; who shall be punished with everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord and from the glory of his power, when he shall come to be glorified in his saints and to be admired in all them that believe in that day." 2 Tim. 4: 8—"Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give me at that day, and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing." 1 Pet. 5: 4—"And when the chief Shepherd shall appear, ye shall receive a crown of glory that fadeth not away." Rom. 8: 17—"And if children, then heirs; heirs of God and joint heirs with Christ; if so be that we suffer with him, that we may be also glorified together." 2 Tim. 2: 12—"If we suffer, we shall also reign with him."

Grand incentive, glorious reward, a hundredfold in this life, and in the world to come life everlasting. It is too much to lose while in reach of all.

WHAT HAS BEEN MAY BE AGAIN.

BY J. ALBERT LIBBY.

Earth, under the eye of its Maker,
Though under a lifeless sea,
Heard the voice of God's Spirit calling,
And came by itself to be.

And as morning flashed above it,
And led the first days forth,
It grew into wondrous beauty,
And was finished, a fair, new earth.

It was blest by the lips of the Maker,
When fit for the purest of men,
And heavenly feet walked upon it;
And what has been may be again.

THE MODEL CHURCH.

Synopsis of a Sermon delivered by ELDER J. F. CLOTHEY, Pastor of the Advent Christian Church of Bangor, Me., Sunday, Oct. 20th. Text, 1 Tim. 3: 15.

We shall present the model church as to what it ought to be according to the teaching of Christ and his apostles. First, in its worship. Second, in its doctrine. Third, in its practice or precept. Fourth, in its work.

Under the first head we remark, that the worship of God is to be characterized by great simplicity. Prayer, praise, and preaching of the Word are the three divisions of that worship according to the New Testament. Ceremonials, ritualistic worship, pomp and display are not countenanced under the new covenant. Everything tending to distract the mind is to be avoided. There is to be a spiritual worship of him who alone is worthy of our homage and adoration. Reverence for his name, his Word, and his house, must characterize all our devotions. Heb. 12: 28. We must refrain from everything that tends to disorder or confusion. 1 Cor. 14: 33, 40. The house of God is not the place for gayety or laughter, neither is it a mart for trade. Unseemly display of dress is utterly inconsistent with the requirements of the gospel. In the worship of God all are on a level, for there is no respect of persons with him.

Second, doctrine The model church will hold to the written Word of God in which is revealed the doctrine taught by Christ and his apostles. There is one Lord, one faith, one baptism; the early church were of one heart and one mind. Heresy, schism, etc., crept into the church and produced division and dissension. In the epistle of Jude we are exhorted to contend earnestly for the faith once delivered to the saints. Paul in his epistle to the Corinthians reminds them that they are to keep in memory what he preached unto them, how that Christ died for our sins, that he was buried, and that he rose again according to the Scriptures. Upon a resurrection of the dead he bases our hope of eternal life, and at the second coming of Christ the consummation of this hope is brought about. Hence the model church will be found looking for that blessed hope and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Saviour Jesus Christ.

Third, in its practice or precept the model church will be separate from the world, set apart for the service of God. Persecuted, defamed, tried and reproached for the name of Christ. Holiness of heart, purity of life, just and honorable dealings, will ever be found in the intercourse of its members with the world. Self-denial, crucifixion of the flesh with it passions and lusts, together with the fruits of the Spirit, viz., love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance.

Lastly, the model church will be a working church. Thoroughly imbued with the spirit of the Master, it will manifest a power which will produce glorious results for the cause of God. Connected with the great Head, branches of the true vine, alive unto God, obedience becomes the first, the greatest qualification for the work of Christ. No cross too heavy, no sacrifice too great, recognizing the value of diligence in the work, the model church will press on to victory, overcoming every foe, steadfast, unwavering, until the Master comes. Reaching out for the lost, reclaiming the wanderer, gathering into the fold of Christ the outcast. Lifting up the standard of truth, battling for the right, it presents a bold front to the enemy. Consecrated time, consecrated means, systematic effort, all conspire to bring the desired results. God is glorified, sinners are saved, and the saints rejoice. Can we find a model church? Shall we as a people occupy this position before the world? The Word of God is our standard. "Let us stand fast in one spirit, with one mind striving together for the faith of the gospel."

HOLINESS.

BY F. O.

Many people have an idea that Adventists do not believe in holiness. This is a great mistake, however. A short time ago I heard a lady arise in meeting and say that she had heard that Adventists did not like to have holiness people talk in their meetings. What an insinuation, as much as to say, "You wicked sinners do not like to have holy people or Christians talk in your meetings." But she was deluded, and the presiding elder corrected her. People are continually telling us that the "Alliance people" believe in holiness just as we do. But this is not so. Their belief in regard to it differs from ours greatly. They believe that a person can be converted and keep sinning occasionally, being a Christian all the while, until at last he is willing to give all up and then he is made holy instantaneously.

We believe in instantaneous holiness, but at a different time in one's experience. When a person is truly converted he then is as holy as the blood of Christ can make him. If the blood of Christ touches a man does it do half the work? Is he then unholy, after the blood has been applied? Nay verily. He will never pass the gates of the New Jerusalem any more holy or any more sanctified than he is at his true conversion. Besides, can a person be converted without giving up his entire will to the Lord? No, you answer. Well, in the name of heaven, what more can he ever do? Perhaps, as he goes on the Lord will show him something to do, and if he does not do it he begins to backslide and then needs to pray as did David, "Restore unto me, O Lord, the joys of thy salvation." Many of the "Alliance people," and good people they are, are those that have once been converted but have backslidden in the past, and now have been re-converted and think that they have a "second blessing," as they call it.

Away with the delusion, for it is hurting the cause of Christ, and is killing some of our churches. If a person that has been really converted commits a sin, he then backslides, and should the Lord come while he is in that sin, he would be lost as well as any other sinner, and if he does not repent, he will be destroyed at last as a sinner. How simple this question seems. There is no such thing as an unholy Christian. A person is either a holy Christian or an unholy sinner. This is an important question, in one sense, for it is hurting some of the churches terribly.

A SHORT SERMON ON COMFORT.

BY M. E. ANDREWS

"Comfort yourselves together."—1 THESS. 5: 11.

Many are the occasions in this life, with all its changing circumstances, when we are in sore need of comfort. Misfortune, sickness, the loss of friends, all have a tendency to becloud our lives with sorrow and gloom. And under such circumstances God has said, "Comfort one another." As different diseases need different remedies, so different circumstances of sorrow need different means of comfort. Sometimes financial distresses are met, and a "God bless you, be thou warmed and fed," is a poor means of comfort. Words are not adequate to furnish comfort under all circumstances. Sometimes more substantial means are needed; and when dollars are needed words are a poor substitute.

Sometimes distresses are met when dollars are not worth so much as kind words. How many distressed, weary wayfarers are suffering for a kind, sympathetic word of comfort, which could be administered so easily. To be effectual in offering comfort to others we must also have been partakers of the same. The Apostle says, "The God of all comfort, who comforteth us in all our tribulation, that we may be able to comfort them which are in any trouble, by the comfort wherewith we ourselves are comforted of God."

The Holy Ghost and the Scriptures of truth are the unlimited sources of divine comfort. Have you lost friends? Read 1 Thess. 4, which contains the divinely appointed words of comfort for such occasions, or perhaps alternate the reading of that with 1 Cor. 15. Have you met with financial losses? Read Heb. 10: 34, "For ye had compassion of me in my bonds, and took joyfully the spoiling of your goods, knowing in yourselves that ye have in heaven a better and an enduring substance." Are you afflicted with disease? Read Ps. 41: 3, "The Lord will strengthen him upon the bed of languishing; thou wilt make all his bed in his sickness."

Whether by word or deed, as opportunities afford and circumstances demand, let us administer comfort to all the distressed.

A CHEERFUL heart makes misfortune light, especially if that cheerfulness is rooted in a good conscience.

A HEAD LIGHT.

BY V. P. HUNT.

The Word of the Lord is ahead of all the other lights in the world, and that is just the reason that it is so often imitated and quoted at and misquoted. If the devil gets up anything to palm off among the Christian world, he must have just enough Scripture in it to give it a coloring. Reading a very foolish book not long ago devoted to what is called "Christian Science," but which would be better known by the name of foolishness boiled down, I took notice that the Bible had to be pressed into service to give coloring to the wild teaching of the author.

The Bible is the great light which is ahead of all others. But, says some one, if the Bible does not teach that the better part of man survives death in a conscious state, what are we to do with the case of Dives and Lazarus, wherein it is certainly told us that they talked and were conscious of their surroundings? A great amount might be said to no purpose regarding this matter, but I am not going to spend time and space in that way, but will notice at the very start the fact that there is no proof whatever of any spirit existence aside from the body intimated here. Why lend color to the claim of the immaterialists by going off into a long, roundabout argument regarding the teaching of this part of the Word, when the fact is patent to every careful reader that there is not a syllable of proof of a disembodied existence in this case. Now the very part that the immaterialists consign to the worms and to dust is the acting agent in all this drama.

Did Christ say anything about a soul out of the body? Is anything said about a spirit in a spirit realm? Does Jesus say that a ghost met with fire, and saw another ghost off in the bosom of still another ghost, and that he immediately set up a cry for immaterial water to be put on his ghostly tongue? What kind of a man does Moses say that God formed in the beginning? Gen. 2: 7 answers by saying that God formed out of the dust of the ground just such a man as Jesus here describes in Luke 16. A material, corporal being, with a head and eyes, and limbs and hands, and having the power of speech. Where has God ever told us that he ever made a man without a body? Jesus does not say a word about the rich man and Lazarus being without bodies. Why should we, then, give ourselves any thought about this matter, so long as Jesus did not introduce a new species of men having no physical bodies? Are not those who claim this Scripture to prove a disembodied state obliged to beg the whole Scripture? I say that they are, and I will prove it.

1. The Bible does not introduce men and women without bodies, and neither did Jesus in this account.

2. The Bible informs us that God once rained fire and brimstone on corporal men and women, and destroyed them, and Jesus says that Dives was in hades bodily.

The Bible teaches that the "meek are blessed, because they shall inherit the earth." Now God promised the land [the world] to Abraham and to his seed, which is Christ; and if Christ's, then children of Abraham and heirs according to the promise that God gave to Abraham. And so Jesus represents that Lazarus was in a blest condition because that he was in the bosom of Abraham, so an heir, while the unfortunate Dives was in hades, having no living connection with Abraham, and no way to obtain it.

The person who dies in the Lord, while he loses life, makes sure his heirship to the world according to that which God promised to Abraham, while the one that simply lives to get and keep all he can lay his hands on, and to feast and have a good time in this life, when he dies he dies out of the Lord, and consequently has no relationship to Abraham and the promise that God made him, and so he is not in a blessed condition, but the wrath of God abides on him.

Now the Son of God represents two just such characters that will apply to all men soon. Either we shall be the bosom companions of Abraham, or we shall end our existence in death eternal. We shall come either to a resurrection of inheritance, or to one of condemnation.

Now, troubled reader, remember that all the proof that these men were disembodied spirits must come outside of the Bible. Jesus did not call them spirits or souls, or speak of them as being without their bodies. If it teaches conscious existence after death, it teaches it for the whole man. Don't let any one try to befog you regarding this fact, but tell them that it teaches just the kind of consciousness that you believe in, and the kind that God first created, and the only kind that is ever brought to light in the Word of God: a consciousness that while conscious keeps the whole person conscious; a consciousness that deals not in conscious immaterial shades, but in bodily organism.

Once again I say, Don't be driven from what the Lord said, but stick to it always, and at all times, and then you will have only conscious men and women as whole, and not when fractioned off in subtile parts. Now to those that have occasion to argue the question let me say, Don't be drawn away by the question why the Lord represented these men as being conscious, and having the power of speech while dead; but you hold them to the fact that Jesus only accords consciousness to these two men in the body, and not apart from it, and that he says nothing about their bodies having died, but their spirits retained life and consciousness, but all that happened to them affected them bodily.

WHAT I THINK.

BY W. N. TENNEY.

I think "Buried Cities Recovered, or Explorations in Bible Lands," by Rev. Frank S. DeHass, is the best book I have ever read on this subject. The author tells us what he saw in these countries of the Orient, in a most interesting manner. No library is complete without it, and it should be on the table of every family and Bible student. No Christian can afford to lose the inspiration that is gained by reading its very interesting pages. If you have not the book, send $3.50 to Bro. Woodman and get it. You will say the half was not told you.

I think obituary notices should be short, but of such length that a stranger may get a little idea of the member of our Crisis family who has fallen asleep in Jesus. Bro. Stockman stated it about right when he said ten lines was long enough, except in very rare cases. I hardly agree with Rev. J. August Smith, in putting in just the name, date and place. I like to see a few words about the life of the one thus mentioned.

I think the appointments should be kept in the Crisis as usual, and that they are read by a great many each week. At least, this is my observation. I hardly think, Bro. Smith, that the majority of our readers regard these columns of appointments as "wasted space." I have before me the Crisis of June 26, with the article of Bro. Smith. In this issue I count appointments in 275 places. Of these, I have preached in sixty-six places. I also count 304 names of ministers and committees. Of these, I am acquainted with 132. As I get the "dear old Crisis" each week, I turn first to the editorial page, to see what that contains of especial interest, then look the appointments through. And it seems like getting a letter from these many places and brothers and sisters, as I look to see where the different ones are. Keep the appointments in, but cut them down.

There are a number of standing notices that might be shortened a line or so and still be all plain enough. I am something of a printer myself, having run an office three years, and if I were going to condense the list and make more room, I would print the name of the place and then the pastor or committee. It is understood that they are Advent Christian churches, so that this need not be stated in each notice. Then, again, I would not put in the street, except in cities. I would put it in all city notices, for the convenience of brethren and sisters who might as strangers visit these cities. Then leave out the word "committee," or the abbreviation "com.," if it could save a line, is as good as more.

In cities having mail carriers, I would print the street and No. of pastor's residence, if they wish, as a matter of convenience. This would be a list of addresses as well. Then, to gain again in the appointment columns, I would put the secular news on the last page, by condensing the book and tract notices.

I think Bros. Stockman and Woodman deserve words of commendation and praise for the improvements they have made in our grand family paper, and it will not hurt them if we let them know that their hard labor for us is appreciated.

TALK FACTS.

BY CHAS. E. COPP.

Talk facts, write facts. "Hold fast the form of sound words." Do not run on sentiment, "but speak thou the things which become sound doctrine." "In doctrine showing uncorruptness, gravity, sincerity, sound speech, that cannot be condemned; that he that is of the contrary part may be ashamed, having no evil thing to say of you." Titus 2: 7, 8. The devil may be interested to keep the pot boiling so that it may run all over in froth, but divine grace has the courage to press home the cool, hard facts at the bottom.

The Bible and history and Christian experience, its fulfillment, contain facts worth presenting; press them home. Some may maintain an existence on light refreshments, but others live on solid food—"every word which proceedeth out of the mouth of God." There are many words which come no farther than from the mouth of the one who utters them. These are infidel days, especially when men are looking for facts to fasten upon. The air is permeated with things of a bad origin, which are aiming for the brain of the world, and are reaching it too. Heart logic is good, but you cannot put out a fire in the attic by pouring water down cellar. Man that ladder, my brave fellow, and put a few gospel facts through the skylight of that man; he is all afire in the upper story.

If the Bible does not agree with your theory, stick to the Bible and let the theory go. If your theories are at variance with facts, so much the worse is it for your theory; give facts the right of way, and sidetrack your theory. There are things which experience and common sense teach, which the Bible may be somewhat silent upon; stick to sense. The Bible does not dethrone sense; it puts sense on the throne in royal apparel, to enjoy the music of faith and love. There are things which the Bible asserts, in the divine sense, with all the earnestness and positiveness of a man on a railroad track waving a red flag; haul up, there, friend, with your perdition-bound express! Save yourself, and find out what the trouble is afterward.

Human sense has not found out the why and wherefore of everything yet, and may not in this world. God is general manager yet, and we are nothing but poor, ignorant employes; let us run according to orders, and say how we understand them. Alas, how many will die, learned old sinners! "Save yourselves from this untoward generation," and find out the non-essentials to salvation sitting under the tree of life in the paradise of God, under the instruction of somebody who knows! Others seem bound to find them out "in the lake which burneth with fire and brimstone"

Brother, set the truth to poetry and music, but do not preach poetry for truth, nor sing it until you have proved it by the Bible and your experience. O, these are days of either cold formalism or fulsome nonsensical gush. Dear God, baptize us with grace and sense, and pilot us clear of both.

THE WORK IN WEST VIRGINIA. NO. 2.

Bro. Stockman:—My last report closed with the dedication of Pleasant Grove church in Jackson Co., of this State, October 1st. Wednesday, the 2d, Bro. Whitney and others joining Bro. Moles and myself in our journey to Roane County, started still further up the middle fork stream. After arriving about two miles we recrossed the ridge, entering Roane County, and came down to the main stream of Pocatalico River. We then wended our way up that stream, along on its banks, when not in the bed of the river. We traveled eastward ten miles to the mouth of Straight Creek, thence up the creek to its head. Then ascending the ridge to the top we followed its meanderings to the head of Owl Rock branch of Rock Creek. Turning down stream we traveled along its banks alternately to the home of Eld. S. P. Whitney. Having traveled nearly twenty miles that day over rough roads and steep hills, through deep hollows and narrow gorges, we felt very tired.

Bro. Whitney lives thirty miles from a railroad in a deep hollow between two mountain spurs, and his farm is very steep and difficult to plough. He has been here twenty years and has built up a conference of twenty-one churches. He is now getting too old to endure such work as he has done. He has walked many thousands of miles over these mountains to carry the truth to the people in these out of the way places. He is a man who has the confidence of all I have heard speak of him. He is poor, and winter coming upon him. He does not know just how he shall procure shoes for his family, wife and five children. I want to say, without his knowledge or consent, that if any of the Lord's stewards could feel it a privilege to send him a little help in this direction it would cheer his heart, bless his family, and glorify God. His address is Walton, Roane Co., West Virginia. Bro. Whitney is a very meek man, and does not make a noise about the grand work done here by the Lord through him. He says nothing about his needs, but works on, enduring hardness as a faithful soldier of Jesus, expecting his good time when the Life-giver comes.

We rested over night with him, and on Thursday morning, Oct. 3d, we started down Owl Rock Branch. Passing Owl Rock schoolhouse we came to Rock Creek, then went down that creek one mile to Pocatalico River again, then up the river, crossing and re-crossing it several times, to the mouth of Big Creek, then up Big Creek two miles, where we found the West Virginia A. C. Conference in session. The crowd of ministers and delegates showed that the truths we love so dearly are prospering. Many are alive and in the work. Some few have relaxed their efforts, and some gone back to the world, having embraced the age-to-come theory. Such is the tendency of these doctrines. If lost here they think they will have another chance after Jesus comes.

The committee put us on to fill the desk six times at the Conference. Besides that I went to Walton Friday night and preached in a large school-house filled with attentive listeners, and Saturday night to Gandyville, where the doors of one church were locked. But the Protestant Methodists showed that when they dedicated their house to God they let the key go in, too. They manifested a Christian spirit. The commodious house was opened, lighted, and the bell rung. At an early hour it was packed very full with an interested people. Sunday, at eleven A. M. at the Conference there were at least five hundred out to hear, and at three P. M. five miles away, I preached for a sick woman, the house and porch being crowded.

I should like to just write a whole column to tell you about the people there where that Conference met, but space forbids. I will just say that everybody in the vicinity was so kind that it seemed they were uneasy lest they would not do enough for the many strangers attending the meeting. In fact, this is characteristic of West Virginia. I have never yet found a stranger in the state. Everybody here seems like home folks. After preaching twice Sunday, we procured the faithful services of Bro. B. S. Young to pilot Bro. Moles and myself further on through the mountains, and came four miles across ridges to Round Knob, thence to Pocatalico River, where we stopped over night. Right here I will put a period till my next.

Your Bro., JOHN A. CARGILE.

LIFE PERPETUAL.

BY A. RICHARDS.

The Lord said to Martha (John 11: 26), "And whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die." The stream of life will flow on forever. This agrees with the statement of Paul in 1 Cor. 15: 51, and 1 Thess. 4: 17. 1 Cor. 15: 51 reads, "Behold, I show you a mystery; we shall not all sleep." The class that do not die, will of necessity continue to live, life will flow on without intermission. There will be a great change from mortality to immortality, but as to life it certainly will be a continuation of what we understand to be life, more abundant, no doubt, but life in very deed. For to the class mentioned there has been no intermission, the stream of life has continued to flow without a break.

It does appear to me that the few words of Scripture mentioned above settle the question, even to a babe in Christ, in regard to life hereafter. For we have the words of the Lord, and the positive statements of Paul that those that are living and believing when the Lord shall appear will never taste death. Without doubt to the dead in Christ the same life will be given, with this difference, that their life was suspended for a time. If anyone wished to do so, he could wade through arguments almost for a life-time, which try to prove that life hereafter is not what we know and understand life to be in this world.

Let God be true, though it should place a great many commentators on the other side, at least as to the question of future life. In the above I have not been considering any of the surroundings of our blessed immortal life, but only the one simple question of life here and hereafter. And from a Bible standpoint I am fully satisfied that for man to have life is to have personal, conscious being, and that death to man is exactly the opposite. If so, this whole question of man's nature as to life is settled very surely by the Word of God.

Buchanan, Mich.

SIGNS OF HIS COMING.

When the Saviour was answering the inquiry of his disciples as to when he would return to this world, he gave them various signs to be seen among the heavenly bodies; and then referred to events that would transpire on the earth, as the last signs to be seen before his appearing. Among these he specifies "distress of nations with perplexity; the sea and the waves roaring." When referring to the late terrible storms, the New York Tribune of Sept. 13, has an article headed "Roaring on Sea and Land." It says: "From daybreak until darkness set in and veiled from view the seething surf there was no lessening of the ferocity of the elements. While daylight lasted the sight from all points along the coast was one of exceeding grandeur. As far out in the ocean as the eye could reach, great waves were seen to form, break, gather renewed strength, tower majestically toward the leaden skies, break and re-form again, until the shore was reached, when they were finally dashed with a sullen roar frightful to hear, against the Long Branch bluff and the flimsy bulkheads constructed in front of the cottages or upon the beach. Receding, they carried with them tons of earth and immense quantities of wooden debris from bath-houses, walks, cottages, bulkheads and pavilions. The sky was of a leaden hue, and from the clouds fell a heavy rain, which, with the spray from the surf, was caught by the strong breeze and whirled along in sheets like mist, stinging almost as severely as hail, the faces of those persons who were compelled to be abroad."

The last signs of our Lord's return seem to be now in sight. This is the time for careful watching and holy living, if we expect to be ready for his coming. M. G.

MANY of our cares are but a morbid way of looking at our privileges. We let our blessings get mouldy, and then call them curses.

JOURNEYINGS AND OBSERVATIONS.

BY A. ROSS.

Sunday, Sept. 8, I came from Suncook, N. H., with Bro. H. Ford, whose kind Christian hospitality I have often shared, to a tent meeting in Bow, on the west side the river, where I preached the Word, which was listened to with good attention. Listened to a good discourse in the P. M. from Eld. John Wheeler, and in the evening following another from his son, who had been preaching in Concord during the day. During the week I attended meetings in Manchester, Lowell, and Boston, visiting the sick, and scattering the only Second Advent book worthy the name. They are kept at the Crisis office, Messiah's Herald office, office of the Christian, and many other places. The printed contents of the book can be obtained for five cents. The different styles of binding are much more. I have seen them in Turkey morocco with gilt edges as high as fifteen dollars. It has been a matter of great surprise to me that with the tens and hundreds of thousands of dollars used during the years that are passed in scattering Second Advent literature, this most worthy of them all is so carelessly passed by, and so little pains taken by our different publishing houses to translate it and send it to every nation under heaven. I have a few copies on hand, which I will furnish without cost to the poor who have no money to buy with.

Sept. 14th, came to Franklin, Mass. Preached on the Lord's day to a congregation of interested hearers. Monday following, I came to Providence, R. I., to see my old friend and former fellow-laborer, John Flanders, eleven years my senior. God bless him and his companion in these years of their decline, and fit them for a part in God's everlasting kingdom. I shall not soon forget the vision that passed before my mind when in prayer with them the morning I left. As I was praying, the whole race of unsaved souls was presented to my mind in the form of a rod. On one extreme were the proud and gay, money-lovers and pleasure-seekers; on the other extreme were the self-abandoned, whom I mentioned in my prayer as the low-minded sinner. The intermediate space was filled with an immense throng drifting as circumstances might incline them, some to one extreme and some to the other. But none stood still, all were tending to one or the other extreme. The question came to me with power, in the eye of the Judge of all, what is the difference? Of all who are out of Christ it may be said in the language of Watts:

"Like sheep we went astray
And left the fold of God,
Each wandering in his chosen way,
But all the downward road."

Spent Tuesday and Wednesday in Worcester. Attended one meeting in the evening, and on Thursday came to Boston and from thence to Alton to our Quarterly Conference, which was a pleasant and profitable season to all present. The brethren and sisters of the place set a free table for all who came, and all were well satisfied, both with quantity and quality. Early Monday morning I was called for and taken to West Alton by Bro. Coffin, where I spent the day very pleasantly, reading and writing. Preached Monday evening in the school-house, where as many attend as you can get out to an evening service in our large villages and cities. The Word of the Lord had free course. Tuesday preached at the White Oaks school-house, Wednesday at South Barnstead, Thursday in Northwood, Friday at Pittsfield. Our financial encouragements footed up for the week, including the first day at Quarterly Conference, to four dollars fifty cents, about two dollars in excess of our railroad fare from Boston.

If our southern and foreign missionaries think it a delightful pastime to be missionary at large in Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire, and Canada during the winter months of our northern climate, let them come and put in ten or twelve weeks of solid labor in overheated school-houses, inhaling the smoke of kerosene oil lamps, sometimes creeping over snow-drifts on hands and knees, to get to appointments in sequestered neighborhoods, and be met occasionally with an unwelcome stare more becoming a diocesan bishop of the old Mother Church, whose special duty he claims it to be, to rid the world of heretics and the church of heresy, in the room of showing themselves helpers in the great work of proclaiming to the ends of the earth, "Thy salvation cometh, his reward is with him, and his work before him." "Who then is that faithful and wise servant whom his Lord hath made ruler over his household, to give them their meat in due season? Blessed is that servant whom his Lord when he cometh shall find so doing."

THE happiness a man derives from money is in proportion to his liberality. A poor man who thinks he can afford to give his mite, feels richer than the miser who will not give anything.

A NEW SUNDAY SCHOOL QUARTERLY.

At a recent meeting of the A. C. P. Society it was decided to publish another Sunday School Quarterly for the use of Intermediate classes. This quarterly is now in course of preparation, and we trust it will not only be adapted to the needs of our schools, but also that it will be largely called for. Remember, we have taken out the "Questions for Intermediate Classes" from the Blessed Hope Quarterly, and so you will need to subscribe for The Intermediate Blessed Hope Quarterly in order to supply the needs of those classes.

This, then, is the arrangement: On the first of January, 1890, and thereafter, you can be supplied with the following Sunday School helps published at this office: The Blessed Hope Quarterly, which will be for advanced classes; The Intermediate Blessed Hope Quarterly, for youth from ten to fifteen years; The Young Pilgrim Lesson Paper, for younger scholars. They will be ready for delivery by Dec. 15, we expect. Don't forget to make out your list and send in your orders in season. We hope to greatly increase our subscription list for Sunday School helps. FRANK BURR.

One million copies of this work should be put into the hands of Americans within twelve months.

Its disclosures deserve the earnest attention of all Americans.

WHAT DOES THE BOOK CONTAIN?

It contains the most terrible revelations of the worst system that ever existed. The priests, the nuns, and the Jesuits are all in, as plotters and deceivers, over-reachers and rulers of the country.

Jesuits run to and fro, and wander up and down the country, to overturn our social order, and supplant it with Rome rule.

Parochial schools, those nests of treason, are exposed.

And last of all, the question is asked, "Can Washington be taken out of the Lap of Rome?" "Of course it can," says the Doctor. Why not? The American nation is a great and powerful nation. Rome must go; and Washington must be free!

PROPHETICAL.

THE LITTLE HORN OF DANIEL'S EIGHTH CHAPTER. WHO IS MEANT BY IT?

D. T. TAYLOR.

"And for it came up four notable ones toward the four winds of heaven. And out of one of them came forth a little horn."—DANIEL 8: 8, 9.

My last paper showed the inconsistency, if not impossibility, of making the horn to symbolize Mohammedanism. Grant that it denotes the fourth supreme empire of Rome, how shall we understand the statement that it came forth out of a portion of the empire of Greece? Because the original word, when used of a power, nation, people, or army, in no instance describes origin, but simply movement; here an aggressive movement of a power having a previous origin. Origin is rise, spring, source, fountain, cause, beginning, first stage of being, derivation original. Originate is, To begin to take existence, to arise, to emanate. (Worcester's Dict)

The horn did not originate from Macedon or any part of Greece, it only emerged into view to the prophet from one section of Greece, the original section and division. Thus: "One of them." The Hebrew echad, translated "one," generally means one, but sometimes means the first one, and is then translated "first," as in the following scriptures: "Now in the first year of Cyrus." Ezra 1: 1 "Upon the first day of the month." Ib. 7: 9. "In the first year of Darius the Mede." Dan. 11: 1. "The name of the first is Pison." Gen. 2: 11 "On the first day of the first month." Exod. 40: 2, 17. In Gen. 4: 19 we read, "The name of one was Adah," and in Gen. 10: 25 we read again, "The name of one was Peleg," and in each instance no doubt the first one is meant. Echad is thus shown to refer to one of the days of a month or year, or one of the years of a reign, not any one, but the first one, the primary. Now look at history.

Macedonian Greece was the first in order, and importance of the four. It was, says Sir Isaac Newton, "the fundamental kingdom," or, as Bishop Newton calls it, "the capital kingdom of the goat." Out of Macedon came the first king of Greece, Alexander the Great. It lay in the west-wind side of the body of the Grecian kingdom. It lay first in the path of the armies of Rome as they moved from Italy in the west toward the broken third kingdom on the east and toward Asia. An invasion from Rome toward the east would bring her armies first into Macedon and Greece; Macedon, "the first of the four kingdoms," as Bishop Newton styles it. Rome declared war against King Philip, of Macedon, in the year before Christ 200. Capturing this western division of Greece, which the Romans did in B. C. 168, it became their base of military operations against all of Greece. At this place and time Daniel saw the little Roman horn, not yet a world-ruler, but—pushing, and growing in greatness out in every direction over the people and territory of the third supreme kingdom of Grecia. Such was exactly Rome's course in history. She conquered Syria in 65 B. C., and Egypt in 30 B. C., taking Thrace and Bythinia in her war-path. And she grew great "toward the pleasant land," Judea, the holy land, "the glory of all lands" (Ezek. 20: 6, 15; Psa. 48: 2; 106: 24), the land of the glorious holy mountain (Dan. 11: 45) God's land (Lev. 25: 23).

The north and west portion of the divided empire of Greece must be referred to as the emerging point, first appearance, or manifestation of the advancing horn, because his power radiates in its increasing greatness toward the south, the east, and the Holy Land. Hence the point of compass or direction from Daniel from which he saw the horn prevail must be in the north and west, and Macedon was in this general direction from Rome's subsequently conquered lands. I now notice the Hebrew term yah tzah, rendered "came forth," which Gesenius, Heb. Lex., p. 413, says denotes "to go out, to go forth," but not in any instance denotes to originate. So far as I have examined, in all cases the thing going forth existed before it goes forth; the term simply describing the movement of a thing into sight, its open showing, its coming where it appears and operates. The following examples in Kal. Preterite show the use of yah tzah: "Why came we forth out of Egypt?" Num. 11: 20. "Thou camest out of Egypt." Exod. 13: 3, and 34: 18 "There is a people come out from Egypt." Numb. 22: 5; also Deut. 16: 3. The nation and armies of Israel did not originate or spring out of Egypt, but moved out in battle array in a great host. So did Rome, the little horn, move out from Macedon.

The term describes the movement of armies out to war. See Judges 20: 1, 20, 21, 25, and is often so used. Examples: "All the people came out by hundreds." 2 Sam. 18: 4 "Jeroboam went out of Jerusalem." 2 Kings 11: 29 "The Syrians had gone out." 2 Kings 5: 2. "Then Pharaoh's army was come forth." Jer. 37: 5. "He is come forth to make war with thee." Isa. 37: 9. In Joshua 8: 22 we read, "The other issued out of the city," i. e., they came out. Here it describes a thing in issue from, or emerging from. No one can doubt of the existence of the people of Ai previous to their issuing out of the city. So did Rome before it emerged into view from Macedon. Dr. Gesenius notes the fact that the word is in Exod. 38: 18, Num. 25: 5, and Deut. 9: 7 used to describe the emigration of a whole people or nation out of the land. I notice also that in Jer. 29: 16 it is used of a nation who go forth into captivity, not the origination of a nation, for they existed before going into captivity.

In Daniel's prophecies this Hebrew term is used five times in one form and twice in another, but in not one place does it describe the rise, cause, source, spring or origin of the subject In 9: 20 the angel says, "I am now come forth," not that he was then originated, but he now moved into the sight of Daniel. In 9: 23 the word refers to the open and public promulgation of Cyrus' decree: "The commandment came forth." In 11: 11 come forth refers to the movement and visible appearance (not origin) of the assisting angel. In 11: 44 we have, "Therefore he shall go forth with great fury," etc.; that is, this military power shall go forth, either as an expelled nation—the Turk driven out of Europe as some think—or, go forth as Daniel saw the Roman horn, marching with vast invading armies. See also Dan. 9: 15 and 10: 20.

If, then, Daniel nowhere else uses the term to denote the prime source of a power, why suppose he does so here? The theory of origin is unsustained. It is not true in historical fact. But it was true in the natural sense of the words used that Daniel saw the horn emerging in his first vision of it from Macedonian Greece, the first and chief one of the four into which Alexander's kingdom was divided. If, then, the rest of the features of this horn are met in Rome as a whole and in parts, then the vision can only refer to the great and long continued kingdom of Rome. It seems to me this evidence must forever settle the dispute about this horn. It is neither Antiochus nor Mohammedanism, it is Rome.

THE only way to escape the deluge was Noah's ark, or rather God's ark, which Noah built according to divine direction. Noah did not own a slab of it, nor even his own body. And the only way to escape the fiery deluge which is coming is God's way; and that way is Christ. "I am the way, the truth, and the life," said he, while here.—Ex.

GOOD NEWS.

And yet more good news from our foreign fields. Constant encouragement comes to us to continue, and if possible double our diligence in foreign tract mission work, by news of the progress of truth and the deep impression it is making on the minds of many intelligent readers. I rejoice in being called of God to have a share in this good work in these closing days of probationary time. J. C. WELLCOME.

"Camp Katpadi, April 1, 1892. My Dear Bro. Wellcome:—I should have replied to your letter sooner, but I have been very busy in my new division, and have not had much time at my disposal. I am glad for one reason that I have been late in my reply, as it affords me the opportunity of giving you an account of my work amidst new surroundings, and of transmitting good news to you. Since last writing to you it has been my great and happy privilege to help another dear Christian soul to obey the Lord in being buried in the waters of baptism. In February I immersed Sr. Wilmot, and she has gone on her way rejoicing. She is an elderly lady. It was only recently that she saw that immersion was the only form of scriptural baptism. She had embraced the doctrine of life only in Christ. Bro. Lander, who lately died in Bengalore, was the instrument used of God to bring her to a knowledge of the truth.

Bro. and Sr. Black have been studying the subject of baptism, and have expressed a desire to render obedience, and we are waiting for Bro. Black to obtain leave to come to Ancot, where there is water, for there is not sufficient water at his place in Ankonam. Bro. Erskine has rendered valuable service in this [illegible] the use of a cistern attached to his house. He is a very dear brother, and is all ablaze in the Master's service and for his glory. It is he who has been putting the truth of baptism before Bro. and Sr. Black. Please write to him when you can. I have given two discourses at a station called Negapatam, about forty eight miles from Tanjore, and have held Bible class regularly for the last six weeks, and am glad to be able to report to you that the Lord is graciously blessing them. I began with two the first Sunday, now there are twelve in attendance regularly. One is a Roman Catholic lady. The last Sunday there were eighteen in attendance.

A great interest is being manifested in the class. Some have seen the truth of life in Christ, and are studying Christian baptism. I take my stand on the word of God, and must accept its plain literal teachings in regard to the nature of man and the personal coming of our Lord. I dare not set aside any portion of the inspired Word. I am so glad to know that you are well again. Mrs. Gibson was laid up for some time with la grippe and Asiatic bronchitis, but is, I am happy to say, well again. You wish to know how far Tanjore is from Bangalore. It is about three hundred miles, and two hundred and seventeen from Madras. I travel over a distance of six hundred and fifteen miles with the mails. There are seven large and important towns and stations, and form the termini of my subdivisions. I also have a large number of small intermediate stations. I hope soon to have a regular tract distribution. Hoping this may find you quite well, I remain yours affectionately in Christ Jesus.

A DUDLEY GIBSON."

"Ancot, India, June 20, 1892. Dear Bro. Wellcome:—Your most excellent letter and packages of tracts reached me safely a few days ago, when Bro. Gibson and another native brother, Pooniah, happened to be here for the purpose of breaking bread together, and so we all had the privilege of hearing your dear letter read, and were made happy to hear the good news you gave me. May the Lord bless you and your labors abundantly, and keep you in health and strength in your advanced age, to spread the glorious message of our blessed Lord's return to us. You will be very happy, I know, to learn from me that our dear Bro. Gibson is a very faithful worker for the Lord, and to know that the Lord is blessing his labors abundantly at Negapatam, the new field of labor on which he lately entered. My special desire now is to serve our blessed Lord Jesus. But my present position does not give me a wide field to labor in. My length of road, as supervisor, is only thirty miles, and my station is very small. And you can imagine how very lonely the place is to us when I tell you there are no other families of our kind, except ourselves, with a small native village near by. However, I try to distribute our literature along the railway line, and as lonely as this place may be, the Lord is keeping us rejoicing in him.

I have a small tank at my place, and all those who have had their eyes opened and embraced the truth, and have given expression of their obedience in the Lord by baptism were immersed at my place by our dear Christian Bro. Gibson. They were five in number, which includes an aged lady. I expect two more to come home soon for immersion from a place to which I go to Bible class twenty-two miles away. The truth is spreading in Bangalore, Madras, and other places in southern India. The believers are many, but they are widely scattered. This part of India requires many earnest laborers for the truth of the blessed Word. Yes, sin abounds greatly. It is sad to see the young men all going the wrong way. I find all this warning us of the closing of this age. I remain your brother earnestly watching and waiting for the Lord. May God bless you C. EARSKINE."

WORK IN ONTARIO.

Bro. Stockman:—Please allow me space in THE WORLD'S CRISIS to report the progress of work here, for the encouragement of the household of faith. Our last report left us at Northfield. We continued our meetings in the tent there until last Sunday night, Aug. 14 Our meeting was good, one of the best and most profitable we have held during our seven years of work with a tent. Our meetings were large, and on several evenings all could not be seated in the tent. The interest increased to the end. Quite a large number have started in the service of Christ, several have been truly converted, and some backsliders reclaimed.

Special interest has been manifest in our views as a people, caused largely by many false reports and misrepresentations which reached there before us. So we were called upon to give our views, wherein we differed from the so called orthodox faith, which we did, giving Bible reasons for our position, by way of self-defense and vindication of truth. The result is wonderful. Some thirty families are convinced of the truth of Christ's coming near at hand and kindred truths. We meet some persecution, as truth always does. Some of the "baser sort" were led to cut our ropes and make a disturbance. We also received an anonymous letter giving us only three days to leave the place, and threatening to burn us up like stubble. This only helped us and gave us more friends. Of course it added to our work the anxiety of caring more closely for our tents by night. But God was with us and worked this out for good, and we remained there longer than we had planned. There is a strong desire on the part of the people for us to give them regular preaching, which we shall do, as the Lord opens the way.

We are now located with the tent near the village of Avonmore, on the C. P. Railway, and have had one meeting. The friends from Northfield can attend here, several were here last night, and one under conviction started. We are finding a more stubborn opposition than we have met yet. An influence is being brought to bear on the people to keep them from the meetings, so we can only reach many of them by visiting them in their homes, which we are doing as fast as we can. Is it not strange that intelligent people can be so blinded by prejudice and led blindly along by leaders and teachers who themselves are blinded by ambition, love of praise, and the "god of this world?" "The blind leading the blind." O brethren and sisters, do we sense the responsibility resting on us? Are we doing what we can to show those in darkness that the coming of the Lord is near, and that the seductive influence of the "world's conversion" theory is of the devil?

May God help us all to sound out the truth and show slumbering Christendom how false are their hopes and how delusive their dreams of a temporal millennium of peace and glory here on earth before the coming of the Lord. May God help us to realize the sudden destruction awaiting those who cry "Peace and safety," that "knowing the terror of the Lord we may persuade men." I trust we may have the prayers of all the faithful for wisdom and power in this work of sounding the judgment message. Your brother in the conflict between truth and error.

MISSIONS IN INDIA.

The Rev. Dr. Pentecost, who has spent some months conducting evangelistic work in India, recently gave four addresses in Marylebone Presbyterian church, London, England, on the present condition of Christian missions in India. Some cases of deep interest were related in detail by Dr. Pentecost. These showed unmistakably that the Spirit of God is at work in the hearts of many of the educated Indians. One specially interesting case referred to was that of the Pundita Ramabai, whom Dr. Pentecost described as the ablest and most distinguished native woman in the country, and a great Sanscrit scholar. From her studies she was led to repudiate Hinduism. She came under the influence of the Cowley fathers in Poona, and was taught by one of them the beauty and superiority of Christianity, and she accepted it, but only as a system and in an intellectual sense. She came to England, and because she was not as clear and orthodox as she ought to have been she got the cold shoulder, just as Keshub Chunder Sen did from evangelicals. He was taken up by the Unitarians, and went back to India less a Christian than when he came. So the Pundita found her friends among Unitarians in that country. She afterwards went to America to pursue her studies, and the same thing happened there. As a result she went back to Poona commissioned by the Unitarians of America to establish a school for Hindoo widows. She was forbidden either to pray where any of those native widows could hear her, or to speak to them on the subject of Christ or Christianity. That, said Dr. Pentecost, is what Unitarian missions mean. The Pundita attended his services in Poona, never missing a meeting for six weeks.

One evening, in a testimony meeting, she surprised everybody by standing up and saying she wanted to bear her testimony to the goodness and grace of God. She subsequently wrote a letter to Dr. Pentecost, stating that up to that time she had not had peace of soul, but on such and such a night at the meeting she was led to see that Jesus Christ is the Son of God, and that his death was for the expiation of human sin. She had cast herself on him as the Saviour, and since then peace had ruled in her soul, and she now confessed him as her Redeemer and the Redeemer of the world. If nothing else had been accomplished by his mission than that this brightest among all the women of India should have been led clearly into the knowledge of Jesus Christ and of salvation, it might have been ample compensation, Dr. Pentecost said, for all these months of labor.—N. Y. Witness.

THE following story is told of the Rev. Dr. Inglis, of Aneityum, who died a few months ago. He was asked to make a speech before the General Assembly of the Free Church of Scotland, and was told to be brief. He said: "Fathers and brethren, we are told that missionaries should content themselves with stating facts, and leave the church to draw the inference. I wish to bring three facts to your notice. First, I place on your table," suiting the action to the word, "the Shorter Catechism translated into the language of Aneityum. Second, I place on your table also 'Pilgrim's Progress' translated into the language of Aneityum."

Then taking into his hands a large volume, while he looked longingly on the pages that had cost him years of toil, he laid it on the table and said: "Third, I place on your table the Holy Scriptures, Old and New Testaments, translated into the language of Aneityum, and now leave the church to draw the inference," and sat down amid a storm of applause.—Evan. Mess.

EVERY impulse and stroke of missionary power on earth is from the heart of Christ. He spreads his net and gathers of every kind, and lo! the burden of the sea is not only fishes, but fishermen, who go and gather and come again. He touches nations, and there arises a brotherhood, not only civilized by his light, but sanctified by his love.—Ex.

WAITING.

The Lord shall come; the promise nears,
Look up, ye saints, and dry your tears;
Why should you weep, why should you sigh,
When your Redeemer draweth nigh?
E'en while with grief your bosom heaves,
The fig tree putteth forth her leaves;
By this ye know that winter's o'er,
And Jesus standeth at the door.

The Lord shall come; what mean these woes?
What mean the nations' dying throes?
Men's hearts are failing them for fear,
The crisis of the world draws near;
The mountains quake, and you shall feel
The earth unto her center reel;
But blessed is he, saith the Word,
Who waiteth for his coming Lord.

THE MISSION OF THE COMFORTER.

That it should be the mission of the Holy Spirit to be both the comforter and the reprover of men is to superficial thinkers a perplexing incongruity. It is the function of a comforter to sympathize with sorrow, to sooth grief, to quiet apprehension and to inspire hope. The effect of reproof for wrong doing is to wound pride, to pain the conscience, to excite fear. "How then," the puzzled inquirer asks, "can there be comfort in reproof, that is in conviction of sin?"

Conviction viewed as a state of mind and feeling is the very opposite of comfort. It is a perception and sense of guilt often so clear and deep as to fill one's soul with shame, dismay and unutterable agony. How then can he whose function it is to produce these distressing emotions be fitly designated "the Comforter?"

If these moral tortures of the soul were the ends sought by his influence upon it this designation would be most unfitting and inexplicable. But if the production of these keenly painful experiences be necessary preludes to a man's salvation, if they be to one's spiritual nature what the sharp pangs caused by the surgeon's lancet are to the sensibilities of the man afflicted with a deadly cancer, then it may well be that in the very process which produces them the Holy Spirit is in very truth doing the work of a comforter. He is wounding not for the wound's sake but that he may heal. He is convincing the offender of his guiltiness not to punish him, but to direct his thoughts to him who was "wounded for his transgresssions." He is showing the man the vileness of his sin-stained self that he may persuade him to wash in that precious blood which "cleanses" penitent and believing sinners "from all sin." Hence to conviction for sin he adds the conviction that there is a "righteousness' provided in Christ for every man whom he makes conscious of his need of a Saviour from sin. His mission is "to convince the world of sin" and also "righteousness," which, says Stier, "is a conviction of the righteousness of grace for faith." Is he not, therefore, most truly, happily and beautifully designated "the Comforter?"

But the special sin of which the Comforter convicts the world is, says Jesus "because they believe not on me." Not that unbelief was a novelty in human experience, seeing that unbelief in God was the "root of all human sin." It is in truth "the essence of all sin of the corrupt will," and "the mother of all sinful actions." But the sin of not believing on Christ is the special type of unbelief of which the Holy Spirit seeks to convince the world. The difference between this belief in Christ and that unbelief in God which had been the characteristic of fallen humanity from the beginning, is not in essence but in magnitude; not in kind but in degree. Men had known something of God through the ages, and they had refused to believe in him because their evil hearts inclined them to the unrighteousness which he hates In Christ God made the highest, most complete manifestation of himself that human beings could comprehend. He placed himself distinctly within reach of the understandings of "the children of dust" by clothing himself in the form of a perfect, lovable, loving ideal man, who demonstrated his divine nature by words and works such as no mere mortal had ever spoken or done. And he manifested his Father's love for humanity by giving his life for its redemption. Thus every just excuse for unbelief is forestalled. Every motive for faith is furnished. Therefore, says Julius C. Hare, "if we will not come to Christ there must be some deep-rooted power of sin within us that keeps us away from him." Nothing but the love of sin and the recoil of the heart from God can prevent human faith in Christ. Hence not to believe in Christ is "the most glaring form of unbelief."

Now it is the mission of the holy Comforter to make men see and feel the blackness of this "all-embracing sin." How he fulfills this mission is shown in the events of the day of Pentecost. Peter, in his simple, direct, masterful statement of the claims which the crucified Christ had on their faith, made the guiltiness of their unbelief apparent to the reason of his hearers. The Holy Spirit wrought Peter's words into their consciences and they, "pricked in their heart," cried, "What shall we do?"

To produce this pungent sense of the sin of not believing in Christ is now as ever the function of the Comforter. Why, then, is men's sense of the guilt of that sin so slight, so evanescent, as we know it to be in Christian congregations to-day? Most surely the Comforter is ever working to produce it; but his work needs to be preceded by the presentation of the claims of Christ on human belief as it was at Pentecost by Peter. If, therefore, men's sense of the great sin of unbelief is to be deepened into pungent conviction, the church through her pulpits must vigorously, incessantly and affectionately press the claims of Christ on human faith upon the thought of the people. The Spirit always convicts when the truths which are the instruments with which he moves the conscience are earnestly pressed upon the minds of guilty men.—Northern Advocate.

HYMNS IN REVIVALS.

It is very noticeable that every genuine revival of true religion has been distinguished by an outburst of song. It was emphatically so at the time of the Reformation under Martin Luther, which was perhaps the grandest jubilee that the world has ever seen. The people, being unusually musical by nature, almost went wild in singing. New hymns were written by the score to voice the sentiment of the hour, Luther himself leading off in some of the grandest ever set to music. On the wings of these hymns the new doctrines flew over Germany, winning whole towns to the Reformed faith. They stirred the people like a trumpet-blast, so intensely and forcibly did they concentrate and promulgate vital truths. They were battle songs and rallying cries, instinct with most vigorous life, and dreaded by the enemies of the gospel more than armed hosts.

No less remarkable was the power of song in the great Methodist revival in England, in the eighteenth century, under the Wesleys. Charles Wesley's hymns did scarcely less than John Wesley's sermons to produce that mighty overturning. The walls of Methodism would never have gone up so fast had they not been built to music. The brothers threw their doctrines into such poetic shape and set them to such lively airs that they sang themselves, and so, from one end of the land to the other, the glorious fire spread. Charles wrote six thousand hymns, of which "Jesus, lover of my soul," is the acknowledged masterpiece, although "Arise, my soul, arise," has probably led to more conversions.

In the revivals of our own day, under the lead of Moody and others, everybody knows that the success of the meetings has been largely due to the songs of Sankey, Bliss, and the many who have so skilfully and soulfully co-operated in this great department of the work. Vast numbers will praise God forever that human fingers ever wrote and human voices ever sang such pieces as "Safe in the arms of Jesus," "Almost persuaded," "Brightly beams our Father's mercy," "I gave my life for thee," "Today the Saviour calls," "There is a gate that stands ajar," and "There were ninety and nine that safely lay."

It is a simple fact that countless numbers have been awakened and brought to Jesus and sweetly saved who testified that the main instrumentality was a hymn, that this did the work on their careless or hardened hearts when all other things had failed.

THINK LARGE THOUGHTS.

The inner and real life must have an atmosphere not only of pure thoughts, but also of large thoughts. Too many people, clean and conscientious, live in narrow, cramped mental quarters. The soul, made in the likeness of its Creator, craves noble ideas.

The dying poet, Heber, responding to the invitation to partake of food that had been brought him, said, "Can you not give me a great thought to refresh me?" He felt the soul hunger more than that of the body, and knew by experience the uplift and invigoration of noble ideas.

One of the many good things to be put down to the credit of the Chautauqua idea is that it broadens the field of thinking in many a home that has been narrow and cramped in its mental life.

One must learn to be resolute, putting his foot firmly down against the temptation to dwell on slights and envies and peccadillos; the habit is not only outlawed by the Sermon on the Mount, but it shrinks one's own life and puts a girdle on his growth.

A young preacher, noted for the charm and power of his oratory, was asked how it was possible, inasmuch as he was settled over a very commonplace sort of people, with an endless amount of ordinary detail to attend to.

"Before I sit down to write," he replied, "I go to some prison or hospital, to the emigrant wharves or Five Points, where I can face life as it is, and see the dreadful problem of vice and disease and death in which a sinner meets God."

In such an hour the little bickerings and petty fancies and notions of life are swept aside by the great conception of life and its relation to the eternities, and the minister can sit down to his writing inspired to do his best and noblest.

Around the table and the fireside, parents cannot be too well prepared to draw the conversation away from personalities and mere neighborhood happenings, out into the larger field of the best thoughts from the best books, or upon topics whose shores touch the great problems of the day.—Contributor.

REVIVE IT.

What? Why, out-door preaching. We do not mean in the grove temples,—out-door service is there a matter of course,—but we plead for out-door preaching in our large towns and cities. This is a time, it seems to us, for a revival of the old Wesleyan custom of preaching to the masses in places where their attendance can be secured.

The cry is heard, in all parts of the land, "The people will not come to our churches." Why this state of things exists, we care not just now to inquire; it would not be difficult to give reasons for it. The fact is unquestionable that there is a widespread neglect of public worship; but shall we then allow the unsaved multitudes to go down to perdition without an invitation to come to Christ? No! Let us have no squeamishness about the propriety of these out door gatherings. They have the highest sanction; Christ himself has set us the example. Methodism is deeply indebted to Wesley and Whitefield and others, who resolutely lifted up the gospel banner in the face of infuriated mobs and flying missiles. This heroic action exposed them to great personal peril, but they won sublime victories, raising a superstructure of evangelical Christianity which has been a blessing to millions, and shall bless generations yet unborn.

Are we worthy successors of these noble and immortal sires? have we a like spirit? dare we confront the masses, who are going down to death, with plain, unctuous gospel messages? shall the Spirit's course in us be restrained? Nay; God forbid! Let us gather in the public squares, in the streets, and wherever we can get a congregation, and there lift up the mighty Saviour; but it must be in the power of the Spirit, or it will not be effective. No formal service will do—if we attempt it, they will laugh us to scorn. The godless throngs know the [illegible] [illegible]een an anointed and unanointed a[illegible]dor. To be "instant in season and out of season" is one of the New Testament precepts. And if we follow this teaching, while we shall be careful to have our "zeal according to knowledge," we shall, in noble defiance of self, be deeply in earnest to save souls. Let us respond to the calls of the times.—Christian Standard.

PERSONALITIES.

Keep clear of personalities in general conversation. Talk of things, objects, thoughts. The smallest minds occupy themselves with personalities. Personalities must sometimes be talked, because we have to learn and find out men's characteristics for legitimate objects; but it is to be with confidential persons. Do not needlessly report ill of others. There are times when we are compelled to say, "I do not think that Bouncer is a true and honest man," but when there is no need to express an opinion, let poor Bouncer swagger away. Others will take his measure, no doubt, and save you the trouble of analyzing him and instructing them. And as far as possible dwell on the good side of human beings. There are family boards where a constant process of depreciating, assigning motives and cutting up of character goes forward. They are not pleasant places. One who is healthy does not wish to dine at a desecting table. There is evil enough in man, God knows; but it is not the mission of every young man or woman to detail or report it all. Keep the atmosphere as pure as possible, and fragrant with gentleness and charity.—John Hall, D. D.

THE DANGER OF PROSPERITY.

There comes to me quite frequently, from the distressed and bereaved, the request to be remembered in the prayers of God's people. I confess frankly that I believe those of us who are not afflicted need vastly more praying for than those who are. Some time we are going to thank God more fervently for what have been our subtractions than we do now for our additions, and learn to read every cross as a plus sign. More grace is needed to keep a prosperous man erect than one who is unprospered. It has occurred, over and over again, that a man has had to be driven out of his garden into a sand-lot and a thistle-field before he could recover his manhood and find his God again.

Like the Hebrews, we pray for quails and very likely get them, and, along with them, get something we did not pray for; and something, too, that is a good deal harder to lose than quails are to catch. "Whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth," which is another way of saying that, when the garden has become so packed with trees, and the air so clustered with blossoms, as to keep the daylight from sifting in, he cuts a swath through the midst of the garden, that we may be reminded again that there is a sky as well as a ground, and that, down upon some of the verdure that remains, rifts may be opened through which the heavenly light shall touch and play. Am I mistaken in thinking that there are some garden-plots right in our midst that have grown so rich and rank that the very verdure has come to intervene and hide between the tenants of the garden and the Lord of the garden?—

"SURELY I COME QUICKLY."

He is coming! He is coming!
There's something in the air—
A glow in yonder firmament,
As beautiful as rare—
That tells us He is coming.

There's a glory in the noon-tide,
A quaver in the breeze,
A touch of heavenly melody
Amid the forest trees,
All saying, "He is coming!"

From the restless waves of ocean
A strain, both clear and sweet,
Calls softly o'er the ramparts,
"Prepare thy Lord to meet,
For speedily he's coming!

There's a glimmer in the twilight,
And in the midnight sky
A vision, as of angel bands,
That tell us, "He is nigh,
The glorious Bridegroom's coming!"

Are our lamps all trimmed and ready
To burn with steady light
Whene'er the midnight cry shall come,
"The Bridegroom is in sight,
Behold, thy Lord is coming?"

He is coming! He is coming!
Oh, let the nations hear,
And help them to make ready now
To greet the Saviour dear
Upon his second coming.

He is coming! He is coming!
Let every heart reply,
"Yes, the Bridegroom, King, Redeemer,
Our Lord, is drawing nigh;
At last, at last he's coming!"

He is coming! He is coming!
What now has earth to give?
Our Jesus dear is all in all,
In him henceforth we live,
And joyful wait his coming.

He is coming! He is coming!
To gather up his own
To reign with him forevermore
In bliss before unknown.
We know, we know he's coming!

SEEKING AFTER GOD.

The various religions of the world are the picture of men seeking after God. The gospel is the picture of God seeking for men, to give them life and forgiveness, to make them worshipers in Spirit and in truth. When our Lord speaks of the Father as seeking such to worship him, we perhaps think of them as a class already existing, for whom God is looking. But this cannot be the meaning. He seeks them, that his finding may make them seek for him. It is men that are "a great way off" that he is looking for, that his finding them may bring them to become worshipers in Spirit and in truth. And correspondent to his seeking there is the hunger of the human heart after this seeking God. The present writer once found in a darkened cellar a potato which had sprouted and sent out shoots fifteen feet in length toward a little spark of light in the corner. It was a picture of the essential craving of the human for the divine The light was seeking it; the poor tuber answered to the search.—S. S. Times.

A CONCENTRATED BOOK.

If all the greatest excellences and most choice experiences of all the true saints should be gathered from the whole church since it has existed, and should be condensed into the focus of one book—if God, I say, should permit any most spiritual and gifted man to form and concentrate such a book—such a book would be what the Book of Psalms is, or like unto it. For in the Book of Psalms we have not the life of one of the saints only, but we have the experience of Christ himself, the head of all the saints. So that you may truly call the Book of Psalms a little Bible. Be assured that the Holy Spirit himself has written and handed down to us this Book of Psalms as a Liturgy, in the same way as a father would give a book to his children. He himself has drawn up this manual for his disciples; having collected, as it were, the lives, groans, and experiences of many thousands, whose hearts he alone sees and knows.—Luther.

ONCE FOR ALL.

A prisoner was indicted for some breach of the law. The judge who tried him had been his playmate in childhood, his comrade at school, and his companion in sin. But grace had delivered the one, the law held captive the other.

The prisoner was found guilty. Remembering his old intimacy with the judge, he expected a reprimand, or at most a light sentence. The severest sentence of the law was inflicted—a heavy fine, with alternative imprisonment. The man was poor. Sin had kept him so. To pay the fine was impossible—he must go to jail. But the judge, who wanted to show how God had pardoned him, came down from the bench, and paid the fine at once and in full.

The man was astonished, but he was free. The officers of justice, who were before against him—who were to deliver him to his doom—were in an instant for him—to protect and free him. The law's heaviest demand was met—the penalty was paid by the judge on behalf of the offender. Even such is the death of Jesus to the soul that believes in him.—Times of Refreshing.

THE WAY OF LIFE.

Every high ideal has been brought in, and gained a place for itself at the cost of the blood of a Christian martyr. The first generation set the Son of man above the son of Cæsar, perished therefor, and the world adopted their view. The poor monk Telemachus leaped into the arena, and sternly bade the gladiators cease from throttling one another. The angry crowd poured down from the benches, and tore him to pieces—but there were no more such spectacles. Howard was the laughing-stock of Europe for his crazy attempt to have convicts treated as men, and not as brutes; but before the world had done laughing the reform had come.

From the men and women who in their day were derided, mocked, accounted fools, stoned, jeered at, crucified, who despised the cross, thinking only of the glory set before them, from these the world has had its heart-hunger fed. None of them have ever intimated that pain was good. But they have sought the fullness of life. They have had faith to follow the Spirit within them which they recognized to be divine, in the fixed belief that they would not be put to intellectual confusion or to ultimate loss by so doing. Many of them have apparently passed out of sight without anything to vindicate their obstinate faith. Many have looked along the via crucis, and have feared to venture to its end. But many have found even now that that way life lies. God is love; therefore to be like him involves cost. But God is strong; therefore, to be like him is to be on the side which must win finally.

UNBROKEN PEACE.

Unbroken peace, being an inward principle is permanent; while happiness, depending on outward circumstances, is more transitory or uncertain. And we may venture the assertion that a Christian's happiness may be disturbed, and has been greatly disturbed, by many things which do not at all disturb his inward peace or joy. A man may have joy in the Lord when there is nothing else whatever to give him joy, when all other sources of gladness are cut off—when every other cistern fails. Witness the glorious, inspired words of the prophet Habakkuk: "Although the fig-tree shall not blossom, neither shall fruit be in the vines; the labor of the olive shall fail, and the fields shall yield no meat; the flock shall be cut off from the fold, and there shall be no herd in the stalls; yet will I rejoice in the Lord, I will joy in the God of my salvation." Was ever such a sentence penned by a heathen or an infidel from the foundation of the world? Witness, again, the patient man of Uz, when he was absolutely deprived of all comfort or consolation from human or earthly sources, and yet exclaimed, "The Lord gave, and the Lord hath taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord!"

The Christian, and even the holiest Christian, is subject, like other men, to the restrictions and limitations of humanity. He hungers and thirsts; he suffers physical pain; he meets with afflictions and bereavements, cares and disappointments; he is tired and tempted; he finds many occasions for sorrow and mourning, just as other men do, and he feels them just as other men feel them. But if his mind is kept fixed upon God in living faith, while these agitations may greatly affect his outward enjoyment, they cannot and do not disturb his inward rest. The cisterns of outward comfort may fail; one by one the sources of his earthly hopes and enjoyments may be cut off; prop after prop upon which he has leaned may be forced from under him; he may even be wounded in the affections of his heart, and disappointed in those he most dearly loves; the father, the mother, the brother, the sister, the wife, the husband, the friend, may be turned into an opponent or an enemy; he may be battered and bruised and scathed and peeled; but still the language of his heart is not only, "Though he slay me, yet will I trust him," but even, "I will rejoice in the Lord; I will joy in the God of my salvation." So it was with Paul. In the midst of sufferings and trials, labors and distresses, persecutions and afflictions, such as perhaps never befell any other man save him who was the God-man, the apostle could utter these words: "None of these things move me; neither count I my life dear unto myself, so that I might finish my course with joy." Outward commotions did not disturb the Sabbath-keeping of his soul. Praise the Lord, O my soul!

LETTERS.

FROM BRO. H. D. SELBY.

Notes from my Diary.

Bro. Stockman:—I left home and loved ones on July 15, arriving at Bro. Wm. B. Patch's, in Morristown, Vt., where our Conference mission tent was pitched, Saturday, the 16th, in time for supper and evening meeting. I had traveled with my team about seventy miles, costing me just fifty-five cents. Thanks be to God and his dear children along the road. How the dear Lord verifies his precious promise to us, his servants, of "an hundred-fold in this life of fathers and mothers, brothers and sisters, houses and lands." I was called upon to speak Saturday and Sunday evening also. I found the dear brethren exulting in victory, as quite a number had been converted, and new ones arose in nearly every meeting Monday evening there were twelve baptized, and Tuesday evening seven more, and a church of twenty-three members organized, with Bro. A. P. Drown as pastor. Last winter he preached the first sermon of any kind that had been preached in that neighborhood for over ten years.

I now come to the interesting (it ought to be to those having the Lord's money in their charge) portion of my notes. Do you think it is interesting to your Lord and mine? You who have means, I mean, I am talking to you now. We will find that it is in the judgment. As I had to leave Tuesday, July 19, I bade farewell to the dear brethren, and Bro. W. P. Drown, chairman of our Conference mission committee, made me take $1 00. I tried to refuse, but he insisted, and I found out afterward that he had only received $4.20 for four weeks' mission work. These people are poor and could do but little above taking care of the brethren and our horses. The collection the Sunday I was there (the last of the meeting) was only about $4.00. Bro. McLucas was there by railroad, and it takes money to go on the cars, as well as to clothe and feed our families. Bro. A. P. Drown did not receive one dollar during the meeting, and Bro. J. M. Marshall, who rendered efficient aid in the work (he holds an Official Board license for the second year), is a poor man, and he received nothing, I fear, as there is nothing in the treasury. Bro. W. P. Drown said to me, "I have no heart to ask my brethren to help me in tent work, for I have nothing to pay them with." We have two tents, but only one in the field at a time, and so many places, so many calls, and so little interest. Surely we are close to the judgment. Ho, ye rich, what will you do with your money, your mortgages. your railroad stocks, etc., when the trump of God sounds, and you are summoned to the judgment bar of God? Better use it for God now, and then hear the "Well done."

I drove to Maple Hill, Marshfield, Vt., Wednesday, July 20, having stopped Tuesday night with a dear, good Seventh day brother, at his earnest request. I wish he could see Jesus clearly, and not try to "justify himself" by the deeds of the law." I must stay with them, as it was their prayer meeting evening. We had a good meeting, and I left an appointment with them for Friday evening, July 29. Thursday, 21st, I journeyed to Vershire, and found my dear Bro. E E Aubrey, pastor of the A. C church of that place, helping a brother hay. I went with him to a prayer meeting in the evening in So. Vershire, and found several sisters out, but no brethren, as they were all busy haying. Ah, brethren, let the sisters shame you. I had a good time visiting among the dear ones and some who are not children of God, but who have large hearts, and seemed glad to see me again, and made me welcome. I want to meet them in the kingdom of God. I spoke with great liberty Sunday morning, 24th, in the neat little church, and at 2.30 P. M. I drove with Bro. Aubrey about four miles to a schoolhouse, and spoke for him there to a small company. Returning, Bro. A. spoke in the church in the evening, and I followed. My stay was all too short, and I left Friday A. M. with a sad heart, yet feeling that some were benefited by my visit and were loth to have me go. But such is our life here, with sorrowful partings; but over there no separations.

I drove to Bro. Jef. Savory's, Maple Hill, in time for meeting. Found but few out owing to a circus. The dear children, you know, (?) want to see the animals so bad. But we had a good meeting, thank the dear Lord, and I heard a number of good testimonies. Received seventy five cents. Sunday, 31st, I preached for my dear Bro. A. P. Drown at Hardwick, Vt., both morning and evening. Bro. W. P. Drown was also there and preached at 3 P. M. in the schoolhouse at Mackville, and we had a blessed meeting. Both these dear brethren are in miserable health, especially Bro. A. P. Drown. There was no collection taken, and when leaving Bro. A. P. Drown's Monday morning he tried to make me take $2.00. But I would not, as he sacrifices largely for the cause of God. I arrived at home safely Tuesday evening and found my loved ones better than when I left, for which I do thank and praise my dear heavenly Father, to whom be glory, and honor, and power, forevermore. Amen and amen. Yours humbly for the Master.

FROM ELD. JERE. HOWARD.

As I have before given you account of our Conference at Langley, S. C, I will now give you a few lines on my trip from there to middle Georgia, where I was on March 30 last and preached one night, but was attacked by la grippe so severely that I had to return home. There I remained for quite a while, in the meantime receiving several letters and postals from Bro. Carr and others to come again. They seemed to have become much interested in the way I presented the word, based on the broad platform of Bible truth, Christian union, and brotherly love.

I arrived at Milledgeville with my better half, and was met by Mr. Jackson Parker, ex-representative in the Georgia Legislature from Wilkinson Co, who was very kind in conducting us through the Lunatic Asylum, thence to Bro. Augustus Pennington's, where I was met by two Baptist ministers and a large congregation, who seemed to give me their undivided attention while I talked to them on the near coming of Jesus. Just here I will say that if any one has tracts and papers to dispose of, they can be profitably utilized by sending them to Rev. W. B. Carr, Bloodworth, Ga., and to Rev. John Davis, No. 16, C. R. R., Georgia.

I was met next day (Saturday) at the Baptist church by the pastor, W. B. Carr, who kindly opened his doors to me, and I preached to them on the absurdities of dividing Christ, 1 Cor. 1: 13. The next day (Sunday) I preached again in the church on our situation (Rom. 8: 28), followed in the afternoon by Bro. Thomas Hughes (Baptist) on the cause, Gen. 3: 9. At night I preached again in a schoolhouse to a large and attentive congregation, followed by Bro. W. B. Carr, and several came forward for prayer. On my way home, at Sparta, Ga., on Tuesday night, the 12th, I preached again to quite an attentive congregation. At the close several came forward for prayers. Providence permitting, I will be in the southern part of this State at appointments till the fourth Sunday of the present month.

Wrens, Ga., Aug 16, 1892.

FROM L. D. BURO.

Bro. Stockman:—If you will allow me a little space in THE WORLD'S CRISIS, I would like to say a word as to how the truth is prospering in this part of the province of Ontario. Having been brought into the true light of the gospel myself, I feel like telling to others that Jesus is coming again soon to speak peace unto the heathen. And his dominion shall be from sea even to sea, and from the river even to the ends of the earth. I want to say a word now by way of encouragement and good cheer to all those who are interested in the Canadian A. C. mission work that is being carried on by Elders Davis and Fairbanks. By earnest effort, self-denial, and sacrifice, they have established a permanent cause at Osnabruck Centre, built a church and a fine parsonage, and have scores of sympathizers and well wishers in the surrounding country where they have preached the Word.

All those who have given towards the support of this work can rest assured that it has been used to the best possible advantage for the salvation of the lost and the defence of the truth. I would just say now that after seeing eight souls saved and others laying aside cherished opinions and accepting the truth at Northfield, they have moved to Duff's Corners with the tent, where they will now preach the word of life. I would say in conclusion, let every child of God gird himself with renewed strength and sound the warning note that the end is near at hand Your Bro. in the Lord.

Mille Rochs, Ont.

FROM BRO. DANIEL D. PAGE.

Bro. Stockman:—I had a blessed day here in Woodstock, N. B., Sunday, Aug. 7. We baptized four happy souls in the old St. John river and six joined the church. The Lord is still at work saving some. The interest in our meetings has not dried up this summer, with all the heat, labor cares, and drive of the world. Thank the dear Lord, our church is still alive and in good working order, so it can work any part of the year, in the cold or heat, sunshine or rain, summer or winter. Some are rising for prayers nearly every week, sinners, back sliders, or some who want a deeper work of grace.

Nineteen in all have joined the church since I came here, and more are on the way. Praise the dear Lord. To him be all the glory. A few weeks ago we had fifty-three exhortations in one week evening meeting, and it was blessed to be there, to hear the old pilgrims and young converts telling the same blessed story. We had a Conference in Ludlow, Me., about sixteen miles from here, the first of July, which was a blessed season in the Lord. One backslider returned to the Lord rejoicing, one sinner was converted, and one dear brother got rid of his idol that had been binding him for many years. It was very rainy, but the people came out and filled the house, and much good was done, we trust.

There is quite a little band there now, about thirty, and I learned that it was all started by some one that gave a Methodist brother two or three copies of the blessed old Crisis. He read them and it set him to thinking and searching, and now we see the grand result of that little seed. This should encourage us to labor on and do what we can, and God will bless our efforts to scatter light, truth, and gospel salvation. The wise man says, "In the morning sow thy seed, and in the evening withhold not thine hand; for thou knowest not whether shall prosper, this or that, or whether they both shall be alike good." The psalmist says, "He that goeth forth and weepeth, bearing precious seed, shall doubtless come again with rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him." The prophet Isaiah says, "Blessed are ye that sow beside all waters." Pray for me.

FROM MRS. SUSIE F. DREW.

Dear Brn. and Srs.:—I will add my testimony to yours, although unknown to most of you. Words cannot express the sweet peace and comfort that the Holy Spirit gives to me. When I realize that the God of heaven is ever mindful of his children, my heart swells with love and adoration. His eye that never sleeps, the love that never changes, the ear that is open to every cry of distress. O the giver of every good and perfect gift is God. The promises are precious to me. I believe them all, and many by experience. O children of the living God, let us be faithful, put on the whole armor of God, and never falter, for Jesus is standing near to help us, even before we ask him. Your sister in Christ Jesus.

Salisbury Heights, N. H.

FROM MRS. P. H. LOEFLER.

Bro. Stockman:—It has been a long time since I wrote a few words for THE WORLD'S CRISIS. I am so happy to read this wonderful paper, full of good sermons, full of cheer and help for us all. Yes, the blessed Master is good to his people, and will and does help us if we only trust him with all our hearts. I long for his coming. It seems that he surely must come soon if the Scriptures are true. My only enjoyment is my religion. The churches are so popular that I do not feel at home when I go.

I am a stranger in this city, but I have one blessed Friend who comes and dwells with me. He is my all. I often wish there was some good old-fashioned meeting here. It is the truth and plain teaching of the Bible that the heart cries after. Let us pray continually that God will keep us all till he comes. May he bless and save each of the readers of this grand paper, also the dear brethren that edit it, is my prayer. Yours in Christ.

Conference Reports.

NEW YORK CONFERENCE.

The New York A. C. Conference met in annual session June 30, on the Fairport camp ground, with a fair attendance. The session was almost entirely of a business character, as the devotional services were in charge of the campmeeting committee. Bro. E. C. Cowles, one of our faithful ministers, reported by letter, being too feeble to be present. May God's children pray that he may be restored to health and sustained in the work.

Bro. Roger Sherman was received into membership on condition of taking a letter of dismissal from the Massachusetts Conference. The officers elected for the ensuing year were: President, H. H. Hickok; Vice President, Roger Sherman; Treasurer, Jeremiah Phelan; Secretary, J. J. Morris. The campmeeting committee chosen were H. H. Hickok, Roger Sherman, Allison Weeks, Jefferson Brown, and J. J. Morris.

J. J. MORRIS, Secretary.

OBITUARIES.

BICKFORD. Bro Henry A. Bickford, of Springfield, Mass., fell asleep in Jesus at the age of thirty-three years.

For more than ten years he has served the church here officially, and he has indeed been a "good and faithful servant." He leaves a wife, parents, and brothers in mourning, besides the church and a large circle of friends in the community. Although a man of clear-cut convictions, and possessing the courage of his convictions, we do not think it possible that he had an enemy in the world; and yet he has drank deeply of sorrow's cup. He is among the blessed dead, having died in the Lord. Go to thy rest, dear brother; thy sleep adds to our interest in "that blessed hope," and increases our incentives to faithfulness in service.

"Yes, his pilgrimage was shorter,
And his journey sooner done;
O how lovingly he'll greet us
When the battle shall be won

We shall soon be there, and with him
We shall join that glorious throng,
There to mingle in God's worship,
And help swell the mighty song."

Our dear brother died of typhoid fever after being confined to the bed little more than a week. His pastor was assisted in the funeral services by Rev. Mr. Swallow, of the Baptist church.

G. H WALLACE.

WAITE. In Winthrop, Me., April 24, 1892, Clinton A. Waite, aged twenty-four years.

Clinton was buoyant with life and hope, and won the good will of all with whom he associated Over-exertion to save his employer's buildings from the flames, with perhaps a little neglect to care for himself after the flames had done their work of destruction, brought on la grippe, followed by typhoid pneumonia Clinton seemed to be the stay and hope of his widowed mother for this life, and she, with two younger sons, deeply mourn his loss. He sought the Lord some few years ago, and was buried in the likeness of Christ's death. Amid earth's cares the hope was being crushed out when disease laid its fatal grasp upon him, but during the burning fever, with its pain and suffering, his exclamations were such and his words of penitence and love so earnest and sincere in his moments of consciousness, as to lead his dear mother, who watched so tenderly by his bedside, to hope that beyond earth's shadows, ills and death, they shall meet to part no more. He was brought to South Livermore, the home of his childhood, and after words of sympathy and hope by the writer, was laid beside others of the family, to wait the coming of the morn that shall break the slumbers of the dead. JESSE GAY.

LEAVITT. At Augusta, Me, April 1 1892, Etta R Leavitt, daughter of Bro. S G Rumery of Hollis, aged thirty-eight years, seven months.

The circumstances attending Sister Etta's death were very painful to Bro. R and family. They were hoping that she was gaining in physical as well as mental strength, when suddenly symptoms of disease developed, and ere her family could reach her side she had fallen in death She was brought to Hollis Center, the home of her childhood, and buried from the chapel. A large gathering of friends and neighbors showed their love and sympathy for her father, mother and sister, who so keenly feel their loss. The writer sought to comfort them with the sure word of God, and the hope that Etta would live again beyond earth's sorrows in the saints' eternal home.

JESSE GAY

PARSONS. In Benton, N. B, July 12, 1892, of inflammation of lungs, Sister Sarah T., wife of Bro. Samuel J. Parsons, aged fifty years six months.

She was born in Springfield, Mass., the daughter of Bro. David Ellinwood, late of Athol, Mass. She was converted in early life, and baptized by Eld. Geo. Burnham, and had been a faithful Christian to the end, much loved by all, and will be much missed by the church and people She leaves a husband, four brothers and three sisters, among them is Sister Gage of Worcester, Mass. Funeral services in the church at Benton. Words of comfort were spoken by the writer to a large gathering of friends, assisted by the Methodist and Presbyterian ministers DANIEL D. PAGE.

The subject of this notice had been identified with the truth for over twenty years, and had done what she could to spread the same by the means at her command. No case of need ever came to her notice without receiving assistance. The church has lost one of its mainstays, and the community at large agree in saying that a good woman has fallen. Eld. D. Bosworth preached at the funeral from Rev 4: 13 A memorial service was held at the Advent church April 3rd. Sermon from 1 Cor. 15: 57. A. S. WILLIAMS.

DODGE. At Montpelier, Vt., June 11, 1892, Blanche Morse Dodge, daughter of Eld E. N. Morse, aged twenty years, three months, five days.

Our dear Blanche leaves a devoted husband and little Bessie, aged twenty months, besides parents, brothers, and sisters, who deeply mourn. She feared not death, but it was so hard to leave her little Bessie. Malignant diphtheria did its work, and we laid her away until the morning dawns.

E. N. M.

HENCKS. In Philadelphia, Pa., July 1st, 1892, Milton F. youngest son of Mr. L. B. and Sister M. A. Hencks, in the twenty first year of his age.

Milton was a boy of no ordinary ability. He early began to demonstrate a love for reading, and his choice of books was of that class which was calculated to instruct and lead the mind in the way of righteousness. He was an example of morality, and the light and joy of the household. His early death has caused a shadow of gloom to fall upon the hearts of all that knew him. A patient and uncomplaining sufferer of nearly two years now calmly rests, awaiting the resurrection morn. He leaves to mourn a father and mother, brother and his family, his sister and her husband, also many relatives and friends by whom he was dearly beloved. The funeral services were conducted on July 5th by Elder J. D. Brown and the writer. H. T. TAYLOR.

MILLBERRY. In Salem, Mass, July 4. 1892, Charles R. Millberry, son of Bro. and Sr. James Millberry, aged twenty years, six months.

Early in the spring the subject of this notice suffered from an attack of the la grippe, which affected his lungs and ended in that fatal disease, consumption. May the God of all comfort sustain the mourning family. G. F. HAINES

TEMPERANCE.

SOME RECENT TEMPERANCE STATISTICS.

Though a student of temperance statistics, some figures I recently compiled, largely from the last census and all outside of direct temperance authorities, at first sight staggered me. Perhaps it may help to make our own readers more pronounced than ever against the saloon.

Between 1863 and 1890 the population of the United States doubled, but the use of malt liquors increased five times, and of distilled liquors fourteen times. This means for each man, woman and child among us a yearly consumption of one-half barrel of beer, 1 04 gallons spirits, and one half gallon of wine. Illinois, a little worse than the average, uses about half as much again per citizen. During the past six years Illinois has doubled her beer consumption and increased her population only 15 per cent. During the same period, with a like increase of population, Iowa has cut down her beer bill forty per cent. Dakota cut down her beer bill seventy five per cent in a single year. Each two Illinois citizens consume a barrel of beer per year; nineteen Iowans get along on the same amount. In short, prohibition beats high license nine and one-half times. High-license Chicago made away with 2,000 000 barrels of beer in 1891. It is estimated that the revenue of her 6,250 saloons is about $68,000,000 yearly.

Add together the national and state debts, you have an amount little larger than our yearly drink bill. All our silver and gold are only one-fifth greater. All the silver mines since 1848 would not pay our liquor bill for a year. All our money in actual circulation, including paper, would pay our saloon bill for a year and a half only. The city of Rockford, Ill., under $500 license had one saloon to each 730 inhabitants, and has, under $1,000 license, one to each 689, and now talks of $1 500 license. What folly! The same city had under low license one arrest to each fifty-three citizens, under high license one to forty, under no license one to 207. Beloit, under no license added to her savings' banks deposits a net gain of $38 000 in a single year. No wonder the citizens voted this spring to continue this wise policy.—Epworth Herald.

EFFECTS OF TOBACCO UPON THE YOUNG.

I have lately had several questions put to me as regards smoking by young men and youths. Especially by the latter, as they are usually very anxious to know whether smoking "stops the growth," or has any tendency to do so. . . . Yes, it has a tendency to stop the growth. How can it be otherwise when we consider the effects of tobacco on the system, especially the nervous, arterial, and venous portion thereof? In the novice tobacco speedily induces swimming of the head, damp perspiration, nausea with vomiting worse than sea-sickness, pallor of face, debility of the heart, even to fainting and relaxation of the muscles.

Once a man belonging to my ship dislocated his shoulder while boat cruising. I had no chloroform, and, muscular though I was, failed to overcome the action of the sailor's muscles and reduce the dislocation.

"Do you smoke?" I said.

Happily he did not, though most sailors do. I had a pipe lit and handed to him. In three minutes' time the muscles were flaccid enough, and the ball of the humerus went into the socket with little exertion on my part. I pitied my poor pale patient for a time, however.

Now if tobacco has this power over nerve and heart action even in a strong, hardy sailor, does it not prove that it must interfere with the nutrition of the body of a half-grown sapling of a boy? Be wise in time therefore, and do not learn a habit that tends to injure you, simply because you think it is manly.—Ex.

IN NATURE'S TEMPLES.

A vast volume of commingling praise and prayer, ascending from altars not made by human hands, vibrating along the leafy arches of temples whose architect is God, has moved and thrilled and swayed great assemblies of men, and quickened the pulses of observant seraphs, in these last few autumn days.

The reports from all our campmeetings thus far have been very inspiring. The interest and success, all around, have been quite unusually marked by special spiritual power and saving unction. A wave of revival energy seems coming in upon our people. The spirit and power of our earlier times are once more felt along the lines of our battling hosts. There is high promise of a grand rally for the proclamation of the judgment message, and the joyful tidings of redemption glory at hand.

The influence of these great gatherings cannot be measured by immediate results. They are powerful radiating centers of truth and grace. Thousands of hearts go forth from them into hundreds of communities to shed abroad new inspiration and propagate clearer and stronger views of divine things. The forces of spiritual life, requickened at these vast convocations, pulsate through all the churches. Renewed consecration and fresh baptism of heavenly power bear fruit in home work. New conceptions and convictions of inspired truth are kindled in many unsaved minds which will silently work toward personal redemption when the last echo of shout and song and supplication shall have died away from the grand auditorium, built by Jehovah and sacred to the recollection of saints. The sermons will be re-preached by the Holy Spirit to many a sinner, with conscience for a pulpit and all the moral senses for an audience, with more effect than when delivered by the human voice. The denunciations of sin and the calls of mercy speak on, plead on, when the tents are closed and the campers have departed. The silence of the old camp-grounds is audible in the hushed inner temple of many unforgiven but thoughtful minds.

The influences and convictions wrought by the campmeetings should be followed up by revival efforts in the churches, with zeal and faith and holy power. During autumn and through the coming winter our congregations ought to be a vast, continuous camp for salvation work. Let the pastors and preachers be discerning and alert in turning the tide of spiritual power, set in motion at the campmeetings, towards their own altars, into their own churches.

Alton Bay Camp.

This mother of campmeetings was a grand and rich occasion this year. The weather was fine with the exception of two days of rain, which was no detriment to the meetings. Devotional services had been held during several weeks with preaching on Sundays, before the meeting proper commenced. Those preliminary meetings were spiritual and blessed, preparing the way for the great gathering which followed.

The meeting continued twelve days; forty sermons were preached; nineteen persons were baptized; about thirty unconverted persons were at the altar for prayers, and many wanderers renewed their allegiance to the Lord Jesus. The preaching was unusually spiritual and forceful, more largely devoted to prophetical themes, the signs of our times and the immediate return of the Saviour than for many previous years. The occasion throughout was after the type of fifteen or twenty years ago. The order was the best we have ever witnessed on any large campground. There was scarcely any gossipping. From the beginning to the end the Holy Spirit pervaded the enclosure, and the presence of the Most High filled the place where his people were assembled. Frequent displays of Pentecostal fire and power crowned the persistent cries of faith with the conversion of sinners, the healing of the sick and the re-baptism of believers with heavenly unction and perfect peace.

The absence of many of the great leaders of other days was sadly felt, and tenderly referred to in several of the services. The vast congregation broke up with a general feeling that the crowning day is really at hand, and in sacredly cherished hope of reassembling on the hills of God at no very distant day.

> "When we asunder part,
> It gives us inward pain;
> But we shall still be joined in heart
> And hope to meet again."

PROF. TOTTEN'S SINGULAR ACT.

From the first we have taken but little interest in Prof. Totten's peculiar views. Not doubting that he is a man of learning and piety, his productions have seemed to us unscriptural in many respects, incoherent and inconsistent with themselves; sometimes bordering on fanaticism, and often very confusing.

His late act in disposing of his property, and the reasons given for it, confirm our previous impressions as to the condition of his mind touching the great subject which has for some time absorbed his attention. His "secret rapture" notions, not originating with him at all, are wholly without scriptural warrant, and decidedly fanatical. But were his views sound the reason he gives for making over all his effects to his Christian wife, with whom he hopes to be "reunited" in the future age, destroys itself; for she is as likely to be secretly taken away first as he is; and in that case he would need the property instead of her.

But that we may not wrongfully judge, we ask our readers to carefully consider the following, taken from the Boston Journal:

New Haven, Ct., Aug. 29. Lieut. Totten has filed in the town clerk's office here the following document for record:

"This is to certify that in return for $1 in hand this day, and her affection always in heart, the which is mutual, and with a view to prevent any misunderstanding as to my wishes, I now and in presence of witnesses make over and convey to my beloved wife, Mary Totten, all my personal effects and all my assets of any character whatsoever, to her and to hold in her name only henceforth; and this deed of gift is and shall be in lieu of any will of mine heretofore made and filed.

"And I specify that this deed takes effect now, and shall remain in force until withdrawn, and which it will never be by my hand. Should, therefore, any of the accidents of life overtake me, or should I apparently disappear all persons to whom this comes will know that what we have my wife alone owns, and may God bless her and reunite us in his own good time."

The deed is duly signed and witnessed as Lieut. Totten's act by Col. N. G. Osborn, editor of The Register, and Col. L. L. Morgan, business manager of the same paper.

Lieut. Totten when asked to explain his reason for recording this document said: "The time will come when you will hear of some person, it may be in your own family, who is gone, and no trace can be found of them. You will not know what has become of them. You will wonder, and the first you know some other person in some other family will also be missing.

"Disappearances will become common, and no one can explain them. You will see crowds of people flocking about the churches, and asking themselves what is happening, but they cannot explain the mystery. I see it all, but people will not believe the prediction, and they won't until it is brought home to them in the way I have described.

"It is just as sure to come as anything in the world, and is mostly the fulfilment of the prophecies that are laid down in the Bible."

IS IT AMONG US?

We have scarcely recovered from the terrific prevalence of the grim la grippe when another scourge, still more to be dreaded, approaches our shores. The cholera is the fear of the world. Nothing else startles the people like its deadly visitation.

The news of its terrible ravages at Hamburg has prepared the people of this country for alarming anticipations of its presence here. That the dreadful scourge is at our doors cannot be concealed. The steamer Moravia, of the Hamburg American line reached New York Aug. 31st, having had twenty-two deaths from cholera on her voyage. The steamer is now in the lower bay, and every precaution possible is being used to prevent the disease from getting loose in the city and country.

We do not believe that there is any reason for grave apprehension of the prevalence of the disease in this part of the country; but its threatening nearness is enough to induce the utmost care in diet and cleanliness. The cholera is God's judgment on intemperance and filth. It is one of the awful products of sin. Let the people repent, fear God, and live as they ought, and they will have less dread of the cholera scourge.

We subjoin the following from the latest advices:

"Hamburg, Aug. 31. No adequate idea of the situation in this plague-stricken city is furnished by the meagre and false reports of the ravages of cholera given out by the authorities.

"Yesterday's record as officially stated made it appear that the pestilence had materially abated. As a matter of fact, there were more than 800 fresh cases yesterday and 300 deaths. Tonight's task for the grave diggers numbers 320 corpses. The people realize now that they have been deceived, and a panic is the result.

"There has been a startling change for the worse in the last forty-eight hours. A sudden blight has fallen upon the city. Most places of business were closed today. Shops that tried to do business were open a few hours only. Most of the hotels are empty. Some of them are closed. All public gatherings have been prohibited by the police.

"New York, Aug. 31. President Harrison was greatly concerned over the news from quarantine that the steamship Moravia had arrived, having had twenty-two deaths from cholera during the voyage from Hamburg.

"Ex Senator Spooner of Wisconsin was with him when the news was received, discussing the Republican situation in the northwestern states. Politics was immediately dropped. The President expressed the keenest interest when a dispatch giving the details was read by a Herald reporter, and his face was grave to a marked degree, and he said to the reporter: 'It is my duty to abandon all other considerations and return immediately to Washington. I have had the situation before my mind. I thought of it seriously on my way from Loon Lake. I have given the subject much thought. I am convinced that all the powers which the general government have conferred are being exercised. The only absolute safety though, in my opinion, is entire non-intercourse with the infected countries. There is no power in the general government, however, to declare such an act. I shall continue to give the situation the gravest consideration, and all suggestions will be promptly acted upon.'"

READY FOR EVANGELISTIC WORK.

After a protracted and most successful pastorate with the church in Lynn Bro. Sederquist has concluded to devote himself exclusively to evangelistic work. He will take leave of his Lynn flock Sunday, September 4th.

Bro. Sederquist has done a great work in Lynn; having baptized more than one hundred persons, and largely increased both the church and congregation. He is greatly beloved by all his people, and highly respected throughout the city.

In every fibre of his body and element of his mind Eld. Geo. Sederquist is an evangelist—"To the manor born." His fine vocal powers, his deep warm sympathy, his rare gift of persuasion, his ready adaptation of himself to all classes, and his exhaustless pathos,—all these combine to render him an evangelistic apostle. And these words of ours will not flatter him, for we have never known a man to whose happiness and courage the good will and sympathy of his brethren was more necessary. May the Great Shepherd take care of the Lynn church; and may abundant success attend their retiring pastor in his newly chosen field—the field of "all the world."

Bro. S. is now open to calls for evangelistic services; and we have no doubt he will have all he can attend to.

PASTOR RESIGNS.

We are informed that Bro. Burch has closed his labors at New Bedford, and accepted a call to the pastorate of the church in Whitman, Mass.

During his long pastorate at New Bedford Bro. Burch has proved himself an able preacher and a faithful, discreet and successful pastor; nor have his ministerial activities been confined to his own parish; he has done a large amount of efficient tent and missionary work in various places, and rendered excellent services in protracted meetings, S. S. Conventions, etc. Bro. B. is a zealous and indefatigable gospel worker, no less than an effective and gifted preacher. We congratulate the church at Whitman.

WHO IS AN ANARCHIST?

JAMES COBBEL.

Permit me to say a few words on this important subject, as there is considerable being said at present on this subject. Webster says an anarchist is "the author of anarchy, one who excites revolt." An anarchist is "an anarch, one who excites revolt, or promotes disorder in a state." It does seem to me that any one can tell from these definitions who are anarchists. Take the present trouble at Homestead. Who were the anarchists there? Shall we say they were Carnegie & Co., who made preparations as though they intended to have war, then hired a band of armed men and sent them there in an armor plated vessel to fire on the workmen? Or shall we say they were the workmen who were only demanding justice, as the investigations have shown? Shall men, because they have their millions, override the law and force men to work for them at starvation wages, and then brand their workmen as anarchists because they refuse. Shall we as Christians sustain a government that will allow corporations to contract the currency, and thereby compel men to work for starvation wages, so that hunger drives them to crime, and then brand them as anarchists?

This is the state of affairs in this and other governments. God will not permit it to remain so always. If a man is an anarchist because he will fight for his home which God has given him, then the A. C. church at Elba, Ill., has one for its elder in the person of the writer. I regard these things as a sign of the last days, yet as they are transpiring we should consider well who caused the revolt or promoted the disorder. I have great fears that rich men will not receive a just judgment until the Judge of all judges renders his judgment.

FROM THE CONGO.

Recent letters inform us that our missionaries arrived on the Congo June 26th, after a pleasant voyage, and were in excellent health. They are now busy in getting their station established. We ask the friends of missions to pray for the heroic band, that they may be preserved from perils and prospered in their work. F. L. PIPER.

HAVE YOU RENEWED YOUR SUBSCRIPTION?

About the middle of July we prepared a statement and sent it to each subscriber of THE WORLD'S CRISIS who was in arrears on his subscription, with a request for an early remittance of the amount indicated by the statement. We are pleased to state that a few have very kindly and promptly responded to the statement, by remitting for the arrearages, and also for one year advanced payment. For this we feel very grateful, and hereby tender to them the thanks of the Society.

We regret however to say that the majority of those to whom statements were sent have not been heard from as yet. We hope to hear from many of them before the close of the present month. Shall we?

We would earnestly request all who are in arrears for two years or more to send in their subscription before Oct. 1st, and save us the unpleasant duty of stopping their papers at that time. Please let everybody who has not already done so make a special effort to send in his subscription before the end of the present fiscal year which closes Sept. 30th. MANAGER.

ALTON BAY CAMPMEETING.

L. BOUTELLE.

Bro. Stockman:—I have returned from my thirtieth annual visit to the camp ground of the Second Adventists at Alton Bay. This very ground has been made sacred by being trodden by so many holy men expecting to live to see the King in his beauty and the ushering in of that glory which is to fill the whole earth. And we have had a most excellent meeting, with demonstrations of divine favor. Joys and sorrows are inter mixed with intensity under the shadow of these trees. Here we greet the old lovers of Jesus and his soon appearing, those that have been here yearly for more than a quarter of a century. The shake of the hand is sweeter every time you take it, and the God-bless-you's are more heartfelt than ever before. The ministry of God are more closely united at every reunion, growing up into Christ, not to be divided nor to be decoyed to leave the brotherhood of waiting ones to whom is committed this last message, "Behold he cometh with clouds, and every eye shall see him." But when we look at the depletion of the ministry, whose voices have cheered us with the gospel hope of soon realizing our expectations, it creates a sad and sorrowful sensation.

Bro. J. Couch has stood long here and echoed so faithfully the prophetic warnings of all the prophets, piloting us from the first Adam to the second coming of the second Adam, and led us out by unmistakable utterances to where "time shall be no longer," and the coming of the Lord must be had. His voice, swaying the multitude with convincing power, will be heard no more in this sacred place, but the prophecy and his memory liveth and still speaks. So it is also with Brn. Brewer, Simpson, Wheeler, and others, whose words of courage and comfort have done us a sight of good on our pilgrimage. We miss them with sorrow and weeping, not to be made good till we meet in the eternal life country. They sleep sweetly in Jesus, waiting only a moment for the last trump to sound. We'll greet them there, and together shout in the coming glory. But we have some older brethren left, and a goodly number of young ministers that the Lord has called into the field of labor. A large number are here at this meeting, showing themselves workmen that need not be ashamed. If they take heed to themselves, and to the doctrine, and continue therein, hearing the Lord's voice and working with him, they will feed the church of God with bread from heaven, which is due in these last days of trial and peril. So in the strength of the Lord of hosts we are encouraged amid all the reverses and changes we shall be called to pass through.

The preaching at this meeting has been abundant, appropriate, beneficial to the cause, and of great good to our people. The importance of the hope, the only gospel hope, and the soon coming of our Lord were the continued themes, with a mighty effort to save the unbelieving. Some were made to feel the necessity of attending to it personally, and were hopefully converted. The prayer meetings were excellent and soul-reviving to the weary pilgrim. The Lowell, Lawrence, and Portsmouth chapels, beside the large tabernacle, held two prayer meetings daily, at 9 A. M. and 2 P. M. They commenced on a high key, and they were revival meetings, and grew better till the last. We had some rainy days, very wet, but it only gave a chance to utilize the gifts and labor of the ministry, and abundant time for testimony, prayer, and song, which was readily improved by those waiting for their coming Lord, and fitting them for further self-denial and campaign work during the little time allotted us before being called to everlasting rest.

The officials have been unwearied in their duties and responsibilities to make the meeting a success, and a comfort to all who attended. And they succeeded in keeping the machinery running in good order, to please the Lord and the flock of God whom they serve. I think they faithfully accomplished their purpose. It has been one of the largest and best campmeetings we have had at the Bay for a number of years. There seems to be a feeling that we were near the judgment of the great day, and there was a necessary sharpening up in faith and obedience so as to be fitted for the last work God has for us to do, as well as to be ready for his blessed coming, that he may say "Come, ye blessed of my Father."

THE MENDOTA MEETING.

Bro. Stockman:—"The Western meeting at Mendota, Ill., was a great success. We have decided to move the Hope to that point, and to open a school there—the "Wait Seminary"—in the College building, their property being now turned over to the Western Society. About sixty ministers were at the meeting, and more Western Adventists than ever gathered at one time.

The Mendota Reporter says: "The campmeeting of the Western Advent church in our city commenced last Saturday in Seminary park, and is still in progress, having been a very spirited meeting so far. The grounds were crowded every day. The beautiful grounds are covered with tents and afford an interesting spectacle. The meeting was opened last Saturday night with a stirring sermon by Elder H. Capers, from Louisiana, on "Confession." Dr. W. J. Hobbs, from Minneapolis, a most eloquent speaker, delivered a scholarly discourse at eleven o'clock A. M., Sunday morning, and Elder John A. Cargile from Alabama, the Southern Evangelist, held a large congregation one hour and a quarter. Then there were quite a number of others whose names we did not get, all good speakers, earnest in their cause. A very successful meeting was held last Wednesday night, being the installation and consecration of ministers, at which occasion Rev. Wm. Sheldon, of Wisconsin, gave a fine sermon, and Rev. F. A. Baker, of Minnesota, made an excellent address. Their testimony meetings are remarkable; everybody preaches in them; then their singing is good, though new to most of us. The meeting to-morrow will last all day from 6 A. M. to 10 P. M. and the people are earnestly requested to attend.

There are sixty ministers and forty seven delegates present representing nineteen conferences from Illinois, Wisconsin, Kansas, Nebraska, Missouri, North and South Carolina, Tennessee, Alabama, Georgia, Arkansas, Texas, Louisiana, West Virginia, Michigan, Minnesota, Indiana and Ohio, besides a number of lay members from the adjoining states.

At the meeting of the Publication Society last week it was decided to remove their church paper Our Hope from Minneapolis to Mendota.

A resolution was also passed to open a school here. This will, doubtless, bring a number of families, besides thousands of dollars to our city. They have the ability and can build up a first class school. The Adventists are quiet and desirable citizens, and any additions to our population from this source will be very acceptable."

The meeting increased in interest to the last, and a more orderly campmeeting we never saw. Having been appointed as a delegate from our Western Publishing Society to the Eastern Society meeting, I expect to spend a short time in the East soon. But I am not sent to beg funds from the Eastern treasury for the Hope. We hope to get along without another lift. Any wishing a visit may address me in care of Crisis. I may come before your meeting is due. WM. SHELDON.

GIVING.

Giving is a subject which is delicately touched upon by many ministers. The man of the world has to pay cash down for serving Satan; cigars, wines, theatres, betting, gambling, etc., cost a great deal more than a tenth of the man's income in very many cases. They don't get much worldly pleasure without paying for it, and they give cheerfully. The rum shop, tobacco store, dance house, and gambling hole are not run on the give-as-you-please plan. In fact, no business would pay done that way, and one reason why the church is so crippled today is because the financial part is on such poor foundation. A few have to bear the burden of paying the bills, while the rest ease their consciences by dropping a few coppers into the box once in a while. A man who could spend freely while serving the world, the flesh, and the devil, has not a bit of excuse for not being able to help in the Lord's way after he starts that way.

People live according to the gospel rule serving the devil, giving tithes, quarters, halves, and sometimes all they have buying sin. But statistics show that Christians on an average do not give over three per cent. of their income to help along the work of the Master. Adventists do as well in proportion, probably, as others, but that is not enough. Three per cent is not enough. It costs more than that to keep up what is needed in the way of churches, preachers, missions, tracts, etc. Jesus says, "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me. For what is a man profited, if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" I know that a majority of Christians could give more and would do more if they had counsel on this line. Christ and the apostles told the people plainly their duties in maintaining the ministry. No great head way can be made by churches, missions, or by our publishing departments without funds in a steady stream to keep things running. This is not a local question, but one that concerns the welfare and growth of every Christian society in the country. And it will take more than one preacher to stir the matter. Many should speak their convictions, and much good will result.

CHURCH TREASURER

ACKNOWLEDGMENT.

I wish to acknowledge through your paper the receipt of several bundles of papers and tracts sent me by Bro. G. E. Osklin, of New York, Sr. Mary Plumb, of Cincinnati, Ohio, and Bro. J. Lenfest, of Presque Isle, Me., and some from unknown friends. To all we extend our thanks. May the Lord bless all with eternal life in the coming kingdom. In my report of July 27th, Chattannooga Co., Ga., should have read Chattooga Co., Ga.

SECULAR NEWS.

FOREIGN.

Tangier, Sept. 1. The Spanish doctors attending the soldiers wounded in the recent engagement between the Sultan's troops and the rebel Anghera tribes men state that the Moorish army sustained heavy losses in all its fights with the rebels.

The leader of the rebels has notified the commander of the Sultan's forces that he must behead a large number of soldiers who have fallen into his hands, unless the lives of the captured Angheras are spared.

Vienna, Sept. 1. It is reported from Merv that 2000 Afghans were killed in the last battle with the revolting Hagaras.

London, Sept. 1. The Vienna correspondent of the Telegraph says that the Pope has determined to leave nothing undone to induce Mr. Gladstone to extend to France and Russia the same moral support and promise of material help as Italy and Germany received from Lord Salisbury. Whenever war is imminent the Pope will propose that he arbitrate. If his proposal be rejected he will declare the Dreibund to be opposed to the church.

Brussels, Sept. 1. A terrific explosion of fire damp occurred to day in the Agraffe coal mine in Hainaut. The explosion caused a heavy coal fall that blocked the galleries of the mine and entombed many miners. Twenty-five bodies have been recovered, and eight men alive, though very seriously injured, have been taken from the mine. Nearly all the men at work have been accounted for, and some escaped uninjured.

Bombay, Sept. 1. A battery of artillery, with three regiments of infantry and half a regiment of cavalry, have been ordered to the frontier, to compel the Ameer of Afghanistan to withdraw the garrison and officials whom he has installed at Wana, against the protests of the government of British India. The obstinacy of the Ameer under the circumstances is considered an indication that Russian influences are sapping his fidelity to Great Britain.

DOMESTIC.

Steubenville, O., Sept. 1. John Skinner, who worked for Farmer George Feetner, about two miles from this place, on last Tuesday night shot and killed his employer. Then, going up stairs, he fatally shot Mrs. Feetner, who was sick in bed with typhoid fever, and Mr. Feetner's mother, a feeble old lady. He then placed his revolver to his own head and ended his existence. Skinner and Feetner had quarrelled about money due the former, who some time ago remarked that he was going to have that money or there would be trouble. Skinner's time was up yesterday, and Feetner wanted him to leave. This led to the shooting. The fearful crime was not discovered until this morning, when a neighbor passing the house was horrified to see the dead bodies of the two men in the yard. Going into the house he found Mr. Feetner's mother dead and Mrs. Feetner barely alive.

New York, Sept. 1. The fast mail, No. 21, on the New York Central railroad, popularly known as "the newspaper train," ran into the open draw at Wappinger creek, south of New Hamburgh, at 6:18 A. M. to-day. The train, which was in charge of Conductor William Todd, was scheduled to make no stop before Poughkeepsie. It slowed down at stations sufficiently to permit bundles of newspapers to be thrown out.

East Pepperell, Sept. 1. Pepperell was the scene of a shocking wife murder and attempted suicide this morning. About five o'clock William Lively, a farmer, thirty-eight years old, shot his wife Francena, aged thirty-seven, during a quarrel, killing her almost instantly. After notifying neighbors, Lively returned to the house and turned the pistol on himself, putting a bullet into his head just behind his right ear. Physicians think his chances for recovery are about even.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 1. "I felt that it was my duty to be here." This was the way in which President Harrison expressed his view of the demands of the situation at the conference held at the White House this morning regarding the threatened invasion of cholera. He had hardly reached the White House and breakfasted before the leading officials interested in fighting the plague were summoned to join him. Secretary Charles Foster, Assistant Secretary Spaulding and Dr. Walter Wyman supervising surgeon general, represented the treasury department, which has most of the practical work to do in enforcing the quarantine regulations.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 1. There has been considerable criticism, in official circles, of the captain of the Moravia for daring to put his vessel so far into New York harbor when he knew he recently had cholera aboard. There was some talk of punishing him, but no one was prepared to show the law under which he could be prosecuted. Consul Burke, at Hamburg, was also censured for giving the vessel a clean bill of health, and investigation of his conduct is probable.

CORRESPONDENCE.

WHEN JESUS COMES.

S. D DANIELS

When Jesus comes we'll all go home,
No more this weary earth to roam;
We'll leave this wicked world behind,
To God's consuming fires consigned.

On wings of faith toward heaven we'll fly,
To meet our Saviour in the sky;
We'll rise above the fiery void,
Safe in the chambers of our God.

Until the indignation's past,
The curse removed, earth once more blest;
Redemption's work is now complete,
And heaven and earth together meet.

O glorious day for which we wait;
Full consecration let us make,
And live in expectation sweet,
That soon our joys will be complete.

O come, dear Saviour, quickly come,
For thee the whole creation groans;
The church for thee has waited long,
When shall we hail the glorious morn?

When that illustrious day shall dawn,
And all thy saints are gathered home,
Lord, let me in thine image shine,
And all the glory shall be thine.

Naugatuck, Conn.

THE RESURRECTION MORNING.

PROF. W. K. BURR.

On some bright and glorious morning that day of days shall dawn upon this world of ours, and then will all the shadows flee away. Blessed hope! undying as it is, the hope of the resurrection! We are assured by the Apostle John that there shall be a new heaven and a new earth. Precious promises, fragrant with the love of Jesus. O to think on some delightful morning we shall feel firm beneath our feet the green immortal ground on which we now tread, and that too beyond death and the grave. On that gladsome morning we shall know the first throb of that perfect life, unfettered by this mortal mould, broke loose as we then shall be from this prison-house of clay. Our minds, too, will continually develop and be filled with the fullness of joy and the pleasures forevermore.

That morning too will never end. There shall be no night there. It will be free from all floating clouds and stormy weather. Behind us, away in the distance, will be the heart-aches and the fever, the rock waste and the mystic river. But before us—

"——everlasting Spring abides,
And never withering flowers."

What joy unspeakable! Pleasures that no pen can find words sufficiently strong in meaning to fully describe. O the emotions that fill our hearts with overwhelming delight! How they expand with the great wealth of desire that burns within our breasts, and that too with unending vigor in ceaseless rythms of joy and gladness. Often here in anticipation we listen to the anthems sung by angel choirs to the music of the spheres; we stand enraptured, our souls vibrating with an eternal calm, deep and full, while beside the crystal sea ten thousand voices, rich and melodious, sing in strains most sweet and tender the exultant shouts of victory,—"Hosanna to the Lamb of God."

O what enjoyments we see on every hand, —rest beyond description; health incomparable and unspeakable; freed from the periodic portions and wretched repetitions that continually clog poor mortals in this transient chequered vale. There too on that blest morning we shall behold activity that knows no bound, and then the inhabitants never get tired. They are unhampered with this distempered body and this distempered mind, and now we watch them basking in the golden sunlight of the glad evermore. While here—

"We speak of the realms of the blest,
Of that country so bright and so fair;
And oft are its glories confessed,
But what must it be to be there?"

We stand so often amid wonder and conjecture; but on the dawning of that great day it will be one grand and glorious reality. It will be very different from our present earth-life. Everything will be changed. The very earth itself will be swallowed up in the brightness and beauty of heaven. Even the new Jerusalem will be here, with its gates of pearl, and walls of flashing gems, and towers of snowy whiteness. On this side of that blissful morning we wonder what our new life will be on the other side, and how shall we breathe the pure atmosphere filled with eternal light? Will our lung power be increased? And then how shall we give vent to our feelings? Will we still have the same old earthly difficulty of expressing our ideas that we now experience? This we know; words will have a deeper significance and be much richer in meaning then than now. Here at times we feel the poverty of language. Often when we try to describe the longings of the soul, or try to make known all that we desire or wish, or hope, or feel, it is then that our very tears mingle with our blood, and we realize that words are not the highest forms of expression. But it will be so very different on the new earth in the resurrection morning. Then—

"We shall know as we are known,
Nevermore to walk alone."

Ever glorious and eternal hope! Anything like a perhaps or a may be will not be found. All uncertainty will have passed away, and with it the fearful forebodings and gloom that overshadowed us in our wanderings here below. Sometimes even now we hear voices from the thither shore, and in the weird domain of the imagination we often fancy we see the boatman plying the oar to carry some lonely pilgrim over the stormy billows of the dark sea. O could we just push aside the veil and take a look into the boundless stretches of eternity, no doubt we would all have greater longings for the eternal home.

Many of us already are going down the hillside, and the western slope will soon disappear in the evening twilight. Is it any wonder then, if we should occasionally get a little homesick? Who could blame us if we in our longings for a better country should so often peer through the lattice, and push aside the fog and mist that hides the future from our sight to see if there are any signs of the coming of our Lord? The blessed Saviour said while here on earth, "As the lightning cometh from the east, and shineth even unto the west, so also shall the coming of the Son of man be." Consequently we need not pause to wonder why the dead are buried with their heads lying towards the west. They are only sleeping, waiting till the Lord shall come from the east, so that at the sounding of the last trump they may arise and stand face to face with the Redeemer.

Who does not then long to be ready for the dawning of the resurrection? O glorious morning of mornings speed on! O haste thy coming sweet day of peaceful rest! Surely no one need think it strange if we at times should become a little restless in this ever changing world! Amid life's trials how often we sigh, How long, O Lord, how long! Still hope with unwearying finger ever points to the coming of that great day, and consequently we patiently wait the ushering in of the glad resurrection morning.

Believe me when I say that heaven is not so far away as we sometimes are inclined to think. No, it is around and about us here. The hither shore is in sight of the heavenly, and day by day we get a little nearer home. It is true our songs are frequently mingled with tears, and then they have a somewhat death-like cadence. But amid it all we catch glimpses from the shores of immortal bloom, and then over the graves of loved ones, when our hearts are filled with deepest grief, we are wont to sing—

"Spring shall soon visit the mouldering corn,
Day shall soon dawn on the night of the grave;
On the cold cheek of death smiles and roses
are blending,
And beauty immortal awakes from the tomb."

Yes, lonely pilgrims, waiting and watching. It will not be so very long. The appearing of the Lord draweth nigh. O that we may all be ready for that great morning, the ushering in of the eternal day! Soon the long night of darkness will depart, and the everlasting morning of bliss will then dawn upon the world. The time may be much nearer than we are inclined to think. The Lord calls upon us all to be ready. Voices from out the past—the loved ones departed—urges us onward. O it seems to me as if we were only all doing our duty it would not be very long till the end would come. Soon would we see the light of the approaching millennium come flashing along the horizon, while ten thousand times ten thousand and thousands of voices would join in the songs of triumph—a seven-fold chorus of hallelujahs and harping symphonies. Even the very bones of God's children that sleep in the dust would grow restless, and sigh for those happy reunions when Christ would come again. The time would indeed be short. Soon would be heard the long drawn note of the last trump, and the exultant shout of the saved would go up, "The Lord is come"

THE WORD OF LIFE.

H. R. BURSELL.

"Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path." Ps. 119:105

After deliverance out of the thraldom and oblivion of sin and self, our lives reflect, as did David's, the new glimpse, and then the dawn of divine light. Whence its source? Ah! it is the Word of Life. David's soul responded, and gave vent to joyful utterance. It overflowed with praise. Thus his life became a song. So may ours.

The Word, the revelation of God to man, radiates with glorious light. In the pages of that blessed volume of truth there are promises recorded that shine out most vividly, greatly rejoicing the hearts of the children of men, and filling them with foretastes of the joy unspeakable and full of glory. Here is the peace that passes understanding. Oh, cling to the priceless boon.

It is not the bee's touching on the flowers that gathers the honey, but her abiding for a time upon them and drawing out the sweet. It is not he that reads most, but he that meditates most on divine truth, that will prove the choicest, strongest Christian.

"THE SIMPLICITY THAT IS IN CHRIST."

I. I. LESLIE.

These are the concluding words of 2 Cor. 11:3. The entire verse reads: "But I fear lest by any means, as the serpent beguiled Eve through his subtilty, so your minds should be corrupted from the simplicity that is in Christ." Paul dealt plainly with the church at Corinth. Among all the churches which he and the other apostles were instrumental in raising up, no one perhaps needed so much watching over and correcting as this church. Here again he expresses his fear in regard to it. And what was his fear? It was that the church might be beguiled, as Eve was, through the subtilty of the serpent, and be corrupted from the simplicity that was in Christ. We are led to conclude that up to that time the church at Corinth had not been corrupted in this respect, that thus far its faith and worship were in the simplicity of Christ. But it seems that the apostle saw the danger of corruption and apostasy that the church might be plunged into through the wiles of Satan.

Paul feared that that simple worship which he, under the direction of the Holy Spirit, had established among them would be abandoned by them for one in which there would be none of the influence of the Holy Ghost; also that their simple faith in Christ would become a dead belief, and a form of godliness would take the place of vital piety. This must have been his fear. What is meant by the expression, "The simplicity that is in Christ," is an interesting inquiry. When we go back to the life of our Saviour while here, we behold a simplicity that is most remarkable. His manner of living, his teachings, how simple and plain! No luxury, no ostentation, no making himself great in the estimation of the rich and learned; no seeking public favor by catering to the public taste, no Jewish traditions, no Roman or Grecian philosophy in his preaching. The common people heard him and understood him.

When he commissioned his apostles to go and preach his gospel, it was to preach it as he had preached it, and to live as he had lived. They followed him closely, both in their preaching and in their lives. They imitated him in their simplicity, and the churches which they established were upon the same simple basis of faith, hope, and love, Christ being the pattern for all to follow. While the apostolic preaching and worship continued the simplicity of Christ was manifest, and the churches stood fast in the faith and work of saving men. But the time came which Paul anticipated and feared. Satan did as in the garden of Eden, beguile the churches, and brought in a ceremonial, idolatrous worship, knowing that the Spirit of God could not be in such. The simplicity in Christ, the simplicity in the gospel, the simplicity in living disappeared almost universally, and the corrupt thing which the apostle mentioned took the place of the pure religion of Christ. The simplicity that there was in Christ was imitated by only a few, and they were persecuted unto death.

That apostasy from the simplicity that is in Christ still continues, and is seen everywhere where a form of religion is kept up without the Spirit of God. And much of this sort of religion there is now in the world. Satan did as Paul feared he would, not only in the church at Corinth, but he has corrupted nearly the entire church with a spurious faith and worship. What do we see today? Where shall we look among the many sects for the simplicity there is in Christ? If we could visit the places of worship of all denominations, how many congregations should we find worshipping in the simplicity of Christ and having his gospel preached to them in its purity? How many missionaries, sent out by the various sects, carry only the gospel of Christ to the perishing heathen, and establish among them the true worship of God, as did the apostles at the beginning? There is so much of human direction, instead of divine; so little for the glory of God, and so much for the glory of men, even where God's true people are found. The grain is with the chaff, but the chaff often hides it. But the winnowing will come, and the separation will take place.

We may not suppose that all in the church at Corinth apostatized, became proud, and lost their simplicity in Christ; nor do we conclude that in the churches of today there are none who fully follow him in beautiful simplicity of faith and worship. There may be in every place where the worship is worldly and without the Holy Spirit some who in their hearts humbly worship the Lord, uninfluenced by the parade of forms and ceremonies. Such God knows and blesses. There is no true faith and worship where the eye is occupied with objects made to render the worship attractive and pleasing. Whatever takes the mind from the true object of worship makes the worship idolatrous and sinful. The simplicity that is in Christ should control us in all things. Not to be controlled by this is to be unlike Christ, who expects that his followers will imitate him. As there was idolatry in the ancient church, so there is in the modern. Let us have the simplicity that there is in Christ.

SPREAD OF INFIDELITY.

Infidelity is making alarming advance in all directions. It is coming upon us like a flood tide, or more like a cyclone, tearing away the very foundations of the theological institutions. Bishop Ryles says: "It is vain to shut our eyes to the fact that a general miasma of unbelief seems to fill the air in this day. Our Lord's words are verified, 'When the Son of man cometh shall he find faith on earth?' Archbishop Tait said, in dying words, 'The age is becoming skeptical.' Archbishop Thompson said, 'The infidelity of the day is not only aggressive, it is omnipresent. It is found in the club and in the drawing-room. It works in magazines, newspapers and novels.' A great northern divine told the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland last June, 'Agnosticism and Materialism have become the fashion. The great reviews and magazines are full of it. Young misses fresh from school, and who are not sound on the multiplication table, will lisp to you that they are not sound in the faith. Young boys will tell you that they go in for agnosticism, a word of which they hardly know the meaning, and which they would find it hard to spell."

In The Watchword, April, 1892, Dr. A. J. Gordon says: "The unbelief of the day is truly alarming." Such is the progress of these last days, as foretold in the Bible. These are like the days of Noah M. G.

WITHIN THE FOLD.

MRS. MORTON.

O what shall my aspirations be
When the gate of pearl is opened for me;
When first I step on the pavement of gold,
And know I am safe within thy fold?

When I see the crystal river flow,
The garnished walls bathed in rainbow glow,
Then, dear Lord, I shall fully know
What it is to be within thy fold.

Hearing the music, soft and sweet,
Knowing joy of thy witnesses is complete,
Hear the story of thy love there told;
How little I knew about thy fold.

Soon earthly things rolled as a scroll,
Then new earth's moon, as burnished gold,
And new earth's sun, shining seven fold;
Dear Lord, the glory of thy fold!

"IS CHRIST DIVIDED?" 1 COR. 1:13.

JERE. HOWARD.

In contemplating our situation, as a people, on the "old land-marks," I am led to the all-absorbing conclusion that the professed Christian world, as a general rule, is groping in darkness, and creeds are more adhered to than the plain, practical teachings of our blessed Lord. When he came to rescue us from under the law he found the professed Christian world divided into sects and creeds, among which were the self-righteous Pharisees, who could thank God that they were not as other men. But Jesus' teaching is too plain to be misunderstood, that his mission was to rear the standard and colors under which we must enlist and march, speaking the same thing. "For if a man speak not according to this word, it is because there is no light in him." Jesus came to bring us out from under the bondage of sects and creeds, and to make us free in him who said, "I am the way, the truth and the life; by me if any man enter in he shall be saved. He is the rock upon which the church is built, and the gates of hell will not prevail against it.

When Jesus sent out his apostles he gave them no authority to formulate creeds, to bind men and women, but to declare them free in the Son. "I am the good shepherd, and know my sheep, and am known of mine. As the Father knoweth me, even so know I the Father; and I lay down my life for the sheep. And other sheep I have which are not of this fold; them also I must bring, and they shall hear my voice, and there shall be one fold, and one shepherd." John 10:14—16. God pity those in servitude who will not hear that voice that has said, "Him that cometh unto me I will in no wise cast out." "Now I beseech you, brethren, by the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye all speak the same thing, and that there be no divisions among you, but that ye be perfectly joined together in the same mind, and in the same judgment." 1 Cor. 1:10.

For though I be absent in the flesh, yet am I with you in the spirit, joying and beholding your order, and the steadfastness of your faith in Christ. As ye have therefore received Christ Jesus the Lord, so walk ye in him. Beware lest any man spoil you through philosophy and vain deceit, after the tradition of men, after the rudiments of the world, and not after Christ." Col. 2:5, 6, 8. "Endeavoring to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace. There is one body and one Spirit, even as ye are called in one hope of your calling. One Lord, one faith, one baptism." Eph. 4:3, 4, 5. "For ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus. For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ. There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female; for ye are all one in Christ Jesus. And if ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise." Gal. 3:26—29.

"Be ye not unequally yoked together with unbelievers; for what fellowship hath righteousness with unrighteousness? And what communion hath light with darkness? And what concord hath Christ with Belial? Or what part hath he that believeth with an infidel? And what agreement hath the temple of God with idols? For ye are the temple of the living God; as God hath said, I will dwell in them, and walk in them; and I will be their God, and they shall be my people. Wherefore come out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing, and I will receive you." 2 Cor. 6:14—17. "For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ." 1 Cor. 3:11.

CONSIDER THE LILIES.

H. B. THOMPSON.

When Jesus was here on earth he noticed and spoke of a great many simple things of every-day life with which we are all familiar. His parables were especially simple. The parable of the wheat and tares, the lost sheep, the prodigal son, the ten virgins, and the vineyard let out to husbandmen, all were simple and easily understood. Jesus also called our attention to the sparrows, and to the fact that our heavenly Father feedeth them, and that not one of them falls to the ground without his notice. Then comes the comforting assurance that we are of more value than many sparrows. Then again Jesus speaks of the lilies of the field, and he gives us from them a beautiful lesson of God's care for the flowers. Jesus then says, "If God so clothe the grass of the field, which today is, and tomorrow is cast into the oven, how much more will he clothe you." This teaches us that as children of God we can trust our heavenly Father for all the little things of life. And as Jesus drew lessons from these every-day things with which he came in contact, so may we, if we will.

Jesus said, "Consider the lilies.' He spoke of the field lilies, which grew in wild profusion in that country. As far as I know, the fragrant pond lilies which we have here were unknown to the people of that country. Yet by considering the pond lily we may learn some beautiful lessons of God's power. In the first place, let your mind go to some dirty, filthy, mud-hole, where no one thinks of dipping up water to drink, where no one goes to fish, and where bathing is out of question. Yet right there, out of all that mud and filth, God's power has brought one of the most fragrant flowers that we have. How pure and white it is, not a trace of mud or dirt about it to remind one of its former surroundings. And what God has done in nature's realm he has done and can still do in the spiritual realm. Out of the dark and filthy places of the earth God can bring forth children of light, pure as the morning dew, white as the lily, whose presence brings a joy to all with whom they come in contact. Once as filthy as the filth by which they were surrounded, yet now, renewed by the indwelling of the Holy Spirit, they shine in their community as bright lights, which speak to all of God's power to save to the uttermost.

Some Christians would say, "I don't see how one can live a Christian life surrounded by such filth." But the pond lily will here teach us a beautiful lesson. Just notice what a long stem it has, which not only goes down among the filth, but goes clear through it and draws its life from the virgin earth that lies beneath. So with the Christian living among the filth of this world. He draws his life not from the filth by which he is surrounded, but from the solid earth beneath. Another lesson we may learn from the pond lily is from the fact that it does all that it can to make the world better. All day long the lily throws out its fragrance on the air. We as Christians possess a fragrance which a great many know nothing of. Let us, like the pond lily, give out of our fragrance all through the day and thus glorify God.

What makes yon green hill so beautiful? Not the outstanding peak or stately elm, but the bright sward which clothes its slopes, comprised of innumerable blades of slender grass. It is of small things that a great life is made up; and he who will acknowledge no life as great save that which is built up of great things, will find little in Bible characters to admire or copy.—Bonar.

Passionate reproofs are like medicines given scalding hot—the patient cannot take them. If we wish to do good to those we rebuke, we should labor for meekness of wisdom, and use soft words for hard arguments —Dodd.

We shall be judged hereafter not by what we have felt, but by what we have done.

THE PAST CONDITION OF THE NATIONS.

G. H. WALLACE.

That the nations are not to be found by the Lord on their knees before the throne of grace at his coming is too apparently taught in the Scriptures to need argument. Among other things which were shown to John in that apocalyptical vision was the condition of the nations at the time of the judgment, and he described them thus: "And the nations were angry, and thy wrath is come, and the time of the dead, that they should be judged." Rev. 11: 18. Those who have dreamed of the conversion of the world have based much upon Isa. 2 and Micah 4, where a palmy condition of things is described for the last days. It will be observed that the house of the Lord is exalted, and all nations flow unto it. The Lord is to teach the people his ways, and they are to walk in his paths. Implements of warfare are to be beaten into those of husbandry, and the art of war is to be lost. "Nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more."

Now if the Lord said that, and it belongs to the last days of this dispensation, then may skeptics talk of the "self-contradictions of the Bible," for Rev. 11: 18 and numerous other passages would conflict with these two chapters. Possibly our friends who apply those two chapters to these last days, and make them teach the world's conversion, may not have discovered that instead of God uttering these words as a prophecy of peace for this poor, distressed, old world, it is a prophecy of what the people will teach, without divine authority, and with every existing fact in opposition to their teaching. Please notice more carefully the third verse of Isa. 2: "And many people shall go and say." And what do they say? All these pretty things about a universal peace, and prosperity, and religion in the last days. In Micah 4: 2 the same thing is worded thus: "And many nations shall come and say." Then follows this same false prophecy of the people.

We may reasonably expect to hear from God through his inspired prophet in this same connection. In Isa. 2: 6 the prophet speaks. Listen. "Wherefore" (for reasons stated, i. e., because of the false prophecy that will mark the last days) thou hast forsaken thy people, the house of Jacob, because they are replenished from the east, and are soothsayers like the Philistines, and they please themselves in the children of strangers. Their land also is full of silver and gold, neither is there any end of their treasures; and their land also is full of horses, neither is there any end of their chariots Their land also is full of idols; they worship the work of their own hands, that which their own fingers have made. And (notice especially) the mean man boweth down (i. e., pretends to be pious), and the great man humbleth himself; therefore forgive them not."

In Micah 4: 6 the Lord is out with as severe a rebuke for this same deception by the people. The prophet said: "In that day, saith the Lord, I will assemble her that halteth [it seems that some will not go with them], I will gather her that is driven out (hear it), and her that I have afflicted. And I will make her that halted a remnant, and her that was cast far off a strong nation; and the Lord shall reign over them in Mount Zion." How long? "Even forever." "And thou, O tower of the flock, the stronghold of the daughter of Zion, unto thee shall it come, even the first dominion; the kingdom shall come to the daughter of Jerusalem." In the third chapter of Joel, without the people having a word to say about it, is a last-day prophecy. And it is in direct contradiction to what these two prophets have represented the people as saying. Hear it: "Prepare war, wake up the mighty men, let all the men of war draw near, let them come up. Beat your plowshares into swords, and your pruning hooks into spears. . . . Put ye in the sickle, for the harvest is ripe; come, get you down, for the fats overflow, for their wickedness is great. Multitudes, multitudes in the valley of decision" (concision, i. e., cutting off, or threshing, mar.) "for the day of the Lord is near in the valley of decision."

St. Paul grasped the thought of these conflicting prophecies, the one by the people (Isa. 2: 3; Micah 4: 2), and the other by the God of heaven, when he wrote to the church of Thessalonica: "Yourselves know perfectly that the day of the Lord so cometh as a thief in the night; for when they shall say peace and safety, then sudden destruction cometh upon them, . . . and they shall not escape. But ye, brethren, are not in darkness, that that day should overtake you as a thief." Why is the church not in darkness with the rest of the world? She reads her Bible right side up, and predicates her faith on its teachings, instead of the "Whitbyan hypothesis." More, she has a part to act in this drama of earth's closing experience. And may God have mercy (if he can) on the skulkers who creep up under the wings of "peace and safety" crying church. If God has laid it upon the ministry to warn the world of coming events, he has equally laid it upon those who see these truths to stand by them with presence, influence, and means.

MILES GRANT'S MISSION TO AUSTRALIA.

Bro. Stockman:—You will no doubt be pleased to have a few lines from this far away part of the world, and your readers will no doubt be glad to know that there are hearts and lives in Australia that are rejoicing in the Lord and in the power of his might, and who are looking for that blessed hope and the glorious appearing of our Saviour Jesus Christ. During the last few months we have had with us our brother in the Lord, Miles Grant, and there are many who can thank God that he ever came to these shores, for now they rejoice as they never rejoiced before. Bro. Grant has been the means of leading many into light and truth, and the good seed which he has sown brings forth fruit to the honor and glory of God our Father. Hearts have been quickened, lives have been made happier, and the devil has been roused up to greater activity, which is a sure sign of good having been done. Our brother was kept busy in and around Melbourne every night for nearly three months. He had a debate with Joseph Lymes, the champion of free thought in Australia. This debate is now in print, and we pray that our Father will greatly bless it to the conversion of men and women who now sit in darkness. Bro. Grant brought out some grand and telling points. The debate on both sides was carried on in a most gentlemanly and, I might say, Christian manner, for I must say that Mr. Lymes behaved in spirit more like a Christian than many professed Christians do in their debates with one another. Mr. Lymes is much impressed with Bro. Grant, and counts him as one of his personal friends.

The last week of our brother's visit he held another debate with pastor Abbott, who is a believer in universal restoration. Bro. Grant made many telling points when on the spirit of man. Pastor Abbott's whole structure is built upon the assumption that man is spirit, the offspring of God, therefore God will not destroy his own offspring. This great error of universal restoration is spreading rapidly through all our churches. The devil has changed front. He has run the eternal torment of the wicked to the death, and has made tens of thousands of skeptics through this awful slander upon our Father's character. He has, however, been defeated all along the line. He has been exposed, and it is now seen by thousands that he is a liar. Those who still profess to believe it are ashamed to say anything about it, so we may conclude that it is now made powerless. Now we are confronted with an error more subtle, for it seeks to shelter under the love of God, and with much sentiment, cant, and hypocrisy, pretends to see in man one great brotherhood, and in God the universal Father. The devil is now transformed into an angel of light, and cannot possibly say too much in favor of our heavenly Father. A few years ago the devil proclaimed far and near that God was cruel and hateful, and for his own selfish pleasure he created men for the purpose of tormenting them forever. All this is changed now. This angel of darkness is preaching universal salvation through spiritualism, theosophy, and at last through our modern pulpits.

We must brighten up our armor, brethren, and not waste too much time striking at a dead theology (i. e. eternal torment), but meet the enemy on his new ground. This new delusion will take, for men are pleased to know that they may live and die in rebellion against God and still have ample provision made for them to become partakers of the divine nature, and thus live forever. May Bro. Grant long be spared to lift up the standard, now that the enemy is come in like a flood. Many of the Melbourne brethren think that their American brethren would be much stronger against this new form of error if they could see their way clear to broaden out, and thus find ample room in their teaching to include the restoration of all things spoken of by the mouths of all the holy prophets since the world began. By so doing they would be able to wrench from the enemy scores of passages which they use so powerfully to prove their position of universal restitution. One thing we are certain about, the curtain drops upon a scene—the lake of fire, which is the second death, and all whose names are not found written in the book of life are doomed to perish. Letters have been sent us from different parts of Australia and New Zealand deeply deploring the fact that Bro. Grant has left us so soon. Many in Australia thank God that our brother ever came, and they are determined through the grace and mercy of God to meet him in the coming morning to share with him the glories of our risen Christ.

THERE is not a moment without some duty.

"WALK BEFORE ME AND BE THOU PERFECT."

GEO. E. WOODFORD.

The subject for our consideration is a command of God. The speaker said by way of introduction, "I, am the almighty God." In his address to Abram he said, "And I will make my covenant between me and thee, and will multiply thee exceedingly. And Abram fell on his face; and God talked with him, saying, As for me, behold my covenant is with thee, and thou shalt be a father of many nations. Neither shall thy name any more be called Abram, but thy name shall be called Abraham. For a father of many nations have I made thee. And I will give unto thee and to thy seed after thee the land wherein thou art a stranger; all the land of Canaan for an everlasting possession, and I will be their God. And God said unto Abraham, Thou shalt keep my covenant, therefore, thou and thy seed after thee, in their generations." How fitting, then, the command. "For if ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise."

We see at a glance that the command includes all Christians. "Walk before me and be thou perfect." According to Bible testimony, Abraham's ways pleased God. How can we be perfect in all the will of God? He has revealed to us his law in the sacred Scriptures, denoting the rule of action we are to follow. Law speaks order; a privation of law is disorder. We read, "The law of the Lord is perfect, converting the soul" Jas. 1: 25. "But whoso looketh into the perfect law of liberty, and continueth therein, he being not a forgetful hearer but a doer of the word, this man shall be blessed in his deeds." Can we think of a perfect man? Just think a moment. Yes, the man Christ Jesus. He was a hearer and a doer of the word. We hear him say, "My Father loveth me because I always seek to do those things that please him." We must be perfect, as God commands, looking into the law of liberty. He has something for us to do. We can please him who has called us to be soldiers. And our work begins when we listen to what God has to say to us, and are ready to go and come at his command. We do well to give the text our most careful consideration. David says, "Thy word have I hid in my heart that I might not sin against thee." A radical change has taken place in the heart of all God's true children. He has shown us the exceeding sinfulness of sin, and we turn from it as from the messenger of death.

David says, "Blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly, nor standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful. But his delight is in the law of the Lord, and in his law doth he meditate day and night." Jesus says, "Whoso heareth these sayings of mine and doeth them, I will liken him unto a wise man that built his house upon a rock; and the rain descended, and the floods came, and beat upon that house, and it fell not for it was founded upon a rock." A common expression when we strike rock we strike solid foundation. "Christ is the solid rock." We are not commanded to be perfect in and of our selves, that is an impossibility, but to be perfect in all the will of God. In the first place hearers of the word and doers. My little children I have written unto you that ye sin not, but that ye walk worthy of the vocation wherewith ye are called. We do well to dig deep and build on the solid rock. That rock, Christ Jesus, who was smitten and from whose side came forth water and blood, the fountain of life, and from his lips came the words father forgive them. Truly Jesus came to seek and to save that which was lost. The scholar that loves his teacher is very considerate to observe the code of laws by which the school is disciplined. And so it is in the school of Christ. If we would grow up into Christ, our living head, and be made fit subjects for immortality, we should give his words of admonition the first place in our minds and hearts, for in keeping of them there is great reward. John 1: 47: "Philip findeth Nathanael, and saith unto him, We have found him of whom Moses in the law and the prophets did write, Jesus of Nazareth, the son of Joseph. And Nathanael said unto him, Can there any good thing come out of Nazareth? Philip said unto him, Come and see. Jesus saw Nathanael coming to him and said of him, "Behold, an Israelite indeed, in whom is no guile! Nathanael saith unto him, Whence knowest thou me? Jesus answered and said unto him, Before Philip called thee, when thou wast under the fig-tree I saw thee. Nathanael answered and said unto him, Rabbi, thou art the Son of God, thou art the king of Israel."

Noah was a just man and perfect in his generation, and Noah walked with God. Enoch walked with God three hundred years and was not, for God took him. Job 8: 20. "Behold, God will not cast away a perfect man, neither will he help an evil-doer." Ps. 101: 2. Said David, "I will behave myself wisely in a perfect way, I will walk within my house with a perfect heart. I will not set any wicked thing before me." Jesus said to the young man that had great riches, "If thou wilt be perfect, sell that thou hast and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasures in heaven." The writer believes that the old Jewish law made nothing perfect, but the bringing in of a better hope did; by the which we draw nigh unto God. The blood of Jesus Christ, his son, cleanseth us from all sin. In the ordinance of baptism we show to the world our faith in the death, burial, and resurrection of Jesus Christ. And we show to the world by following Jesus in baptism that we are dead to sin and alive to God. We believe all good things are possible with God. And I close by asking all to read Eph. 6, and let the precepts therein contained be written upon the tablets of your hearts.

A REMARKABLE INCIDENT OF A FALSE CHRIST.

J. C. SMITH.

"Take heed that no man deceive you."—MATT. 24: 4. "For many shall come in my name, saying, I am Christ, and shall deceive many."—MARK 13: 6.

By the permission of our editor I will relate an occurrence which took place and brought about the knowledge of a false Christ in Paris, while we were in England, at the city of Brighton, or as it is frequently called, "London by the sea." We were kindly entertained at the home of Bro. Horniman, who made arrangements for us to hold meetings at the Y. M. C. A. hall, pavilion, and town hall. While there, scattering the seed with Brn. Cunningham, and Hudson, from house to house in that large city, I visited an aged and eminent scholar, understanding five different languages or more. He was over seventy years old, and could write a good hand in Hebrew, German, Greek, and English. He became so interested in our work that he sent some of our tracts and wrote to Mr. Guillaume (or William) Monod, of Paris, a false Christ who has established churches in France, Switzerland, Germany, and Africa. Mr. Merille de Colleville, the aged scholar of Brighton, subsequently received a letter from Mr. Monod, requesting that it should be shown to us. In sending this letter I will also send an extract of a letter that Prof. Colleville sent to us with the one he received from Paris.

Brighton, 24 Chatham Place, 23 Feb., 1889. To J. Smith, Esq., Adventist Missionary at Eastbourne, in Sussex, England. Dear Sir: Having sent to the Rev. Guillaume Monod some of your tracts and circulars, so that your mission be known to him, allow me to send you the enclosed letter, dictated to a secretary and signed by its author, Pastor William Monod, formerly a pastor for fifty years in the Reformed church of France (the Protestant church of the country and its established one), and now since 1874 head of several churches of his own. The letter of Mr. Monod is his answer to the various tracts which of late have been circulated here about the second coming of our blessed Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, the one hope of God's people. Pastor Guillaume (William) Monod is the eldest brother of the late Adolphus Monod and of the uncle of the present Rev. Theodorus Monod, two celebrated French pastors even in this country, and perhaps not unknown in America. He was in 1800 born of a most respectable family of Christians, which gave to the world a good many ministers of the holy gospel. He himself received a first-class Christian education. Moreover, he is deeply acquainted with the Holy Scriptures and reads them in the original languages.

One single and extraordinary point distinguishes him from other Christian pastors. It is his declaring ever since 1832, by word of mouth and pen and print, that God told him many times that he, Pastor Monod, is Christ; and that God converses with him every day. Such declarations, according to our way of understanding all texts concerning the expected return of Christ, are mere delusions. Pastor William Monod offers to every serious inquirer a very large amount of literature written by himself or his believers to establish his claims to credibility. I think, save better judgment, that since Pastor Monod has now local churches in France, in Switzerland, in Germany, and in Africa, it is the imperative duty of churches not to acknowledge him, but especially expecting an "at hand" coming of the Lord, to investigate this matter in a most thorough and satisfactory manner. If Pastor Monod's statements and doctrine be found out worthy of acceptation, well and good. Let it be proclaimed near and far. If on the contrary the same be found worthy of a genuine condemnation, let it be officially and publicly pronounced. In both cases an immensely valuable service is done unto Christendom. Pastor Monod (whose address is No. 65, Avenue de Bretewil, Paris, France,) will answer all questions. May the Lord be with you always. With kind regard to yourself and lady, believe me, dear sir, yours truly. Merrille de Colleville.

I will now subjoin for the interest of the readers of THE WORLD'S CRISIS a portion of the Paris letter.

Paris, 22 Fevrier, 1889, 65 Avenue de Bretewil. My dear Friend and Brother in God: I thank you for the interesting letter you sent me concerning the interpretation of the prophecies on the coming of Christ. You tell me that some preachers do proclaim that he will come soon. Allow me to say that I do not understand how sincere Christians like those whom you mention can conciliate their interpretations with the words of the Scripture, as this one in Peter's second epistle: "No prophecy of the Scripture is of private interpretation." 2 Pet. 1: 20; or with this declaration of the Lord: "It is not for you to know times or seasons which the Father hath set within his own authority." Acts 1: 7. Again, has Jesus not said that the Son of God himself did not know the day of his coming? Matt. 24: 42. For my part, I never presumed to guess from any prophecy when the Son of God would come, much less to affirm it. But when I had not the least idea that the Lord would ever speak with me, God spake to me with a clear, loud voice, confirming his promises. You know that the French police seized me when I was going to announce to King Louis Philippe that he would lose his throne, and I was confined in a mad-house. There the Lord continued to speak to me, confirming the truth of the divine Scriptures and the coming of the judgment. I felt afraid, and for a moment feared to be lost.

This was in the spring of the year 1832, when suddenly and as unexpectedly as possible burst out with a clear, loud voice these words: "Thou art Jesus Christ." I was at that moment prostrate in prayer, lying on the floor, like Jesus in Gethsemane. My inward answer was: "But am I not a sinner?" The divine reply was: "No," and my divine Father told me that he knew no sin in my past life. I was then thirty-two years old, and God assured me that he had seen no sin in me during that long space of time. Dear friend, will you believe me? I must confess that till that day I had believed that I must be a sinner, since the Scriptures declare that every man is a sinner; but I never had known a time in my then past life when I did not fear God and did not wish to obey him. I therefore believed what God said to me; and from that day, in the year 1832, till now in the year 1889, I have never doubted the truth of the declaration of my Father (the devil—J. C. S.) assuring me that I am Jesus Christ. He reminded me that Jesus Christ had called his death on the cross the judgment of the world (John 12), adding that his second judgment as his second coming could not but be a second suffering of Christ to save the still lost portion of mankind, when they would know and believe who it was that had suffered a second time to convert and save all the lost.

My dear friend and brother, will you believe me when I assure you that this doctrine, I say, this sublime revelation, was not found by me in any human book, nor came out of my own mind, but came down from heaven like the gospel eighteen hundred years ago. Amen. The judge of the world is come a second time, and has judged the world a second time by taking the sin of the world upon himself, that the whole world may be saved by a second cross of the same Saviour. This cross is his royal throne. Therefore it is to no purpose to wait for Christ's coming, since he is come. Amen. GUILLAUME MONOD.

This looks to me like the ravings of a mad man or one possessed with a demon. Truly we are amid the perils of the last days. Let all watch and pray that they enter not into temptation, and "be not deceived." The Judge standeth at the door. He is not to come again in the person of some poor mad man, but he will come the same Jesus as he went away, to save his people and to destroy the wicked. That day is just upon us. May all be watching and waiting for that grand and glorious event.

RESIGNATION.

We regret to make the announcement that our beloved pastor, Eld. J. C. Smith has tendered his resignation as pastor of the church at Everett, to engage in special mission work in New York State. Bro. Smith, as a servant of our blessed Lord, is willing to go wheresoever he may be led by the Holy Spirit, to scatter the seed and to break the bread of life to the unsaved. The members of the Everett church bid him God-speed in his new field of usefulness, and commit him and his beloved family to the Christian fellowship and care of those with whom he may be associated.

WM. REYNOLDS, Clerk.

WHO has a greater combat than he that laboreth to overcome himself? This ought to be our endeavor, to conquer ourselves and daily wax stronger and to make a further growth in holiness.

OUR HOPE: OR WHY ARE WE ADVENTISTS?

BY E. A. STOCKMAN.

PRICE 60 CENTS.

TESTIMONIALS.

Eld. D. T. Taylor writes: "A pleasant and profitable volume indeed. Sweet spirited, eloquently written, charming and logical. It meets a felt need in our literature. Take pains to circulate it. Put them in Sunday Schools. Put them in public libraries. Give the book to the sick; it will comfort them. Place it in the hands of ministers. Wherever it goes it will silently proclaim Jesus' coming, and this is what Adventists are raised up to do."

Hiram Munger writes: "It is a condensed production of our whole faith, backed up by scripture on every point sufficiently to convince all that want to be convinced One brother said he would not take twenty-five dollars for his cop if he could not get another. Buy it, read it, and lend it to your neighbors to read."
